COUNCIL OPPOSE COMMISSIONERS' REPORT ON GRADE CROSSINGS

Gus Bates Gives Reason Against Scheme and Tells of Good to Result From Adoption of Other Plans

Investigation of the Fire Department Ordered and Committee Selected For Purpose will Get Right to Work

Budget Passed as Reported by Finance Committee with $5,000 Additional For Highways

The City Council got down to its old time form Monday evening and reached an adjournment just as the clock struck ten. The main business of the evening was the budget although several other matters came up. One of these was a resolution for a special committee to attend the hearing before the Railroad Commissioners and oppose the decree separating the grades at Water and Saville streets. After some debate C. B. Bates, the famous depression man, was allowed to appear before the council and explain why he opposed the decree.

Another matter that came up, but which passed without a word of debate was an order calling for a special committee to investigate the fire department.

When the budget came up Councilman Cunningham made several attempts to increase the amounts but was successful in but one case, that of the amount for highway which was increase from $35,000 to $40,000.

Councilman Boyd and Gilliat were absent.

A communication was received from the Auditor stating that bills amounting to $51.76 for tuition of residents of Quincy in Boston trade school had been received. Councilman Bailey offered an order transfering that amount from receipts from other places for tuition. Referred to the Finance Committee.

A venire was received for the drawing of seven traverse jurors. The Mayor, City Clerk and Councilman Richards drew the following according to law: Arthur H. Sylvester, William Gelotte, Charles F. Pettengill, Walter H. Andrews, Ruthford B. Holmes, George Farquhar, Johan Johanson.

A communication was received from the Mayor appointing the following assistant assessors as constables, Charles B. Yule, Albion C. MacKay, Louis K. Badger, August N. Weeden, Charles R. Sherman. Confirmed.

Applications for apportionment of street and sidewalk betterments were referred to the Finance Committee.

A petition for the oiling of Brook street and North Central avenue was referred to the Committee on Streets.

A number of applications for minor licenses were received and referred to the License committee.

GRADE CROSSING.

Councilman Cunningham offered a resolution for a special committee of three members of the Council with the Mayor and City Solicitor to attend the hearing before the railroad Commissioners Friday and oppose the approval of the decree of the special commissioners on separation of the grades in Quincy. He also moved that G. B. Bates be allowed fifteen minutes to address the Council.

Councilman Bailey thought they ought to find out what good it would do to oppose the decree.

In reply City Solicitor McAnarney said that he had been connected with the case since the adminstration of ex-Mayor Shea. The commissioners gave great consideration to every plan, and he hoped for the sake of the City of Quincy no one would criticise unless familiar with the proposed plans. The matter was now before the Railroad Commission who will deal with the question and will make its report to the Superior court. He wanted to say that the City of Quincy had been laboring under a disadvantage because it has never stood for broad public interest. Nearly every plan had back of it a private interest. Not one of the plans dealt with the future growth of the city. An attempt had been made to have the city further a plan that was not a proper one. The city dealt with the best plan it could, and got down to the best one available.

In his judgment no good can be accomplished by carrying the fight any further. If they went before the commissioners and oppose they must retain engineers and expend money. He thought that they would find the great stress of opposition was root and soul in personal interest of those who are opposed to it. Any citizen whose land is damaged may appear before the Railroad Commissioners. All plans for the past six years, except that of the Board of Trade, and that he believed was inspired, have dealt with personal interests.

Councilman Bryant did not see how two orders could be acted upon at one time. He moved reference of the resolution to the committee on Legislative Matters that it might die.

Councilman Cunningham said that he was not fussy about the fate of the order. It is just as well if this grade crossing business is not hurried. Is the time so precious after waiting for six years that it must now be hurried? Mr. Bates is interested in this matter and if he has any information they should get it.

Councilman Bryant did not think the Council wanted to put itself on record. If Mr. Bates wants to go before the Railroad Commissioners he has a right to.

Councilman Richards said that it was not a personal matter with him. That the Board of Trade and Granite Manufacturers association agreed on a plan. It had taken the special commission six years to decide and now the council is expected to decide inside of a week.

The motion to refer to a committee was lost as was also a motion to lay on the table.

Motion to allow Mr. Bates fifteen minutes was then adopted. In opening Mr. Bates thanked God that he could stand above personal interest in this question. The plans called for a Chinese wall through the city. It stops up Saville street and annihilates Irving place. The railroad want you to assume the cost of extending a new street to Granite street when it is up to the railroad to do this at its own expense. The special commission went beyond its scope when it did not eliminate the crossings at Saville and Water streets.

He had ten reasons why the Saville street plan should not be accepted. They in brief were that it would entail many law suits. It was up to the railroad and not the city to connect Irving place with Granite street. It would make a Chinese wall through the city. It would raise School street twelve feet. It raises Marsh street eight feet causing much land damage. It puts Water street down in a hole with a prohibative grade under the bridge and creates new streets. The Commission exceeded its scope of authority and favored the railroad much more than the city and was more expensive.

Mr. Bates also gave a dozen reasons why the city plan should be accepted. These reasons in brief were that every street is saved, there will be no great land damages, there will be no dead end streets, there will be no Chinese wall, it makes Irving place a beautiful street to Granite street, it provides a new way for the boulevard from Hancock street to connect with the boulevard on the east side of the tracks; and lastly because the City of Quincy voted in public meeting for depression.

Mr. Bates having used up his time retired thanking the Council for the opportunity to speak. The resolution was then adopted.

President Whiton appointed Councilmen Cunningham, Richards and Thompson as the committee.

ORDERS.

Councilman Richards offered an order for a special committee of five to investigate the Fire Department. Adopted. President Whiton appointed the following committee—Councilmen Richards, Griffin, Little, Boyd, Duffy.

Councilman Ericson offered an order for $259 to build two tide gates in the creek under the Metropolitan sewer near Rock Island. Referred to Finance Committee.

President Whiton recalled all applications for licenses which were referred to the Mayor for investigation and referred them to the License Committee.

Order 83 appropriating the receipts from House connections with the sewer to house connections with the sewer came up for its final passage and was referred to the Finance Committee.

The order appropriating $40,000 for sewer extensions was passed to be ordained after a motion to refer to the Committee on Finance had failed to pass.

The order appropriating $1,650 for the purchase of three lots of land near the City stables for a dump came up for its final passage. As one of the parties has withdrawn the option given on the land the order was referred to the Finance Committee on a

RARE TREAT IN MUSIC LINE

AN EXCELLENT PROGRAM

To say that the recital of Max Lipmann at Colonial hall, Monday evening was a success, is putting it very mild. It was not only a success, but a burst of enthusiasm, such as Quincy had never witnessed in the past in point of musical entertainments. Society was there in force and added no small brilliancy to the event. Max Lipmann is indeed a tenor of uncommon ability, and it must be sincerely regretted that circumstances have been such at the Boston Opera that he was never cast for the roles that he was best suited for, or those that he was familiar with. Thus has been witnessed a case where a dramatic tenor has been cast for lyric roles, not only, but in a language, the English, with which he was not familiar. Mr. Lipmann has not received the opportunities that would have made him more familiar with and more liked by the Boston public, and that it has fallen to Quincy to hear, appreciate and value such a versatile singer. From the German folk songs, to the French "Chansonette," and from the Italian melodies to the German and Italian dramatic opera Arias, he has shown himself an intelligent and masterful interpreter.

His voice has a rich resonant quality especially in the upper register and his dramatic type is more evident in the rendition of "Celeste Aida" and the narrative of "Lohengrin" than his interpretation of "Lionel's" Aria in "Martha." Mr. Lipmann himself says that such a role as "Lionel" is not adapted to his voice. This number however was inserted in the program to demonstrate his versatility as well as giving an air familiar and dear to the American public, and his rendition was well worthy of note.

No small part of the success was due to the charming and artistic singing of Mrs. Slade. While quite familiar with her voice and her singing, every new recital, and every new song or aria this gifted soprano chooses to appear in or sing, uncovers new charms and new delights, her interpretations always showing taste and artistic finish, for example her rendition of the "Fairy Pipers," which was as dainty as it was effective and appealing.

The feature of the evening was no doubt the performance for the first time of three new compositions. One by Charles Strony, Assistant conductor of the Boston Opera Co., and two by Mr. Barraja, Quincy's now well known resident and composer. Mr. Strony's composition shows a leaning to Debussy, which was quite towards the most melodious traits of this composer rather than towards

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Dr. Friedman's determination to save the coming race is laudable. May his discovery prove as valuable as he fondly believes it is.

The time for the annual crop of fish stories has arrived and the sea serpent will again be seen disporting himself in the waters of every bay along the coast. His size of course will depend entirely upon the brand.

A Dorchester clergyman claims that laughter is conductive to good health. It is all right when spontaneous but when forced it has rather a doubtful value.

The fire machines go a little slower but they get around in time to perform efficient service just the same.

Houghs Neck people are not partial to the dance halls. Hardly one can blame them for this sentiment.

Quincy is rather late in getting to work raising a fund for the middle west sufferers.

It is claimed that the compensation act is being abused in some instances. It would be a queer measure indeed which some sharper would not be able to evade in some way.

The Chicago street car men got a raise of two cents which looks small but when it totals up $700,000 in a year it looks more substantial.

After all the noise about New England governors uniting in the movement for railroad reform methods, the bottom has dropped out of the whole thing.

New York wants home rule for its police force. It is about time it had some sort of rule over the corps.

PUBLIC CALL ANSWERED.

The call of the public for a lesser rate of speed on the part of fire apparatus going to fires has been heeded at last and ample evidence has been presented to show an improvement along the lines suggested. An accident led to the speed reduction. On many occasions citizens have voiced a protest, both verbally and otherwise to the terrific speed attained by some of the apparatus on its way to fires. Little heed was given to this public request, but a mighty change has taken place within the past few days and it is appreciated by the public. The machines make good time under the present regulation and there is less danger to the wrecking of the machines and the occupants and the general public, than under the express train speed which had previously been maintained. No great harm can come from this reduced speed and a great deal of good which will not always be in evidence will undoubtedly result.

GLAD TO HEAR IT.

It is settled beyond dispute. Boston women are the most calm but careless and best in the world and the men the most polite, according to a Harvard professor who has been studying humans in the subway for several months past. He must have been a very busy personage during that period, but humanity ought to be thankful that he has solved a problem of such great moment and at last the truth and nothing but the truth on this subject can filter to the outside world. Boston people should feel proud of the distinction which has been accorded them and the people of the suburbs are grateful for the privilege of rubbing elbows with such classy people and are thankful that they can bask in the rays of sunshine intellectually speaking which are spread around so promiscuously by this great body of great Boston people.

A DIRE CALAMITY.

A strike of the telephone operators in the greater Boston district is threatened unless the demands which have been made to the company are complied or arbitrated in someway. Gracious what a shock it would be to have every one of those girls leave their switch boards and the entire city of Boston being without the use of telephones for an indefinite period. Undoubtedly the company is prepared to meet any emergency as far as possible but it would be a severe tax on their ability to meet a striking situation of the entire corps of operators. It is said there are about 2000 girls employed. If they all left the board at the same time, it would be nothing short of a dire calamity. The arbitration and schedule committee of the union has been instructed to see the president of the company before Thursday. It is to be hoped that arbitration will prove effective in settling this matter, and that no hold up of the telephone service will result. It would be a serious affair indeed if the telephone service of Boston, was effectually muzzled even for the briefest possible period. It is up to the operators and company to settle their differences in a manner satisfactory to both, so that the public will not be even temporarily discommoded.

TEAM WORK.

It often happens that two people meeting and apropos of nothing in particular, simply to start conversation will comment on the action or course of some one with whom they are both personally acquainted. "He is a good worker, an earnest advocate and unselfish laborer." To this the other will reply, "Very true, he is all that you say, but he wants to do it all himself. He is self centered, he does not believe in team work."

Team work is a great source of progressiveness in any undertaking. It means getting there, accomplishing something, with every one having a shoulder at the wheel, dividing, and at the same time lightening the burden.

Greater results are secured by team work than by individual effort along any lines of purpose, but the team has to be agreeable, unanimous, in harmony and all working for the common purpose and the goal of success will be reached quicker than can be imagined. But one unit of the team slowing up or showing any signs of hanging back in the traces and the efficiency of the entire outfit is impaired.

Individual effort in any good cause, cannot fail of results. It must be productive of some benefits but it can never reach the splendid and more pronounced achievements which develope from team work.

HEPTASOPHS GAVE GOOD TIME

Granite Conclave Entertained Many at Second Assembly

With many members and friends present, including a large number of out of town guests, the annual social dance of Granite Conclave, Order of Heptasophs at Alpha Hall, Monday evening was a grand success. Music was furnished by Provosts orchestra.

The floor was in charge of William De Coste. Thomas Deane was assistant floor director and Alvin MacKay was chief of aids. The aids were Richard Jones, Thomas Kennedy, Edward Brown, M. H. Irving, John E. Byron, John Kalson, H. Hinkley, E. P. Hill, J. Cahill and Mark B. Gill.

The committee of arrangements was Joseph J. Mullen, chairman; William Canty, Thomas Raiche, Patrick Healy, Roy Haynes, Arthur Austin and Thomas Kennedy.

COMING TO QUINCY.

The Quincy performance of "The Stymie," the annual play of the Pi Eta Society of Harvard University, will be the sixth time the comedy has been presented before the public. It met with instantaneous success the first night, but they do say it is a more polished production now, and no one should miss it. Act one is on the home tee of the Minntopa Golf Club. Act two is on the veranda of the club house, and Act three is the same as Act one. Trevor Graham, who has come to grief on Wall street is the hero, and the part of Burtie Charlton, his college friend, is taken by Paul Blackmur '15 of Quincy. Mademoiselle Carliot is the heroine and a debutante, a lady of uncertain age, a telegraph operator and a ballet dancer are prominent among the females of the cast. The chorus includes six girls in the pony ballet, six show girls and six men. The Stymie comes to Quincy Music hall Thursday evening.

ENGLISH CLASS FINISHED WORK

Finnish Residents Eagerly Seek the Benefits

The English classes of the Finnish Congregational church closed Friday evening after a six weeks session. The work was conducted under the direction of A. F. Bromley of the Y. M. C. A. and Rev. John E. Lillback, pastor of the church. The teachers A. J. Patterson, L. C. King, Charles Avery and Alton Avery gave their services gratis.

An address on the merits of the course, its object and the results that can be obtained through a mastery of the English language was given by Mr. Bromley.

Rev. Mr. Lillback spoke of the effort of the Y. M. C. A. in providing the course and explained the functions of the organization.

Scripture reading and selections by a male chorus were on the program.

The course has been greatly appreciated by the Finnish people and the eagerness with which they accepted the opportunity was demonstrated by their faithfulness.

LIQUOR LAWS WILL STAND

Committee Believed to Agree on Reporting to Withdraw

ON MEASURES BEFORE THEM

The daylight liquor bill and the measure seeking the repeal of the bar and bottle act are to be taken up by the committee on legal affairs Tuesday morning in executive session, it is understood. There is some belief that the committee will decide to report leave to withdraw on both measures.

These two bills are much before the public at this time because of the recent controversy between the temperance forces and the committee on liquor laws, a controversy which resulted in having the measures taken from the committee and given over to the committee on legal affairs. The daylight liquor bill provides that saloons shall not open before 8 A. M., and the temperance forces are backing it with facts and figures to support the contention that many accidents have happened to workingmen because they were able to secure liquor before their day's toil.

The bar and bottle act repeal is sought by the liquor dealers. This act as it stands on the statute books today separates the bar and bottle trade.

When these bills came before the committee on liquor law a few weeks ago. Arthur J. Davis, superintendent of the Massachusetts anti-saloon league, who represented the allied temperance forces, withdrew from the hearing, charging that the committee did not give fair and impartial treatment to the temperance forces. Senator McLane of Fall River, was chairman of that committee. He was the one who originally reported the daylight liquor bill and when it came up for vote, voted against it, thus incurring the animosity of the temperance people.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

BOTTLE DID THE JOB

As a result of a row in the camp of the railroad employees Monday night Antonio Goaguina received several cuts on the head and Antonio Donsantos was arrested. Goaguina appeared in South Braintree square with his head and face covered with blood and told patrolman John Shay that he had been hit with a beer bottle. Dr. J. W. Watson took several stitches in an ugly gash over the left eye.

Chief of Police Hunt and Shay only arrested Donsantos after much difficulty, as the other employees attempted to conceal him.

MISS PARKER ON WAY HOME

From the Flooded and Devastated Dayton District

WILL ARRIVE TONIGHT

Miss Ruth Parker of Atlantic who has been in the flooded district of Dayton, O., will arrive home this evening. She telegraphed her father, Theodore Parker, of Tirrell avenue, from Buffalo, N. Y., that she was on the way home, Monday. She was a physical director in a Y. W. C. A., and this building and the immediate locality in which she lived is believed to have been swept by the flood. Miss Parker's relatives were anxious for her safety for several days after the first reports of the disaster filtered through from the devasted and isolated district, but as soon as communication was established she telegraphed home to relieve their anxiety.

CITY COUNCIL

rising vote of 13 yes and 7 no.

The annual appropriation order came up for a second reading. Upon motion of Councilman Bryant the rules were suspended. Councilman Cunningham moved to strike out the figures $35,000 after the words "Highway expenses, etc." and insert the figures $40,000. After some little discussion the amendment was adopted.

Councilman Cunningham moved to divide the amount for Gypsy Moth so that it would read "Public property $5,000 private property $2,000" after some little discussion Councilman Cunningham withdrew his motion.

ARGUED FOR SCHOOL BUDGET.

Chairman Miller was then called before the Council and he argued at length to have the amounts which the school budget had been cut put back. It was impossible he said to run the schools for the amounts named. He also stated that the city Council had no right to say that the teachers should get an increase in salary. Later however he denied making the statement.

After Chairman Miller had finished his talk Councilman Cunningham moved amendments to the amounts for Administration, text books, operation and miscellaneous, all of which were rejected..

The order was then passed to be ordained.

As the order stands as passed the grand total is $508,352.15.

Adjourned at 10 o'clock until April 7.

his incongruous harmonies, and all rejoice in it, thus presenting in Mr. Strony, a composer of uncommon ability. Mr. Barraja's new compositions were a new revelation, although they are inclined to be rather food for the most accomplished singers, their difficulty being above the average. However this is a fault common to all young composers, and with maturity should come the difficult trait of writing within the reach of the less technically gifted singers. This criticism does not mean to minimize the value of the compositions in question. To the contrary, "Dolce Richiamo" and "Amore" are a proof of a vivid conception of the development of relative harmonies upon a texture of sentimentality and poetical environments.

In all three new compositions the worthy interpreter was Mr. Lipmann.

Of Mr. Barraja-Frauenfelder, one wishes to speak in a different tone than his attitude would warrant. His insistence in considering himself an amateur and not a professional does not give license to analize his qualities. In spite of his self styled rank, his singing is such that a professional could well envy. His diction, in all the languages he sang in, namely English, German, French and Italian, was as perfect as could be expected by any professional in either of the above languages as his mother language. It was a pleasant surprise to note that his interpretation of the Mefistofele "Prologue" was an artistic achievement. His other numbers were equally worthy of the professional concert platform.

As a rule the accompanist in such musicales as this one remains in the obscurity. But it would be an ungrateful thing to treat Mr. Barraja thus. The difficulty of practically all the accompaniments unfolded the fact that it was not a mere accompanist at the piano but a pianist master of all the resources of his art, and the heavy burden placed upon his shoulders in one evening gives the easy solution of the problem, that the success of the whole program was principally due to his sympathetic and skillful support, besides the arrangements of the whole affair.

Mr. Lipmann was very generous with his encores and contributed besides one more German folk song, the "Madrigale" by Barraja, and the Duke's entry of "Rigolette" after the "Celeste Aida" with an enthusiastic audience standing, and refusing to go compelled him to repeat.

Mrs. Slade contributed extra: "It is funny but it's true" and Mr. Barraja-Frauenfelder the "Little Irish Girl" and "My Jacqueminot."

SUNDAY SCHOOL BOYS AND GIRLS

Make Good in Drills, Sketches, Songs and Recitations

A delightful concert was given by the Sabbath School of the First Presbyterian Church, Monday evening. A large and appreciative audience whose enthusiasm was not diminished by the inclement weather enjoyed the program.

The entertainment consisted of solo numbers, a flag drill and two sketches. The affair was under the direction of Alexander Clark, superintendent of the Sunday School, assisted by a large number of teachers.

The Flag Drill, an exhibition of patriotism which was given by young girls was the hit of the evening. Under the direction of Captain Beatrice Medlyn the drillers went through a manual of arms which gave a most picturesque setting because of the costumes worn. The Goddess of Liberty was depicted by Miss Annie Medlyn and Myrtle Collins was the Flower Girl. Edna Hannant and Marion Walker were the leaders. The soldiers were Edith Collins, Caroline Gray, Gladys Imlay, Margaret Matheson, Stella Matheson, Katherine Lamont, Irene McLeod, Margaret Johnson, Mary Reynolds, Katherine Mcleod, Mabel McLeod, Lillian Bissett and Isabelle Sanderson.

This part of the program was in charge of Miss Jessie Shirley, Miss Margaret Michael and Miss Margaret Morrison all teachers of the school.

"A Love of A Bonnett" a 20 minute sketch full of brilliancy and pathos was well given.

The characters were:

Mrs. Clipper, (a widow) Marion Raleigh
Kitty, (her daughter) Edith Murray
Aunt Jemima Hopkins, (a little inquisitive) Beatrice Brown
Mrs. Hortensia Fastine, (very genteel) Margaret McLennon
Dora, (her daughter) Winnie Collins
Katty Doolan, (Irish Help) Annie Jenkins

The applause was loud and long after the completion of sketch. Miss Ruth Kemp had charge.

An atheltic skit, "The All America Game" in which all the boys wore athletic suits was given by Louis Marini, James Matheson, William Falconer, William Cummings, Wallace McIntosh, Chester Moyle, Sterling McKenzie, Roy Cramond, Albert Aberdeen, John Campbell, Nelson Lamont and Charlse Imray.

The children of the Primary Department sang "A Mother's Song" and national airs were given by a chorus of mixed voices.

Several recitations were given by the Misses Beatrice Lamont, Edna Hannant and Lillian Tinney. Piano selections were given by Miss Margaret McLeod and Miss Edna Milne. The soloists of the evening were Miss Margaret McLeod and Miss Annie Heggie.

Miss Margaret Morrison, pianist for the Sunady school was the accompanist for the entire program.

A candy table on which were piled dainty sweets were dispensed to the gay assembly by the girls of the Ruth and Lydia Class. The affair continued until shortly after 10 o'clock. The flag drill and sketches were particularly good in every feature and won great approval.

MANY REPAIRS AT FINN CHURCH

Society Rapidly Growing in Numbers and Importance

At a business meeting of the Finnish Congregational Church Saturday evening it was decided to paint the church, inside and outside, and to make all necessary repairing. Four new members were voted into the congregation.

The membership of the church has rapidly increased since the erection of their house of worship. It is not unusual for services to be overcrowded and there is considerable sentiment favorable to an enlargement in the near future.

YOUNG ROGER LINCOLN FOUND IN PITTSBURG BY HIS MOTHER

Mysterious Journey of The Chief Partially Explained

Chief of Police Burrell arrived home at eight A. M. today, bringing with him Roger Lincoln, age fourteen, who was taken away from the Washington School some three weeks ago by his older brother, Earl, who has been working out of the State for the past year.

Mrs. Lincoln, the mother, who was nearly prostrated at the loss of the boy, immediately reported the case to Chief of Police Bates of Cohasset, a near relative of Mrs. Lincoln, who in turn reported to Chief Burrell. After waiting a short time to see if the boy was to be returned, a quiet search being maintained in the meantime, evidence was secured that left no doubt that the boy was to be kept away from his mother indefinitely. Mrs. Lincoln with the Chief, left Quincy quietly on Saturday last on the midnight express for Pittsburg, Penn.

Arriving on Sunday at Oakland, a suburb of Pittsburg, the case was reported to Capt. Emmet of the 4th precinct, with all details, asking for their moral support and notifying him that in all probability the boy would be found in one of the grades of the Holmes School on Dawson street. Capt. Emmet immediately detailed Inspector James A. Noon on the case, who in company with Chief Burrell and Mrs. Lincoln went to the Holmes school. They were received very graciously by Professor Hollenberg, who said the boy was in the school and had been there about three weeks. He had been placed there by the older brother who had declined to answer quite a few questions in regard to Roger; enough to create some suspicion in the mind of the Professor that something was wrong. The boy was given in charge of his mother immediately on hearing her story.

Accompanied by Detective Noon, the party went to the home of Mrs. Quincy Robinson, who resided at No. 3706 Bates street, near the school, and collected his apparel; taking the twelve o'clock express from Pittsburg back to Boston, arriving at 6.45 today. In justice to Mrs. Robinson it may be said that she had been kept in ignorance that the boy's mother was living.

Capt. Emmet notified Mrs. Lincoln that if she desired, under the Law of Pennsylvania, kidnaping or abducting a child may be punished by imprisonment for life, if the defendant be a male, or fifteen years in the State Prison, if a female. But Mrs. Lincoln in the kindness of her heart, declined to prosecute, being satisfied to recover her boy back.

Mrs. Lincoln is a widow, residing at No. 3 Graham Terrace, Quincy Point. Her husband, J. A. Lincoln died some two years ago at Keene, N. H. He was a travellinng salesman employed for many years by M. H. Merriam, 72 Lincoln street, Boston, Mass.

The family consists of four boys; Earle, the eldest, being a former three years' student of M. I. T., Joseph, age twenty, also a student of M. I. T., now at Rensselaer Tech at Troy, N. Y.; Fay, age nineteen, now in the Quincy High school; Roger, age fourteen, the boy alluded to, and two little girls, ages three and six.

FEAR GALLAGHER MAY BE DROWNED

BROTHERS NOTIFIED

Reports have reached Quincy that Charles Gallagher, of Milton, a brother of Representative John J. Gallagher, was missing at Hinsdale, N. H. where he was superintending the construction of a trestle bridge and that fears were held out that his body would be recovered from the stream over which the bridge was to span.

The telegram was to the effect that his disappearance was remarked Wednesday evening, shortly after he was seen doing odd work about the bridge.

Charles is about 36 years old and but recently returned from Panama where he was in the employ of the United States government.

A body was found but nothing was said as to whether is was that of the missing man.

John Gallagher who went to Hinsdale on receipt of the message, telegraphed home this afternoon that he would be at home in East Milton at 7 o'clock this evening. There was nothing in the message which conveyed intelligence that he was bringing home the body of his brother or instructions about an undertaker and the folks at home are hopeful that the fears which they first entertained are unfounded.

Just as the Ledger was going to press it was ascertained on good authority that Mr. Gallagher was drowned, that the body recovered was his and his brother John will arrive home with the body this evening.

Something New to Her.

Childish sarcasm seldom is so intended. Usually it is the result of the keen, clear judgment springing from instinctive and instantaneous realization of the truth. But sometimes it has a cutting ring.

Mr. and Mrs. Stubbs, for instance, are devoted home missionaries. Their children are well used to being told that highly desirable articles of food and clothing are not for them but "for the Lord," or some ecclesiastical equivalent. This fact occasioned little Jessie's recent sharp speech.

"Oh, mother, those cookies smell good!" she cried, entering the kitchen in which her mother was busied. "Are they for the Young People's society or the Sunday school picnic?"

"Neither, dear," was the answer, "they are for you."

Jessie, who had forgotten all about her imminent birthday, was surprised and delighted.

"Oh, mother," she exclaimed again, her eyes dancing, "are we really going to have some ourselves?"

ARCH STREET TOOK MATCH

MAKING FINE FINISH

The Arch Street Specials took the odd match in the series with the Fore River team at Boston Monday evening, 3 to 1. The first string went to the Boston troupe by 22 pins, the second by only six and they dropped the third to the locals by four. Their pinfall however was greater, the total being 1438 to 1414.

Gillespie struck his old gait and was high man with a total of 305. Harry Smith pinned 305 and Hartford of the winners 300. All others were below that mark.

One of the best demonstrations of the vagaries of bowling was the showing of Bliss. Kicking but 78 in his first string he came back in the second with 117, high individual string of the evening.

The match was witnessed by a number of Quincy fans who had followed the series. Considerable money changed hands on the result.

In the City league at the City Square alleys Cranch beat the Granite, 4 to 0. Lawrence Barry made high single of 117 and also secured high total of 299.

Foolish Fly.

In a certain town in western Kansas, whose name is withheld for obvious reasons, there was a hotel which was as near the limit, perhaps, as any place that ever masqueraded under the name of a place where a traveler could get food and lodging. On one occasion a man who was looking the country over stopped at the hotel for dinner. The meat was a few pieces of fat salt pork swimming in grease; the bread was a batch of biscuits so hard that you couldn't break one with a hatchet, and the butter was as strong as limburger cheese. The stranger was hungry, but not near enough to starvation to be able to eat anything that was on the table. As he sat looking over the board with disgust a fly alighted in the half-melted butter. The stranger carefully helped the fly out of its trouble and, as he watched it crawl feebly away, said: "I know what's the matter with you. You're feeble-minded. Any insect that has wings to fly with that will loaf 'round this hotel must be a durned fool."—Kansas City Journal.

MORGAN DIES IN ROMAN HOTEL

Succumbs to Illness Brought About by Acute Indigestion

COMPLETE COLLAPSE AT END

Extremely Nervous During Last Moments of Consciousness—Unable to Speak, Owing to Paralysis of Throat Muscles—American Physician Blames Pujo Inquiry For Breakdown of Financier

Rome, April 1.—John Pierpont Morgan, the foremost figure in the modern world of finance, died at the Grand hotel yesterday afternoon, after an illness of forty-four days.

During the last eight hours of his life Morgan was in a comatose state most of the time and did not recognize members of his family who were at the bedside. He was kept alive so long only by drugs and by injections of food.

Morgan's death was caused by a complete collapse, brought on by an attack of acute indigestion in Egypt. His nervous condition was shattered and he suffered extreme weakness from his inability to take nourishment naturally, owing to the muscles of the throat being paralyzed.

Anaemia of the brain produced a state of coma. He sank rapidly during the last forty-eight hours of his life, despite all the medical agencies which one of the biggest fortunes in the world could bring to bear in the combat with disease.

Just before the end Morgan relapsed into a state of complete unconsciousness. His temperature was 104 and his pulse raced at 140. His respiration was 48.

Efforts to Prolong Life

Oxygen was administered as a last resort. In an attempt to lower the patient's high fever, ice bags were placed upon the head and breast.

Drs. Bastianelli, Starr and Dixon, who had been in constant attendance, realizing that the end was at hand, so informed Herbert L. Satterlee, son-in-law of Morgan. The members of the Morgan family here then entered the death chamber.

The last religious observances at Morgan's bedside were conducted by Rev. Gardiner Brown of the English Episcopal church in Rome, who visited the sick room a short time before death.

One of the American physicians called into consultation at Morgan's bedside attributed his breakdown and death to the excitement caused by the investigation by the Pujo committee at Washington into the operations of the "money trust."

The news of Morgan's death spread quickly throughout the city. Condolences were quickly forthcoming from the Vatican, the royal palace and from the ministers and other members of the Italian government.

Doctor's Last Bulletin

At noon the physicians issued their last bulletin before the brief one announcing the end. The noon bulletin stated that Morgan had been sinking rapidly. "The question of death may be one of hours," the bulletin read.

Five minutes after this bulletin was given to the newspapermen in the hotel, Morgan was dead. He never awoke from the coma into which he had fallen at 3:50 yesterday morning. At noon his pulse had been 140 and his temperature 104.

During his last moments of consciousness Morgan had been extremely nervous. Owing to the paralysis of his throat muscles he was unable to speak, so that there are no last words of his. Once he did try to speak. This was when Mr. and Mrs. Satterlee were called to the room. Even then the hand of death seemed on the great financier.

He had been sleeping fitfully. His face was pallid. He was but a shadow of his former self. When his daughter entered the room he seemed to make an effort to speak. But the words never came, for Morgan was practically inarticulate.

He looked from one to another about his bedside. The look was vacant, and it may be doubted that he was able to recognize even his daughter. In tears she turned and left the room. Not long after that Morgan became unconscious and remained so to the end.

Suffered Internal Distress

As the end approached Morgan showed by the restless movements of his hands that he was suffering acute internal distress. Otherwise he showed no sign of vitality save by his labored breathing.

It is now believed a mistake was made in bringing Morgan here instead of taking him to London, where he could have occupied his own house and would have been away from the noise of a hotel.

During Morgan's last moments the palace was in close touch with his apartments at the hotel. The royal inquiries were numerous and anxious. King Victor Emmanuel has always remembered Morgan's generosity in returning to Italy the famous Ascoli Cope when he learned that it had been stolen.

It is understood the palace is awaiting word of the disposition of the remains before announcing an official escort for the body to the steamship pier if the body is to be taken to America. If the remains are to lie in state as has been suggested, the king will furnish a part of his royal guard.

No definite plans have been announced for the removal of the body. A special ship may be used to transport the remains to New York.

STORY OF HIS SICKNESS

Ailing When He Left Home on Jan 7 and Gradually Continued to Sink

New York, April 1.—Mr. Morgan sailed from New York, an ailing man, for Egypt on Jan. 7, within three weeks after he had testified before the Pujo committee investigating the money trust.

For weeks there had been reports that he was far from well, but these were somewhat allayed by the announcement that no physician would be taken with him. He was accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. Herbert L. Satterlee, and Count and Countess Jean la Greze, the latter a daughter of his partner, Charles Steele.

After an uneventful trip across the Atlantic, Morgan reached Monte Carlo on Jan. 22 and Naples the next day. With his party he motored to the ruins of Pompeii. The next day he sailed for Alexandria. He reached Cairo on Feb. 7, and shortly afterward started on a trip up the Nile.

Alarmist Reports Denied

Alarmist reports concerning the financier's health were sent to the world from Cairo. These dealt chiefly with the declaration that Morgan was suffering greatly from indigestion; that the transatlantic trip had failed to accomplish its usual improvement in health, and that physicians and nurses had been summoned. The stock markets of the world responded to these rumors, and Morgan's son, in New York, issued a reassuring statement concerning his father's health.

After a ten days' trip up the Nile, Morgan returned to Cairo a failing man. So serious was his condition that fresh butter and eggs were rushed to him half-way around the world from his New York farm. Within four days, on Feb. 21, Professor Bastianelli, the leading medical specialist in Italy, was summoned from Rome to his bedside. Meantime, the financier's son-in-law, Herbert L. Satterlee, left his New York office for Cairo and joined Morgan's party there on Feb. 25. It was reported that Morgan had sustained a slight stroke of apoplexy, but this was denied.

Professor Bastianelli issued a bulletin upon his arrival at Cairo saying Morgan's condition was good, and for several days the patient seemed to improve.

Usual Visits Omitted

Bastianelli remained with Morgan till he sailed back to Rome on March 10. Because of the uncertain condition of his health, Morgan had to forego his usual visits to the khedive and Lord Kitchener while in Egypt. Before returning to Europe, however, Morgan was sufficiently recovered to attend the merry-making at Helipolis, where he was pelted with flowers—and enjoyed it, apparently—by a party of American tourists.

Morgan landed at Naples on March 23 and went direct to Rome, where he received no visitors, but spent the evening playing solitaire in his room. His party, meantime, had grown till it included Dr. Dixon of New York, Morgan's cousins, Mrs. Lucy Lee and Mrs. John Hurlburt, and his granddaughter, Miss Hamilton.

Denying himself to all callers, but besieged by art dealers from every country in Europe, Morgan passed the time quietly at Rome, keeping much to his hotel, occasionally motoring and driving, much of the time playing solitaire and nearly always—when the public glimpsed him—with a cigar in his mouth. His physicians, still baffled by his ailment, put him on a diet of barley soup and chopped meat and tried to limit the cigars.

The sun of Rome, the diet and the doctors seemed to have started him back to health when he attended the Easter services at the American Protestant Episcopal church at Rome. He appeared to walk with difficulty, however, and left the church before the services ended. He grew rapidly worse and for several days lay in a practically comatose state.

Deaths on North Atlantic Coast Last Season Numbered Seventy-Five

Boston, April 1.—More than seventy-five persons perished by shipwreck and fifty-six vessels met disaster off the New England and British North American coasts or while engaged in the New England, Canadian or Newfoundland trade in the fall and winter season of 1912-1913.

Of the fifty-six vessels ten were steamers, two were barques, forty were schooners and four were large barges. The most tragic disaster was near St. Shotts, N. F., Dec. 19, when the Furness line steamer Florence was wrecked and twenty-two men lost their lives.

Forty-five men lost their lives in the work of the Gloucester fishing fleet in 1912. Ten vessels, valued at $73,800, were wrecked.

KLOTZ' FATHER ASKS FOR INVESTIGATION

He Declares Detectives Tortured Son on His Deathbed

New York, April 1.—That the police tortured Henry J. Klotz, the bomb maker who died in Fordham hospital, and wrung a supposed confession of other bomb outrages from him when he lay half unconscious, is the charge back of two investigations started here.

The father of the young man wounded by a self-made bomb has asked the mayor to make an inquiry, declaring his son was delirious and about to die when the detectives flocked to his bedside and took down what they declared was a confession of having sent the bombs that killed Mrs. Grace Walker, exploded in Judge Rosalsky's apartment, and a few weeks ago killed Mrs. Madeline Herrera.

Nurses at the hospital told the coroner that the police kept a man constantly at Klotz's bedside, harassing the wounded man with questions, and not letting him sleep, although the hospital authorities tried to prevent it.

How He Forced Bank to Renew Loans---How He Obtained Partner

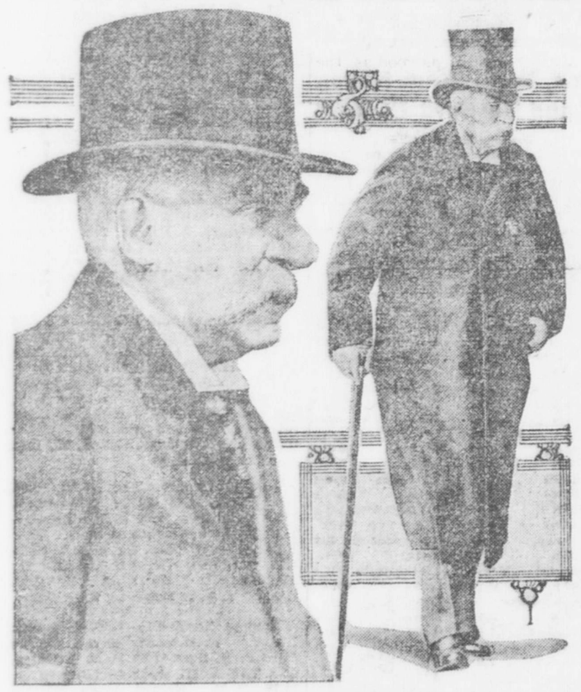

WHATEVER we may think of J. Pierpont Morgan, the New York multimillionaire, banker and financier, the fact remains that for one man money power he had both ancients and moderns beaten to a frazzle, in the classic language of Theodore Roosevelt.

The spot light of public attention was focused directly upon Mr. Morgan in connection with the sessions of the famous Pujo money trust hearing at Washington. Mr. Morgan was called as a witness, and his colossal power over financial affairs the country over was probed into by Samuel Untermyer, the adroit attorney for the senate committee.

Instead of seeking to evade questions and cover the facts as to his great money deals, Mr. Morgan answered frankly. Though he disclaimed possessing power to make or break other men who adventured in finance, it was made clear that not infrequently enterprises he did not approve failed.

Mr. Morgan had nine lawyers serving him with advice before the committee, and he paid them $62,500, according to an authentic estimate. The attorneys had scarcely anything to do at the hearing, though they consulted with the financier for days in advance of his testimony.

Mr. Morgan, who was a director of fifty-eight corporations and held through his New York firm 185 directorships with vast power, was born in Hartford, Conn., on April 17, 1837. He was a strong, healthy boy, large for his age and full of animal spirits. At the age of six he was sent to a country school which then stood at the junction of Farmington road and Asylum avenue, in Hartford. This school was known as the "west middle district school" and long since has fallen before the march of progress in New York.

Nicknamed "Pip" at School.

When he entered school the teacher called on him to rise and give his full name so that he could be properly enrolled as a pupil of the west middle district school. At the call of the teacher young John rose to his feet. Forty pairs of eyes were fixed on him.

"What is your full name?" asked the teacher of the embryonic maghate.

"John Pierpont Morgan, sir," answered the lad in a clear and unfaltering voice. The usual titter which greets an uncommon name went around the schoolroom. At recess the boys practiced on the name, but could not master it. So they called him "Pip." All the years he lived in Hartford he was known as "Pip" Morgan. Since Mr. "Pip" is the hero of Charles Dickens' story "Great Expectations" the name was not so much of a misnomer. "Pip" Morgan certainly has realized most of his great expectations, in which respect he has been more fortunate than the fictitious Mr. Pip created by the great novelist.

A Washington treasury official some time ago told this story illustrative of Mr. Morgan's effort to stop a financial depression. A Jewish manufacturer had been operating his business for some time on credit. His notes fell due early one November, and he went to a bank to get them renewed. Though he had been a large depositor and was known to be a man of scrupulous honesty, the bank declined to grant him an extension, insisting that he should pay his notes on the day they fell due. This was impossible, and bankruptcy stared him in the face. He went to a friend and asked him what he should do.

Morgan as Samaritan.

"No bank will lend you a cent," said his adviser. "I have it. Go to Mr. Morgan and state your case to him."

"Oh, he won't do anything for me," the Jew responded hopelessly. "But I'll try anyhow."

Mr. Morgan received the man courteously and listened to his statement. Then he turned to his phone and rang up the bank.

"Mr. So-and-so is in my office," he said, "and tells me you have declined to grant him an extension of his notes. It is just such blankety blank people as you who are making the conditions serious. Unless those notes are renewed I shall make it my business to ruin you."

Then the financier turned to the caller.

"I think," he said, "you will find the bank willing to extend your notes."

It was.

At least a dozen different stories have been told concerning the way in which George W. Perkins came by his partnership in the firm of J. Pierpont Morgan. One of the best follows:

In the millionaires' club at New York Morgan said over the corned beef and cabbage to Jim Stillman, then president of the City National bank: "I need a young man in my office. I am growing old; my partners are growing old. We need a young fellow with energy, capacity and brains. Do you happen to know one?" "There's a young man named Perkins. I don't know but he might do," said Stillman. "Who is Perkins?" asked Morgan. "He's up there with McCall—George W. Perkins. He comes down to our bank meetings. McCall seems to think a great deal of him."

Talking the Palisades.

Several days later Morgan was talking with Robert Bacon, one of his partners. "Do you know a young man named Perkins?" he asked. Bacon said he did. "Well," said the great promoter, "I want to see him, and I don't want him to know that I want to see him. Get him in here so I can look him over." The next time Bacon saw Perkins the latter was full of the protection of the Palisades along the Hudson river. "Talked with the old man about putting up some money?" said Bacon. "Who—Mr. Morgan?" "Yes; he might help you." "Oh, I guess he wouldn't be interested." "It won't do any harm to try him. Have you ever met him?" "Never." "Come along over, and I'll introduce you." Perkins went over and talked Palisades for half an hour.

Morgan stared vacantly over a big black cigar and did not seem to be much interested in Perkins and his Palisades Protective union. When Perkins stopped for breath Morgan still puffed away and stared vacantly. Perkins talked more Palisades. Morgan still stared vacantly. Perkins began to feel hot and nervous. He told the entire history of the Palisades movement. Morgan continued to stare vacantly. Perkins felt sore and stopped talking. Morgan swung around in his chair, fingered his cigar, stared vacantly some more and said, "Well, I don't know much about the Palisades, but how would you like to become a partner in my firm?" Perkins has never forgotten the sensations of that moment. He managed to say finally that he did not know how he should like it. "I'll guarantee you—how much does McCall give you?" "Twenty-five thousand a year." "I'll guarantee you $250,000 a year, and whatever more is coming as your share of the firm's profits you shall get. I want an answer at once."

Morgan Astounded.

Perkins sat quiet for a few moments, then said that he could not give an answer at once. It was Morgan's turn to be astounded. He agreed, however, that Perkins should return an answer as soon as he could find his mind. Less than a week later the young man wrote a polite note to Morgan saying he guessed he would remain where he was—with John A. McCall. This resistance, of course, was fatal. It made Morgan think he was obliged to have Perkins. He said as much to Mr. McCall, and Perkins came.

Mr. Morgan was standing before a picture in a New York gallery when a handsomely dressed woman asked him a question bearing on the painting. Mr. Morgan, delighted to discuss such a subject, chatted freely about art matters and then bowed himself out. The woman said to the proprietor: "That man was an art critic, I guess. He seemed to know all about pictures. If you know his address I wish you would send him this check, for I'm sure I appreciate his kindness very much."

The dealer gasped, "Why, madam, that was J. Pierpont Morgan!" Later he told the millionaire what had occurred. "You might have let her send the check," grunted Mr. Morgan. "It would have been the first money I ever made out of my hobby."

An amusing story is related of Mr. Morgan in connection with one of his visits to Dinan, in France. He employed a local photographer to develop a number of views that he had been taking with his camera, but the photographer did not know the financier and hesitated whether he should complete the work or not before having some assurance that he was going to be paid for it. So he went down to the local bank and asked the manager if he happened to know anything about a gentleman named Morgan.

"An American?" asked the manager.

"Yes," replied the photographer. "Mr.—what is it?—eh—Pierpont Morgan."

"Precisely," replied the manager. "Well, we know all we want to know about him."

"Oh, monsieur, will it be safe to trust him for 800 francs?"

"Trust him," cried the banker—"trust him for anything and everything he takes it into his head to dream of!"

His Purchase of Diamonds.

A leading jeweler of Paris told the following story about Mr. Morgan, who had seen two magnificent diamonds in the jeweler's shop and wanted to present them to the New York Museum of Natural History for its collection of precious stones, but he thought the price, $8,000, extortionate. A few days later, however, being then in London, Mr. Morgan wrote to the jeweler to send the diamonds to him for a second examination, which was done. Within a week the jeweler received another letter from Mr. Morgan accompanying a small box heavily sealed. The letter said:

"The stones are really perfect. I would like to buy them, but think your price abnormal. That's why I send them back. If you can let me have them for $6,000, telegraph, at the same time returning, duly reinsured, without troubling about breaking the seals in order to save time."

The jeweler decided not to reduce the price and opened the box. The diamonds were not there, but instead he found Mr. Morgan's check for $8,900 with this brief note: "I'll take them anyhow. Send receipt."

It is said that Morgan once promised his wife that when he had amassed a fortune of a certain amount he would retire from business and devote himself to a life of leisure. But when the time came he begged off. "What should I do?" he said. "I am ashamed to be idle." And he kept on at work.

One of the latest incidents told of the financier was his experience with a dentist and what came of it.

The dentist was hurting Mr. Morgan, who was both blunt and frank in telling him of that fact.

"One of the worst cases of destitution I know of is that of my wife's washerwoman," remarked the dentist by way of diversion.

"How is that?" asked Mr. Morgan.

"Her husband died and left her thirteen children. Only five of them are large enough to work."

The dentist, who kept on with both his work and his hard luck narrative, didn't leave out any of the harrowing details of the widow's fight for a living in the face of great odds. Mr. Morgan asked a question now and then and finally, after an unusually severe ordeal, left the operating room. The next day the dentist received a letter which read about as follows:

Dear Doctor—You hurt me like the devil yesterday, but your vivid story about the widow and her thirteen children helped some. Inclosed find my check for $10,000, which please turn over to the washerwoman and tell her for me that she was a fool to have thirteen children.

The dentist complied with Mr. Morgan's request.

MANY TOWNS UNDER WATER

Cities In Northern and Central Portion of State Rehabilitating Their Flood Devastated Districts—Communication by Rail and Wire Being Generally Restored In Ohio

London, April 1.—Since Saturday the Montenegrin artillery on the main front before Scutari has been developing great activity. The Turkish positions in the plain before the town have been heavily bombarded and the Turks have been driven from their entrenchments near the River Kir by the persistent artillery fire.

Montenegro will reply in the negative to the representations of the powers made collectively Sunday that an envoy of the powers would convey a cipher message to Essad Pasha, the Turkish commander in Scutari, containing the porte's orders to permit te civilian population to depart.

This information, which comes from an authoritative source, gives as a reason for this that King Nicholas has on three different occasions offered to allow the consuls and all the foreigners to leave the city, but each time the commander of the town rejected the suggestion.

It is stated in official circles that extraordinary pressure is being exercised upon Montenegro, which encroaches upon her independence, and it is pointed out that Montenegro is still at war with Turkey and that it would be an offense against the common sense of justice to restrict her freedom of action.

The stubbornness of Montenegro in continuing the bombardment of Scutari, contrary to the wishes of the powers, and the dilatoriness of Servia in withdrawing her troops beyond the line decided upon as a frontier of the future Albania, will, if not overcome by more peaceful measures, lead to a demonstration and blockade of the Montenegrin coast and the ports of Albania occupied by Servia.

Austria-Hungary is losing patience with her little neighbors and is urging the powers to take action to enforce the demands contained in their notes to Servia and Montenegro. When the naval measures are taken it is expected this duty will be allotted to Great Britain, Italy and Austria. Russia, although she joined in the collective diplomatic action, will not participate in the coercive steps.

Servia has expressed an intention of complying with the demand to evacuate Albania but has made no movement in that direction, and the Austrian government complains that instead she is sending more war material to that territory, probably under the idea that she will not be forced to leave until peace has been concluded. Austria, however, insists upon the immediate removal of the Servians from the country which, under the powers' decision, cannot be Servia's no matter what the result of the fighting.

A Vienna dispatch to the Daily Mail says: "Austria has three army corps on the Herzegovina frontier ready to enter Montenegro should the pressure from the powers, which it is intended to repeat and intensify, be ineffectual."

FOR DISORDERLY CONDUCT

Haywood, I. W. W. Leader, Given Six Months at Hard Labor

Paterson, N. J., April 1.—William D. Haywood, organizer for the Industrial Workers of the World; was sentenced to six months in the county jail on conviction of disorderly conduct. He came here in connection with the silk mill workers' strike.

Haywood was convicted of disorderly conduct in connection with a gathering of strikers at La Fayette Oval here. A second charge, that of causing unlawful assemblage, also was lodged against him. On this he was held for the grand jury, with the amount of his bail to be fixed later.

Haywood pleaded not guilty to both charges. He was sent to the county jail immediately to begin his sentence, but his attorneys indicated that they would file an appeal within a few days.

Haywood was given the maximum sentence with which disorderly conduct is punishable. During his term of imprisonment he will have to work ten hours a day at hard labor.

Negro Slayer Executed

Auburn, N. Y., April 1.—William Twiman, a negro, was executed in the state prison here for the murder of Deputy Sheriff Simon J. Bermingham of Monroe county, who, on Jan. 12, 1912, went to Twiman's home to investigate a report that the man had murdered his own father.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

BANANA DAINTIES.

NO desserts in which fruits are ingredients are so easy to prepare as those made with bananas. Therefore it is a wonder, considering the cheapness and general availability of this wholesome fruit, that it is not more widely appreciated.

Several ways of preparing simple desserts with bananas are given here:

Light Desserts.

Banana Custard.—Make a rich custard and add mashed bananas flavored with orange, lemon, pineapple or vanilla essence and sweetened to taste.

Bananas cooked or baked with tapioca give a nice flavor to the pudding.

Banana Mold.—Take the yolks of two eggs and beat them with two tablespoonfuls of sugar and a teaspoonful of cornstarch. Thicken a pint of milk with it, cool and flavor with vanilla. Slice two or three bananas into a dish, pour the custard over and drop meringue on top, ornament with bits of jelly and serve.

With a Cereal.

Bananas and Tapioca.—Take a pint of sweet milk, scald and stir into it a tablespoonful of fine tapioca. Let it cook until dissolved. Remove from the fire and add the beaten yolks of two eggs, then set on the fire until it thickens. Take off and when cool add the beaten whites of the eggs, folding in carefully a little at a time. In the serving dish have two bananas peeled and sliced thin and pour over them the tapioca cream.

A Fruit Cream.

Banana Cream.—Take a pint of cream, some bananas, two oranges, two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, three-quarters of a cupful of powdered sugar and one tablespoonful of pulverized gelatin. Soak the gelatin in an eighth of a cupful of cold water, then dissolve it in an equal quantity of boiling water. Whip the cream and stand it on ice. Peel the bananas, slice and rub them through a sieve. Add the pulp and juice of the oranges, the lemon juice and the sugar. Blend thoroughly and mix with the gelatin. Stand in a cold place until it begins to stiffen. Add the whipped cream and stir all lightly together. Put into a mold and stand on ice until it is served. Turn out on a flat dish and serve with plain or whipped cream.

"Pall Mall."

Even the British, the London British, are not agreed upon the proper pronunciation of "Pall Mall." The Pall Mall Gazette has published scores of letters on the subject, one from J. Henderson Couter, being in part as follows: "It really does not seem to matter much whether Pall Mall used to be 'Paille Maille' or 'Pawl Mawl.' Both are probably incorrect etymologically. I had an old grandmother, one of the old school. Were she alive today she would be about 110. She always spoke of it as 'Pell Mell.' But, then, she preserved most of the old fashioned pronunciations, such as 'laylock' for lilac, 'obleege' for oblige, 'sassingers' for sausages and 'gould' for gold. This may have been, and probably was, a sheer affectation on her part. Anyhow, she tested a new manservant by hearing how he could knock on a front door."

Some Old Beliefs.

The old beliefs persist in southern Europe, and a tragic comic instance reaches me from Venice. A cockatoo, kept by a British resident as a pet, had been accustomed to promenade about the roof garden when the family went up there. But one day recently it extended its constitutional to a neighbor's roof and was promptly shot by him. He subsequently offered as a complete explanation the plea that he thought it was an owl and that there was a very young baby in his household. Now, students of ancient Greek and Roman augury know that the perching of an owl on the roof foreboded death to one of the inmates, while Ovid is among those who charge screech owls with sucking the blood of infants.—London Express.

Various Kinds of Wisdom.

Wisdom is of many kinds. Natural, long fibered, we call genius; the college kind is a factory made article, known as learning; common sense is handmade and generally homemade, and there is an imitation known on the street as "bluff," in society as "pretense" and in the Bible as "hypocrisy."

HUMAN LINK TO POWERFUL CHAIN

Levasseur, the Wonderful Strong Man Gives Exhibition of His Power

A crowd stood in the rain last night in front of the Auditorium Theatre and saw Levasseur, the strong man, do his marvelous feat. Few would like to be the connecting link between a heavy pair of horses and an auto truck pulling in opposite directions, but this was the position in which Levasseur was placed and he "held them." On the one hand was the big double team of W. F. Loud & Sons horses that weigh 3000 lbs., and on the other the large auto truck used by the furniture house of W. G. Shaw. First the auto pulled the horses a few feet, but then the horses buckled down to business end easily pulled Levasseur and the auto.

Inside the theatre Levasseur tore in half three packs of cards at one time, then he lifted 15 men at one time, also lifted a cannon ball over his head, and held two horse shoes in a tug of war contest. There were other vaudeville acts and five reels of moving pictures. The exhibition will be repeated tonight.

The sixth grade of the Cranch school and the sixth grade of the Adams school played their first game Monday afternoon, but it was brought to a finish in the fourth inning by the storm, with a tie score, both teams having six runs. Harold McDonald of the Adams eighth grade was umpire.

REDUCTION IN PRICE OF GAS

Commencing June 1, It will be $1.20 Per 1000 Feet

The 6170 consumers of the Citizens' Gas Light Co., received by mail today a circular announcing a fourth voluntary reduction in the price of gas to take effect on June 1, 1913. This reduction as with the past three is of ten cents per 1000 feet, so that the price after June 1, will be $1.20. This reduction is in accordance with the policy adopted by the company when it took over the old company in March 1906.

At the time the present company assumed control in March 1906 they had 16 1-2 miles of mains and 600 subscribers. The price of gas at that time was $2 per thousand. An immediate reduction of fifty cents was made This was followed on Feb. 1, 1911, by a further reduction of ten cents and on March 1, 1912, of another ten cents. Now comes, as stated above a fourth reduction of ten cents.

Since taking over the plant the company had laid 80 1-2 miles of new mains, which was necessary to enable it to serve the community. Quincy people were quick to take advantage of the opportunity to get an ample supply of this necessary commodity at a reasonable price with the result that the number of subscribers has increased from 600 in 1906 to 6170 on March 1, 1913.

To make these extensions has necessitated an investment of $551,154.87 up to March 1. During the first four years no dividend was declared and the greatest dividend in any one year has been 5 per cent. while the average dividend declared since June 1906 have been 2 per cent a year.

GOOD START FOR BASE BALL

Movement on Foot to Organize Old Colony League

REPLACE CITY ORGANIZATION

The Old Colony league will succeed the Quincy City league of the plans of baseball promoters do not miscarry The proposition of having six teams, three from outside towns banded together was suggested at a meeting at the office of Gus B. Bates, Monday evening.

The proposal seems to have been agreeable to the West Quincy, Quincy A. A., Makaria and Dewey managers.

The subject was broached because of the fine opportuinty presented for live ball players to shine locally. Last season the City league, although giving performances of high calibre developed only a friendly local rivalry. It is thought that outside teams will stimulate an interest and invitations have been issued their managers to attend a Thursday evening meeting.

Representatives will be present from the Braintree White Sox and the Braintree A. A., both of Braintree. Weymouth will be represented by the Norfolks, Deweys, Stetson Shoe and Clapp Memorial teams. Definite action will probably be taken.

Should the proposed plan be negotiated the South Shore will witness ball fests which should outshine the exhibitions of other leagues. Temporary officers were elected as follows:

Gustave Bates, president-treasurer Charles W. Ganzel, vice president and William H. Flynn, secretary.

GRANITE CITY CLUB BANQUET ONE LONG POEM OF PLEASURE

Some Few Novelties in the Way of Providing Amusement

Friends and members of the Granite City club to the number of about 150 attended the annual banquet and entertainment of the club Tuesday evening, in Alpha hall and the arrangement of the tables made the scene a particularly attractive one. Instead of several long tables arranged lengthwise of the hall as is usual at banquets the diners were served at small tables, each accommodating four persons. Across the head of the hall however, directly in front of the platform, there was one long table at which were seated the officers of the club and some of the distinguished guests.

These included President, Eben W. Sheppard, ex-Presidents James H. Penniman and Henry F. Tilden, Treasurer, John Q. Cudworth, Vice President Samuel T. MacQuarrie, Nathan Ames of the House Committee, Hon. Eugene R. Stone and ex-Mayor William T. Shea, both of whom are members of the club, Hon. Eugene C. Hultman, Councilman Joseph L. Whiton, President of the City Council, John L. Hamilton, President of the Quincy Board of Trade, and Capt. E. Olivera and Comdr. M. I. Bianchi of the Argentine Navy.

In the centre of each table was a candelabrum and at each cover a pink and the setting was very attractive and resembled somewhat a large dining room in a hotel rather than a formal banquet.

Some of the members and guests went directly to the hall while others met at the club rooms in the Savings Bank building but 6.30 found them all at Alpha hall waiting for Tom Smith to give the signal to march upstairs to the banquet room. It was Tom's busy night for upon him depended much of the success of the evening and he and Jim Lalley and Jim Neary, the committee saw to it that everything that would add to the comfort of the evening was not omitted.

The word waited for, soon came and it was not many minutes before seats had been taken at the tables. President Sheppard rapped for order and briefly welcomed the members and guests, and then with its time honored custom the club stood for a minute with bowed heads in silent prayer for departed members, one of whom had passed away since the last gathering, James F. Burke.

The dinner was then on and the menu served was as follows:—

Olives Radishes Celery
Oyster Cocktail
Tomato Soup
Creme Halibut en Ramequins
Roast Young Vermont Turkey
Cranberry Sauce Mashed Potatoes
String Beans
Punch A La Romaine
Lobster Salad Chicken Salad
French Harlequin Ice Cream
A La Diplomate (Frozen Pudding)
Roquefort and American Cheese
Crackers Fancy Cakes
Cafe Noir.

While the dinner was in progress the scene was enlivened by selections by the Wollaston orchestra and between their selections two vocalists from a well known vaudeville house circulated among the diners a la Cabaret style, singing several of the popular airs. Just as the dinner was closing envelopes containing two of John Johnson's La Rosa De Juncos were passed to each participant.

Hardly had the smoke from these begun to fill the hall when President Sheppard announced the opening number of the entertainment which was no other than Newton Newkirk, editor of the Bingville Bugle. "Newt" was at his best and for fifteen minutes kept the boys in laughter by his stories from life as he saw it. His description of rapid transit in Boston was particularly amusing.

He was followed by Charles Pettis who was introduced as "Miss Pettis" for he was gowned in a bewitching ladies costume, and so well gotten up was he that many in the rear of the hall for a time thought him a lady. During his turn he appeared in four different costumes each more elaborate and bewitching than the other the last being as a turkish dancing girl.

The next number was by C. Everett Wallace, the rube, who entertained in the dialect of a rube closing his number with a harmonica and banjo duet.

"Newt" then appeared for the closing number on the program. He told how and where he gathered his material for the Bingville Bugle stating many of the incidents were true to life in a Maine town where he had a summer camp. He also told many other stories in a humorous vein.

The entertainment over, there was a rush for the cloak room and then for the club rooms where the remainder of the evening was passed in social intercourse, or at cards or billiards as each individual taste dictated.

Thus the annual banquet of 1913 came to an end, with the unanimous opinion that it had been one of the most successful and enjoyable that the club had ever held.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Parker , of Atlantic are not alone in rejoicing over the safety and return of their daughter Miss Ruth, for many friends of the family in Atlantic and Quincy are grateful that she was cared for in the Dayton flood.

BIG PARTY, FINE TIME

Successful beyond anticipation, because of the opportunity afforded hundreds to enjoy themselves, was the first grand reception and ball of the Young Men's Hebrew Association. The affair was the initial social venture of the club and the proceeds will be devoted to the building fund.

A goodly number of gentlemen from all parts of the town gathered in response to invitation at Long's hall, Braintree, Monday evening. The hosts were the members of the Braintree Athletic Association, incorporated and the occasion was the informal opening of the rooms of the association in Long's block. After an inspection of the premises, all gathered in the main hall and at 8 o'clock Elmer E. Abercrombie, the president, welcomed all in an apt and graceful speech in which he outlined the aims and purposes of the association and its hopes and plans for the future.

Delicious fruit punch and fancy crackers were served and also bountiful helpings of ice cream. Cigars were passed and each gentleman was presented a neat badge with the compliments of the association. A pleasing feature was the music rendered throughout the evening by Atkinson's orchestra. B. A. A. pennants were on sale and found ready purchasers.

Among those present were noticed Judge Albert E. Avery, Col. A. C. Drinkwater of the board of selectmen, John Kelley, water commissioner, Dr. F. H. Gile, board of health, Frank A. The rooms of the association are well fitted up and its membership is made up of a fine class of men. A basket ball team is planned for the coming winter and for the ball season which is almost here there will be a good team in the field. The association is incorporated under the laws of Massachusetts and although formed in Braintree is non-partisan and desires members from each and all precincts of the town.

There is a fine gymnasium well equipped with such accessories as flying rings trapeze, gloves, dumb bells, Indian clubs, chest weights and horizontal bar. A raised platform running entirely around the room permits spectators to enjoy the fun without hampering those using the apparatus. A combined needle and shower bath forms a desirable adjunct to the "gym." There is also an excellent pool table in an adjoining room which is sure to be popular.

The association has made a good start and its members are to be congratulated on their success. Sports and athletics generally have not had proper encouragement in town for some time and this organization bids fair to arouse great interest along this line and good results ares ure to follow.

APPALLING SCENES IN GREAT FLOOD WITNESSED BY MISS PARKER

Miss Parker tells of the apparent hopeless condition of the city, where so many men have lost their homes, families, money and business. Yet she said that as the flood subsided in every section the work of cleaning up and sweeping out was started at once. She speaks in the highest terms of the work of the state militia in bringing the city into a regime of strict discipline and order. Her description of the city without illuminating gas or electric lights, and not allowed to use kerosine even though they had it gives one some idea of the horrors felt in that devastated city.

When Miss Parker was asked about the looters she said there was looting carried on after dark as Dayton was a licensed city, but after the militia arrived on Thursday morning and a few were shot it did not seem as if much more looting was done.

When asked about her own rescue she said that friends came to the house where she roomed as the flood was rising and took her in the ambulance to higher ground so that she and nine others were in a place of comparative safety, almost from the start. And what flour they had they cooked and lived on it while it lasted. Then when the food had given out and the water had lowered so as to permit her to go to the street she went into the bread line with the others who were without food. The allowance she received for the ten girls in her apartment was half a loaf of bread, half a cup of sugar and a pint of water.

The ten of them lived on the short ration feeling thankful to have been saved, as the house from which she was first rescued had fallen after the water reached the dining room ceiling.

Miss Parker suffered considerable in anxiety for her parents and fear for what might happen, but through it all she felt that many were so much worse off than she and her companions, as fortunately the home where she was taken had a good supply of candles when others were in total darkness, that they had every reason to be grateful for their good fortune.

She speaks with real enthusiasm of the heroic work that has been done by Mr. Patterson of the National Cash Register and the many men and women who put forth the most sacrificing efforts to rescue. Mr. Patterson worked himself and used his men and autos continually when they could be used, then kept his factory working day and night to make boats to help in rescuing. Miss Parker also tells of two boys who with their canoes rescued over one hundred people, and a young doctor who worked from Tuesday to Friday with only two hours sleep.

She said that when she was told last Sunday that she could start for home it seemed too good to be true, but she and another girl from the Sargent scohol got into an auto in Dayton and were taken to the supply train then brought to Springfield, Illinois where they boarded a regular

Miss Parker tells of the apparent hopeless condition of the city, where so many men have lost their homes, families, money and business. Yet she said that as the flood subsided in every section the work of cleaning up and sweeping out was started at once. She speaks in the highest terms of the work of the state militia in bringing the city into a regime of strict discipline and order. Her description of the city without illuminating gas or electric lights, and not allowed to use kerosine even though they had it gives one some idea of the horrors felt in that devastated city.

When Miss Parker was asked about the looters she said there was looting carried on after dark as Dayton was a licensed city, but after the militia arrived on Thursday morning and a few were shot it did not seem as if much more looting was done.

When asked about her own rescue she said that friends came to the house where she roomed as the flood was rising and took her in the ambulance to higher ground so that she and nine others were in a place of comparative safety, almost from the start. And what flour they had they cooked and lived on it while it lasted. Then when the food had given out and the water had lowered so as to permit her to go to the street she went into the bread line with the others who were without food. The allowance she received for the ten girls in her apartment was half a loaf of bread, half a cup of sugar and a pint of water.

The ten of them lived on the short ration feeling thankful to have been saved, as the house from which she was first rescued had fallen after the water reached the dining room ceiling.

Miss Parker suffered considerable in anxiety for her parents and fear for what might happen, but through it all she felt that many were so much worse off than she and her companions, as fortunately the home where she was taken had a good supply of candles when others were in total darkness, that they had every reason to be grateful for their good fortune.

She speaks with real enthusiasm of the heroic work that has been done by Mr. Patterson of the National Cash Register and the many men and women who put forth the most sacrificing efforts to rescue. Mr. Patterson worked himself and used his men and autos continually when they could be used, then kept his factory working day and night to make boats to help in rescuing. Miss Parker also tells of two boys who with their canoes rescued over one hundred people, and a young doctor who worked from Tuesday to Friday with only two hours sleep.

She said that when she was told last Sunday that she could start for home it seemed too good to be true, but she and another girl from the Sargent scohol got into an auto in Dayton and were taken to the supply train then brought to Springfield, Illinois where they boarded a regular

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Coal went down 50 cents Tuesday and thankful be it was no April fool.

Some people need a little stiffening of the back bone to carry out some things successfully.

Democrats are not tumbling over each other looking for ambassadorships where the salary is not equal to the amount needed to keep up the show.

Mr. Brandies says the conscience of New England must be awakened. A good idea but where will he begin?

The fire department investigating committee has its work cut for the members. It will not prove a cinch.

Secretary Redfield has pink whiskers it is said, and if his face is pink and smooth, the only addition required to complete the combination is a beautifully shaded pink necktie.

A good many Harvard students do not live up to the cost of clothing which is usually handed out as the Harvard standard of prices. If they did there would be less graduates each year than at present.

There was no panic in the stock exchange over Mr. Morgan's death.

A correspondent to the New York Times wants to know why it is that men are so much better looking than women. It would not take a Solomon to know that a man wrote that query.

Of the 2000 amendments proposed to the Constitution, only 1944 have gone into the discard which only goes to show that Congress had wisdom enough to recognize the far seeing wisdom of the framers of that wonderful document.

THE FLOOD FUND.

While a little late in getting under way the Quincy movement to raise funds for the relief of the flood and cyclone victims and sufferers is commendable in the extreme. The form of raising money cannot have tremendous results but evidently the committee in charge have plans in mind which when carried out will mean heavier receipts for this worthy cause. The entertainment in Music hall, one week from tonight should be well patronized. With generous patronage a goodly sum should be realized but it will not of course be near what Quincy will give in the end. This is an exceptional case. The sufferings and hardships which have been experienced were heart rending. In addition to that many of those people saw all their earthly possessions swept away by the flood or cyclone. It will take them some time to recover and get upon their feet again. That they will need financial aid in starting anew as soon as they have sufficiently recovered from the calamity is quite certain. Every city and town of the country is contributing and contributing generously. Quincy should not be one whit behind other places in this movement and when the final settlement is made undoubtedly the city will have done its portion in this great christian work along with and on a par with other places.

INVESTIGATING THE FIRE DEPT.

It is now up to the five members of the City Council, to whom the matter has been referred, to conduct a thorough investigation of the fire department. Recent disclosures at the meeting of the City Council seemed to indicate that there was something loose somewhere and the establishment of a new order of things along the lines of efficiency and discipline would not do any harm. What those changes will be is a matter of conjecture. Ordinarily investigations afford opportunity for a public washing of soiled municipal linen without always accomplishing the desired results. That there are some reforms needed however is apparent to the most optimistic with regard to fire department conditions. That the department is efficient and performs good service whenever called upon is beyond question but any sagging might impair that efficiency and it is better to administer an ounce of prevention at the proper time than a pound of cure at a later period when it would not be so helpful in results.

The order of the Council is as follows:

"Ordered. That a committee of five be elected by the Council to investigate the Fire Department and to report the result of its investigations and such recommendations as they deem necessary to put the department on an efficient and business basis."

The order is not obnoxious by any means. The committee is requested to report the result of its findings and based upon the knowledge of conditions secured to report recommendations which will probably be embodied in an ordinance. Under the charter the Mayor is in control of the fire department, but provision is made that the City Council may adopt ordinances governing and regulating the body. If the mayor should decide to veto such an ordinance the only way to meet that would be to pass the ordinances by a two thirds vote.

The public in general will be no doubt somewhat interested in the investigation. It is to be hoped that it will be conducted along dignified lines, devoid of sensationalism which can have no great good and that any laxity which now exists will be straightened out to the satisfaction of all and to the gratification of the citizens who pay the freight.

If reforms are needed they should be put into execution immediately. If they are not the public should know it and the firemen should demand it in justice to themselves. If there is nothing existing which impairs the efficiency and discipline of the department and keeps it up to the standard, then it should be revealed immediately, and then much clatter of sensational stuff would be silenced. On the other hand if conditions demand a change they should be carried out without fear or favor.

JOHN PIERPONT MORGAN.

The removal from this earth and the sphere of usefulness to the world at large which he so conspicuously occupied of John Pierpont Morgan leaves a void in financial and commercial circles which it will be difficult to fill according to the reports which come from all parts of the world. But while Mr. Morgan was a big man in every sense of the word, there is little to indicate that commercial or financial interests will halt in their progress because of his removal from the centre of activity. Many strong men have passed away in the past few years, and many others are slated to cross the great divide, according to the law of nature. Many of the large figures in different walks of life have reached that age when they cannot reasonably expect to linger around here much longer. That they will be missed is certain, that their places will not be filled is another subject. The places will be filled and the world will move on just the same, but at the time there is pause in the conflict of commerce and finance when such personages sever their connection with this world.

Mr. Morgan was of a type distinct and apart from many others who have risen to the top rung of the financial ladder. He did not begin like many whom people read of at the lowest round. He was an exceptionally wealthy man, when his father died and left him an estate of $10,000,000. So that Morgan cannot be said to have been self made in the sense which that term is joined to so many of the present date captains of industry.

He had this large fortune at a time when it was a power far greater than twice that sum would be at the present day. That he was long headed and added to it in many ways is accepted, and acknowledged. But it was the reorganization abilities of the man which shone out more brilliant than the mere desire to make money. He said he liked to make money for the fun it provided him. It was acme with him just the same as his other departures, in art, literature, research, philanthropy were games in which he found enjoyment.

His power was unlimited. If he used it at any time for the wrong, that will undoubtedly be scored against him. If he used it only for the uplift of his fellow men, for the aggrandizement and power of his country and in the work of the Master then his life was not in vain. However he knows now how his world labors were measured and the reward will be meted out to him in accordance with the measure in which he performed the Master's work.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Trade will be held at the rooms in Adams building this evening. Reginald M. Hull of Harvard University will speak upon the subject of taxation and the grade crossing situation will be discussed.

MEMORIAL CASTLE.

The Castle of the Knights of King Arthur which was organized recently in Memorial church and the officers inducted into office by the Bethany Castle promises to be an effective organization for the boys of Atlantic and something that has been needed by the church. The men having charge of it are W. F. Cummings, Cecil Marble and W. T. Davy. Morton Reid is acting as king. Their ideal is not to work for numbers, but to keep the membership congenial, and enthusiastic in working for the ideals of the society.

BRADY HOME FROM SOUTH

Established a New Professional Record at Havana

MONTCLAIR LOOKS GOOD

After a trip that took him as far south as the new course of the Country Club of Havana, M. J. Brady was back at the Wollaston Golf Club, Tuesday, ready to resume his customary duties as professional until he goes abroad, six weeks hence, to play in the British open golf championship and later in the team match between professionals of the United States and France. Tom McNamara, the other Boston professional homebread, did not return with Brady, but is expected back tomorrow or Friday.

When Brady looked at the general condition of the Wollaston course, especially the putting greens, he realized that the weather has been dealing kindly with northern links this spring. Present conditions at the Montclair course are about as good as they are normally along toward the end of April, owing to the mild weather of March and the generous rainfall.

On their southern trip Brady and McNamara played at Havana, Belair, Palm Beach, Ormond, Camden, Augusta, Bonaire, Hampton Terrace, Summerville, Jacksonville and Pinehurst. Their best joint showing was at Pinehurst, where McNamara won the United North and South open championship with a total of 146 for the 36 holes, duplicating his record of a year ago, when he won the same title, then with a total of 144. Brady was tied for second in the same tournament and won the special prize for the best single round, getting a 71.

The Wollaston professional was particularly impressed with the layout and general surroundings of the new country club at Havana and thinks that it is bound to become a popular resort. As for the course itself, there of course remains a good deal to be done. It was here that Brady established a new professional record of 76, the amateur record by Walter J. Travis being a like figure.

The Atlantic Improvement Association meets Friday evening and will discuss the possibility of better mail service for Atlantic, also plan for a union meeting with the Squantum association.

One of the baskets after spirited bidding brought the sum of $5.62. Others were brought nearly to the two dollar mark.

Coffee and other good things were served as adjuncts to the meal. An informal entertainment of music followed.

MARY KONOVSKY'S WAGE.

Among the stories of striking mill operatives at Little Falls told to the commissioners of Mediation and Arbitration for the State of New York, that of a girl whom I shall call Mary Konovsky was the most impressive in many ways. This young woman swore to the following statement, rendered into English by an interpreter:

"My name is Mary Konovsky, I am twenty-two years old. I can speak no English nor can I read or write in that language. I was born in Russian Poland. I have been in this country three years. I was employed as a spinner in the X mill. I earned $6 a week. I live in a room with two other girls as poor as myself. For his room we pay $3 a week. We get our own breakfast and have dinner at a restaurant. When working we took our lunch with us to the mill and ate it there. I send no money home because I have none. I struck because my pay was too low. I want a raise of 15 per cent. and will return to work if I get that."

This testimony of Mary Konovsky has been published and republished throughout the country. In consequence thousands of kind-hearted people have grieved over the pitable condition of this poor Polander and their hearts have ached for her and her fellow strikers. The more sensational publications have held up to the execration of mankind the heartless, sordid manufacturers who paid such poor wages.

With your permission and through your courtesy I would like to say a few words directly to these sympathetic people. Ladies and gentlemen, Mary Konovsky stands before the commissioners. Have a look at her. She is a poor human creature born and bred in poverty and misery, uneducated, untrained, stolid, stupid but possessed of an immortal soul and eager for the betterment of her condition. She wants $6.90 a week and will be satisfied with that amount. Her former employer, a manufacturer who has a large factory, representing an investment exceeding a million dollars, who is the agent of the stockholders of his company, all of whom demand that he run this factory at a profit, says outspokenly:

"I will pay Mary Konovsky $6 a week, and this is more than she is worth. She has no industrial training of any kind. All she is fit for is to mind a spinning frame and when the delicate threads break tie the ends together. Her fingers are very clumsy at this and she makes a great deal of waste. I even have to get her a little machine to place on her fingers to tie these ends, for the machinery is much more clever than she. American girls of her own age in my factory are making from $10 to $14 a week. I had rather pay Mary three times her wages if she were of proportionate value to me. Unwittingly she has made me appear before my fellow-men a grinder down of the poor. She injured my character and that of the mill. I will take her back if she wants to come, but really I don't want her. I want trained educated girls if I can get them. There she stands. Her services are for sale at $6.90 a week."

You have heard the despised employer of labor, kind ladies and gentlemen. The services of Mary Konovsky are for sale. He bids $6 a week. What will you bid? You, mistress housewife, with tender eyes, will you pay more than $6 a week for Mary?

"No," you say. "She cannot speak English. She is a mere peasant; knows nothing of the mechanism of a modern kitchen. I don't want her."

You, Mr. Storekeeper, what will you give? You could not use her services? She would not be able to stand behind your counter and sell goods? She is unprepossessing and uncouth? She cannot speak English? And what is this you say:

"I cannot afford to pay $6 a week for girl clerks."

We pass you up for a kind gentleman who, perhaps gushed unthinkingly. Come on all the rest of you, doctors, lawyers, clergymen, politicians, editors, what will you bid for the services of Mary Konovsky?

She wants only $6.90 a week. For God's sake gentlemen, don't let the cruel mill get her again. Take her into your homes, into your offices, into your studies, give her a chance in the world. You cry all together, "We don't want her. We have no use for her, but make that mill man pay her a living wage. She has our sympathies, but you can see plainly we cannot employ her."

And you over there by the door, leaning against each other in sweet accord, you two, Mr. Labor Agitator and Mr. Yellow Journalist, come up here and look at Mary. She wants a living wage. Will you give it to her?

"No," you snarl back at me, "we won't give it to her, but we will get it for her. We will bring mankind down to the level of Mary Konovsky where she will have an equal opportunity in a fair competition of hands and brains."

And now you Mr. Commissioner, you are last of all, you who love to investigate your fellows; speak up like a man and make us a bid for Mary. Not a peep out of you? It really looks as if it were up to Mary to choose between the river and the mill.

Is there a true lesson in this letter? Are we not a nation of hypocrites, a race loving to pluck at the beam in our brother's eye, being blind ourselves.—Letter to the New York Sun.

COMPENSATION ACT CHANGED

House Would Have Pay Go on From Day of Injury

A sharp change in the workingmen's compensation act went through the House Tuesday afternoon. It provides that compensation for injuries shal be paid from the date of injury if the injury lasts more than 10 days. The committee on judiciary had reported a bill to make all injuries subject to compensation at the end of 10 days, instead of 14 as at present.

BOSTON MEN VISIT WILSON

Boston men figured somewhat in transactions at the White House offices, Tuesday. Ex-Mayor Josiah Quincy called again, but it was claimed, as always, there was no significance in his visit. He simply had an injury or two to propound. Cardinal O'Connell was likewise a visitor and was received by the President in the Green room. It was announced that he came to pay his respects to the President and was with him 10 minutes.

MAYOR DISLIKES THAT $5000

Tagged Onto the Annual Budget by the City Council

BUT MAY SIGN TOMORROW

The annual appropriation order as passed by the City Council Monday evening reached the Mayor's office Tuesday afternoon, but up to this noon His Honor had not made up his mind as to whether he would sign it or not. Had the budget gone through as it stood at the close of the meeting of March 24, there is not much doubt but what the Mayor would have signed it. The City Council at its meeting Monday evening however increased the amount by $5,000 which brought the grand total to a larger amount than he desired. When seen this morning the Mayor said that he was undecided as yet what he would do and that he had the matter under consideration.

It is probable that the Mayor will make up his mind on the matter before tomorrow. Many of the departments are getting dangerously near the limit which they may expend before the budget is passed, and if it is vetoed it will mean two or three weeks at least before another budget can be put through and by that time some of the departments will be running on wind or promises.

DEMONSTRATION OF PULMOTOR

WORKED AT FORE RIVER

The Pulmotor which was placed at the disposal of the City of Quincy and which will be carried in the patrol on all runs will be given a thorough demonstration at the police station on Thursday afternoon by Dr. Fred E. Jones. Invitations have been issued to the medical fraternity so that they can become familiar with the latest life saving device which clears the lungs of causes of death in the most advanced cases of drowning and asphyxiation.

The instrument was the gift of the Citizens' Gas Light Co., and the only condition is that it will be subject to their needs in case of gas asphyxiation.

The Fore River Company has recently placed a pulmotor in the Red Cross hospital at the yard. Its first demonstration was given Monday.

The patient was Louie Mettha, who, despite contrary reports, had practically recovered from gas poisoning which followed close confinement in the hold of the Richmond.

Beyond the need of further treatment Dr. Blanchard suggested that the new pulmoter be tried on Mettha, and the mask was adjusted and the machine found to be in perfect working condition.

Dr. Blanchard said Tuesday evening that the man's constitution had been fully relieved of the gas and that no doubts had been entertained regarding his recovery. He furthermore denies that the pulmotor the latest acquisition to medical science had saved a life.

SAVAGE BEAR HAS NO SOUL FOR MUSIC

Ivan is a mean-tempered Alaskan brown bear in the New York Zoological Gardens who refuses to be tamed. Recently a woman who declined to give her name but who is a professional opera singer asked Curator Ditmars to permit her to try the effect of music on Ivan. She stood by his cage in the Bronx and sang arias in French, German and English, but Ivan only growled and snarled until his keeper appeared with a big beefsteak.

SIMPLE SERVICE OVER MORGAN

Held In Room In Hotel In Which the Financier Died

ROME PROFOUNDLY IMPRESSED

Flags at Half Mast as Tribute to American—Cancer of Stomach Said to Have Been Cause of Death—Telegrams Expressing Regret From All Parts of the World

Rome, April 2.—A simple funeral service was held over the body of J. P. Morgan today. The service took place in the room at the hotel where the body now rests surrounded by great masses of flowers—tributes from friends and notable personages of various countries.

Only relatives, intimate friends of the family and the American ambassador, Thomas J. O'Brien, and Mrs. O'Brien attended the service, which was conducted by Rev. Mr. Nelson of the American church.

The death of Morgan has created an impression which has become more profound as time passes. Everywhere flags are flying at half staff. This is particularly noticeable over the art institutions, in which Morgan had taken so deep an interest.

Throughout the day there was a constant stream of callers at the hotel to offer condolences.

That the post mortem examination of the body of Morgan showed that the financier had died from cancer of the stomach was a report persistently circulated here.

The symptoms shown by Morgan in his last days tended to bear out the report that cancer of the stomach caused death. Morgan's stomach would retain no nourishment, even before it became necessary to inject food. In the last forty-eight hours there was no assimilation, and during the last hours Morgan suffered intense internal pain.

M. Pulaski, a student of the American Art academy, took a death mask of Morgan for a memorial which the academy will erect in memory of the financier, who was one of its benefactors. This was the second mask taken, the first being made by Paul Troubetskoy, who accompanied Post Wheeler of the United States embassy to the death chamber.

Mrs. Herbert Satterlee, daughter of Morgan and his favorite child, is prostrated with grief and is being cared for by Dr. Dixon and a nurse.

Countless telegrams and cablegrams continued to pour into the Grand hotel from all parts of the world, expressing regret at the passing of the famous financier.

Mr. Morgan's body has been enclosed in a walnut coffin, lined with white brocade. This was then placed in a leaden casket and finally in a third case of heavy walnut with gold and silver trimmings. The body was embalmed by Dr. Angus Calonzi, an assistant to Professor Bastianelli. A cluster of white roses is clasped between the fingers of the right hand.

CONDOLENCES POUR IN

Estimates of Morgan's Fortune Range From $75,000,000 to $300,000,000

New York, April 2.—Members of the late J. Pierpont Morgan's household are not yet ready to make any announcement of plans for his funeral. If a decision had been reached in Rome as to arrangements for bringing the financier's body to this country, no advices regarding them had been received here, it was stated.

J. P. Morgan, Jr., did not go to his offices yesterday, and members of the Morgan firm who were at the banking house had no information to give out, they said.

Estimates of the fortune left by Morgan, as made in the financial district, range from $75,000,000 to $300,000,000, this sum including his art collections. It is understood that the financier's will is of comparatively recent date, but no intimation has been made as to when it will be given to the public.

Those who shared Morgan's close friendship predict there will be large charitable and public bequests, although it is conceded that the son will doubtless receive the bulk of the fortune.

POWERS' TERMS ARE AGREED TO

Turkey Willing to Bring War to a Close Immediately

NOT SATISFACTORY TO ALLIES

Balkan States and Greece Adhere to Demand For Indemnity, Which Is Not Provided For—Also Insist Upon Drawing Turkey's Boundary In Europe—New "King of Albania"

London, April 2.—Turkey has professed her willingness to bring the Balkan war to a close immediately. Prince Said Halin, Ottoman foreign minister, in behalf of the porte, presented a note to the foreign ambassadors at Constantinople completely accepting the terms proposed by the powers as a basis for the renewal of peace negotiations between Turkey and the powers in the Balkan league.

The terms of mediation offered by the European powers to Turkey and to the Balkan allies were as follows:

1. The frontier of the Ottoman empire in Europe shall start at Enos, and, following the course of the Maritza river, and then that of the Ergene, shall end at Midia. All territories situated to the west of this line shall be ceded by Turkey to the allied states with the exception of Albania, the delimitation of which shall be fixed by the powers.

2. The question of the Ægean islands shall be settled by the powers.

3. Turkey shall abandon all claim to Crete.

4. The powers cannot favorably entertain the demand for indemnity, but they will admit the allies to participate in the discussions of the international commission in Paris for equitable settlement of their participation in the Ottoman debt and in the financial charges of the districts to be handed over to them. Turkey is to be asked to take part in the labors of this commission.

The great powers declare at the same time that as soon as these bases are accepted hostilities shall cease.

These terms, however, are not entirely satisfactory to the Balkan league. They do not provide for an indemnity, whereas the Balkan states and Greece are preparing to levy a demand for indemnity ranging from $300,000,000 to $400,000,000.

The southern Bulgarian boundary line fixed by the powers is also farther westward than Bulgaria desires. She proposed to substitute a frontier line from Midia at the top of the peninsula of Gallipoli.

Despite these apparent obstacles it is believed that actual peace negotiations will be resumed either this week or next.

The European ambassadors in London have not reached any definite conclusions. The fall of the fortress of Adrianople is considered likely to have some influence on future negotiations.

Duc de Montpensier yesterday was proclaimed King of Albania by the provisional government of that country.

Several weeks ago Duc de Montpensier was approached on the subject of becoming Albania's ruler and he consented to try it. He set out for that country in a yacht and became king as soon as he landed as Brindisi.

Prince Ferdinand Francois, Duc de Montpensier, is the younger brother of Prince Louis Phillippe Robert, Duc de Orleans, head of the house of Bourbon-Orleans, pretender to the throne of France. He is 28 years old.

AGREEMENT IS REACHED

Maine House and Senate Will Try Sheriff Impeachment Cases

Augusta, Me., April 2.—Differences between the house and senate over the question of an investigation of the conduct of certain sheriffs in relation to the enforcement of the prohibition law were adjusted last night when the conference committee of the two houses voted to try the impeachment case of John W. Ballou of Bath, sheriff of Sagadahoc county, next Friday.

After the Ballou case is disposed of there will be hearings in the cases of Sheriffs Moulton of Cumberland county, Emerson of Penobscot county, Tolman of Knox county and County Attorney Hines of Androscoggin.

The cases will be tried separately, but house and senate leaders do not expect the trials to last more than a few days.

Coughs Up Stolen Money

Yonkers, N. Y., April 2.—Arrested on a charge of stealing $27 in a hotel, William Frazer confirmed the suspicions of the police by choking and finally coughing up two bank notes. When arraigned Frazer said he mistook the bills for chewing tobacco. He was found guilty of larceny.

Suicide of War Veteran

Lewiston, Me., April 2.—Daniel F. Short, a Civil war veteran, who was formerly an inmate of the Soldiers' home at Togus, committed suicide in a Park street lodging house. He was found dead sitting in a chair with a revolver on the floor under his right hand.

UNUSUAL EVEN FOR YALE

Tremendous Ovation to Professor Taft as He Reaches New Haven

New Haven, April 2.—Undergraduate Yale welcomed former President William H. Taft back to his alma mater in a manner no less hearty and enthusiastic than was the godspeed given Woodrow Wilson by the Princeton students when he left Princeton a month ago to take up the duties at Washington that Taft was about to lay down. The parallel is unique in the history of this country.

When it became known that Taft had accepted the Kent professorship of law at Yale, New Haven was anxious to give him a formal welcome, but it was omitted at Taft's request. Yale students, however, were not to be denied their wish to welcome him back to the college.

Practically the entire student body, 3000 strong, reinforced by a band, was at the station when Taft and his party arrived from New York. An equally large crowd of citizens was also present. Yale's famous "Frog Chorus" cheer, with nine "Tafts" on the end, roared from 3000 throats.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Taft were deeply moved by the reception.

DAYTON TO ASK FOR BIG LOAN

Wants $20,000,000 or $40,000,000 From Uncle Sam

WILL OFFER AMPLE SECURITY

Feels Flood Disaster Justifies Extraordinary Action by Congress—Food situation a Matter of Grave Concern, as More Than 100,000 People Must Be Fed For Long Time

Dayton, O., April 2.—"Dayton is facing one of the gravest problems that any city of the world ever faced, and we want the world to know we need money and food for our stricken people," said John H. Patterson, president of the relief committee, after he returned, in company with H. E. Talbott, chief engineer, from a tour of sections of Dayton that were swept by the flood last week.

In speaking of a tentative plan to ask the federal government for a loan of $20,000,000 or $40,000,000 to be used in reconstruction work Patterson said:

"At a meeting of bankers and officials of the building associations it was decided to make an appeal for federal aid. The banks and building associations have $60,000,000 worth of assets which they will put up as collateral.

"It may be deemed advisable to ask the government to give us some financial assistance. We feel that the disaster is an emergency which would justify extraordinary action on the part of congress.

Talbott estimated that the property loss in Montgomery county would reach at least $150,000,000.

Officials in charge of relief work said the food situation was a matter of grave concern. "We must have rations for more than 100,000 people for an indefinite period," Patterson declared.

Major Rhoades, President Wilson's aide, proposes a commission of army engineers to be sent to Dayton at once to devise measures for the future safety of the city, either through the control of the headwaters of the river or the reconstruction of the levees.

Four bodies were taken from the debris by workmen, bringing the total number of bodies recovered up to 129.

PREVENTIVE MEASURES

Several Indiana Cities Propose Bond Issues For Levee Building

Indianapolis, April 2.—Preventive measures are being planned by many flooded cities as the greatest lesson from the destructive overflow of last week.

Indianapolis is considering a bond issue to provide funds for levees the length of the White river in the city limits. Fort Wayne would issue $500,000 bonds to build a cut-off for her local streams as well as her dikes. Muncie is planning similar protective measures.

Other cities have announced their intention of taking up this subject immediately after meeting the more pressing problems of cleaning up and reopening the factories.

The number of deaths from the flood in Indiana is about fifty-seven.

FARMER BEATS THE KAISER

Tenant Gets $30,000 and Decoration In Settlement of Dispute

Berlin, April 2.—The German emperor's trouble with his tenant, Helmuth Sohst, on his estate at Cadinen, has been settled amicably after being before the courts for several months. The tenant has consented to vacate his farms voluntarily before the expiration of his lease, which has another five years to run.

The consideration paid to him was $30,000, and he is to receive the Order of the Royal Crown as a token of the emeproor's retraction of the statement he had made that he had "thrown out his tenant because he was utterly inefficient." A letter has been sent to Sohst containing the emperor's explanation and regrets.

Progressives Intend to Put Up Hot Fight In Bay State

Boston, April 2.—The campaign of Charles S. Bird as the Progressive candidate for governor of Massachusetts this fall was formally launched at a meeting in Ford hall last night.

Treasurer Leonard Martin announced that it was proposed to spend $100,000 to elect a governor and a Progressive legislature this fall. He called for contributions and a substantial sum was raised inside of a quarter of an hour.

PROBING WOMAN'S DEATH

Recently Wedded Secretly a Man Thirty-One Years Her Junior

Salem, Mass., April 2.—An investigation has been ordered by Medical Examiner Atwood of this city into the causes of the death of Mrs. Michael McGovern, who died Sunday last at her home in Peabody under circumstances which caused that official to perform an autopsy.

The contents of the stomach of the dead woman have been sent to Professor Whitney of Harvard medical school for examination. Future developments in the case will depend upon his report.

Mrs. McGovern, who was 73 years of age, was married on Dec. 30 last to Michael McGovern, who is 42, after her niece, Mrs. Fred L. Day, had asked Judge Harmon in the probate court of Salem to appoint a conservator to prevent her aunt making presents of money and real estate to McGovern. The application was rejected. Prior to her marriage Mrs. McGovern was Emily W. Drown.

TO RETAIN YOUNG OFFICERS

Secretary of Navy Will Not Accept Resignations of Midshipmen

Washington, April 2.—Secretary Daniels has taken a decided stand against the resignations of midshipmen and young officers of the navy before they have fulfilled their contract with the government.

His position is that these young officers have been educated and trained at considerable expense to the government, to the possible exclusion of other young men who might have devoted their life to the service, and for those reasons the nation should receive a permanent benefit from the expense involved.

There have been many resignations from the navy in the last few years, officers resigning to engage in private pursuits in which their training at the naval academy and in the navy have particularly fitted them. It is to break up this custom that Secretary Daniels has taken his stand.

HAS FIRST STRIKE IN 97 YEARS' TIME

Six Hundred Employes In Draper Plant Ask Wage Raise

Hopedale, Mass., April 2.—The Draper company was confronted by a strike for the first time in its ninety-seven years of existence. Responding to a call issued by the Industrial Workers of the World, 600 men and boys employed in the foundry quit to enforce a demand for a 10 percent wage increase and the abolition of piece work.

Nearly all the strikers are Italians. The 1600 hands employed in other departments were not affected by the strike order.

Labor unions have never existed in Hopedale, although it is understood that some of the company's employes have been affiliated individually with some organization.

The company is the largest manufacturer of textile machinery in the United States. No other industry is located here. Officials of the company claim they have always been interested in the welfare of their employes and have provided them with model cottages and tenements, a public library, recreation parks and athletic grounds. They also say the wages in Hopedale are higher than are paid in any other place in New England where similar work is done.

SUICIDE BY AEROPLANE

Warsaw, April 2.—Lieutenant Perlovski of the Russian army committed suicide here by shutting off the motor of an aeroplane in which he was flying and dropping from a height of 600 feet to the ground.

The tragedy was believed to have been an accident until a letter written just before the fatal flight was opened. In it Perlovski expressed his intention of stopping his motor in midair, and gave as a reason for his action that he had been the victim of many intrigues.

AN AESTHETIC WIDOW

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1913, by Associated Literary Press.

Mrs. Abigail Longbody was a woman living in the town of Farmdale. She was a widow. She was almost six feet tall and weighed nearly 200 pounds. The Widow Longbody had a female friend over at Clover Hill, who had become aesthetic. She saw beauty in the despised sunflower. She palpitated when she saw catnip growing. She raised her eyes to heaven over burdocks and pigweeds. At the first go off the widow laughed about it, but when seriously informed that it was the thing to do she adopted it.

Deacon Tracy, widower, had been courting the widow and had almost decided to pop the question. He had dropped in and was just clearing his throat to say something that the world has forever lost when she stopped him with:

"Deacon, you look like a fright with those whiskers, and I hope you will have them hoed off before you call again!"

"Hoe off these 'ere whiskers!" he exclaimed in amazement. "By gum, but do you know what you're talkin' about?"

"Then for mercy's sake get them dyed! The color grates on me!"

"I'd like to see myself feedin' dye to them whiskers! Anything else on your mind?"

"You drag your legs when you walk!"

"I do, eh? I remind you of an old knee sprung horse, do I? Waal, I kin bring them legs right outer your house and take my whiskers with 'em!"

Mr. Johnson, who bought butter and eggs and shipped them away to the city, had also an eye on the widow Longbody. She always entertained him very pleasantly when he called, and he had begun to feel the rose of love blooming in his heart. On what proved to be his last call the widow queried of him:

"Mr. Johnson, why don't you wear a wig?"

"A—a wig?"

"Yes, a wig. You always sit with your legs poked out like a pair of posts. A man with such shanks as yours ought to hide 'em!"

"I have been insulted, woman! I'll leave your house!"

"And have your eyebrows thinned out!" was the widow's parting shot.

In front of the widow Longbody's home ran a stream they were pleased to call Plug river. A bridge across it had long been needed and talked of, and the county finally voted it.

Every bridge in the country districts has always been painted red, if painted at all. It was red for this bridge. The widow was away for three days, and when she returned the bridge was half painted.

"Stop, stop! It cannot be! It shall not be!" cried the aesthetic.

"What's the kick?" asked the man who had the work in charge.

"It screams! It howls! It shrieks! It murders harmony and kills the landscape! I could not live here a day with that red thing staring me in the face. Ugh!"

She was told that she would have to endure it or move. Aestheticism was all right when applied to sunflowers and bull thistles, but when it came down to red bridges that was a matter of business.

"Oh, it is, eh?" was answered. "Well, there's another thing that is a matter of business."

Along the western side of the town the widow owned a strip of land which had a hill on it—a hill and a spring. With her free consent the water was piped down from the spring to supply many families and used to sprinkle the streets. When they refused to change the color of the bridge the water refused to flow downhill. The people howled, but they were helpless. After a week it was agreed that the aesthetic might name the color. She decided on a pearl gray. After a third of the bridge had been covered she changed it to vivid green. Then she wanted white with green trimmings.

"No more fooling!" was the decision of the taxpayers when they realized that the widow Longbody might finally demand that the bridge be covered with gold leaf.

"Very well," replied the woman as she prepared her second surprise.

Her husband had opened a street for his own convenience and had never deeded it to the town. People had bought sites and erected houses. They suddenly found themselves fenced in. When they went to the lawyers the legal talent hunted the matter up and replied:

"If you touch the fence she can have you arrested for trespass."

The town hated to be beaten by a woman and was talking about a big lawsuit when along came a lightning rod man. He was a jim dandy of a man. He was a wooer from Wooerville. He talked and he wooed and he won. In a fortnight he had won the widow's heart and hand. When this fact was rumored the bridge committee called on her to ask:

"Well, what about the bridge?"

"Paint it any old color you want to!"

"And that fence across Kirby street?"

"Tell 'em to tear it down!"

"And you—you are no longer aesthetic?"

"Not by a darned sight! Jim and I have already settled on corned beef and cabbage for our bridal dinner. Sorry I've had trouble with the town, but you see I was living on water crackers all the time and trying to be the next thing to an angel."

Express companies of the country have been hit hard by the operation of the new parcel post system, according to statements submitted to the Interstate Commerce commission by counsel for the companies in their final arguments against the reduction in express rates proposed by the commission. It was declared that the companies have suffered a loss approximating 25 per cent. in small package business—a loss which amounts to about 6 per cent. of the gross revenues of the companies.

HONEYMOON TO NEW HOME

Young Quincy Couple will Make Their Home in Canada

Ignorant of the law which requires that five days must elapse between the time of the filing of a marrage intention and the issuance of the license Miss Dora Edward Porter, 4 East Howard street and John Thomas Boulden, an iron worker at the Fore River applied Tuesday for a certificate so that they could be immediately married and leave for their new home in Canada without delay.

City Clerk Emery L. Crane referred to the law, suggested that the facts be made known to Judge Avery who alone is empowered to strike out the proviso for this section and Tuesday evening married the couple at his home after Judge Avery had granted the dispensation. Mr. and Mrs. Boulden left shortly after for Canada where they will engage in farming.

DUNCAN NAME MAY BE EXTINCT

Search Made for Descendant to Sponsor Vessel

NAMED FOR COMMODORE

The navy department, although naming a torpedo boat destroyer after Commander Silas Duncan, U. S. N., which will be launched at the Fore River yard April 5, have been unable to find any direct descendants of the commander. They will continue the hunt however and advise the yard officials Friday.

In case they do not discover a family connection the Fore River Co. will choose a local young lady to act as sponsor. As far as published biographies go there is nothing to show who Commander Duncan was.

The records of the navy department show that he was appointed a midshipman, Nov. 15, 1809, a lieutenant on Dec. 9, 1814 and Commander March 1, 1829. He died Sept. 14, 1834. He probably was in command of a boat in the war of 1812.

DRY WEATHER AND HIGH WIND

Cause Grass Fires, Keeping Firemen on the Jump

ONE FALSE ALARM

The dry weather Tuesday accompanied by high wind gave the firemen several calls on still alarms. Tuesday noon Chief Litchfield extinguished a grass fire with a stream from the Chief's car near the pest house.

At 3.30 the Central station auto combination extinguished a grass fire near the Adams Academy.

At 8.30 Tuesday night officer Avery saw some sparks coming from the chimney of the house of John Malone, Jr., at 964 Hancock street and telephoned the Central station, thinking the chimney was on fire. The Central station auto chemical and Hook & Ladder truck responded. The firemen found Mr. Malone sitting in front of the stove reading and he seemed surprised when the firemen entered the house. He said that he had put a piece of wood on the fire and thought that perhaps a few sparks may have come from that.

MINISTERS WORK AND RECREATE

All Protestant Denominations Represented at Supper

IN THE FIRST CHURCH

The Quincy Ministerial Association held their regular meeting in the Y. M. C. A. building Tuesday afternoon. Every minister was accompanied by his wife as the guest of the association.

The address of the day was delivered by Rev. Benjamin A. Willmott. He spoke on "The School Question" and recorded himself as being opposed to sectarian interference in the management of schools, feeling that if a minister should become a member of the board he should be there as a citizen.

The ministers went through their gym classes to the enjoyment of the ladies. The ladies afterward tried the bowling alleys and different games in the rooms.

The party had a supper in the chapel of the First Church, that was unique in that every Protestant denomination in this city was represented and all shades of theology on the part of the men.

So far as is known this is the first time that ministers of all congregations and their wives ever sat down to a supper in the historic edifice.

An original poem was read by Mrs. Richard E. Armstrong and an original toast was offered by Dr. A. L. Hudson.

SEEKING HOME FOR A CHILD

Little One of Ten Years Without Care of Parents

Ansu Mackey, a white haired, blue eyed 10 year old orphan is making friends with the boys on Granite street while Rev. John E. Lillback, his guardian is trying to find a permanent home for the youngster. The boy's parents came from Finland and settled in New York where the family was increased by the birth of two boys. Afterward they lived at Hyannis.

Ansu is the youngest of the brothers and hopes that he will be as fortunate as his brother who not long after the death of the parents secured a permanent home with an American family.

Stern necessity required that he leave school after studying in four grades of the Hyannis schools. Bright, free hearted and possessing a sunny disposition he appears to be all that a boy could be and Rev. Mr. Lillback is exerting every effort to assist the boy in obtaining the proper environment.

SUCCESSFUL OPERATION

Employe of the Ledger Office Reported Doing Well

AT QUINCY HOSPITAL

Andrew Costa, an employee of the job department of the Ledger office, residing at 99 Phipps street, underwent a serious operation at the Quincy hospital Tuesday. He is reported doing well. He came out of the ether in good form and there is every indication that he will fully recover from the effects of his ailment.

Seven or eight years ago, he was operated upon for appendicitis and this operation was successful. Lately however, he was troubled with acute pains in the abdomen, which led him to seek medical advice with the result that it was deemed necessary to perform an operation to relieve the distress.

The Quincy hospital and other hospitals in Boston to which he sought admission were tenanted to their capacity at the time, and he had to await a vacancy before being admitted to either. As the first chance came at the Quincy hospital the young men entered that institution.

His mother Mrs. Catherine E. Costa was at the hospital during the operation and remained until he came out of the ether and she called at the Ledger office, very glad to be able to report the favorable result of his treatment. His fellow employees and friends are very glad to learn that he is getting along so nicely. This afternoon his condition was still reported favorable and comfortable.

CUTTING WON IN THIRTEENTH

Mitchell Democrat, White Bull Mooser Unopposed

Former Representative, Alfred L. Cutting of Weston defeated Mayor James H. Gleason of Marlboro by more than two to one in Tuesday's primaries for the Republican nomination for Congressman in the 13th district to succeed John W. Weeks, the newly elected United States Senator.

Former Congressman John J. Mitchell of Marlboro, the Democratic candidate, and Norman White, of Brookline, the Progressive candidate, were not opposed. The election comes April 15. The voting was generally light.

PUPILS RECITAL.

The music pupils of Miss Emma A. Perkins will hold a recital in Colonial hall, this evening.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

SCHOOL GIRLS TO SELL THINGS

Dresses, Shirt Waists, Etc. Product of Somerville Industrial

The Somerville school committee has voted to lease for not more than a year a suite of rooms in an apartment building on Highland avenue, near city hall, in which will be displayed for public sale dresses, shirt waists, aprons, latest style hats, other features of womens' apparel and cooked foods, representing the finished work of the 50 pupils at the Girls' Industrial school on Atherton street.

It will be the first public show and sale "store" of the kind in this state, which, with the city, will divide the expense of maintenance unless the institution proves self-supporting—a result predicted by the superintendent of the school. The experiment will be made with the approval of Mr. Allen and Miss Hildreth, representing the state board of education.

The girls of the industrial school will provide refreshments for the annual guests' night of the Somerville Teachers' Association at Unitarian hall Saturday evening.

Men were Asleep with the Fire Between Them and the Exit

The alarm from Box 173 at 1 o'clock this morning called the department to a lively blaze in a boarding house at 86 East Howard street conducted by Mrs. Willard N. Joyce. There were ten lodgers in the house and all were asleep on the upper floors and their escape from suffocation was due to the bravery of Miss Maude Joyce.

Miss Joyce and her mother had been out for the evening and returned home just about 1 o'clock. Entering the dining room they found it full of stifling smoke. With rare presence of mind the young lady held a muff over her face and dashing through the smoke and flames ran to the rooms in the upper part of the house and awakened the boarders who quickly escaped. Miss Joyce although almost overcome with smoke was also able to get out of the building.

In the mean time someone had run to Newcomb Square and sent in an alarm from Box 173. The Central station apparatus made an unusual quick hitch and before the alarm had done sounding they were hurrying down Quincy avenue.

When the firemen arrived at the house they found that most of the fire was in Mrs. Joyce's sleeping room which is just off of the dining room. The flames however had begun to work through into the dining room.

The firemen confined the fire to these two rooms the bed room being quite badly gutted, while but little fire damage was done to the dining room. Chief Litchfield estimates the loss at from $200 to $300. Investigation showed that the fire started in one corner of the bed room but what the cause was is a mystery. It was said that a kerosene lamp had been left lighted on the dining room table for Mrs. Joyce and her daughter and it was at first thought that the family cat had knocked this over. The table however was not burned and the greater volume of the fire was in the bed room some feet away where there was no lamp, which would seem to explode the theory that the cat did it.

MUSIC PUPILS FINE RECITAL

Large Audience Expressed Their Approval of Teacher and Pupils

An extremely delightful evening was enjoyed by those who were present at the recital given at Colonial hall, Wednesday evening, under the direction of Miss Emma A. Perkins, whose ability as an able and efficient teacher was attested by the excellent renditions of her pupils.

Miss Eva B. Rice was extremely good having a rich, melodious voice, and the applauze she received was certainly well merited. The group of songs which she sang, ending the program, were exceptionally good.

The opening number "The Arrow and the Song" was rendered by a quartette composed of Misses Barnicoat, Howe, Meade and Bailey, the appreciation being shown by the prolonged applause of the audience.

The songs by Miss Gertrude Meade were sung in a soft but clear voice and her words being very distinct, made the songs more appreciative. Mr. Raymond Cassidy, also an excellent singer received his share of approval.

Special mention should be made of Joseph H. Morse, who with his rich melodious voice sang most acceptably. "The Last Song," and "I Hear You Calling Me" brought long and loud applause, and those well versed in vocal music were fully able to appreciate Mr. Morse's splendid voice.

"My Lover Comes On a Skee" by Miss Rice was the closing number, and when the last note was sounded the audience was reluctant to depart and words of praise to both pupils and teacher were heard on every hand. Mr. Roache performed acceptably on the violin.

The porgram was as follows:

Quartette—The Arrow and the Song, Miss Barnicoat, Miss Howe, Miss Meade, Miss Bailey.

Songs—Sing, Smile, Slumber Gounod
(With Violin Obligato)
Waltz Song

Miss Perkins was for over two years, director of music in the public schools of this city. She now has three studios; two in Boston, where she trains classes for teaching music in schools and private lessons in harmony, voice and piano, and one on Billings road, Norfolk Downs, where she also does private work in the same lines. Most of her Quincy pupils are graduates or members of the Quincy High school.

PUBLIC LIBRARY NOTES.

A most interesting set of Caldecott pictures is now on exhibition in the Children's Room of the Thomas Crane Public Library. The set comprises illustrations from the following books, "Baby Bunting," "A frog he would a-wooing go," "Hey, diddle, diddle," "The house that Jack built," "The Milkmaid," and "The three jovial huntsmen."

Ralph Caldecott was born in England March 22, 1846, and died in Florida, March 18, 1886. He was eminent as a book illustrator, with a most delightful sense of humor. Entirely different in character, his children's books rival in popularity those of Walter Crane.

GIFT OF GOLD TO MRS. HOLMAN

Also a Farewell Luncheon by Church Co-workers

HER DEPARTURE REGRETTED

An excellent turkey luncheon was given as a surprise to Mrs. Percy Holman, Wednesday noon in the vestry of the Washington Street Congregational Church, on her departure from Quincy, where she is held in high esteem by her many friends. She has been active in church work and president of the Ladies Aid Society who took this occasion to show their appreciation of her work among them.

The luncheon was very good and consisted of roast turkey, mashed potatoes, turnip, squash, cranberry sauce, fruit salad, orange sherbet, hot rolls, cake and coffee, and was prepared by Mrs. George Bailey, Mrs. C. W. Newcomb, Mrs. H. E. Bonney, Mrs. T. McKenney, Mrs. J. Fitton, Mrs. J. Peterson and Mrs. T. B. Pollard. The tables were arranged by Miss M. Thomas, Mrs. A. Foster, in the form of a huge wheel, while potted plants, palms and lilies added to the attractiveness and beauty of the decorations.

At the conclusion of the bountiful repast Mrs. Harlow, the honorary president and "mother" of the society, arose and after a short speech in which she spoke of the regret of Mrs. Holman's departure, presented her with a gift of gold, a slight token of remembrance from the ladies present. Mrs. Holman responded very touchingly and thanked the members for their kindness and co-operation in the work carried on, and for the many pleasant memories to be left behind.

After a short social hour and speech by Miss Freeman, the farewells were taken and all departed with the feeling that a vacancy had been left which would be hard to fill.

The special guest of the occasion was Mrs. Marshall, wife of the former pastor of the church, who was greeted by her former co-workers, and helped make the day a memorable one.

The following ladies participated in the luncheon:

Augusta A. Harlow, Mrs. J. R. Mellen, Mrs. E. R. Stone, Mrs. Ella A. Hayden, Mrs. L. F. Chubbuck, Mrs. C. H. Damon, Mrs. L. L. Austin, Mrs. T. B. Thomas, Mrs. B. G. Higgins, Mrs. M. S. Wight, Mrs. A. Hayden, Mrs. Marcia L Gibb, Mrs. A. B. Hayden, Mrs. C. A. Brent, Mrs. Joseph Fitton, Mrs. W. F. Perry, Mrs. A. B. Foster, Mrs. H. E. Bonney, Miss E. M. Freeman, Mrs. J. Lackie, Mrs. C. F. Sherwin, Mrs. E. R. Blanchard, Mrs. Thomas B. Pollard, Mrs. C. Webster Newcomb, Mrs. George E. Bailey and Mrs. J. Peterson.

MANY JOKE TOKENS.

The whist club of which Mrs. Mabel Keene is a member, tendered her a surprise party Tuesday evening at her home on Washington street. It being All Fools night it is not surprising that many of the mysterious packages with which she was presented proved April fool jokes. One of the packages however was no joke, upon being opened it was found to contain a handsome cut glass vase, which was presented to the host with the best wishes of the club. Whist being the diversion a few hours were pleasantly passed in this manner. Refreshments were served during the evening.

FIRE CHIEF SMITTEN.

Chief Engineer George F. Choate of the Milton Fire department had a stroke of apoplexy Wednesday night and lies in a serious condition at his home. He has been unconscious since the attack and but slight hopes are entertained for his recovery.

STARTED WITH SMALL CAPITAL

But the Hall Place Church Workers Increased it

SELF-DENIAL MONTH ENDED

"In the Western round-up, they drive the cattle in,
In the Eastern round-up we call the money in."

That's what was done at the Hall Place M. E. church, Wednesday evening when the "round-up" officially closed the month of self-denial, which has been observed from March 2nd to April 2nd.

March 2 each member of the Sunday school as well as members of the congregation received an envelope inscribed in the familiar words which told that the month of March was to be observed as a month of self-denial and with this envelope each person received a bright new penny, direct from bank to bearer as a starter in the work. They were at liberty to invest the cent in any way they chose to bring results to spend it in any way which would increase its value or add to it. With this capital in hand a large number have worked hard and faithfully during the month, some of the folks have worked very hard, as aside from denying themselves, the conditions imposed granted the right to "save, earn or give," which in many instances is as hard as denying one's self the little pleasures that come in the daily life of the average person.

But the results of the round-up repaid every one for their thoughtful labors. A very informal time was enjoyed. The evening's entertainment opened with the singing of America by the audience. Rev. T. C. Martin offered a brief prayer after which the pianist started up "Way down upon the Swanee River" which was promptly taken up.

After this came the depositing of the money and the relating of experiences, some of which were amusing in the extreme, but all showed careful work and planning. The result was highly pleasing and a good round sum was netted. Many of the Sunday school scholars are yet to be heard from.

While the money was being counted by C. S. Jose, Robert Newcomb, and Alex Steward, a social hour was enjoyed, the young folks indulging in music.

The Ladies Aid Society served coffee, cake and doughtnuts. A good number were in attendance.

C. S. Jose brought in the largest amount, part of which he secured by canvassing.

EVERYTHING IS DONATED

For Big Ball in Hingham to Aid the Flood Sufferers

Friday evening, April 4, at Hingham there will be a grand ball in Agricultural hall for the benefit of the flood sufferers. The hall has been donated, Tower's orchestra will give their services and dancing will be enjoyed from 8.30 to 1. Light refreshments will be served. The proceeds will be sent to the American Red Cross Society. Weather permitting there will be a number of Quincy people who will attend covering the few miles in automobiles.

UNINTENTIONAL OMISSION.

One of the most pleasing entertainers at the Granite City club banquet Tuesday night and whose name was inadvertantly omitted in the report of the banquet was Matt Fay of South Quincy who gave two very fine whistling solos. Mr. Fay for his second selection gave the Mocking Bird and his shrill whistle and thrill filled the hall with musical notes. It was a rare treat.

INJUNCTION AGAINST PROPOSED GRADE CROSSING PLAN SUGGESTED

Board of Trade Strongly Opposed to Report Submitted by Grade Crossing Commission

Advocate of the Single Tax Gives Rosy-tinted View of Scheme

A regular meeting of the Board of Trade was held in the Granite Manufacturers Association rooms, Wednesday evening. The business transacted included the following:

New applications received and 21 members admitted. Board favored depression of tracks and will oppose special commissioner's report before the Board of Railroad Commissioners at the State House Friday morning:—

In anticipation of an acceptance of the commissioners report, the Board of Trade voted to request the Mayor, acting for the city, to petition for an injunction restraining them from carrying out the plans submitted.

Voted to invite the secretaries of the local organizations to appear in opposition Friday morning and back up the attitude of the Board of Trade.

Voted to remit initiation fees up to and including the June meeting.

New station advocated between Wollaston and Quincy.

Mayor Stone was scored for not advising the Board of the report of the Commissioners, all information at hand being that which appeared in the press.

The following new members were admitted: Thomas Bishop, Charles C. Foster, Major W. E. Sweetser, Rev. Edward Anderson, Victor J. Emery, Percy L. Davidson, John W. Thompson, J. H. Jenkins, Daniel Scouler, Jr., Andrew Milne, William Cashman, B. J. Thomas, Russell T. Anthony, Dr. John W. Ash, Henry W. French, Charles Bishop, P. W. Mannex, Alexander Kemp, Daniel F. Fitzgerald, H. S. Waterhouse, Maurice E. Gatcomb.

An address on Taxation was given by Reginald Hull of Harvard University. He advocated the Single Tax, and gave a detailed explanation of his views. He was obliged to face a running fire of stiff questions from the members regarding the present system.

He said that the present system of taxation was wrong and that the tax commissioners of nine states have universally reported the failure of the personal property tax. It is impossible to collect this tax, it is admittedly a farce. The only thing left

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

The Great White way revolts at shutting down at one o'clock and threatens more graft disclosures. If that is brought about Mayor Gaynor will have accomplished more than he anticipated and probably more than he desired.

Despite the claims that it would not affect them, the great express companies now acknowledged they have been hit hard by the parcels posts. They stood it off for a long time and perhaps if they had only relaxed in some of their selfishness they would have been able to stave it off longer.

President Wilson showed an office seeker the door who had secured admission under false pretences. The president is living up to his standards.

Those April winds are worse than the March blizzards. It is no fun to chase a recalcitrant and elusive hat for from an eighth to a quarter of a mile.

It looks as though Botson had a man "high up" in the Custom House frauds.

Charles W. Morse has been cited to appear in court again, still further evidence that he is in the land of the living, strong and healthy.

It took the Turks some time to find out if they have enough. It now remains for the allies to show if they have got enough in the way of settlement.

It is no very creditable thing that Mr. Morgan had the reputation of never boasting. He never had to.

That new congressman who is offering to lecture at $100 per should remember that he owes something to his constituents if nothing to the country at large.

The Progressives plan a $100,00 campaign in this state. It is a good thing to keep money in circulation.

Congress juggling with the tariff, which an expert corps could settle in short order must be somewhat of a joke to the other nations of the world.

Did the office really seek the West Virginian who got into Congress by the expenditure of only a nickle.

Haywood is having more trouble this time in New Jersey. In Massachusetts cases against him were dismissed as it was more desirable to have him out of the way.

There is so much difficulty in getting ambassadors for those millionaire jobs that congress will soon have to provide means of making the salary fit the crime.

And by the way this country appears to be the only one to hand those delicate and important tasks out in the way of political patronage.

It would be much better if trained diplomats were ready to maintain the service. Under the present conditions the country runs great risks, as witness the Storer incident.

THE BASE BALL SEASON.

One week from today the base ball season of the big leagues will formally open and thousands of people, many of whom delight to be styled fans will be on hand to witness their favorites win and exult or be consumed by gloom at their defeat. This opening of the season is earlier than in past years, in fact a good ten days, because it has always been the practice to open April 19, Patriots day, since that holiday has been in operation. But an advance has been made. Why on this year more than any other is not made quite clear, but of course it swells the season's box receipts and that counts.

That it will not be too warm for base ball playing in the north and still colder for those who sit out in the open and watch the contests seems to be quite certain. Possibly it may not be so in the opening game but there will be many April days in this uncertain New England climate of ours when it will be anything but comfortable either playing or watching a ball game.

The past year the fans have had no let up, they have been served with the base ball fruit the year round. If their appetite proves useful and equal to it well and good, but there is a chance that this continuous performance may be overdone. In that case there will be evidences of some sort to indicate it on the part of the public before long. Just at present every one is satisfied and every one is taking off their hat and hailing with joy the return of the base ball season.

BEATING UNCLE SAM.

With the connivance of some one in the Boston Custom house service importers have been beating Uncle Sam out of thousands of dollars annually in duties which has not been of any benefit to the consumer. One paper whether facetiously, sarcastically or really in a serious vein announces that smuggling is not the easy thing it once was. Judging from the manner in which the exposes are brought to light once in so often, it would seem as if the present day smuggler had one delightful round of evasive revelry with little risk, compared with the trials and hardships of the old time practitioner. Just about once in so often smuggling of this kind is unearthed. With the system for espionage at home and abroad, with honest and efficient officials it should be almost next to impossible to smuggle goods through a custom house in this country. Yet the thing is carried on and successfully, but only with the connivance of some one in the service. Even at that there must be others not in on the game who have from time to time tumbled to what was going on and probably from fear of incurring the displeasure of some one higher has kept a still tongue and not permitted a hint of the discovery to filter out to the proper persons. Those people in a way are just as dishonest as the actual offender, because they are violating the regulations and the oath under which they are serving. There is something somewhat sensational in this last case. The arrests were made too soon. As a matter of fact the arrests were forced by leaks. This shows that a complete overhauling of the Boston custom is very needed at the present time. It can do no harm and undoubtedly will do lots of good for a time, at least.

A SPIRIT OF COOPERATION.

There comes to the surface now and then indications that the public is begining to see that it cannot continually and persistently knock the railroads without suffering in return. The roads and the public depend on each other, the one for support and the other for transportation. A state of dissatisfaction springing up at certain policies of the roads, the politicians made use of the situation to curry favor with the voters by a system of persecution of the roads. There were abuses that ought to have been remedied, and so far as those were concerned the new legislation enacted is not to be adversely criticised. But once started, the politicians kept on attempting to win favor by acts of annoyance and persecution that were ill advised. The business of the roads began to suffer, the cost of running the roads was increased and no corresponding increase of income was allowed. The operations of any business cannot be continued at a loss, and the time is at hand when the legislature and state official must let up on the roads or the roads will be forced to cut down their service, or go into bankruptcy, or both. The feeling that the crowding of the roads must stop or the public suffer is growing.—Keene Evening Sentinel.

Qualey, son of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Qualey of 346 Washington street. The ceremony was performed at 8 o'clock at the bride's home by Rev. Harry Grimes, pastor of the First Congregational church. The rooms were tastefully decorated with carnations, evergreen and potted plants, the color scheme being pink and green.

Emerson Qualey of Braintree, the groom's brother, was best man and the bride was given in marriage by her father. The bride wore a beautiful gown of charmeuse satin trimmed with seed pearls and carried Killarney roses.

After the ceremony there was a reception from 8 until 10 o'clock, the happy couple being assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Williams and Mr. and Mrs. Qualey.

At the close of the reception, the newlyweds left for a ten days tour during which they will enjoy the sights of Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington. On their return, they will reside at 346 Washington street and will be at home to their friends after May 1st.

QUIET WEDDING AT BRAINTREE

Owing to Recent Bereavement in Bride's Family

A very quiet home wedding was solemnized Wednesday evening when Miss Dorothy Loring, daughter of Edwin S. Loring of 21 Franklin street Braintree, became the bride of William Clare Harkness Stevenson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund W. Stevenson of 15 Mount Vernon street. The ceremony was performed at the bride's home at 8 o'clock by Rev. Tyler E. Gale, pastor of the South Congregational church. The wedding, which was witnessed by only the immediate relatives was of the simplest character owing to the recent death of the bride's mother.

After the ceremony there was a reception from 8.15 to 9 o'clock in which the happy couple were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Stevenson and Mr. Loring. Mr. and Mrs. Stevenson left on an evening train for a short trip to points in Maine and on their return will reside at 21 Franklin street where they will be at home after May first.

PEACE SOCIETY.

The original Massachusetts Peace Society was formed December 26, 1815 The society became a centre from which work for peace extended widely. It had branches not only in Massachusetts, but in other New England States, and remained in active operation until after the removal of the office of the American Peace Society from Hartford to Boston in 1837.

The new Massachusetts Peace Society was organized on April 27, 1911. The organizing committee consisted of Dr. William A. Mowry, Rev. Samuel C. Bushnell, and Mrs. J. Malcolm Forbes. The officers chosen were Hon. Samuel B. Capen, President; Mr. W. H. H. Bryant, Treasurer; Dr. James L. Tryon, Secretary.,

The society was the first to interest itself for the checking Italian-Turko war and the Balkan war. They favor repeal in the clause to exempt American ships from payment of Panama tolls. The society is at work in all walks of life to advance its propaganda of peace. During the coming summer numerous lectures will be given.

The annual meeting of the Massachusetts Peace Society will be held at the Twentieth Century Club Rooms on Thursday, May 22, at three o'clock in the afternoon. There will be a dinner with speeches at six o'clock.

Other events are planned, and will be announced from time to time.

THE EDUCATIONAL FIELD

High School — Public Schools'
Woodward Institute — Parochial School

HIGH SCHOOL.

The Senior class in German III will present the one-act comedy, ""Ein Schatz fuers Haus" by A. Kistner on Friday afternoon, April 11, at four o'clock in the assembly hall of the High school. All interested are cordially invited to attend.

GRADUATION PLANS.

The high school and the grammar schools of the city are already at work on the graduation music. The class from the grammar schools will be of about the same size as that of last year so that for the present year at least it will still be possible to continue the simple plan of a combined class graduation in the High school hall, a plan which has been in use many years. The graduations will come one week later than usual this year, owing to the shorter terms and the extra vacation. The speakers for the graduations have not yet been engaged.

United State Bureau of Education.

Dr. P. P. Claxton Commissioner of Education is planning a constructive campaign for the coming year. He is first of all planning to establish a department for the study of rural schools and their problems for 65 percent of all the children of the country are now receiving their education in those schools. He further plans to establish a department to work out the problem of vocational education which is so pressing at the present time. Next comes the problem of the health of school children which has led to the establishment of a department of school hygiene and sanitation. Then comes the problem of the high schools and that of higher education. It is hoped that a greater amount of money will be placed at the disposal of the Bureau in order that the interests of school children may be given adequate consideration.

COURSES OF STUDY.

The high school course of study has been printed and will soon be ready to distribute among the pupils of the grammar schools. During the month of May, the superintendent of schools will spend one afternoon at each of the grammar schools with the graduating class, explaining to them and to their parents who will be invited, the course of study. The scope and contents of the various subjects and other essential facts with reference to the High school, Woodward Institute and the Industrial school. It is very important that a boy or girl should choose the right course and therefore all information possible will be supplied.

PRACTICAL TRAINING.

The manual training boys at the Wollaston School completed a useful piece of work in the way of a large platform to be used in the hall to supplement the regular platform. This was built after school in three afternoons and was in use last evening at the concert of the Wollaston Glee club.

MANY VISITORS.

The schools have had an unusually large number of visitors this past week, especially the pre-vocational classes. This morning the school department received an inquiry from the Grand Rapids, Michigan, Manuafcturers Association, asking full particulars as to the half time school and its method of training apprentices.

OF VITAL INTEREST.

No more topic of vital interest to parents has been discussed in a long time than the subject of the address to be given before the Adams Parents' and Teachers' Association this evening. "School girls and their Amusements" will be the topic and Miss Esther G. Barrows of the South End House, Boston, the speaker. There will also be an old fashioned spelling match among the pupils of Grade Seven.

BOARD OF TRADE

to tax is real estate, divided into land and improvements. If we tax the latter we penalize industry. Taxing land means a man will develop his property. It will not decrease the amount of land as there is only so much of it in the world.

The taxes on land, moreover, cannot be shifted, a principle which is universally admitted by economists from the time of Adam to date and even by the opponents of the tax on land values.

The only value which unimproved land has is that created by the community. The taxation of land values is a proposition for the community to take the value which it creates and leaves to the individual the entire products of his industry.

As the tax on land cannot be shifted it must be paid by the owner. A tax on land values therefore will drive down prices of land for a man under such a system must either develop or sell to one or the other. That will force land into the market, land will become cheaper, building will develop and as a result rents will fall, there will be a plenty of houses, it will be unprofitable to maintain slums and a minimum wage will automatically be fixed because no man will then work for less than he can make from access to the soil.

The reason slums exist today is because it is more profitable to retain old dwellings whose value was written off in depreciation years ago and which are cheaper to tax than it is to tear them down and build expensive tenements. If improvements were exempted and land values taxed it would be unprofitable to maintain slums.

Taxation of land values is in existance for municipal purposes, in the cities and towns of Alberta and about 30 in British Columbia. The Boards of Trades are using this fact to boost these towns. The increase in building permits and in values is increasing in some cases as much as treble the amount before the system went into operation. Provinces of Australia have a large measure of the single tax and all of New Zealand and many cities of Germany now use it. In some places it has worked so well that in one or two towns they not only have remitted all taxes but have declared a dividend to the citizens that live there.

Two cities in the United States have this system Houston, Texas, and Everett, Washington. The former put into effect despite its unconstitutionality and they re-elected Pastoriza, the assessor who was elected in a single tax campaign, by a large majority.

Labor, working in conjunction with capital on the land produces a wealth which is distributed in the form of rent ,wages and interests. Therefore, there is no quarrel between labor and capital, but only between capital and labor on the one hand and monopoly on the other, and it is with the object of equalizing the monopoly in land values that we advocate the taxation of land values. The proposition is by taxation to take by the community the ground rent (which is the amount any one piece of land is worth for use over other land) for community purposes, thus equalizing the monopoly which previous access to any good land has given any one person.

The method by which the taxation of land values has been put into operation in most plcs has been by the transference of the incidents of taxation, five or more percent a year from improvements and from personal property, the land thus making the readjustment easy and without any shock.

Mr. Hull outlined the present system of taxation as a preface to his talk and urged the interest of the members of the Board of Trade in the recommendation to the recess committee on municipal finance jointly before the legislature in favoring the appointment of assessors subject to civil service, thus abolishing the present system so frequently in use in many cities and towns of electing these officials.

Mr. Hulls statement was not in criticism of any Board of Assessors calculated to fill the needs but merely a criticism of the system.

He mentioned the Somers system of taxation which gave full publicity and said that perhaps we would have to pass through the income tax stage which might be all right if it only drew a distinction between earned incomes and monopolies.

Mr. Hull was given a rising vote of thanks by the association and many invitations for him to again address them were extended.

In the grade crossing duscussion the sentiment was freely expressed that the Special Commission did not have power enough to look after the cities needs and that they should have gone to the court for instructions. Those favoring depression felt that the city under the plans submitted is facing a crisis, that with the widening to a four track system Beach, Squantum, Dimmock and Adams street bridges will be turned over to the city for completion and that the proposed up grade will make a waterway of Water street and an inaccessible approach to the police station and that locality by the way of School street.

The motion which prevailed regarding the injunction anticipated a favorable report on the plans by the Railroad Commissioners and will be forwarded in writing to Mayor Stone.

GOOD CONCERT BY GLEE CLUB

Wollaston Organization Gave a Very Creditable Program

The largest audience ever attending an entertainment in Wollaston entirely filled the hall of the Wollaston Grammar school Wednesday evening and loudly applauded the excellent program presented by the Wollaston Glee club at its spring concert.

The club was assisted by Mme. Maria Camporelli of the Boston Opera company, Miss Lucy Lee reader, Edward E. Bullock, tenor and William Ellis Weston accompanist.

Mme. Camporelli's appearance was a triumph from the time she sounded the first note to her last exit when she retired gracefully bowing and gaily waving her hand to her admirers.

The foreign graces and artistic temperament of this dainty Italian songstress gave added measure to the appreciation of her high soprano voice and able control.

Mme. Camporelli's contribution to the program consisted of arias from three Italian operas. They were "Linda Di Chamounix" by Donizetti, "Rigoletto" by Verdi and "Wally" by Catalani.

The last named gave full range to her voice and she showed appreciation of her accompanist Mr. Weston by an impetuous handshake at it conclusion.

The readings of Miss Lucy Lee called forth appreciative applause. Her selections included "John Norton," a Christmas story of the back woods, "The Night Wind" by Eugene Field, "At the Matinee" a realistic bit of comedy, "Chewing Gum," "When the train comes in," "The rag doll" and many others of equal interest.

Edward E. Bullock Wollaston's tenor, showed up to advantage in his two solos "Hymn to the Madonno" by Krempser and "The image of the rose by Reichardt.

The selections by the chorus were of their usual excellence and were in perfect harmony and rythm. Director John A. Crowley deserves credit for its training.

Among the chorus numbers were "March of the men of Harlech" by Brewer, "A secret from Bacchus" by Bruno Huhn, "Pussy's in the well" by Nevin, "My love" by Parker, "Wanted, a wife" by Lynes and "The lost chord" by Sullivan-Brewer.

"Now I lay me down to sleep," a solo by Arthur F. Capen with a back ground of male voices was arranged especially for the Wollaston Glee club by its director John A. Crowley.

VIOLATED SABBATH LAW.

It cost Jacob Selene $10 to do a little carpentry work on his summer home at Houghs Neck last Sunday. Selene was building a piazza on his house and Sunday being a pleasant day he started in with a saw and hammer to complete the job. Officer Corbett heard the racket and summoned the man into court this morning on a complaint charging him with violation of the Lord's Day act.

TEA AS A BEVERAGE.

It Is Said to Enrich a Person Both Morally and Physically.

Did you know that tea drinking is a splendid aid to one's morals? At least that is the opinion of an English scientist who not long ago compiled a learned treatise to show the beneficial effects of tea drinking from a spiritual, physical and moral standpoint.

A meal in the morning, he says, with tea as the beverage will enable a man to pursue his day's work with faculties unclouded, temper unruffled and a generally amiable state of nerves. Besides that, it makes the body active, it clears the sight, it strengthens the appetite and the digestion and is particularly wholesome for men of corpulent bodies and great meat eaters.

It vanishes dreams, increases the memory and prevents sleeplessness. It has been observed that it has contributed more to the sobriety of the Chinese than the severest laws, the most eloquent harangues and the best treatise on morality.

But, in addition to all this, he claims for tea a strengthening effect on morality. A man who is stimulated by a generous cupful of tea, moderately strong, will be able to withstand more successfully the manifold temptations that assail him in the business and social world into which he is plunged than the man who is not sustained by the same beverage.—Chicago Tribune.

TONGUES OF BIRDS.

That of the Humming Bird Is About the Most Curious of All.

A German naturalist has gathered some curious data with reference to the tongues of birds. As he points out, many persons suppose that woodpeckers use their sharp pointed tongues as darts with which to transfix their prey. It is true that the woodpecker, like the humming bird, can dart out its tongue with extraordinary rapidity and that its mouth is furnished with an elaborate mechanism for this purpose, yet investigation shows that the object of their swift motion is only to catch the prey, not to pierce it. For the purpose of holding the captured victim the woodpecker's tongue is furnished with a sticky secretion.

Inasmuch as it possesses the power of imitating speech, it is not surprising to learn that the parrot's tongue resembles that of man more closely than any other bird's tongue does. It is not because the parrot is more intelligent than many other birds, but because its tongue is better suited for articulation than theirs that it is able to amuse us with its mimicry.

In some respects the humming bird's tongue is the most remarkable of all. It is double nearly from end to end, so that the little creature is able to grasp its insect prey very much as if its mouth were furnished with a pair of fingers.—Harper's Weekly.

Gardens of the Bosporus.

The gardens of the Bosporus are one of the most characteristic features of that river-like strait. They have, moreover, a definite cachet of their own. This is largely prescribed to them by the nature of the soil on which they are laid out. The banks of the Bosporus slope sharply back to a height of some 400 feet and are broken by valleys penetrating more gradually into the rolling tablelands of Thrace and Asia Minor. Few of their houses, therefore, do not enjoy some view of the water and of the opposite shore, rarely more than a mile or two away. The gardens of the houses are accordingly laid out with reference to those views and are determined in form by the steepness of the hillsides on which they lie. They are terraces—that is, one or many according to the size of the garden.—Scribner's.

He Wouldn't Respond.

When Joaquin Miller's play, "The Danites," was produced for the first time the play caught the crowd's fancy, and at the end of the second act there were great calls from the audience for "Author, author!"

The manager looked around for Miller, but could not find him. He sent several of his assistants all over the theater to hunt Miller up and bring him before the footlights to address the clamorous audience.

After some time spent in searching Miller was spied sitting among the crowd way up in the gallery, where the calls of "Author!" were most numerous. Upon being asked to go down and address the audience, Miller refused, saying that wild horses couldn't drag him down there.—New York Sun.

Value of Merriment.

The mere physical act of laughter quickens the circulation and the breathing, supplies the body with more oxygen and stimulates every organ. Good humor dispels ill health. Our moods or humors affect the health for good or ill. The meal eaten to the accompaniment of family quarrels or depressing arguments is infinitely less valuable than the one taken in pleasant company.—Indianapolis News.

FLOOD SWEEPS THROUGH SOUTH

Many Towns Reported Filled With Homeless People

OHIO RIVER IS SLOWLY FALLING

Temporary Relief at Cairo as Crest of Wabash High Water Passes—Conditions Somewhat Improved In Middle States—Whiskey Washed Away at Louisville

Cincinnati, April 3.—After remaining stationary nearly twenty-four hours the Ohio river began falling here. The indications are that it will continue to fall slowly and that the end of the flood is in sight.

Cairo, Ills., had a little respite from its flood scare due to the fact that the Ohio waters were at a standstill from midnight. The relief, however, will be only temporary, it is said, engineers giving as its cause the passing of the crest in the Wabash high water. The crest of the Ohio river flood waters is still to come.

Those who are looking out for the reinforcement of the levees did not allow work to abate, even though the rise had stopped. Hope is held out that the the waters may continue to recede and the city may be better prepared for the high water which is coming. In the drainage section all business was abandoned.

Lower Ohio river flood relief by federal and state authorities was centred at Evansville, Ind., yesterday. The river's stage was 46.4 feet and the rate of rise indicated that the highest previous flood mark would be passed today. Mayor Heilman estimated that 400 families of Evansville, in Oakdale, on the Lower East Side, and along Pigeon creek had been driven from home.

Conditions are somewhat improved at Shawneetown, Ills., where, since the levee was cut, people are resuming emergency work inside the town. Urgent telephone messages from the river observers at Mount Vernon, Ind., picture the desperate condition of Wabash flood victims in the neighborhood of Muncie and Grand Haven, Ills. Scores of them without food have been fighting for existence against the water since Sunday. Help will be sent them.

The weather is fair and warm, and the work of re-enforcing the levees still is proceeding with vim. The crest in the Ohio river was reported to be in the vicinity of Evansville, and there may be a decided drop before the high water arrives.

Columbus Is Fast Recovering

Columbus, O., April 3.—Although companies of militia are still guarding the flood district, conditions on the West Side are gradually becoming normal. The Columbus death list was increased by the finding of two more bodies, making a total of seventy-three. Streets are becoming cleared, refugees are turning to their damaged homes, work of repairing and building new bridges is under way and telephones are working in some sections, and one lone street car plies the flood district.

The finance committee in charge of relief work at Chillicothe sent out an appeal for financial aid to assist in the work of caring for the 4000 persons who lost almost everything they possessed. Thus far the situation has been handled locally. The loss to citizens will run over $1,000,000.

Serious Situation In Kentucky

Louisville, Ky., April 3.—A large warehouse of the Rugby Distillery company in the western end of the city, weakened by flood waters, collapsed, releasing to the river about 5000 barrels of whiskey valued at $250,000. The threatened collapse of weakened buildings is the only source of anxiety, as the crest of the flood has passed Louisville.

Lower river points continue to experience rising water. Paducah, with water standing more than two feet deep in the lower sections of the city, faced the menace of a useless lighting plant. Henderson and Owensboro, safe from flood damage themselves, were taxed with the care of hourly increasing refugees. At Wyckliffe, where are gathered more than 3000 refugees from Hickman, Cairo and Columbus, the shelter situation is becoming acute.

A carload of provisions was sent to Hawesville, Ky., forty miles east of Owensboro, and which is under from one to four feet of water. Four hundred and fifty families are homeless there.

Levees at Hickman, Ky., held, but three "blow outs" in the West Hickman levee warned engineers that it could not stand much more strain. Inhabitants of the low land back of this levee were ordered to get to higher ground. Telephone messages from Columbus, Ky., where the levee went out, state that 1500 people are homeless and in need of food and shelter.

Washington, April 3.—Total receipts of the Red Cross for the relief of flood sufferers have reached $816,000.

READY TO ROB MONTENEGRINS

Powers Preparing to Shut Them Off From the Sea

MUST GIVE UP THEIR PRIZES

Naval Demonstration In Form of Peaceful Blockade Is Announced—No Measures of Force Yet Contemplated—Determined That Servia Shall Not Get to Adriatic Sea

London, April 3.—Sir Edward Grey, the British foreign secretary, informed the house of commons that as Montenegro had resumed the attack on Scutari, contrary to the will of the European powers, the latter had decided to proceed with the naval demonstration off the Montenegrin coaat. Two British warships, he said, were ready to participate.

The French government also decided to take part in the naval demonstration on the Montenegrin coast, owing to Montenegro's negative reply to the request of the European powers that she should raise the siege of Scutari. Action will be taken, however, only after Russia has given her definite approval and has asked France to represent her. The decision of the French government has been communicated to Russia.

The naval demonstration against Montenegro is to take the form of a peaceful blockade of the Montenegrin harbor of Antivari, according to an inspired dispatch from Berlin to the Cologne Gazettte. No measures of force have yet been contemplated by the powers. The small German cruiser Breslau has been ordered by the German government to participate in the blockade of the Montenegrin coast.

Part of the Austrian squadron is reported to have reached the Montenegrin port of Antivari. The remainder is held in reserve at Cattaro. Transports with 3000 infantry aboard accompany the warships.

The pretended reason is that the powers have determined to set up an autonomous Albania, of which Scutari, which the Montenegrins under King Nicholas have been besieging for more than five months, shall be a part. The real reason is that Austria, backed by the other members of the triple alliance, is determined that Servia shall not get to the Adriatic. In other words Austria is using every endeavor to retain Servia in the economic servitude under which she has labored for many years.

Conflicting reports are current concerning the situation before Scutari. One says the Montenegrin army has captured five of the forts defending Tarabosch and the fall of two others is expected to occur at any hour, and that Scutari is burning in several places. Another says that the bombardment ceased yesterday, as the Montenegrin besiegers are awaiting the arrival of reinforcements.

LEWIS QUITS HIS JOB

Resignation of Negro Assistant Attorney General Takes Effect

Washington, April 3.—William H. Lewis of Boston, the negro assistant attorney general, is out. He packed up his effects at the department of justice yesterday and quit, his resignation having taken effect.

While in Washington Lewis was the centre of a lively official storm. The members of the American Bar association drew the color line and protested against Lewis being admitted to membership.

The change of administration was bad for Lewis, officially. Attorney General McReynolds is from Tennessee. One of the first things he did after being sworn in was to ask for Lewis' resignation.

THE GENTLEMEN WERE THE HOSTS

Proved Efficient Entertainers of the M. and S. Club

The M. and S. Club, composed of eight well known ladies, were tendered a dance at Hancock hall, Wednesday evening by the husbands and gentlemen friends of the members, and a most delightful time was in order. The evening was not entirely devoted to dancing, various amusing games being played. The presence of only the eight couples made the occasion most enjoyable, and laughter and merriment were prevalent throughout. Refreshments of fancy ices, cakes, and chocolates were served, and cigars were passed to the men. The participants were loth to depart at midnight, but did so with regret and the guests bestowed their thanks with three rousing cheers upon the gentlemen for the evening's enjoyment.

Melville's orchestra provided, delightful music throughout the evening.

The following were present:—Mr. and Mrs. O. T. McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. J. Hennessey, Mr. and Mrs. L. Hartley, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Perry, Miss Gladys Pinel, Miss Aljuline Keene, Miss H. M. Lermond, Ray Oliver, Roland Phinney and G. C. Russell.

YOUNG MAN ACTED STRANGE

Martin T. Grages will be Examined to Determine Mental Condition

There was quite a little excitement in City Square this morning when a young man giving the name of Martin T. Grages aged 22 years of 237 Washington street acted strangely. According to people about City Square the young man was walking back and forth acting in a queer manner and accosting nearly every woman he met. Officer Murray's attention was called to the fellow and he attempted to place him under arrest. As the officer grabbed him however the fellow twisted himself out of the officers grasp. Then it was that Tom Devaney, the street railway starter in the Square came to the rescue and grabbed the fellow. By this time Officer Murray was close at hand and the fellow was run into Fritz tailor shop and the police patrol telephoned for. The young man will be examined for his sanity.

OUTLOOK MOST FAVORABLE

For an Early Start on the Squantum Women's Clubhouse

Mrs. Hiram Morse, Bellevue road entertained the Squantum Women's club, Wednesday afternoon. There was a small attendance as there was little business to consider.

Mrs. Morse, chairman of the finance and building committee reported she had been very successful soliciting bonds and found people ready to invest their money for a Community House at Squantum. If other members of the committee meet with the same success it looks certain that the club house will be under construction by another month.

Beginning this month there will be meetings on the first and third Wednesday's. The first meeting being in the afternoon and the other in the evening, giving every one a chance to attend. This schedule will continue through the summer.

The meeting April 23 will be at the home of Mrs. C. E. Carlson, Huckins avenue.

Owing to its importance a large attendance is expected.

REDFIELD IS OPTIMISTIC

Secretary of Commerce Sees Great Awakening of American Industry

New York, April 3.—American industry has long been a sleeping giant and is but now awakening; the country is but just reaching out to take her place in the commercial arena of the world, in the opinion of William C. Redfield, secretary of commerce, who addressed the graduating class of the New York trade school last night.

"The great corporations that carry on 'big business' are adjusting themselves to meet the will of the people," Redfield said. "They begin to realize that their security lies in service and in that alone. The men within the mill are admitted on every hand to be of far greater value than the mill itself, and profits are deemed wrong that spring from repression of the worker.

"The industries of America are shaking off the shackles and face serenely the prospects of competition before which many of them have cowered in the past."

NO CLUE TO SLAYER

Murdered Chauffeur and Bloodstained Auto Found at Roadside

Albany, April 3.—A bloodstained automobile standing by the roadside and the lifeless body of Frank J. Clute, an Albany chauffeur, lying in a ditch nearby, were found on the Schenectady-Troy road not far from Watervliet. Three bullet wounds in the chauffeur's head revealed the manner of his death. The authorities have no clue to his slayer.

A bloody trail across the road showed that Clute's body had been dragged to the ditch after the murder. Footprints in front of the car indicated that the slayer had attempted to start the car but had failed because of battery trouble.

Clute was employed by his father, who conducts a garage here. He was 25 years of age. A watch and ring which he wore were undisturbed.

NEW YORK SENATE CALLS FOR EVIDENCE

Adjournment Delayed by Charges Against Stilwell

Albany, April 3.—The senate unanimously adopted a resolution calling upon Governor Sulzer and Attorney General Carmody to submit forthwith to the senate all telegrams, letters and documents in the possession of either relating to the charges made by President Kendall of the New York Bank Note company that Senator Stilwell had demanded money to report a stock exchange bill out of the codes committee, of which he is chairman.

A report was current that District Attorney Whitman of New York county might be called upon to present the Stilwell matter to the grand jury, independent of action by the senate.

Plans for final adjournment of the legislature on April 25 have been upset by the charges. The senate inquiry into the charges against Stilwell may delay adjournment a month.

WOOL ON FREE LIST

Victory For Democrats Who Have Made Long Fight For It

Washington, April 3.—Removal of all tariff from raw wool has been agreed upon between President Wilson and members of the house committee on ways and means, as the result of conferences that ended yesterday.

The present plan, which will have the unanimous indorsement of the Democratic members of the committee, provides that wool shall be placed on the free list, an end for which the free wool Democrats of the house, led by Representative Underwood, have fought for two years.

TETYC HELD FOR GRAND JURY

Man was with the Russian Woman Who Died

BONDS FIXED AT $5000

The case of Klim Tetyc the Russian, who was with Mrs. Baraska Slobodniskova at the time it is alleged she fired the fatal shot from which she died later at the City Hospital came up on continuance in the district court this morning and he was held in $5,000 for the grand jury on a complaint charging him with assault with a dangerous weapon. The alleged assault took place on the mornig of March 4. It is alleged that Tetyc visited the American Fertilizer plant at North Weymouth and induced the woman to accompany him to Boston on the pretence that he would find her employment. They returned to Quincy that night and went to the greenhouses of Perry Green on Howard avenue, which were in charge of a fellow countryman. The two spent the night in the caretaker's room and the next morning, according to the woman's statement just before she died, Tetyc pointed a revolver at her and threatened to shoot her if she did not accompany him. She then seized the revolver and shot herself. Tetyc was placed under arrest and the case has been pending since that time

ITALIANS FACE SERIOUS CHARGE

Rocco and Antonicci Used Knife and Revolver

RATHER INDISCRIMINATELY

It was after 4 o'clock Wednesday before the hearing in the cases of Prino Rocco and Mathew Antonicci who were arrested Easter Sunday in connection with the stabbing affray on Field street was completed. The original complaint charged the two men with stabbing Domenico Pasquale. The wound was on the left side near the heart and Pasquale has been in the City Hospital as a result of the assault up to Wednesday.

The row took place on Field street, early Easter Sunday evening and according to all accounts there was a general cutting in which several received stab wounds, and wounds on the head made by clubs and one woman was shot at.

It was not until Wednesday when the cases were called that anything about wounds other than those of Pasquale was known. Inspector Goodhue who has been working on the case surprised the men when new complaints and several new witnesses were called.

Rocco in addition to the complaint for assault on Pasquale, which was assault with intent to kill, was called upon to plead to a complaint charging assault with intent to kill on Bernandino and Daminico Pasqualone relatives of the man named in the original complaint.

Antonicco was also charged with an assault with a revolver with intent to kill Mrs. Amolia Pasqualone wife of Bernandino Pasqualone. Mrs. Pasqualone testified that as she stooped to pick up her husband's hat Antonici discharged a revolver point blank at her. Both sides were represented by counsel and as all evidence had to be taken through an interpreter it required much time. The cases then went over until Friday the defendants being held in $3,000 bonds.

BRIEFS

Frank J. Donahue, secretary of state will address Quincy Council Knights of Columbus at Colonial hall tonight.

Dr. George H. Ryder of Johnson avenue has moved into the Wright house at 1073 Hancock street.

The electric car which has been leaving East Weymouth at 7.15 A. M. will hereafter leave at 7.10 arriving at Quincy at 7.50, five minutes earlier, and in season for the 7.55 train.

PI ETA SHOW TONIGHT.

The sixth performance of Pi Eta's 47th annual production, "The Stymie," will be given this evening in Music hall, Quincy, at 8 o'clock. The performances so far this year have been excellent, were enthusiastically received, the consensus of opinion being that "The Stymie" surpasses any previous endeavor of the society in this line.

The cast contains local talent in the personages of Paul Blackmur and J. S. Pfaffmann. Mr. Blackmur as "Burtie Charlton," one of the comedians, plays his role in a decidedly clever manner, not only by keeping the audience laughing at his jokes, but also by singing several very pretty songs. J. S. Pfaffmann in his beautiful Parisian gown of red silk, trimmed with white lace, makes a decidedly attractive show girl, coquettish and shy.

The high standard set by this production is well depicted in the following criticism written for the Standard Crimson by Dr. A. T Davison of the University faculty.

"Few comic operas offer as pretentious a plot as does 'The Stymie' and one is spared the usual experience of sitting through much unrelated dialogue in the hope that relief will appear in the form of another song. In fact, the play contains approximately half the customary number of musical selections, and the appeal to attention is frankly on the side of the story, with what amounts to incidental numbers, both songs and dances, introduced for the sake of variety.

"In many respects 'The Stymie' is one of the most distinguished undergraduate offerings of the type appearing in recent years. The professional excellence of the book and lyrics, the almost uniformly good acting, the susprisingly firm stage technique which marks the entire play from beginning to end; these and many minor theatricals virtues go to make up a performance of which the Pi Eta Society should be proud."

GENEROUS DONATION.

At the regular Wednesday evening meeting of the Christian Science church, held in Alpha hall, a collection was taken to aid the flood sufferers in the West and $95 was taken.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutions disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

COMMISSIONERS' GRADE CROSSING PLANS ARE STRONGLY OPPOSED

Mayor Stone, Council Committee, Board of Trade and Other Associations Recorded Against Plans

General Sentiment Was That Tracks Through Quincy Should Be Depressed and Not Raised---Railroad Favors

A vigorous opposition to the plans submitted by the Special Commissioners for the abolition of grade crossing was presented by Quincy representatives at a hearing before the Board of Railroad Commissioners at their office this morning.

The hearing was delayed a half hour because the train which is scheduled to leave Quincy at 10.04 was late.

The hearing was largely attended and there was a strong opposition manifested toward the adoption of the plans as decreed.

Those that appeared in favor of the report was Colonel Benton of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad and Paul R. Blackmur of this city Col. Benton said that the plans were satisfactory to the road in general and he recommended their adoption. Mr. Blackmur favored the report. Henry M. Faxon was also recorded in favor of them.

The opposition was conducted by City Solicitor John W. McAnarney. After reading the vote of the city council in opposition to the acceptance of the report and the vote of the council instructing Mayor Stone, himself and three councilmen to appear in opposition, he spoke at length and confined himself to the closing of Saville street.

Mayor Stone reviewed the situation arguing for depression and speaking of the attitude of the residents in general. He said that he favored depression and had always been opposed to elevation of tracks through the city.

Councilman Cunningham claimed that the city council had been given no opportunity to see the plans and that no member as far as he knew had a chance to study them.

John R. Richards, a member of the council committee expressed a strong sentiment in favor of depression. He said that every organization in the city favored depression and that it was the belief of the majority that depression would solve the problem. He said he opposed the plans as submitted by the special commission.

Councilman Thompson appeared in opposition and after a review of the layout of the city said that ward one would practically be cut in two and that one section would be for business and the other for residences.

James A. Smith, of the Atlantic Improvement Association spoke against the plans and in favor of depression

President John L. Hamilton of the Board of Trade read the vote of the Board at the meeting held Wednesday evening at which time the feeling of opposition was strongly developed He said the plans were opposed to thes expressed wishes of the citizen who in general favored depression. He asked for a continuance of the hearing so that an opportunity would be given to formulate plans.

President Hamilton said he was not authorized or prepared to make suggestions and said he was present in the capacity of president of the Board of Trade to protest as vigorously as he could against the plans. He further said that whatever plans were accepted consideration should be given the crossings between Atlantic and Quincy and in the event of fire, under the proposed changes, the runs might be unusually long.

He said he had called by phone several of the officials of the associations in the city and read the following opponents names: President Edward F. Parlee of the Montclair Association, President Woodward of the Wollaston Park Improvement Association, President Sanford of the Wollaston Citizens Association, President Louis F. R. Langelier of the Wollaston Unitarian Club, President J. Mann of the Wollaston Congregational Club, President C. E. Carlson of the Squantum Improvement Association, President Stephen B. Little of the Ward Four Improvement Association, President Mrs. Arthur Ropes of the Wollaston Womens Club, President Mrs. Eben W. Sheppard of the Quincy Womans Club and Secretary Bromley of the Y. M. C. A.

Others who appeared against the acceptance of the plans were President Parlee, Ralph H. Hobbs, Gus B. Bates who gave 10 reasons for depression of the tracks. Representative Michael T. Sullivan, Councilman Charles A. Ericson and John O. Hall also opposed.

Attorney Grenhalge of the Attorney Generals office said that in general the plans were satisfactory to the state but that he wanted it decided whether or not Saville street was a public way.

D. F. L. Chase and Timothy F. Ford appeared in favor of the proposed plans.

The commissioners voted to continue the hearing until April 25 and the members stated that in the meantime they would visit Quincy and personally view the properities to be effected.

NASH-COBB

James Albert M. Nash, one of the cities best known yachtsmen and the son of thel ate George Nash, embarked on the matrimonial seas Wednesday evening with Miss Sarah Black Cobb of Dorchester. The preparations were secret and his closest friends knew nothing of the ceremony until this morning.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Edward Norton at his home, 35 Greenleaf street. The couple were unattended.

The groom is a popular young man of the city. During the summer months he is in charge of the Quincy Yacht Club where he counts all the members as his friends. In the winter he has charge of the H. P. Kittredge periodical store in City Square.

When the news of the ceremony became known this morning great surprise was evidenced by the hearers. They are planing to do something handsome "Jimmie" but will have to await his return since they do not known where he is on his honeymoon.

PACKARD FOUNDRY GUTTED BY INCENDIARY FIRE

Fire Department Somewhat Handicapped by Lack of Men at Early Stage of Fire

Blaze was confined largely to corner of building where it started

The foundry building of the A. B. Packard Co., situated in the centre of a group of buildings on the A. B. Packard estate between Cottage avenue and Hancock street was gutted, by what was apparently an incendiary fire shortly before midnight Thursday. The building is situated near the Cottage avenue side and adjoins the essence buildings on one side and the stable of District Chief Packard on the other. The fire started in the north westerly corner of the building, some distance away from the furnace and in a place where there was a lot of old wood but nothing of an inflamable nature, which gives color to the belief that the fire was the work of an incendiary.

The fire was discovered by a motorman on his way home. He first ran to the house of District Chief Packard and notified him of the fire and then ran to Box 23 and sounded the alarm. District Chief Packard and Henry Miller were the first to get a stream of water onto the flame. They ran a line of hose from a hydrant on

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

The single tax may be all right but where does the fellow who has all his money in stocks and bonds come in for paying his part of the government expense?

The Fore River Draftsmen Soccer football team has a record of ten victories without a defeat which they may well feel proud of.

Some one leaked and so some of the offenders in the customs graft escaped. Too much publicity in some cases is worse than none at all in other directions.

Has April changed with March and taken on the garb of bluster rather than the vale of tears?

One Boston hockey team refused to cross sticks with another even to raise funds for the flood sufferers. That is good sportsmanship, to say nothing of Christian charity with a vengeance.

The school board announces its graduation plans. Are suggestions for economical graduation dresses included in the program?

According to the expert summing up to date every club in each big league is better than ever, in line for championship honors and carries everything before it, but in each case is a big if, which leaves the whole outfits just about where they started which is that they will do just what their condition and conditions allow and no more.

Gov. Foss and Mr. Archer appear to disagree. Now who is in the right? It looks as though the old boy was called in on some of his joshing stunts

Only three per cent of the votes cast for congressman in the thirteenth district. Hardly enough to argue much in favor of direct voting.

The I. W. W. would not permit the Draper people to celebrate the century of industrial peace.

While banging the New York Yacht club, some people forget that a bigger boat would be safer to make the passage across the Atlantic and the challenger cannot demand the smaller boat on the ground of poverty.

Will free wool mean any reduction in the price of clothing, outside of the annual mark down sales?

The D. A. R. elections have demonstrated that the women know something about the political game even if they do not have the right to vote.

The conduct of a white slave investigation with less flare of trumpets than that proposed by the legislative act would be more productive of good results and stamping out this great evil.

A state official announces that hundreds of insane people are at large, owing to the many who are released. And many others have lost their lives through the poor judgment which pronounced the release of those poor unfortunates who were not mentally responsible for their acts.

There is a shortage in the lobster catch but no lack of the specimen in other branches of the family.

TOO MUCH PUBLICITY.

It is now claimed that too much publicity led to the Federal authorities to miss some of the people who are alleged to be concerned in the Boston Custom House frauds. In other words there was a leak. The leak was big enough to allow some of the suspected personst o make a good getaway. There are many sources of leaks. In custom house jobs it may be the smart official who first makes the discovery and who wants all the newspaper credit and some patting on the back for performing duty for which he is paid and sworn to perform. It may be some innocent official who sees a chance to get solid with a newspaper man or it may be an equally honest official, who has a friend in the newspaper business whom he wants to give a chance for a "beat." Then there is another source. The official who not being let in on the game, is jealous and gives the snap away, with a full knowledge that premature disclosure will rob the case of much of its effectiveness and nullify much of the honest effort of efficient officials. Taken in a bunch, the whole lot enumerated are not of any great particular value to the service. Their mighty efforts could be dispensed with and yet the service would go on just the same. But it is this too premature publicity, whether handed out intentionally, innocently or otherwise, which has knocked the bottom out of many a good case.

MANIACS AT LARGE.

Hundreds of insane people are at large according to the statement of Dr. Henry R. Stedman, chairman of the Board of trustees of the Taunton state hospital. And he further emphasizes this by the more startling announcement that unrecovered patients have been discharged each year from institutions, setting the number as high as between 800 and 1500. If this is true and the doctor must have some idea of what he is talking about, being a man of sense and solidity then there is a startling lack of good judgment, to say the least on the part of officials who are responsible for it. But the blame should not all be placed upon the shoulders of the officials. They base their judgment upon the reports, which are presented to them by nurses, attendants and doctors. That some of those reports must have been unscrupulously false, must be accepted where so many releases are effected. The question is why are those people released? How is it that they can be adjudged sane? The first question is answerable. The second is more difficult and calls for more balanced consideration. There is only one of two things which must be held accountable. One is an honest mistake in judgment. The other is not such a nice term or so easy to get over. It is the latter which needs treatment. Not only medical, but the surgical treatment of making the suspected persons harmless in the future.

While Dr. Stedman's figures maybe exaggerated there is little room to doubt but that there are a great many cases such as he speaks of. They are evidently secured through influence or money. Both have been unremitting in their attempt to secure the freedom of Harry Thaw and they will succeed yet, when time has permitted the people to forget something of his offenses and when they get tired of spending large sums to keep this person behind the bars and under restraint.

The evidence has been beyond question that many patients have been released before they were cured and many a person has paid the penalty of trusting such released ones with their lives. How it may be stopped, or even checked is another matter and judging from events a most difficult one.

But aside from the insane patients who have been released by means of money and influence, many criminal offenders have been paroled only to return to their old haunts and vices, while others, have escaped on the plea of ill health, but have managed to scrape along become suddenly imbued with health and wealth, both of which they were supposed to be short on, the moment the prison door was opened to them.

THEY MIGHT HAVE WAITED.

Ninety-seven years of industrial peace is a record of which any concern may well be proud. That is the scroll which the Draper Company of Hopedale can without contradiction, place upon their banner. It is too bad that the persons who are behind the strike movement, did not wait another three years and let the company celebrate the century of good feeling between employer and employed. But no, the movement has been entered upon this week. This is not a discussion of the merits of the case, but the strike has every appearance of being either, short, sharp and bloody or long drawn out.

At the very first there was a clash between the strikers and the people who wanted to go to work and the police. The strikers have been refused the right to parade and hold mass meetings. Quincy, has the proud record of permitting its workmen to engage in a sympathy day, when several paraded the streets, and not a single disturbance marked the demonstration.

Evidently the authorities thought things would be different in Hopedale and they took steps to prevent any destruction of property. Many broken heads and bloody noses resulted. This may lead to other disturbances and more broken heads and bloodshed, but whatever the outcome, the dignity and laws of this commonwealth should be maintained and not made a laughing stock of as they have in a few strikes which have been in operation in the state within the past few years.

PACHARD FOUNDRY FIRE

Cottage avenue over the fence to the fire. It was a short run but owing to a twist in the hose no water could be got through it. By this time the firemen had arived and other lines were laid. There was a scarcity of men to handle the hose so that even Chief Litchfield was obliged to lend a hand in coupling on nozzles and in handling the hose. In the mean time the fighting of the fire was being directed by District Chief Packard. This state of affairs gave rise to some unfavorable comment on the part of the sidewalk firemen, who were not aware of the situation.

The blaze was a spectacular one and the sky was brightly illuminated, and gave the impression that a conflagration was in progress. The alarm from Box 23, which was sounded at 11.40 together with the bright illumination and the fact that this is considered one of the danger boxes of the city, brought a large crowd of spectators. It also brought a large amount of apparatus including, besides the central station apparatus, the auto chemical from Atlantic and the combination from Quincy Point.

Many lines of hose were laid and it was not long before the gallons of water had a telling effect and half an hour after the alarm there was but little fire left.

The building is a frame one the interior being one large room open to the roof which was covered with iron so that there was not much to burn. The fire was confined largely to the corner where it started and the damage was entirely to wood work, as the furnaces in the building were not damaged. District Chief Packard said this morning that the damage would probably not be over $500 and that there was no insurance on the building.

The City Council Committee on Finance met Thursday evening.

CIVIL SERVICE.

Contrary to the usual custom the civil service examinations for local police and janitor service to be held April 11 will be held in Ford hall, Boston at 9.30 A. M. It has always been the custom to hold the examinations in the Council Chamber, City hall and an examiner from the state office has come out for the purpose. For some reason however the Civil Service Commission will hold the examination for police and janitors, this year in Ford hall, Ashburton place, Boston. Notices to this effect have been mailed to the applicants. The examinations for the fire service, engineers and foremen will be held later in the month. The place where they will be held however has not been given out as yet.

MANY CANDIDATES INITIATED.

A class initiation was conducted by Scandia Lodge, Order of Vasa at Electa and Protection halls, Thursday evening, the exemplification being by the degree team from King Oscar the Second lodge of Cambridge. There were 58 candidates.

Among those present was Grand Master Frank Ortengren of Lynn and District Deputy Bernard Floodstrom of Dorchester. Many out of town lodges were represented. Short speeches were made by the visiting officers and refreshments were served. The committee in charge was Mrs. Hilma O'Brien, Miss Elfrida Carlson, Mrs. Carl Bonavien, Miss Hilma Johnson, Carl Bonavien, Carl Bastin, Oscar Johnson and John Johnson.

An extra inning was played in which the Adams gained one run, making the final score 6 to 5 in their favor.

Runs for the Adams were made by Moyle, Rafferty, Muggford, Mackenzie, Nicoll and Higgins, and for the Cranch by Walter Deane, William Deane, Olson, E. Johnson and Tapper. George Maive was umpire.

TRAFFIC IS TIED UP

Many Freight Cars Wrecked and Contents Practically Destroyed

West Boylston, Mass., April 4.—A freight wreck occurred between West Boylston and Oakland last evening, when sixteen heavily-loaded freight cars were derailed and piled up on one another, four being thrown into the metropolitan reservoir. The cause of the accident was a defective rail, which spread when a wheel broke on one of the cars.

No trains were run over the line last night because the wreckage was strewn over both the inward and outward tracks, making it impossible to clear it away in a short time.

The train crew in the caboose escaped by jumping clear of the wreckage. Many of the cars were hurled down a steep embankment of the roadbed and their contents practically destroyed.

Lipton's Plans Temporarily Held Up by Morgan's Death

London, April 4.—Sir Thomas Lipton, undaunted by the refusal of the New York Yacht club to accept the conditions he proposed in his recent challenge for the America's cup, has decided to issue an unconditional challenge. He said:

"Ever since the New York Yacht club rejected the terms proposed in my recent challenge, I have been considering the sending of an unconditional challenge for a series of races. I was just about to take up the details with the Royal Ulster Yacht club when I heard of the death of J. Pierpont Morgan, and suspended the matter; but I will again resume its consideration in a few days."

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

The coming week at the Castle Square will, after the long run of "Believe Me, Xantippe" bring a welcome change of program. The play will be "The Darling of the Gods," famous all the world over as one of the most thrilling and powerful of dramas dealing with Japan and Japanese life. It is the work of David Belasco and John Luther Long, and in its making Mr. Belasco has utilized all the skill that has made him the foremost producing dramatist of America. "The Darling of the Gods," it will be remembered, was presented by Mr. Craig some seasons ago when he was managing another playhouse, and ever since Boston theatre-goers have been clamoring for its revival on the Castle Square stage.

The plot of "The Darling of the Gods" tells a picturesque tale of old Japan in the days before the western invasion had changed its civilization and deprived the country of not a little of its picturesqueness. It is in four acts and twelve scenes, and in them are revealed the quaint life and customs of an extraordinarily interesting nation. The whole atmosphere of the play is prevasively Japanese, and the story told is one of woman's power and love. The scenery will be picturesque and strange, and by it and the costumes will be disclosed things as they were, and as they now are to some extent, in Japan. There are three leading characters in "The Darling of the Gods." These three are YoSan, Zakkuri the War Minister and Kara, and they will be acted at the Castle Square respectively by Mary Young, by John Craig and by William P. Carleton, the latter rejoining Mr. Craig's company after an absence of two seasons. This production will be one of the greatest events in the history of the Castle Square Theatre and of the Boston stage.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE.

Charley Case, known the country over as "The man who talks about his father," returns to B. F. Keith's Theatre next week after an absence of nearly two years. Case has just completed a triumphant tour across the continent, which took him as far west as San Francisco and as far north as Vancouver, B. C. This is his first appearance in the East in two years. There are few vaudeville patrons who have not laughed at Case and his funny stories about his father. This time he brings a wealth of brand new material, never before heard in Boston, all delivered in the inimitable manner that no one but Charley Case can imitate. The wonderful Thomas A. Edison Kinetophone or Talking Motion Pictures will enter upon their seventh week of uninterrupted success with brand-new subjects. Another big feature will be Gertrude Vanderbilt, late feature of "The Red Widow," and George Moore, will appear in a series of up-to- date songs and dances, and Galagher and Fields. America's greatest travesty artists, in a brand-new farce comedy; the Great Daivis Family of European acrobatic marvels, including the only lady understander in the world; in startling feats of strength and agility; The Bradshaws in a novel specialty; Charlotte Ravenscroft, the singing violinist; and many others yet to be announced.

CHICKEN SUPPER

Thursday evening at the home of Frank J. Wade, 489 South street, Quincy Point, a number of friends gathered and presented Mrs. Sarah T. Wade with a handsome water color, hand-painted picture. The presentation was made by little Miss Mae Wade, a granddaughter of the recipient. Mrs. Wade was taken completely by surprise, but in a few choice words thanked her friends and expressed her appreciation for their kindness.

After the presentation a chicken supper was served. The evening was spent in an enjoyable manner. Vocal selections were rendered by Mrs. Gavin, Mrs. J. E. Wade, Miss Francis Watson and others. Thomas Mitchell of the Fore River Company favored the company with a number of choice selections on the graphophone, and dancing was enjoyed until a late

Among those present were Edward Collins, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Wade, Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Gavin, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Wade, Miss Nellie Smith, Miss Francis Watson, Miss Norah Dunlavey. Mrs. F. J. Wade presided at the piano.

SPELLING MATCH WAS A FEATURE

Meeting of the Adams Parents-Teachers Association

ARCHERY ADVOCATED

A spelling match, in which Miss Grace Laing of Atherton street was declared the winner and awarded a blue ribbon was the feature of the meeting of the Parents-Teachers' Association of the Adams school Thursday evening. Over 150 were present but the audience in no way discouraged the youngsters.

The 5 best spellers in the seventh grade took part in the bee under the direction of Miss Jennie F. Griffin. Over 1000 words were correctly spelled and the 24 mistakes called being due to mispronunciation or a halting attitude.

Among those present were school Committee Men Arthur W. Newcomb, and Joseph McPherson. A movement was started for a jubilee meeting of all the associations.

The speaker of the evening was Miss Esther G. Barrows, of the South End House, Boston. She spoke on "Schoolgirls and Their Amusements."

Miss Barrows made a plea for organized games under the direction of teachers, parents and older brothers and sisters. She spoke of the method in vogue in different parts of the world, particularly England where considerable time is devoted to children's games, thus eliminating an attempt in carrying out the lessons taught by some of the moving pictures. She advocated the encouragement of acting out stories by the children and said in the adolescent period archery was one of the finest means of developing the young.

After thoroughly explaining archery and the contests in which old and young alike engage in England, she asked that some concerted effort be made on the part of the association whereby they will be the first to introduce this splendid pastime into New England..

Miss Barrows was lengthy in her address and received a rising vote of thanks and hearty applause at the conclusion.

The association plans to present "Minerva's Mishaps" at Music hall, April 15, for the decorative fund for the new building.

A vote of thanks was extended to B. Julius who contributed seltzer for those present. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Burleigh Pratt, Mrs. James Marr, Mrs. J. Parsons and Miss Elizabeth Dolan.

THE PULMOTOR AS LIFE SAVER

Physicians witness Demonstration at Police Station

GREAT INVENTION

The pulmotor which is at the police station was demonstrated by W. E. Barker of the Consolidated Gas Co. Friday afternoon. Doctors from this city and surrounding towns were present in large numbers. Many called during the evening who had been unable to attend the matinee.

The pulmotor was given by the Citizens Gas Light Co., Quincy Electric Light Power Co., Bay State Street Railway and the Fore River Co. It will be carried in the patrol on all runs.

James O'Donnell was the subject of the first demonstration. For nearly three minutes his face was hidden by the mask and when released he showed no ill effects. Physicians adjusted the mask to their face and all pronounced it as being wonderful.

Mr. Barker in his talk on artificial respiration said that a miner who had been entombed in a Pittsburg mine and who was given up for dead was revived after five hours by the pulmotor and that 7 1-2 cylinders of oxygen were used in the resuscitation.

The apparatus is carried in a narrow wooden case. The weight of the case and its contents is 46 pounds.

The lid is opened and discloses two entirely separate apparatus, a pulmotor and oxygen inhalation apparatus for ordinary accidents. The use of an oxygen cylinder is common for both and the pressure reducing valve on either can be set in operation by turning the proper lever to the right or left on the reducing valve.

The steel oxygen cylinder is closed by a valve and as soon as this cylinder is open one or either of the apparatus begins to work. This cylinder contains 11 1-2 cubic feet of oxygen.

When a full cylinder is used the pulmotor for artificial respiration will continue in operation for 40 minutes.

RESUSCITATION.

The oxygen passes from the reducing valve to an injector which has the property of drawing in a large volume of air with a certain force of suction and propelling the air forward with an equal force through the flexible tube in front of the ejector. This suction and delivery injector therefore serves as a motor to alternately fill the lungs by pressure and emptying them by suction and no injury to the lung tissues can be produced by either function of the apparatus working in this manner.

The Pulmotor is arranged to set up a pressure equivalent to 8 inch water gauge and suction equivalent to 10 inches.

The next important organ of the apparatus is the air reversing chamber provided with frictionless reversing valves.

AUTOMATIC REVERSAL.

The most striking invention in the Pulmotor is a small lever recording bellows which effects the automatic reversal of the apparatus from suction to delivery and vice versa. The bellows is connected with tubes and the same pressure obtains in the bellows as in the lungs and as soon as the latter are filled the bellows becomes inflated and in moving forward causes the valve to be automatically reversed and as soon as the lungs have been emptied the bellows contracts and automatically reverses the valve again into position for delivery.

The respiratory rythm really attaches itself automatically to the capacity of the lungs in every case. It will be slow when the lungs are capacious and faster with those of smaller dimensions. The assistance of the hands are not required.

Two flexible tubes are connected with a face mask. One serves exclusively for the supply of pure air and the other is used entirely for drawing off the exhausted air contamianted with carbin dioxide. No residuary air finds its way back to the lungs.

The tongue must be drawn forward and the windpipe free. If the machine races there is an obstruction.

Inhalation apparatus gives 244 cubic inches of oxygen per minute. The provision of separate appliances for artificial respiration and ordinary inhalation two different tasks prevents error and defective handling of the apparatus even by unaccustomed persons.

FATHER GASSON ADDRESSES A.O.H.

ROYAL RECEPTION

Rev. Fr. Thomas I. Gasson, president of Boston college made his first visit to West Quincy Thursday night where he lectured under the auspices of Div. 4, A. O. H., at a belated March 17 concert. His topic was ""Ireland, the Home of Saints and Scholars," and St. Mary's hall was filled by an audience consisting of members and friends from far and near.

As Father Gasson entered the hall he was given a royal reception. All stood while he passed down the centre aisle and as he reached the platform there was an outburst of applause. During his talk, which was partly illustrated he referred to the West Quincy he had known before his visit and he said that if all the residents were as courteous and intelligent as those with whom he had come in contact he regretted never having come here before.

Fr. Gasson said his one love was that of truth, that Ireland, a place near and dear to his heart should receive her proper place in history, for it leads in saints and scholars and safeguarded culture when the continent was passing through that period known as the Dark Ages. He wanted to see Ireland placed in its proper sphere by historians and not passed over lightly by historians who could find nothing eventful with regard to its early days.

The historian Matthews said that when a distinguished man dissappeared from the continent his friends did not become alarmed for they were certain that he had gone to Ireland to receive an intellectual finish. When Charlemagne opened his great University of Paris he placed it under the direction of an Irish scholar because he could find none other equal to the requirements and when the great apostle St. Patrick built a church he placed a school closeby, teaching that the two great lights of the world were faith and knowledge and he made it a principle that no full church establishment would be without the proximity of a school.

He spoke of the architecture of Ireland and said that despite the crude tools and difficulties of the people their works surpass in their ruined beauties some of the so-called finer buildings now in use.

In proof of the artistic sense of Irelands people he mentioned the glory of the Rose window in Marquis Abbey which after having combated the elements for centuries was still gracefully reposing in a wondrous setting with all its color true to the spectrum and that it teaches the great lesson of beauty raised in the honor of God and for the spread of true faith.

In closing he said that he wanted to impress this truth upon all, that Ireland can justly lay claim to having been one of the greatest seats of learning the church or the world has ever seen. And it is not alone the home of culture and intellectuality but of saints for there are more from the Emerald Isle than any other on a comparative basis.

He was presented by President Philip T. Egan. An entertainment was given by Jerome Look, John T. Driscoll, Miss Gertrude Bell of Dorchester, Miss Margaret Barry of Roxbury, and a reading by John R. Reilly of Neponset. Piano selections were erndered by William Driscoll of Neponset and Leo Kenny.

The committee in charge consisted of Philip T. Egan, Edward Finn, Daniel Scully, Daniel Duggan, Bernard Griffin, Thomas Connors, Daniel Creedon, Bartholomew Gunning, Daniel Corcoran, William P. Rohen and Joseph Connors.

AUDIENCE ENTHUSIASTIC OVER ANNUAL SHOW OF PI ETA SOCIETY

"The Stymie," a Comedy of the Golf Links with Catchy Music and Dancing

The Pierian Sodality Music added greatly to the whole performance

A large audience greeted the annual Pi Eta show at Quincy, Music hall, Thursday evening, and all were delighted with the production. "The Stymie" was the title and it was a comedy of the golf links with catchy music, good dancing, and a real plot all the parts being taken by men of the Pi Eta Society of Harvard University.

It was a society event, in which the families of Harvard men and admiring young ladies predominated. All were enthusiastic in applauding the parts, which encouraged the members of the cast to do their best.

About half the cast were "girls" R. H. Allen, '14, as Ramola Framingham an opera singer, known as Mademoiselle Carliot; J. J. Armstrong, '14 as Blanche Heath, a dubutante; C. L. Callender, '13, as Clara Brown-Towsley, a lady of uncertain age; M. T. Quigg, '13, as Mrs. Morris; W. B. Adams, '13, as Angela Wilson, a telegraph operator, and E. P. Stone, '15 as Mardetti, a ballet dancer, who divided the honors very equally.

The hero was J. R. O. Perkins, '14, as Trevor Graham, who has just lost $100,000 in Wall street, and while in desperate straits accepts a position as reporter. His great success in that field turns the tide. Paul Blackmur, '15 of Quincy, as Burtie Charlton, a college friend of Graham, was instrumental in his success, taking a very prominent part in the evening's program. Upon his first appearance he received the glad hand from the audience. Perhaps the hit of the evening was his song the "Copper Moon" with Blanche Heath. Not only was it well sung, but cleverly acted as lovers. Encores were demanded.

Other men in the cast were P. S. Bliss, '13, as Billings Moncrief, a golf champion; F. F. Munroe, '15 as president of golf tournament; J. M. Kingman, '15 as Archibald Von Kiswick, an Englishman; A. W. Poole, '14, as president of golf club; T. E. Alcorn, '13 as Herman Sempdrick, house manager at club and W. W. Leonhauser, '13 as Henri Callerio, a waiter, all well acted.

In the chorus were six as show girls, six as men, and six as a pony ballet. The show girls wore different gowns, appearing in one scene in creations of yellow, orange, cerise, light blue and green; one of these being J. S. Pfaffmann, '16 of Quincy who was very cordially greeted by his friends in the audience. The ballet also appeared in a pajama dance and other parts.

The three scenes were on golf links which were well represented. The music of the evening was by a large orchestra of members of the Pierian Sodality and club members, led by L. G. del Castillo, which added greatly to the whole performance. Quincy people hope that the Pi Eta show may continue to be annual events in this city.

MRS. EMILY FIFIELD.

Mrs. Emily A. Fifield, for seventeen years a member of the Boston School Committee and long prominent in philanthropic, religious and educational cirlces, died Wednesday afternoon, after many weeks' illness, at her home, 77 Morton road, Milton where she made her home with her daughter, Mrs. Mary King.

Early in her life Mrs. Fifield began to take an interest in philanthropy, religion and education, and these traits grew upon her with each passing year. She was the second woman to be elected to the school board of Boston.

Mrs. Fifield was a native of Weymouth, where she was born in 1840. Her parents were Thomas Brastow Porter and Emily (Vining) Porter. Both the Porter and Vining families were of Huguenot stock and Thomas B. Porter, who was a lumber dealer, was of the seventh generation from Richard Porter, who came to America and settled in Weymouth in 1635. Emily Porter was educated in the private and public schools of Yeymouth and Braintree until she was fourteen years old, after which she became a pupil of William R. Fowle in his private school in Boston.

In 1858 Miss Porter married Dr. W. C. B. Fifield of Weymouth, and in 1861 they moved to Dorchester, where they lived for many years, three children being born to them. Dr. Fifield died in September 1896, and his widow continued to reside in Dorchester until 1911, when she removed to Milton.

As Mrs. Fifield had made a life long study of all the factors directly or indirectly pertaining to the problems of public school administration, she came to her duties in the board at the age of forty-five years fully equipped for the tasks before her, and it was not long before she was considered an authority throughout the country. Mrs. Fifield was first elected to the school board in 1884, and she served continuously until 1900.

The success of the Mechanic Arts school was largely due to Mrs. Fifield's service in its behalf while she was chairman of the division under which its administration came. Another achievement by her as a member of the committee was her work in behalf of the educational exhibit sent from Boston to the World's Fair at Chicago. This exhibit gave Boston a world-wide reputation in educational matters. Mrs. Fifield always showed the greatest interest in the introduction of manual training in the public schools. She traveled to all parts of the country lecturing upon this and other educational matters and at the same time improving the opportunity to study educational methods, their application and their results.

WITNESS' TRAIL HAS BEEN LOST

Dragnet Out For Mysterious Woman In Smuggling Plot

LIVED UNDER ASSUMED NAME

Dropped From Sight When Charges Were Brought Against Her Sister and Brother-In-Law — Conspiracy Going on at Boston For Years Involves Many Individuals

Boston, April 4.—Lena Bradley, sister of Mrs. Terence L. Shevlin, who awaits grand jury action with her husband under smuggling charges, and a cousin to Mrs. "Honey" Mellody, who is a chief witness for the government in the alleged Boston smuggling frauds, has eluded the search of at least forty government agents and is being sought in Boston, Connecticut, New York and Canada.

With Chief Wilkie personally leading the search, the whole east is being raked for some trace of the woman. One vitally important side of the government's case is known to rest upon her testimony, and until she is found the customs fraud probe is practically at a standstill.

Lena Bradley was the wife of William J. Hafford, a ball player of Somerville. She is about 30 years old, the mother of two children, and in the past three months has been known in Boston as Mrs. Nicholas Schram.

As Mrs. Schram she lived on Temple street, Allston street, Mt. Vernon street and in the South End since Christmas time, but dropped from sight within a week, or since the smuggling charges were brought against the Shevlins and Miss Kate Brennan, the New York dressmaker.

The government agents want to interview Lena Bradley at the office of District Attorney French. They want to know if she is the "mysterious woman of the line docks," if she were present on the Carpathia wharf last March 17 when the "sticker" was affixed to the Elison trunk containing $5000 worth of dress models, and more especially will she be asked to explain why, during the weeks she lived in the vicinity of Beacon Hill, she received so many visits from persons, one of whom was openly announced to be employed at the custom house.

District Attorney French deplored the early publicity that had permitted opening details of the smuggling case to appear in the newspapers and hamper the prosecution. Continuing, he said:

"The government is satisfied from what it has already learned that smuggling has been going on at this port for a number of years, and involves many individuals. The sum of money out of which the government has been defrauded in this way is also very large."

This statement lends strength to the declaration of an importer recently that an occasional evasion of big duties is effected at the Boston port in spite of the watchfulness of the rank and file of the inspection staff. Officers of the Boston custom house a short time ago estimated that such frauds would approximate half a million annually.

Great personages have brought their baggage in duty free. Well known statesmen and others frequently have their baggage "expedited." Foreign notables have received extreme courtesy upon arrival with their trunks and trains of servants, and it is hinted that some of these last were not so notable in their own country as they were regarded upon landing upon the wharves of Boston and New York.

MAINE LIQUOR FIGHT

Resolve In Somewhat New Form Appears In Legislature

Augusta, Me., April 4.—A resolve for the resubmission of the constitutional amendment prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors in Maine made its biennial appearance before the legislature.

It differed from previous resolves in that it also provides for a new law which would allow the sale of liquors in cities under certain conditions, providing their sale is desired in such cities.

The draft of the bill is practically the same as that presented at the special session a year ago following the special state election at which the prohibitory amendment was reaffirmed by a small margin.

CONVICTION OF MRS. PANKHURST

Followed by a Demonstration Among Her Followers

GETS THREE YEARS IN PRISON

Declares She Deliberately Broke Law For Cause of Suffrage For Women—Leaders of Women's Social and Political Union Say Violence Will Be Continued With Greater Vigor

London, April 4.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, president of the Women's Social and Political union and leader of the militant suffragettes, was found guilty of inciting other women to blow up the home of Chancellor Lloyd George at Walton Heath with bombs.

She was sentenced to three years' penal servitude. In passing sentence, Justice Lush scored Mrs. Pankhurst and the militant suffragettes in general for their violence, which he said showed only contempt for law and order.

Mrs. Pankhurst was her own counsel. In summing up she entered into a violent tirade against "man made" laws, which she declared made slaves of women. Her appeal for a verdict of not guilty was a passionate one, and she declared if she were sent to jail, she would go on a hunger strike at once.

The sentence imposed upon Mrs. Pankhurst was the most severe ever meted out to a militant suffragette since the reign of violence began. It was her eighth appearance in court charged with violence in one form or another. But three years was not near the maximum which Lush could have imposed, for under the English law a fourteen-year sentence could have been passed upon the famous militant leader.

There was a demonstration among the members of Mrs. Pankhurst's organization when sentence was imposed. Old Bailey rang with their screams of mingled rage and derision. Other leaders of the union declared that violence would not cease, but, if anything, would be continued with greater vigor under the leadership of Sylvia Pankhurst, her daughter; "General" Drummond, Mrs. Despard and Zelie Emerson, the American woman who is in Hollowell jail but who hopes to be at liberty soon on account of ill health arising from self-imposed starvation.

Mrs. Pankhurst's other daughter, Christabel, is a refugee in Paris. She fled nearly a year ago to avoid arrest on a conspiracy charge. It was she who recently urged women actually to take up arms and go to war against men. "Make a Mexico of England" was her battle cry.

As sentence was pronounced stillness prevailed, and then a shout of "Shame!" went up from the suffragettes. It was taken up by others outside who were unable to get in.

Mrs. Pankhurst flushed, and her eyes filled with tears at this demonstration. Mrs. Pankhurst soon recovered from her fit of weeping and reiterated that she would go on a hunger strike. "I know I broke the law," she declared. "I deliberately broke the law for the cause of suffrage for women."

ECHO OF RUBBER STRIKE

When sentences were imposed women relatives screamed and cried and had to be quieted by court officers.

He said he would make this knowledge public through "certain channels," which he did not specify.

FOSS URGES REC PROCITY

Wants Congress Memorialized Against Present Tariff Program

Boston, April 4.—Warning Democrats and Republicans alike against the tariff program of the Democratic congress, Governor Foss sent a message to the legislature urging that the national lawmakers be memorialized against what he terms a peril to the interests of Massachusetts.

The message is of great length, covering fifty-one printed pages. It reviews the whole subject of tariff legislation. His argument is for general reciprocity, which he terms the "Massachusetts plan of constructive tariff reduction."

Coming from a Democratic governor the attack upon the tariff program of the party was most surprising. The governor based his claim to the right to speak on the subject as the chief factor in a "political revolution" inaugurated three years ago in the old Fourteenth congressional district, which, he says, "spreads rapidly throughout the nation and was consummated on the fourth day of March in a complete change of the national government."

KENDALL'S BRIBE CHARGES

Affidavits That Stilwell Tried to Secure Bribe of $3500

New York, April 4.—George H. Kendall, president of the New York Bank Note company, turned over to Deputy State Attorney General Kennedy documentary evidence which Kendall says will prove that State Senator Stilwell tried to induce him to offer a bribe of $3500 to have certain stock exchange bills reported out of legislative committees.

The evidence included in affidavit form the account Kendall gave Governor Sulzer of Stilwell's alleged activities; an affidavit by three of Kendall's employes as to alleged telephone conversations with Stilwell, and letters and a telegram purporting to be from Stilwell and bearing on his alleged efforts to procure money for his legislative services.

Kendall also related to Kennedy what he says Stilwell told him of the alleged use of a "big barrel of money" by the New York stock exchange to defeat certain legislation.

WORLD'S LARGEST SHIP IS LAUNCHED

Vaterland Is 5000 Tons Larger Than the Imperator

Hamburg, April 4.—The largest existing passenger vessel in the world, 5000 tons bigger than the Imperator, also of the Hamburg-American line, was launched here and christened the Vaterland by Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria.

She carries eighty-three lifeboats, seventy of which can be launched from either side so that they may be utilized even if the ship has a heavy list, or during a storm.

In the seventy boats accommodation is provided for the whole of the 4050 passengers and 1200 crew. Two of the lifeboats are fitted with motors. Two other similar vessels are to be constructed by the same company.

HUERTA QUITS HIS JOB

Member of Madero Cabinet to Be Made Provisional President

El Paso, Tex., April 4.—To satisfy all factions in Mexico, General Huerta has agreed to the naming of Pedro Lascurain as provisional president, according to advices received here directly from the national capital. Lascurain would serve out the uncompleted term of the late President Madero.

As minister of exterior relations in Madero's cabinet, Lascurain is entitled to serve as next in line in view of the deaths of Madero and Vice President Suarez. The Huerta cabinet would be retained by the compromise.

The decision of the present provisional president is said to have been occasioned by the recent uprising of Zapata in the south, which places the Huerta forces between two fires.

Poison Found on Murderers

Paris, April 4.—Four prisoners confined in the Prison de la Sante under sentence of death by the guillotine, when searched by the wardens, were found to have hidden in their clothing sufficient virulent poison to kill fifty persons.

Comedian Seabrooke Dead

Chicago, April 4.—Thomas Q. Seabrooke, a comic opera comedian for twenty years, died here after a brief illness. He was 53 years old. His home was in New York. He had been in ill-health for several years.

Tramps Blamed For Hotel Fire

Marblehead, Mass., April 4.—Tramps are believed to have started a fire last night that destroyed the Crowninshield hotel, a fashionable summer hotel in Clifton. The loss is estimated at about $25,000.

No Money For State Employes

Providence, April 4.—A deadlock in the house has tied up the annual appropriation bill and left the state employes and most of the departments with no money.

SPONSOR NAMED FOR DESTROYER DUNCAN

Direct descendant of Commander Silas Duncan for whom the vessel is named

A sponsor for the torpedo boat destroyer Duncan, which will be launched at the plant of the Fore River Shipbuilding Co. at 10 o'clock Saturday morning has been found in the person of Miss Dorothy Clark, a direct descendant of Commander Silas Duncan for whom the vessel is named.

The government has been trying for sometime to find some descendant of the Commander, as a sponsor for the vessel but has been unable to until today. The predicament which the government was in, if such it might be called, was published in all of the daily papers and this item reached the eyes of Miss Clark who telephoned the Boston Record that she was a direct descendant of Commander. The Record communicated with the Fore River Co., Thursday morning and at their suggestion the Navy Department at Washington was informed and immediately came the word by telegraph that Miss Clark had been named as the sponsor.

Miss Clark resides at 35 Perkins avenue Malden and is employed by the Modern Priscilla Co., at 87 Broad street, Boston. Efforts were made to reach her Thursday by telephone but the officers of the company refused to call any of their employees to the telephone.

Secretary MacQuarrie of the Fore River Co., will interview Miss Clark today however and complete arrangements for the launching. Launching Saturday morning will be in the nature of a private one, as there will be no public function of any kind.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

GOOD SPORT PROMISED

The formal organization of the now assured Old Colony base ball league will take place Tuesday evening in the rooms of the Quincy A. A. Thursday evening representatives of nine teams gave utterance to thoughts which undoubtedly means that the rebirth of the league is welcomed.

The teams represented were Stetson Shoe, Clapp Memorial, Norfolks and Deweys of Weymouth, Braintree A. A. and the Braintree White Sox of Braintree and the West Quincy, Quincy A. A. and Makarias of this city.

It is possible that one of the strong Randolph teams will be induced to enter the league.

The outlook for a snappy base ball season is more than favorable and if the plans of the managers do not miscarry the fans will be treated to base ball such as the South Shore has never before witnessed.

INVASION OF THE RIGHTS OF CITIZENS

The comments of the Boston Times on the proposed Tuberculosis bill put a new light upon the same, which should be carefully noted:

House Bill No. 1722, relating to tuberculosis, which is pending at the State House, is a measure that contains so many highly objectionable features that it should arouse the opposition of all intelligent and liberty loving citizens of the old Bay State. The powers it delegates to an appointive board are so sweeping and autocratic in character, and contemplate such a radical invasion of the rights of the citizens without due process of law, that we are strongly inclined to belive that the endorsement it has received from many quarters has been given under a mis-apprehension of the character of its provisions.

Section 1 provides that:

"The State Board of Health shall be constituted as at present. In addition to the powers and duties now conferred upon it, it shall have full authority and police power to enforce its orders. It shall have final authority in all questions relating to tuberculosis; final jurisdiction in all differences in methods of administration, conflict of authority and other questions which may arise among subsidiary boards.

"It shall have supervisory and compulsory power over subsidiary boards."

The sinister significance of the arbitrary power thus sought for the Board of Health will be apparent if we call to mind the fact that last November a citizen of Haverhill, at the instigation of the health authorities, was arrested and incarcerated in the city hospital of that place, on the ground that he had tuberculosis and was a menace to the public health. The fact that the man and his own physician claimed that he did not have the disease, and that being confined with tuberculosis patients endangered his life, had no influence on the health authorities.

Now, under the sweeping provisions of this bill, it would be possible for the Board of Health to arrest and send to detention hospitals any citizen who, in the opinion of its members or the doctors selected by it to examine the patients, were afflicted with tuberculosis, and to condemn to incarceration in isolation hospitals those who in the opinion of these same doctors were incurable.

The potential danger of such a provision will be readily seen when we remember that more than 90 per cent. of the autopsies performed in recent years by leading European physicians upon persons who had come to death in the hospitals from various diseases, showed that at some time in their lives the persons had had tuberculosis, although in the majority of cases, at the time of death, there was no evidence that the patients had ever suffered from this disease. How many of those persons, who probably never even suspected that they had tuberculosis, would have escaped death from that disease if they had been pronounced victims of the white plague by physicians and had been confined in hospitals with others suffering from the disease?

Not content with the sweeping, dangerous and undemocratic power given this appointive board over the citizens, the measure goes further and delegates to the board arbitrary power which would enable it to prevent treatment favored by any subsidiary board, or by the patient, in spite of the fact that various theories obtained in regard to the best method of treating tuberculosis.

Passing over several other highly objectionable provisions giving dangerous powers to the state board—powers which in some instances, such as in sections 6 and 7, would offer a fruitful field for graft if at any time the officers should be men susceptible to great temptations, we come to section 14, which reads as follows:

"The charge for the support of the inmates of said hospitals as are of sufficient ability to pay for the same or have persons or kindred bound by law to maintain them, shall be paid by such inmates, such persons or such kindred at a rate to be determined by the trustees of said hospitals. The board of such inmates as have a legal settlement in any city or town shall be paid by said city or town if such patients are received at said hospitals on the request of the overseers of the poor of said city or town. The trustees may, in their discretion receive other patients who have no means to pay for treatment, and the board of all such patients shall be paid for from the treasury of the commonwealth."

This section impresses us as one of the most amazing examples of disregard for the rights of the citizens that has been afforded in our commonwealth. Here we have a board dominated by a school of practice that does not represent the beliefs of tens of thousands of highly intelligent citizens, given power to force upon the patient empirical treatment, that is not even claimed to be curative in most cases—treatment that may be abhorrent to the patient, and yet he is to be compelled to pay for his board and treatment incident to his incarceration, the price for the same being left to the trustees of the hospital.

One can scarcely credit his senses when reading such provisions in a bill seriously offered in a great democratic state. A stranger might well wonder whether he was not in Russia instead of in the commonwealth of Otis, Adams and Hancock.

This bill impresses us as being at once one of the worst and one of the best measures that has been brought to public attention—worst in its dangerous, iniquitous and undemocratic provisions—its delegation of despotic power to appointive boards who at once exercise the legislative, judicial and executive functions of government and in its disregard for the rights of the citizens; and best in that it clearly reveals the lengths to which the political doctors, bent on establishing a medical hierarchy whose keynote is compulsion, plan to go on over-riding the right of the citizen to employ the practitioner of his choice, in a field pre-eminently experimental.

GAS REDUCTION.

George B. Curran, secretary of the Wollaston Citizen's Association, claims that the reduction in the price of gas to go into effect, June 1st was not voluntary on the part of the company, but due to the urgent demands of the Wollaston Citizen's Association. He claims the credit for the reduction to the citizens of Quincy is wholly due to the efforts of this new organization.

A committee from the association visited President John L. Richards of the Citizens Gas Light Company, March 8. Later Mr. Richards forwarded a letter to the Association setting forth some figures relating to expenditures and investments, pipe laying, and the like and also the following which was the closing of his talk with the committee on March 8:

"I hope gentlemen, that I have at least partially, and I may say, fully convinced you that we have been liberal in Quincy. We know that as compared with the past, the service is very much better. We know that we have reduced the price 70 cents up to the present time.

"I would like very much to say to you today definitely that on or before July 1st we will reduce the price of gas 10 cents, but I am not in a position to do it. Even if I personally felt that we could do it, I would certainly want to put it before my directors.

"I will say this however, that there is a strong probability of our making a reduction between now and July 1st and if the gas situation, including the price is not satisfactory to you on April 15th of this year, I would be very glad to see you again."

WHIST PARTY.

A well attended whist party was held in the Odd Fellows rooms Thursday evening by the George L. Gill club. The high scores were as follows: Miss M. Lizzie Furnald 63, Mrs. Kate A. Blaisdell 57, Mrs. Annie Rogers 49, Mrs. M. Davison 48, Mrs. B. Porterfield 47, Mrs. Sadie Wood 46 and Mrs. E. E. Field 5. Refreshments were served.

Microbes in Your Scalp
Authorities say that a microbe causes baldness. If you are losing hair try our remedy at our risk.
Professor Unna, of Germany, and Dr. Sabouraud, the great French Dermatologist, claim that a microbe causes baldness, and their theory has been verified by eminent scientists. This microbe destroys the hair follicles, in time causing the scalp pores to close and the scalp to become shiny. Then, it is believed nothing will revive the growth. If treated before this occurs, baldness may be overcome.
We know of nothing that has given such universal satisfaction in treating the scalp and hair as Rexall "93" Hair Tonic. It has been designed after long study to overcome the cause of falling hair as discovered by Prof. Unna, Dr. Sabouraud and other scalp and hair specialists, and we believe it will do more than anything else can to remove dandruff and stop falling hair; and if any human agency can promote a new growth of hair it will do that, too.
We want you to make us prove it. We will pay for a month's treatment of Rexall "93" Hair Tonic used during a trial, if you will use it according to directions, and are not thoroughly satisfied. When we will do this, you surely should not hesitate to at least try it.
Start the treatment today. Your mere request will get your money back if you want it. Two sizes: 50c and $1.00.

HIGH SCHOOL BOYS AS MINSTRELS AND TAKE TURN AT WIMMIN PARTS

Those Young Men Made Swell Ladies They Just Did and Talk About Style

Minstrels All Made Hits and the Play Was Well Handled

The annual entertainment for the benefit of athletics was given by the pupils of the Quincy High school in their hall Friday evening before a large attendance of parents, alumni and pupils.

The program consisted of a minstrel show and the presentation of a farce, "The Quiet Family" in which some of the boys masqueraded in "Wimmin's Parts."

The farce was directed by City Clerk Emery L. Crane and the successful interpretation demonstrated what can be accomplished under the proper directions of an experienced coach.

The minstrel was directed by Headmaster Ernest L. Collins. The show was snappy and all carried off their parts well. The ends were cossumed in black and yellow and were in blackface while the circle wore white flannels and blue coats and did not black up.

The setting was produced by the pupils, under the direction of Frank Mansur, a teacher at the school, who also acted as stage manager. Music was furnished by the high school orchestra.

The program opened with the Motor King March by the orchestra. As the last bars echoed through the building a parting of the curtains disclosed the minstrels. With Richard Crane seated in the interlocutor's place, the chorus started the fun agoing. The ends started their fun and kept the audience in roars the entire evening by their antics.

Edwin Brown sang "Abraham Lincoln Jones" and Richard Larkin rendered "Military Mary Ann." John L Martin presented "You're My Baby" and the ever popular "Alabam" song was given by Ralph W. Prout. Samuel Prout sang "Anna Lou" and Clifton H. Young warbled "On the Mississippi."

Genuine appreciation from the audience was expressed and the encores were frequent. The jokes were well directed, pupils and teachers receiving their knocks in a polite way.

The Quiet Family centres on the henpecked wife and husband of different families who kick over the traces and gain the upper hand. The upset is not accomplished until the usual comedy interferes and the adjustments follows. The plot centred in the Bibbs residence on Hancock street, number not disclosed for the family's sake.

Leon Randall was the shining light of the farce and was closely seconded by Sturgis Hunt. And the "Wimmin" they simply captivated the audience with their feminine wiles.

The cast was as follows:

Mr. Peter Parker	Samuel C. Prout '12
Grump	Richard Crane '13
Snarly	Todd Elwell '13
Mr. Benj. Bibbs	Edwin B. Brown '13
Mrs. Benj. Bibbs	Sturgis Hunt, '15

DUNCAN SUCCESSFULLY LAUNCHED CHRISTENED WITH AMERICAN WINE

Miss Dorothy Clark of Malden, a Descendant of the Gallant Commodore Stood Sponsor for the Craft Surrounded By Happy Family

New Ship One of Eight Torpedo Boat Destroyers All of Which Will Be Completed This Year---Trial Trip About May 15

The torpedo-boat destroyer Duncan was successfully launched at the Fore River yards this morning in the presence of a few officials of the company and representatives of the navy department as well as employees of the company. There was no public function at the launch, scheduled to take place at 10 o'clock and it was just 10.06 when the craft began to slide down the ways.

The launching of the Duncan has created more than ordinary interest from the fact that it was not until almost the eleventh hour that the sponsor for the vessel was secured. The navy department made a diligent search through volumes of musty records to find a descendant of Commander Silas Duncan for whom the vessel was named, but were unsuccessful. This fact published in the newspapers reached the eyes of Miss Dorothy Clark of Malden and she found little difficulty in establishing her claim as a direct descendant of the commander.

Miss Clark is a daughter of Charles A. Clark of Malden, who was one of the launching party today. Others in the launching party were Miss Mariam Clark, a sister and A. Duncan Clark, a brother, E. L. Clark and Mrs. Mary A. Clark an uncle and aunt. Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Hale, the grandfather and grandmother of the fair sponsor, Miss Frances Clark's cousin and Fred Vincent.

They arrived in Quincy on one of the early morning trains and were met at the depot by automobiles which took them to the Fore River yards. Here they were met by President Bowles and other officials who escorted them direct to the launching stand which had been erected about the bow of the vessel.

It was a happy family party that gathered about the bow of the vessel waiting for the word for the bottle of wine to be smashed over her bow and in the party none were more happy than was Miss Clark, whose face was wreathed in smiles. The preliminaries were soon over and the sound of tapping hammers under the vessel gave indications that the launch was in progress. Then all was ready save for the sawing of the soul pieces. This was the work of but a moment. Miss Clark stood with a bottle of American champagne, which was encased in a steel mesh, poised in her right hand, ready to strike when the word was given, while tucked under her left arm was a bouquet of beautiful roses the gift of the Fore River Co.

The expected signal was given and a minute later the vessel began to move. Hardly had she started down the ways when Miss Clark struck the steel bow a ringing blow with the bottel of wine and as the sparkling liquor ran down the side, gave her the name of "Duncan."

Miss Clark was heartily congratulated on the success with which she had performed her part of the function. The launch over the automobiles were again taken for the Quincy depot where the train was taken for home.

Commander Silas Duncan for whom the destroyer was named was born in Rockaway, N. J., and died in White Silver Springs, Va. He was appointed a midshipman in 1809 and Lieutenant in 1814. He served under Commodore MacDonough in the battle of Lake Champlain and was attached to the battleship Saratoga. While carrying despatches in an open boat to other vessels in the fleet he received the concentrated fire of the enemy and was severely wounded, losing his right arm. He delivered the message and turned the tide of battle. He received a vote of thanks from congress for his brave act.

From 1818 to 1824 he served on the Inteprid, Hornet and Guerierr and other ships whose names are on the roll of fame for accomplishments in the war of 1812. He was appointed a commander in 1829.

The Duncan is one of the eight destroyers contracted for by the government in September, 1911, and is to be completed by September next. The keel was laid in June, 1912, and she will make her first preliminary trial trip about May 15.

The Duncan is 305 feet in length, 30 feet 6 inches in breadth, 17 feet in depth, and has a mean trial displacement of 1010 tons. She carries a battery of four 4-inch guns and four 18-inch twin torpedo tubes.

The propelling machinery of 16,000 horsepower consists of two 36-inch Curtis turbines and two compound vertical reciprocating engines, giving the vessel a speed of 29 knots The turbines are to be used for high speed and the reciprocating engines being connected to the turbine shaft are to be used for cruising.

The vessel is built entirely of steel, all the strength members being of special high tensile steel, which increases the strength of the vessel about 30 per cent over that of a similar vessel of the same weight built of ordinary steel.

The navy is giving the radio-telegraph arrangement special attention, the masts being exceptionally high to increase the range as much as possible.

Her complement will consist of five officers and a crew of 93.

BASKET BALL GETS A BLACK EYE NATIONAL CHAMP GAMES DROPPED

Quincy Teams Who Did Good Work Deprived of Chance for Further Honors

Will Probably Quit the Amateur Ranks and Get Into Pro Game

George T. Hepbron, chairman of the national basket ball committee has written Manager William H. Flynn, of the Quincy A. A. first and second teams that no basket ball championships would be held this year. The news fell into the New England camp like a bomb from the skies inasmuch as everything looked rosy until the receipt of this staggering message.

Both Quincy A. A. teams have won the New England championship two successive years.Loyalty to the game, and persistent playing brought the bacon to Quincy. The schedules were arranged on the promise of officers in authority that the championships would be held and that the New England A. A. A. U. winners would represent this section.

The honor of representing New England fell to the two Quincy teams and recently Manager Flynn secured permission from the Board of Managers to have the "champs" make preparations to go.

New, York, Mar. 8, 1913.

Mr. William H. Flynn,
Quincy A. A., Quincy, Mass.

Dear Sir:In reply to your favor of Feb. 25 I have not answered same because matters were moving so rapidly and so indefinitely that I thought it best not to write until I had something definite to say.

The National championship has been awarded to the Central Association of the A. A. U. under the direction of Lt. Charles A. Dean, 1168 Rookery Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

I had hoped that the New England Association would take hold of the matter but they did not seem to do so and was we had an application from the Central Association, it was awarded to them after a conference with such members of the championship committee as I could reach. The definite dates, etc., of the championship have not been determined upon and when they are I will write the President of the New England Association who no doubt will notify you of the facts regarding the championship.

Yours truly,
(signed) George T. Hopbron.

It has developed however that the definite dates to be decided upon was nothing more than a beautiful dream. This morning a feeling of antagonism is prevalent towards to A. A. U. since the fondest hopes of basket ball fans was to see the "Champs" start for the big show.

The players themselves are rather discourage with the outcome. All htat they have to show for their seasons work of last year is the medals which were presented them by the N. E. A. A. U. at a ball of the Quincy A. A. in Music hall.

Perhaps the decision means the death of A. A. U. basket ball since the sole reason the Quincy A. A. teams held to their amateur rating was the promise dangled before their eyes by the N. E. A. A. A. U.

One of the first breaks will be made by "Bootus" Chapman who has been

DISSATISFACTION OVER PLANS OF GRADE CROSSING ABOLITION

Discontinuance of Saville Street a Severe Blow to People In That Localiity

Gus Bates Requested to Present His Objections on Paper

At the hearing before the Railroad Commissioners on Friday upon the approval of the decree of the special commission on abolition of grade crossings, it appeared that the Bay State Street Railway Company propose to remonstrate against the apportionment of cost, at Water street, and the State of Massachusetts object to being assessed at Saville street, claiming that it is not a public way. If these assessments are reduced the cost to the city of Quincy will be greater.

City Solicitor McAnarney in his opening for the city claimed that the plan proposed offered no adequate substitute for the closing of Saville street. The future will demand a bridge over the railroad at this point he said, either on the lines of the present street or by a detour to the north.

The plan ignores the necessities of the city. A pathway over the railroad would help some. All hearings at Quincy favored depression of the tracks at Saville street. Some two years ago it was learned that the commissioners would not stand for depression, and since then the city officials have endeavored to get the best possible plan. The plan does a serious injury to Quincy at School street.

Mayor Stone claimed that he had received no official notice of the decree of the special commissioners and that he had had no opportunity to study the plans as proposed. Thought there was too much of a rush on the part of the railroad to secure approval. From Dimmock street to Granite street was 1700 to 1800 feet, and too long a stretch for people on the west side to be cut off from the business centre of the city. As president of the Board of Trade he had advocated depression of the tracks and an overhead bridge at Saville street. The proposed grade at School

We are here to amuse you, and we sahll do so in a clean wholesome manner.

You are not unreasonable. You do not expect a Dolar Show for 10 cents. What you want is as good a as can be had in New England. We shall positively do this for you, and allow you to be the judges. It is cutting prices quite a little to deliver such goods as we have to offer the first half of next week at a 10-cent admission. We refer you to our bills. If you are up in this line we have said enough.

A few Reserved Seats—only 50 in number,— are offered only on Advance Sale. They must be occupied by 8 P. M. or will be sold as 10 cent seats after that hour. This is done only to accommodate any one who desires to come in up to 8 o'clock and be assured a good seat.

Try and be with us at our First Show which starts promptly at 6.30. You will then reach home for a full night's rest.

You must have this amusement. Its rest, just thes ame as sleep. It stimulates just like a beef steak.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Gov. Foss has pointed out to the legislature its plain duty with regard to an effort to support Massachusetts industries.

Miss Clark came into her own rather late, but she was the right person to whom the honor should go even if it was a little belated.

Some people are worrying why the secret service men have been paying so much attention to Quincy lately. It is hinted that there may be something doing in the smuggling cases in this vicinity.

The Duncan added another to the long list of successful launches which have marked the history of the Fore River Company.

Was the Governor's message a signal or foreunner of what he is openly pointed out as contemplating this fall.

Will it be a veto or an approval. The time is getting short and something definite should be done about the city's financial matters.

Better get in all the talking over the wire possible in the next few hours, because if the telephone girls leave the switch board there will be some very distressing moments while they are off their perch.

There seems to be some doubt as to the fate of sugar. There is good ground to doubt the quality of much of the sugar that is purchased now a days.

The Grand Trunk is generous in offering its half completed road to Rhode Island, with all those strings attached.

THE BUDGET.

The budget is now in the hands of the Mayor, who according to some reports is in doubt as to the best course to pursue. With the $5000 which was added to the original document by the City Council it is quite certain that there will be an advance in the tax rate even over the record figures of last year. This was predicted at the time so that in a way the people are prepared for it and there is nothing particularly new in the situation. If there is a way in which the bill can be pared down to save that additional tax and the mayor can see the way and point it out to the Council in such a manner that the members will be convinced of the property of the means, then it would be a very good thing and should receive immediate consideration.

If on the other hand there does not present itself any relief of the situation, there is nothing much else to do except let the budget as offered take its proper course. If the amounts assigned to each department are really absolute necessities, no mere juggling will make the slightest difference. Even if the budget should be cut to meet the financial garment desired, the chances that the additional amounts would have to be provided for before the year ends is quite certain and it would only mean another threshing out of an unpleasant subject and reversion to a duty which could just as well have been attended to months before.

A SERIOUS SITUATION.

Boston faces a most serious situation, one that if carried out, has not been duplicated probably in the country. The telephone situation in Boston has reached an acute stage. The operators say they have ceased negotiations with the company and a strike vote is called for Monday. There is little doubt as to the outcome of this vote. Which means of course that the girls will quietly leave the switches at a given time and then where will everybody be at? They certainly will not be in any too pleasant frame of mind. There are said to be about 2000 operators in the Boston district. If they all go out, there is going to be trouble and inconvenience in plenty for a whole lot of people. Not only will Boston be affected by this action but all the surrounding cities and towns and of course the long distance wires to places beyond Boston will not be able to maintain their usual volume of business or efficiency.

The men's organizations are in sympathy with the girls and have promised support if the latter go out.

If the strike is actually entered upon there will be no further notice given to the public or the company. It will just happen at the time appointed and the company and public must make the most of the situation. In the meantime it is hoped before Boston's service and interests as well as those of the places adjacent, are put to that inconvenience, a supreme effort which will have the effect of untangling the present difficulties, will be entered into and that there will be no necessity for a strike.

FATE OF BUDGET STILL IN DOUBT

Mayor Said to be in Doubt as to Course to Follow

ANOTHER JUMP IN TAXES

A regular meeting of the City Council will be held Monday evening. Several committees have met during the past week and reports from these will probably be received. Should the Mayor decide to veto the budget passed at the last meeting the veto will probably come in at this meeting although His Honor has ten days in which to approve or veto it.

It is claimed that if the budget should be signed as it was passed by the City Council that it would mean not less than a tax rate of $22.80 which would be larger by 80 cents than last year, which was a record breaker, the 80 cents additional being due to the increase of $5,000 made to the budget of the Commissioner for highways, etc.

The Council can pass over the veto or sustain the veto. In case of the latter event there would be a repetition of what happened a year ago when the Mayor vetoed the first budget passed.

EIGHTY-YEAR-OLD SHERIFF REMOVED

Legislature Acts After Hearing Charge Against Ballou

Augusta, Me., April 5.—John W. Ballou of Bath was ordered removed from office as high sheriff of Sagadahoc county at the conclusion of his impeachment trial in the legislature yesterday and last night. He was charged with failure to enforce the prohibition law.

Ballou is 80 years old and had been sheriff thirty years. He took the stand in his own defense at last night's session, saying he had left the work of enforcement to his son, a deputy, and that he had not received any complaints until ten days ago.

EYES REMAIN OPEN

Lynn Child Suffers a Strange Attack of Epileptic Coma

Lynn, Mass., April 5.—A strange case of epileptic coma was reported at the home of Francis St. Croix, 6 Lowell street. Frank St. Croix, a 6-year-old son, is now lying unconscious, but with his eyes open, and the attending physician declares he may remain in that state for a week or more.

The child was standing in the middle of the kitchen floor when he went to sleep and, after a moment, fell over upon the floor and could not be aroused. His pulse and temperature were found to be normal, and his eyes remained open after he was put to bed.

TROOPS NOW ON GUARD

Four Persons Wounded When Police Fire on Riotous Strikers

Auburn, N. Y., April 5.—State troops are on guard over the plants affected by the twine workers' strike which yesterday developed serious rioting, during which the police fired into a mob, seriously wounding four persons, one of them a woman.

A conference called last night by Mayor O'Neill between strike leaders and employers in an effort to settle the trouble had to be deferred because William C. Rogers, state mediator, could not reach here before this afternoon.

SPELLING BEE DRAWN BATTLE

Twenty-five of the best spellers of Grade VII of the Adams school took part in a spelling bee Thursday evening spelling over 1000 words in about one hour.

The words were taken from the most difficult words of each grade from fourth to seventh and all of the seventh grade words for the school year, notwithstanding the fact that the outline is not expected to be completed for three months more.

Miss Griffin, their teacher, started the contest with the most difficult words first in order to shorten it, but for 20 minutes the pupils spelled without a break.

In reality there was no pronounced mistake except the failure to pronounce the word or a repetition, both of which were called failures.

Grace Laing of Atherton street was still spelling when the contest was closed to allow Miss Barrows to begin her lecture.

Honorable mention should be made of Catherine Desmond, of Quincy avenue who was the last to fail, particularly as her failure was inarticulating her letters.

CLEAN RECORD FOR DRAFTSMEN

Have Yet to Meet With Their first Defeat

GREAT GAME

Wednesday the Quincy Marine Draftsmen's Soccer club played their return fixture with the Harvard Varsity Football team. The game was played at Cambridge under good weather conditions but for the gusty wind prevailing, and a fine exhibition of strenuous football keenly contested from start to finish ended in favor of the shipbuilders by 4 goals to 3.

During the first half with the wind behind them the Quincy boys gave a startling exhibition; their forwards led in briliant style by Shaw having Harvard defence in a tangle on several occasions. The first score resulted afled in brilliant style by Shaw having the marksman. Harvard retaliated strongly and succeeded in eluding the vigilance of the vistor's rear-guard, an unsavable shot getting past goalkeeper Price. From this point, however, until half time the Draftsmen seldom relaxed in their pressure and three more goals were scored through Preston, Campbell and Shaw. Campbell's effort being regarded as about the finest score of the game, although the clever combination of Laidlaw and Shaw leading to the latters goal earned a well deserved cheer. During this period the Harvard backs gave a very fine display against the wind which rendered strong kicking very uncertain.

After change of ends the Quincy defence and halfbacks had to face eager advances of the Varsity forwards, their outside right especially giving Bartlett of the Draftsmen's eleven a hard game throughout, the honors being about even in their individual bouts. The Harvard lot soon showed that they also knew the way to goal and two scores resulted from clever play. The game became very exciting during the last twenty minutes when the Harvard boys almost equalized, though Shaw and Campbell had hard luck in not adding further to the Draftsmen's total. A hard game ended in favor of the visitors of whom besides those already mentioned Gregg, who worked like a Trojan, Melville and Laidlaw, excelled. The Harvard backs, outside right and center half showed good football and with further experience the Varsity should develop into a class lot.

This makes 10 wins out of 10 games for the Draftsmen's club who now go forward with some confidence to their first round match versus Charleston in the Williamson Cup.

The Social Realm

In the removal of Charles R. Safford and family this week from Atlantic the community is losing a man of stirling character who has entered into every activity for community and social betterment. Mr. Safford was one of the originators of the parish society in Memorial church at a time when the church was without men of business efficiency. He has also been one of the enthusiastic workers of the Ward Six patriotic association and has been a strong factor in the fourth of July parade and sports. His removal to Wollaston will not affect his being a trustee of the Crane Library. Atlantic friends wish Mr. and Mrs. Safford success and happiness in the social life of Wollaston.

OPPOSITION TO A DANCE HALL

At Squantum is Voiced by the Woman's Club

OTHERS ALSO OBJECT

Protest against a public dance hall license being granted in Squantum was made at the last meeting of the Squantum Woman's club and a communication to that effect has been sent to Mayor Stone and the License Commissioner. Squantum women residents showed decided opposition to a public dance hall being opened in that section of Quincy.

It was reported at the meeting that a movement was on foot to start a public dance hall at the Squantum Inn which was sold last year. It was stated by the women that the effort to get a license for a public dance hall was undoubtedly a preliminary step in the movement.

Many individual protest have been made to Mayor Stone against the granting of a dance hall license in Squantum.. The Squantum Improvement association is opposed to it. It is the belief of Squantum residents that a public dance hall in that section would lead to just the troubles which Houghs Neck now finds itself in handling a transient population which cares nothing for the upbuilding or the reputation of the place but out only for a summer lark at the expense of the community.

street would be too heavy.

Chairman J. H. Cunningham of the City Council committee claimed that the Council had had no apportunity to see plans under the decree and asked for an adjournment that objections might be framed.

Councilman Richards said the people of the city or the City Council had no knowledge that it was decided two years ago to close Saville street. It was not feasible to elevate School street 12 feet as proposed. People generally were opposed to elevation of the railroad tracks through the city.

Ex-President R. W. Hobbs of the City Council, said expense should not be the deciding factor, but what was best for the city. Abutters are not the only ones interested, but the public at large. The former are awarded damages but the latter get no award. The city should have an opportunity to submit other plans.

The Railroad Commissioners requested G. B. Bates to have his arguments type written and handed in, which he promised to do. They are well known to Quincy people.

The commissioners requested that the engineering expert of the city should be present at the adjourned hearing to tell why he approved the plans as decreed.

The question that Col. Benton of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. proposed to nearly every witness was: Do you favor the abolition of the Saville and Water street grade crossings. The answers were invariably yes, but often were qualified.

Representative M. T. Sullivan said facetiously that he thought at least 10 per cent of the people should be satisfied with the plans.

Councilman Ericson strenuously opposed the plan as a property holder west of the railroad, though not an abutter.

D. L. F. Chase favored the plan believing that Saville street between Upland road and Goffe street would never be suitable for teams.

Ex-Mayor Hall thought the grade crossing problem should include all the streets over the railroad between Neponset and Braintree, otherwise the city will be put to big expense when the railroad puts in two additional tracks. We should look to the future

The Mayor will be notified before the Railroad Commissioners come to Quincy for a view. The adjourned hearing will be held, April 25.

Psychopaths Tell Hubbites that Mental Diseases are yielding now—Light Lies Ahead for Maddest Boston—Speaking of Insanity, the Cubist and Futurist Pictures will be Shown at Copley Hall—A story of how van Gogh, the father of Post Impressionism Sliced off his Ear—Uncle Sam Holds up a Suffragette as "Undesirable," and the Suffragists Prepare to Get Mad.

Hope for the mentally disorganized is the cheering note underlying most of the discussions of a great mental hygiene conference which has been held in Boston. The leading psychopaths say that the campaign against the great black night of insanity can be made as effective as that which is rapidly reducing the death rate from tuberculosis. The weapons for fighting the scourge are the same—systematic right living. Says one of the authorities: "The effort at discovery and elimination of the psychic causes of nervous and mental disease is no less important than the search for the virulent micro-organisms and immunizing sera. It is not an exaggeration to say that the majority of nervous and mental disorders may be classified as induced diseases; that their causes are in most cases avoidable." Of the work of psychopathic institutions the director of the Commonwealth's psychopathic hospital predicts discoveries which will make the diagnosis of mental diseases as easy and reasonably sure as that of Brights disease. One sees approaching a great millennium of normality.

All agog for cubists and futurists is the exhibition loving public of greater Boston. This has been one of the most brilliant art seasons Boston has known, what with the Besnard Lavery and Scandinavian exhibitions at the Museum of Fine Arts, the exceptionally fine shows at the Boston Art Club and at the various dealers' galleries. To contribute toward a grand wind-up it now seems to be pretty well settled that Boston will see at least a part of the great pots impressionist exhibition which earlier in the winter electrified New York and which is now exciting interest and merriment in Chicago.

Just what post impressionism really is and how the cubists differ from the futurists simple minded folk are already asking of the comparatively few pundits who have followed these latest agonies of art. Those who know say that the whole trouble originated in the brains of one van Gogh, an eccentric Dutch painter, who in a moment of irritation cut off one of his ears and sent it to his lady love. They put him into an asylum but allowed him to paint around the place. The pictures done while he was an inmate of the sanitarium were the beginning of post impressionism. Such is the taste of the general public of things queer and startling that the big exhibition of the post impressionists at the Armory in New York drew the largest attendance of any art show in the history of the country. It is hardly expected that any such number will see the things when they are shown at Copley hall the latter part of April and first of May but there undoubtedly will be such a crush of people as has not been seen since the Sorolla exhibition of 1910. Meantime there is a foretaste of post impressionism in the big Scandinavian show at the Museum.

Homes and not schools, fathers and mothers and not school ma'am are responsible for children's bad spelling and inacurrate ciphering, according to that eminent educational expert, Mayor John Fitzgerald of Boston. You see it is this way: Mother has been busy at the ironing board all day and father is too much absorbed in the opening of the base ball season to be willing to devote the evening to a family spelling bee and mental arithmetic match. Besides, father couldn't and mother wouldn't dare; one doesn't like to expose one's illiteracy too often to one's youngsters. Hence the children just struggle with their lessons by their lonesome, if they struggle at all; and when they get into business life they fall right down on the spelling of "separate" and the adding of a single column of figures. One factor of the situation, however, the distinguished mayor-educator leaves out of account; he says nothing about congential incapacity for learning anything at all—the greatest of all causes of failure to learn. That, under Mendel's law, is up to the grandparents and their grandparents.

Uncle Sam evidently wants to save his windows. He seems to have decided that suffragettes who have served jail sentences shall be deported as "undesirabels." So at least one argues from the case of Miss Florence Ward, English militant, who has been detained by the immigration authorities at Boston. If their decision to send her back is approved at Washington an interesting situation may arise next time any of the Pankhursts comes over to lecture in American cities. Whatever the local suffragists' feeling about militant tactics they all like to hear the British sisters explain their side of the issue, and, if prevented, they are likely to be real cross with Uncle Sam.

MAYOR APPOINTS FIVE FIREMEN

This Will Mean Dropping Big String of Call Men

MANY ON ANXIOUS SEAT

Mayor Stone this noon appointed the five new permanent men to the fire department authorized by the City Council, the appointments to take effect next Monday. Two of these new men were authorized by the City Council of 1912 and three by the City Council of 1913. The five new men appointed are:—Edward H. Barry, Henry M. Hughes, Richard H. Joyce, John L. O'Neil, John F. Desmond.

The men appointed are the five highest on the civil service list. The order passed a few weeks ago adding three new permanent men also called for the dropping of eighteen call men. Just who the eighteen are who are to be dropped has not been decided as yet but probably will be early next week.

Chief Litchfield said this morning that he had not determined as yet to what apparatus the new men would be assigned.

HELPING THE CAUSE.

Egg, Chrysalis and Kernels of Grain Used as Symbols.

With the egg and the chrysalis all are familiar, but in olden times kernels of grain were also used. In England a tiny cross, together with grains of barley and wheat, has been found in the center block of oaken mantelpieces. The custom had long been forgotten when it was recalled by the discovery of three such emblems in the mantel of the room in which Shakespeare was born.

The house was being restored, and one of the commissioners in charge took a block of the old wood for a souvenir. He gave it to a friend, a Shakespearean scholar, who, wishing to share it with another, tried to split it and found it hollow. It contained a cross, three grains of barley and a piece of tow. To his honor, be it said, he restored the relic to the house at Stratford on Avon, where it is now on exhibition.

A great sculptor once said of the three processes used in making a statue, "The clay is this life, the plaster is death, but the marble is the glorious resurrection."

The regular meeting of Whatsoever Circle of Kings Daughters will be held with Mrs. George Thompson, April 7th. Will each member bring material for an apron to work on.

Cards have been received from Herbert Burch of East Squantum street who is at the Rutland Sanatarium, reporting improvement in his health which is pleasing news to his large circle of friends in Atlantic.

Mrs. Elisha D. Atkins of Bromfield street has been able this week to take a short walk. It wil be gratifying to her many friends of St. Chrysostom's parish when her strength will permit her to join them again after months of enforced absence.

The sacraments of baptism and the Lord's supper will be administered in the First Presbyterian church on the Sabbath at 10.30. Forrest P. Weaver of Boston will given an organ recital during the evening service. He will play at 10.30 A. M., also.

The regular business meeting and social of the Junior C. E. Society of the Wollaston Congregational church was held in the vestry Tuesday afternoon, 41 members and visitors being present. Various games were enjoyed and refreshments served. The committee in charge of the social were Donald Blake, Chairman, Olive Winter, Della Russell, Vesta Gannett, Junior Johnson, Doris Eller and May Blake.

The regular business meeting and social of the Wollaston Congregational Y. P. S. C. E. was held in the vestry Monday evening. In spite of the rain a large number were present. After the regular business Eugene G. Smith took charge of the entertainment. The two principal features were "Rides in a Flying Machine" which brought forth much laughter, and a Baseball Spelling Match between "Outsiders" and "Insiders." Miss Lucile Smalley was chosen captain of the visitors' team, and Miss Ruth A. Taylor, captain of the home team. The final score was 17 to 14 in favor of the home team. April Fool refreshments were served, followed, however, by cake and fruit punch. A social "sing" around the piano closed a very merry evening.

THE WOLLASTON FORUM.

At the session of the Wollaston Forum, which meets in the Wollaston Unitarian church Sunday, at 12 o'clock, Frank Palmer Speare educational director of the Boston Young Men's Christian Association, will give an address on "The Man who derives." Both the speaker and the theme ought to attract a large attendance. This will be the last meeting of the season. Through the fall and winter vital and timely subjects have been considered. The meetings and discussions have been helpful and have been attended and much appreciated by many of our citizens, who believe that religion and life are one and inseparable and that Christian principles should be applied to all departments of daily life.

SURPRISE PARTY IN NEW HOME

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Given Table and Other Furniture

MYSTERY CLEARED UP

About a week ago two well known ladies were seen calling at various homes in South Quincy. There was an air of mystery about them which was only made plain to those called on and the secret was kept as only a woman can keep a secret. It all came out Friday night in the form of a surprise party on Councilman Charles A. Ross and his good wife who are about to occupy their new home on Independence avenue. A happy evening was spent in singing songs and telling stories in the the midst of which ex-Councilman Murdock Campbell in a few well chosen wards in behalf of the company presented Mr. and Mrs. Ross wtih a beautiful mahogany table and other household adornments. Councilman Ross suitably responded. The company left at a late hour all feeling that they had spent a most enjoyable evening. Among those present were:

Ex-Councilman and Mrs. Murdock A. Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. William McLeod, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sylvester, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Finlay, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. J. McKay, Mr. and Mrs. Dawson, Mr. and Mrs. D. McLellan, Mrs. Scarborough, Miss Eva Scarbourough, Miss Margaret Miller, Mr. and Mrs. A. McLeod, Mr. and Mrs. William Westland, Charles A. Ross, and Miss Bessie Miller.

NOT UP TO THE CITY.

Editor of Ledger:—

I read an article in your paper a week or two ago on the condition of the streets at Squantum. I fail to see how the city can be blamed. The probabilities are that the streets were not properly built to begin with. Most promoters simply take the black loam off and leave the yellow loam or sub-soil; such a street is bound to be muddy in bad weather.

In developing a piece of property enough should be allowed to properly build the streets and the cost added to the price of the lot. It is notorious that no attempt is made by promoters to make good gravel streets. They figure that when enough houses are built, the city will be obliged to accept them. Until the city can properly maintain existing streets it should not be burdened with half built streets that the property owners should have paid for. Ward Six.

KEPT SLEUTHS ON THE JUMP

Quietly Disappeared When Her Sister Was Arrested at Custom House—Woman Connected With Boston Dressmaking Establishment Also an Important Witness

Boston, April 5.—Mrs. Lena Bradley-Hafford-Schramm, the star witness in the smuggling fraud cases for whom United States detectives have been searching for forty-eight hours, has been located.

She will be apprehended today. Officials here say that she may be arrested to prevent another mysterious disappearance on her part.

In the hunt for her the government turned to her brother, Daniel H. Bradley, who is clerk of the Somerville municipal court. He declared he had not seen Mrs. Schramm for more than a month and had no idea of her whereabouts. He said he did not understand what his sister's connection with the case could be.

Her power to evade the government sleuths has created a sensation. She was with her sister, Mrs. Terence L. Shevlin, when the latter was arrested at the custom house last week.

Then she quietly walked off and disappeared. The smuggling probers supposed she could be easily found when wanted. They were dumfounded when they sought her two days ago and were unable to find any trace of her.

Since then she has baffled the efforts of nearly sixty of Uncle Sam's trained detectives to find her. Yesterday, it is said, she was located in New York.

One of the chief men working on the case in Boston hurried out of town yesterday. It is believed he went to New York to make sure of the return of Mrs. Schramm to this city in time for the convening of the grand jury Tuesday.

The arrest of a woman in Boston is expected today. It is reported that she is an important witness, connected at present with a dressmaking establishment, and that she has been a go-between for the smugglers in this city and New York.

It was said she would only be arrested in case the investigators could not be sure otherwise of her presence as a witness; but that she would first be given an opportunity to appear before District Attorney Garland and make a full statement of what she knows in regard to the smuggling which has been going on through this port.

The woman is reported to have been a former employe of Catherine Brennan, the New York modiste now under arrest for complicity in the big conspiracy.

The government case will be practically complete, it is announced, with the securing of this important witness and the return to this city of Mrs. Schramm. It was reported at the federal building that Chief Wilkie, who left suddenly for New York Thursday, was himself instrumental in locating Mrs. Schramm in that city.

FREES HIM FROM CELL

Truck Driver's Tenor Solo Pleases a New York Magistrate

New York, April 5.—A tenor solo sung in a prison cell won for Nathan Kopaa, 18, a truck driver, his liberty.

Magistrate Appleton, into whose courtroom the operatic melody floated, halted the trial of cases until the singer had finished. He directed that Kopaa be brought before him.

"I would like to sing all the time," said Kopaa. "I sing all day on the wagon and it always makes me happy. I didn't mean to sing in prison, but I felt downhearted and I thought if I could sing a little I would feel more cheerful."

In discharging him the court advised him to try to earn his living by singing.

NEW STRIKE AVERTED

Section Hands Reach Agreement With Bangor and Aroostook

Bangor, Me., April 5.—Fears that the 500 section hands employed by the Bangor and Aroostook railroad would strike were dispelled last night, when a committee representing the men signed a new contract.

The previous contract expired on March 1. No wage increase was provided for in the new contract, which was agreed upon following a conference between the section hands' committee and officials of the road. The rules governing the work of the men were somewhat revised.

Police Detective Shot

New Haven, April 5.—Edward F. Lawlor, a police detective, was shot and slightly hurt when William AHing fired five shots at him on the street here. Alling was arrested.

Prisoner Does Houdini Act

Hartford, April 5.—Curtis Dewey, under sentence of seven years for forgery, was nailed in a packing case by fellow prisoners and shipped from the prison factory to liberty.

AGREE ON TARIFF BILL

Leaders Decide Upon Free Wool and Low Duty on Sugar

Washington, April 5.—With President Wilson and congressional leaders practically agreed upon free wool and a very low duty on sugar, eventually to become free, the ways and means committee began drawing its report on the new tariff bill, estimating the loss of revenue from the new rates at $80,000,000 a year.

Among the numerous additions to the free list will be steel rails. Cuts will be made all along the line on the metal schedule. After the senate finance committee reviewed the bill a sub-committee went to conference with Chairman Underwood of the ways and means committee. There is now believed to be a general agreement all around.

The revenue from the income tax will be estimated at $89,000,000 also, to be derived in this way:

Incomes of $4000 to $20,000, 1 percent; $20,000 to $50,000, 2 percent; $50,000 to $100,000, 3 percent; all over $100,000, 4 percent. Flat tax on corporations, 2 percent. The exemption will be on all incomes under $4000. The income tax provision now stands this way and is not expected to be changed.

BECOMES MRS. DERBY

Ethel Roosevelt Has Quiet Wedding In Oyster Bay Church

Oyster Bay, N. Y., April 5.—Miss Ethel Roosevelt, daughter of ex-President Theodore Roosevelt, was married in Christ Episcopal church to Dr. Richard A. Derby of New York.

In deference to the wishes of the family, there was no elaborate wedding, only intimate friends and the rather large family connection being present. The ceremony was performed by Rev. George E. Talmadge, rector of the church.

It was noted in the church that in contrast to her sister, Alice, Ethel promised to obey her husband. Alice Roosevelt had that part of the ritual stricken out at her marriage to Nicholas Longworth. Mr. and Mrs. Derby sailed for Europe today.

MORGAN'S BODY NOW ON FUNERAL SHIP

Twenty Thousand People See Military Honors Paid

Havre, April 5.—Military honors were paid to the memory of J. Pierpont Morgan, when the body of the financier arrived from Rome.

The deputy prefect of the Seine Inferieure received the body and it was transferred an hour later to the French liner France, which sailed today for New York. Twenty thousand people saw the transfer of the body to the steamship.

As the coffin was transferred from the train to the steamship the military honors due Morgan's rank as one of the commanders of the Legion of Honor were paid by troops drawn from the local garrison.

PLAYED ON HIS SYMPATHY

Mulraney Says Police Secured a False Confession of Murder

Ossining, N. Y., April 5.—John Mulraney was escorted from the Sing Sing death house to the warden's office, where he told Judge Rosalsky of New York why he asked to be granted a new trial on the charge that he murdered Patrick McBreen, a New York saloon keeper.

From the time he left Auburn prison, shortly before the murder on Oct. 3, 1911, Mulraney described his career as a forger. He confirmed the evidence of witnesses examined in New York, who declared that on the night of the murder he lay drunk at the home of his mother.

He asserted that Police Inspector Hughes had played on his sympathy, telling him that one John Dowling had confessed the murder, but that Dowling had a wife and four children and that if Mulraney would sign a confession Hughes would use his influence to get him off with a sentence of not more than eight years. With this understanding, Mulraney said, he signed a confession, which afterward he repudiated.

MURDOCK FOR SPEAKER

Women Are Present at Bull Moose Caucus In Washington

Washington, April 5.—The first third-party "caucus" in nearly fifty years in the house of representatives was held by the Progressives and Representative Victor Murdock of Kansas was chosen as the Progressives' candidate for speaker. A notable incident was that women were present. This is unprecedented in the history of the purely political gatherings in the Capitol.

Representative Hinebaugh of Illinois read a letter from Theodore Roosevelt, in which he outlined the policies of the Progressive party and congratulated the leaders upon their success in welding together a working organization.

Grocers Must Close Early on Sunday

St. Louis, April 5.—Chief of Police Young has ordered all grocery stores in St. Louis to close at 9 a. m. Sunday. The order is based on a city ordinance which recently was upheld by the supreme court.

FLOOD VICTIMS ASK FOR RELIEF

Many Reported Destitute and Homeless at Hamilton

CAIRO SITUATION DANGEROUS

City Menaced by Rise In Mississippi River Below St. Louis—Howell Levee Breaks After Desperate Efforts to Keep It Intact—Waters Continue to Rise In Kentucky

Hamilton, O., April 5.—An appeal for aid for the thousands made destitute and homeless in this city by the flood was sent out by James K. Cullen, chairman of the citizens' relief committee.

Hundreds of homes were destroyed, he says. The loss of life is estimated at more than 3000 and the property loss is estimated at $10,000,000.

Anxiety at Cairo

Cairo, Ills., April 5.—With the crest of the flood only a short distance upstream, rain is reported as universal in the territory drained by the Ohio and its tributaries. Only one important river, the Wabash, is reported as falling. Both the Cumberland and Tennessee are said to be rising.

In addition, the Mississippi, which has been at a low stage, is rising between Cairo and St. Louis. This fact is looked upon as possibly the most serious of all, because the Ohio needs a free outlet to prevent a backing up of waters on the levees here.

Last night the river gauge stood midway between 54.7 and 54.8, or 5-20 of a foot from the top.

Indiana Levee Breaks

Evansville, Ind., April 5.—The Howell levee, protecting 200 families in Ingleside, between Evansville and Howell, gave way and the Ingleside district is now under from six to ten feet of water. Heroic work for three days to protect the levee failed and its breaking was expected.

Minute men had been posted all along the dangerous dike and when the water began to pour over the top the alarm was sounded and bells were rung in Howell to warn the people in Ingleside to flee. There was no loss of life. Street car service with Howell is cut off.

Hickman Levee Gives Way

Hickman, Ky., April 5.—The city levee here went out, flooding the factory district. No loss of life was reported. Continuous rain and a hard up-stream wind had combined to render the flood situation desperate.

Reports from points along the Reelfoot levee state that the water has reached the top of the banks and is being held back only by sand bagging. There are now 2500 refugees in the camp on the hills above the city, the majority of whom are well cared for.

Money Goes to Red Cross

Columbus, O., April 5.—At a meeting held on a special train entering this city from Piqua last night, Governor Cox and members of the Ohio flood relief commission decided to turn over to the American Red Cross society the relief work in the flood sections of the state. E. P. Bicknell, a national director of the Red Cross, will be in charge of the work.

WILL NOT PAY ALIMONY

Divorced Woman Says She Was Tired of Supporting Husband

New York, April 5.—Mrs. May E. Thorp, buyer in a department store, is rejoicing because she will not have to pay alimony to her husband. Supreme Court Justice Greenbaum granted her petition for a decree of separation, and asked her how much alimony she wanted.

"I don't think I ought to pay any," she replied. "Can't you put a provision in the decree to keep my husband from demanding money of me? I have been supporting him so long I've gotten tired of it, and I want to be rid or it." Greenbaum promised to word the decree as she wished.

NICHOLAS DEFIES EUROPE

He Declares Montenegro Will Take and Hold Scutari

London, April 5.—"We mean to take Scutari and keep it."

This note of defiance to the powers of Europe is contained in an interview with King Nicholas of Montenegro at Cettinje and published here in the Pall Mall Gazette. Continuing, the monarch of the little kingdom said:

"It is far better to die fighting than to continue living as we are now, and for this reason we shall continue to defy Europe."

It is considered in Cettinje that the fall of Scutari is a matter of only a few days.

Colonel TODHUNTER of Missouri

By RIPLEY D. SAUNDERS

Copyright, 1911, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

PROLOGUE.

Ladies and gentlemen, permit us to present Colonel Todhunter of Missouri and his home folks. They're our kind of people—just the plain, homelike, everyday sort, you know, with whom you can summer and winter and whom you can get to know and to like and to feel for when they run into trouble. There's plenty of love and romance in this story, with politics of the sort that will never go out of date—or let's hope so, anyway. There's nothing of the problem story in this tale of the colonel and his friends and foes; just a plain, straight, all the way through story of the honest, old fashioned kind that's worth reading.

CHAPTER I.

Colonel Todhunter Campaigns Among the Confederate Daughters.

COLONEL THURSTON T. TODHUNTER was undeniably the distinct embodiment of that picturesque native American type, the Kentuckian born and Missourian bred, as he entered old Judge Bolling's law office in Nineveh and saluted its white haired occupant with a cordially impressive wave of the hand in friendly greeting.

It was the morning of the day preceding the return from St. Louis of the Hon. William J. Strickland, law partner of Judge Bolling and now an avowed candidate for the Democratic primary nomination for governor of Missouri, and Colonel Todhunter's buoyantly aggressive bearing was due to his delight that his lifelong friend had at last yielded to popular pressure and made open announcement of his candidacy. The scent of political battle in the Strickland cause was hot in the colonel's nostrils, and he sniffed its savor with militant joy.

Tall and erect, Colonel Todhunter carried his spare but stalwart frame with an ease that somewhat belied the grizzled gray of his hair and the white of his soldierly mustache and old fashioned "imperial." One could not easily have failed to recognize him for just what he was—a lineal descendant of that colonial Virginian stock whose grandsons followed the pioneer trail that led from the Old Dominion, first to North Carolina, then to Kentucky and Tennessee and thence to Missouri, a stock that has remained distinctively American since the time of its first taking root in American soil.

"You can't fool me!"

fered and executed his gesture of courteous salutation.

"Well, judge," he said jubilantly, "the fight's begun, and we've got to rally around old Bill Strickland to a fare you well, suh! I-gad, suh, I ain't a-goin' to be content with nothin' less'n whippin' that there Stephen K. Yancey outfit to a frazzle, suh!"

Old Judge Bolling smiled at the colonel's zestful hailing of the imminent combat. "You're right, Colonel Todhunter," he agreed. "And the sooner we get plump into the middle of the fight the better, sir. It can't begin too soon to please me."

Colonel Todhunter nodded. Then his gray-blue eyes twinkled significantly. "Judge," he said, "the Nineveh Daughters of the Confederacy are givin' a picnic down at Indian Springs today, and they're goin' to set a dinner at a dollar a head for the benefit of the Confederate Soldiers' home at Higginsville, suh. I reckon all that ain't no particular news to you, but I thought maybe you'd enjoy goin' down there with me, suh. I'd be tickled to death to have you."

Judge Bolling's lips twitched. "You old devil, you! You couldn't any more keep from campaigning among the daughters than a yearling colt can keep from kicking up its heels in the pasture and you know it. You can't fool me."

"What I can't do and what a yearlin' colt can't do are two mighty different things, judge," answered Colonel Todhunter. "But I ain't connected with old Bill Strickland's campaign in no official capacity that I'm aware of, and if I see fit to turn a trick on my own hook, that's nobody's blame business but mine, suh."

Then the colonel chuckled. "I'll tell you one thing and that ain't two: I'd ruther have a woman's promise to make her husband vote for me or my candidate than to have a man's own word on a stack o' Bibles a mile high, suh. It's only up to the man to keep his word. But it's up to the woman to prove that she can manage her husband. And she'll do that, suh or die in the attempt."

Old Judge Bolling laughed. "Well, Thurs," he said, "I've just been fooling with you anyway. Mrs. Todhunter herself stopped at our house this morning and took Mrs. Bolling along with her, and she made me promise to come later, so it's all right. They'll have no excuse for saying that we're there in Colonel Strickland's interest, so you and I can go down to Indian Springs with a perfectly easy conscience."

An hour later old Judge Bolling and Colonel Todhunter emerged upon the picnic grounds in company, having driven down in the colonel's buggy.

Mrs. Todhunter, a white haired old aristocrat of the antebellum type, advanced to meet her husband and his friend. If Mrs. Todhunter had a fault it was that she tacitly regarded all Nineveh as being vassal to her social suzerainty and bore herself something as might the ruling monarch of some little principality. But this manner was not apparent in her bearing toward old Judge Bolling, whom she knew as being of her own caste.

"I'm very glad you've come, judge," she said laughingly. "And especially right now. It may take you and Colonel Todhunter both to make our Mary and young Tom Strickland behave themselves, sir. Tom has already kidnaped Mary away somewhere after I put them to work spreading tablecloths, and I've been vowing all sorts of vengeance on both of them. I don't approve of Tom's behavior at all, judge."

"It pains me to disagree with a lady, madam," replied the white haired old judge gallantly, "but I must say I approve of Tom's conduct in getting Miss Mary Todhunter off to himself at every chance, ma'am!"

"That's all very fine, judge," said Mrs. Todhunter, laughing and shaking her head, "but Mary has no business permitting Tom Strickland to monopolize her. She came out here with Stamford Tucker. I wouldn't blame Stam in the least if he got ugly about it."

Then Mrs. Todhunter laughed and pointed an accusing finger. "There they are now, looking as if butter wouldn't melt in their mouths. Won't you go over there for me, judge, and tell Tom Strickland to behave himself and send Mary to me right away? There's no earthly use in Colonel Todhunter going, because neither one of them would mind a word he says!" Old Judge Bolling, laughing, moved off toward the young couple.

Mrs. Todhunter turned to the colonel. "You see, I know you like a book, Colonel Todhunter!" she said, her eyes twinkling. "You think everything young Tom Strickland does is just right, and you'd stand up for him quicker than his own father. And as for Mary, she can twist you around her finger any time. Don't think I place any dependence upon you where they are concerned, sir!"

Colonel Todhunter smiled calmly. "I ain't askin' you to, Mary," he retorted. "In the first place, I approve of Tom's fallin' as deep in love with Mary as he knows how. In the second place, interferin' in these here sentimental affairs is a mighty ticklish business, and I'm here at this picnic to have a good time. I'm a-goin' to have it, too!" Saying which, he beat a hasty retreat.

But he had hardly succeeded in placing a section of the picnic crowd between himself and Mrs. Todhunter when a young girl came running along his trail, breathless, and with mischievous eyes.

"Mrs. Todhunter wants you to come right back to her, colonel," she announced. "She's short on men to help her, and she's awful busy. Wants you to come right away, sir."

Colonel Todhunter glanced whimsically at the messenger. "Ain't that just like a man's wife? She didn't want Judge Bolling when she saw him. Oh, no! It's me she wants. And I'll bet she's got the hardest job on the grounds picked out for me right now."

Then he turned to the amused girl. "Thank you, Miss Louise," he said ruefully. "Please tell Mrs. Todhunter I'll be there in two or three minutes."

Suddenly, but a little distance ahead, he saw Tom Strickland parting from Mary. They were a handsome couple, the colonel's daughter an exquisite type of the well born southern girl, her hair and eyes a rarely pure brown, her skin of almost baby fairness, a proud little mouth, a joyous bearing; the youth a tall and well built young country bred gentleman, his eyes a clear blue, his hair a sunburned yellow, his mouth and chin clean cut and firm. Colonel Todhunter approved heartily of both.

As Mary left her companion and went to join her mother, a second girl, with obvious intent, crossed Tom Strickland's path. She was of a different type, a plebeian beauty, black haired, with passionate eyes, full red lips, a suggestion of rich animal life in her movements.

"You ought to be ashamed of yourself, Tom Strickland!" she said in a low tone, a little break in her voice. "You let me drop like I was somethin' you despised just the minute you caught sight of Mary Todhunter. I wouldn't treat a dog that way, Tom."

There was something pitiful in the utter frankness of surrender with which the speaker's eyes confessed her liking for Tom Strickland. Colonel Todhunter knew her well. She was the granddaughter of old Rafe Doggett, who had been a private soldier in a Confederate regiment during the civil war. The family belonged to the class once known as "poor whites," but old Doggett had been a good soldier, and Lottie-May, his granddaughter, owed her membership in the Daughters of the Confederacy to the esteem in which he was held.

This was even more than a concession to inferior caste. The darkly beautiful country girl whom old Rafe Doggett's son had married in another state had gone away from home one day, leaving her baby daughter behind, and never returned. A picturesquely handsome "Indian herb doctor," who had been peddling his wares in Nineveh for some days and was known to have paid bold attentions to her, disappeared at the same time. Lottie-May Doggett, inheriting the same vital beauty of soft roundness, red lips and sensuous black eyes, had grown up in Nineveh, defiant, under the shadow of her mother's shame.

Tom Strickland stared at the girl, plainly surprised. "Why, Lottie-May," he exclaimed; "I won't let you think such a thing! I only hurried to say 'Howdy' to Miss Mary because she had just got here. Anyway"—and here he smiled teasingly—"I could see with one eye that Stam Tucker was just wild to have a talk with you."

POLICE GETTING READY FOR GAME

Meeting of the Baseball Squad to Talk Over Matters

A meeting of the Quincy Police ball team will take place Sunday afternoon at the station. Last season the team made a good showing in the Massachusetts Police League.

One of the most important questions to be solved is whether or not the players will carry the new pulmotor with them so that the oxygen sylinder can be immediately connected if a man caves in while circling the bases on a home run. The opposition will claim that since the players will make no home runs the pulmotor should not be carried. Those in favor are gifted with eye sight which sees averages around the 500 mark, with one home run a game.

To date none of the men have consented to act as chairman of the meeting but Officer Dineen will probably be selected because his 6 ft. 4 in. will permit him to tower above any strained situations.

BOSTON THEATRE.

As those who have gone for fresh scenes and adventure to a life in the far west, have been fascinated by the outdoor life of perpetual and hazardous excitement amid wild surroundings, so all Boston has been held almost spell bound with a strange fascination at the thrilling scenes of Western life brought to their door so to speak, in the graphic pictures presented in Klaw and Erlanger's massive production of "The Round Up." It is the vivid reproduction of scenes in which Indians, Cowboys, Ranchmen, Cavalrymen, venturesome western men and women and dozens of bronchos are concerned, which so many have read about but which so few have actually seen that has made "The Round Up" so obsorbingly interesting to the vast city public and to crowds from many neighboring towns, and an object of wonderment in the marvelous scenic presentation of the desert plains and canyon and the vivid and almost terrifying realism of its famous battle scene. The ringing cheers of the vast audiences at this scene is a tribute to the masterly stagecraft of this stupendous spectacle. "The Round Up" is one of the greatest successes ever known in Boston. Over 260,000 persons have already witnessed it and there is no abatement in the heavy demand for seats in advance. No one should miss the few remaining opportunities of seeing this great play. For those living at a distance from Boston, special attention is paid to mail orders containing cash or money order, and addressed, stamped envelope, which are promptly filled. Regular matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

THREATS BEING CARRIED OUT

Militants' Revenge For Imprisonment of Mrs. Pankhurst

RAILROAD STATION WRECKED

Bomb Is Also Placed In Carriage of Train—Plans to Have Fire Follow Explosion Fail—Olive Hockin Sent to Jail—Two "Campaigners" Placed Under Arrest

London, April 5.—The suffragettes started in with the reign of anarchy which they promised when Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst was sentenced to serve three years in Holloway jail for the destruction of Chancellor George's home by blowing up a railroad station at Oxted in Surrey.

At Stockport they blew up a train on the London and Northwestern railway. The engine driver was seriously injured. At both points the militants had planned for fire to follow the explosion.

At Oxted the charge of powder laid for a train was so heavy that it blew away a tin of petroleum intended as a torch without igniting it. At Stockport it was found that resin and oil had been smeared on the coaches of the train.

A loaded pistol was found in the ruins of the Oxted station. An alarm clock similar to those used by dynamiters in America was also found in the wreckage. The damaged train was occupied only by employes. It contained seventeen cars, and the bimb went off in a third class carriage in the rear.

The followers of Mrs. Pankhurst declare they have only begun; that they will go right to King George to get the right to vote, and extraordinary precautions are being made to guard the king and all high officials. Scotland Yard detectives are on the watch everywhere to protect them.

Olive Hockin, an artist and confidante of Mrs. Pankhurst, in whose studio a suffragette arsenal was found, was arraigned in Old Bailey court on a charge of conspiring to destroy government property. Miss Hockin was defiant and embittered by the fate of her leader.

Miss Hockin was found guilty and was given four months. Part of the court costs were also put upon her.

At Mitcham, a suburb of this city, policemen arrested two suffragettes named Phyllis Brady and Millicent Dean, both of whom have been up on charges before. The women were carrying bags which, upon being opened at the police station, were found to contain candles, petroleum, time fuses, oakum and other implements usually employed by those contemplating arson. There were a number of sheets of paper also, containing the inscription: "Beware of how you treat Mrs. Pankhurst."

One of the militant leaders, in announcing the intentions of the suffragettes, went so far as to say that even human lives would no longer be respected. In London, Glasgow and other places throughout the country enthusiastic meetings are being held, and every mention of Mrs. Pankhurst brings forth loud cheers.

Those who are to carry on the fight during the leader's incarceration, which nobody believes will be for long, breathed defiance to the government and promised that the fight would be waged more furiously than ever.

EIGHTEEN FIREMEN DROPPED AS CALL MEN FROM DEPARTMENT

Most of Them Had Paid Many Fines For Failure to Attend Fires

Five Permanent New Men Assigned to Different Fire Houses

The five permanent firemen appointed by Mayor Stone Saturday have been assigned and they reported for duty at their several stations this morning as follows:—

Edward H. Barry to the Quincy Point station.

Henry M. Hughes to the Wollaston station.

John F. Desmond to the Central station.

John L. O'Neil and Richard H. Joyce to the West Quincy station.

Under the order creating the last three of the five new permanent men, the call force was reduced by eighteen men. This morning the Mayor ordered the following men dropped from the call force:

Hose 4, Quincy Point, Herbert F. Tucker.

Combination No. 2, Atlantic, Walter P. Hill, Thomas Kerrigan, Frank Call.

Hook and Ladder No. 3, West Quincy, James Sullivan, Edward J. B. Desmond, James Cregan.

Hose No. 3, West Quincy, Edward Drohan.

Hose No. 2, Wollaston, A. Ryan.

In addition to those dropped the following were taken from the roll, Maurice I. Gatcomb, Hose No. 4, Henry M. Hughes Hook and Ladder 3 promoted to permanent force, Richard Joyce, Hose 3, West Quincy promoted to permanent force, John F. Desmond, Combination 1, Central station promoted to permanent force, and John Murphy, Hook and Ladder 1, Central station, died.

The call men dropped were those who had the most fines for not answering alarms, except in the case of Charles E. Hayden of Hook and Ladder 2, at Wollaston who now resides at Adams Shore, three miles from his station. These provide for the eighteen call men to be dropped in accordance with the recent order of the Council.

In connection with the additional permanent men and the reducing of the call force, is another matter of interest to the department. That is all of the boxes in the Quincy Point district have been changed so that they are now in what is known as the group system. By this grouping all the boxes beginning with the number 7 are all in the same general direction so that in case of an alarm they are much easier located. The new arrangement of these boxes is now as follows.

7 Corner Washington and Union.
272 Corner Farnum and Edison streets.
72 Corner Washington and River streets.
73 Corner Washington and Pray streets.
74 Corner Washington and South streets.

CLAN McGREGOR FIRST PRIZE

For a Second Year Led the Scottish Clan Bowling League

The award of the bowling prizes of the Order of Scottish Clans bowling league took place at the Revere House Saturday evening, following a banquet. About 150 members attended.

The championship of the league was awarded to the team representing Clan McGregor of this city. This is the second season the local boys have annexed the title and if they repeat the performance next season will become the permanent holders of a valuable trophy.

President Alexander Simpson acted as toastmaster and awarded 42 prizes The prize for the highest individual average went to James Stuart of Clan MacPhail of Wakefield.

EXCELLENT PROGRAM.

Through a misunderstanding on the part of the committee in charge of the benefit entertainment concert they have announced that the Wollaston Glee club would sing. It was voted by the club to sing at a later date if the event should take place at that time, but owing to engagements of many members April 9 they were unable to sing on that evening. Unfortunately the committee did not understand this condition and stated they would sing. An excellent program, however, is assured all who attend this benefit in aid of the flood sufferers.

S. S. CONFERENCE A BIG EVENT

OFFICERS ELECTED

The conference for Sunday school boys of Quincy ended Sunday afternoon with a mass meeting in Bethany chapel with an attendance of 150 boys. The speaker at this closing meeting was Lester H. Clee, former Boys Work director in the local Association and he was accorded a royal reception by the boys with whom he was so closely associated while in Quincy. The newly elected President of the Quincy Sunday school Boys Association, William Talbot of the Wollaston Baptist presided at the session and Alton Avery of Bethany church led the singing. Mr. Clee had for the subject of his address "Dare to Do It." He told stories of lives in which great decisions had been made and how it effected the course of their whole lives. With his forceful, vivid, manner of speech, Mr. Clee held his audience from start to finish and at the conclusion of the address, the boys were given an opportunity to make decisions of their own along the line of better living.

The conference as a whole was a great success and considerable credit is due to the boys who had charge of it. At the opening meeting Saturday afternoon, I. T. Gumb, formerly Assistant Secretary in Quincy Y. M. C. A. spoke on the subject "What's the Use." Following this meeting was a banquet served by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. Each delegation had a table of its own and about sixty boys participated in the enjoyment of the excellent banquet. The ladies in charge were: Mrs. E. I. Beal, Mrs. A. H. Gilson, Mrs. Carroll Bates, Mrs. David H. Goodspeed, Mrs. J. F. Roache, Mrs. Waterman and Miss Beal.

E. P. Conlon of Hyde Park was toastmaster at the after-dinner exercises. The following were introduced R. D. Chase, representing Bethany church, Rev. T. W. Davison, representing the Ministers, J. A. Sedgwick, representing the Sunday schools, Mayor Stone, representing the City. All gave their greetings to the boys and told of their interest in the boy life and boy-welfare in the city. The mayor was introduced by the toastmaster as the man who was on to his job after the sun went down.

Frederick Blanchard of Sherborn read a report of the State conference for Y. M. C. A. Boys held at Pittsfield, Mass., over Washington's birthday.

The principal speaker of the evening was J. B. Withee of Lawrence who gave one of the finest addresses ever heard by a group of boys in Quincy. He told of some boys and young men who had made the most of themselves. His topic was "Can It Be Done" and before the completion of his address there was not a boy in the room who did not believe that it could be done if he made up his mind to do it. It referred to becoming a Man in the best sense of the word. His stories of the lives of Timmie Mahoney and of Tom Walker and the boy in the Maine State prison will remain long in the minds of the boys who were there. Mr. Withee spoke with so much energy and showed himself to be so much of a personification of energy that it is little wonder the boys found him irresistable.

In order to perpetuate the conference idea and to follow up the good results oft his conference, officers were elected to unite with an advisory board in planning for other inter-Sunday school meetings. The officers are as follows: President—William Talbot of Wollaston Baptist; Vice President—Orestes Cleveland of Christ Church; Secretary-Treasurer, Earl Bates of Bethany Congregational. The Advisory committee: J. A. Sedgwick of Wollaston Methodist, C. E. Goodspeed of Wollaston Baptist, A. T. Stewart of Hall Place Methodist, Charles Sherburne of Washington St. Congregational, M. P. Hayward of Bethany church, Rev. B. A. Willmott. The next conference will probably be held in October and the committee and officers are to meet at the Y. M. C. A. on Wednesday evening, April 16 to preliminary plans for it.

Discovery Causes Rapid Jump in the Value of the Land Thereabouts

Peculiar Finely Colored Product Arouses Much Interest

A beautifuly colored granite has been discovered in Cohasset. None has ever been found in the town before and an analysis showed the stock to be valuable.

The find was due to Paul Gunella of South Quincy whose knowledge of granite is extensive. Mr. Gunella is the New England representative of Tiffany Studios of New York and immediately secured the land for them.

A few years ago a wood lot marked the spot where the granite lay concealed and $1000 was considered a good price for the property. Today there is no knowing the value of the hidden treasure.

Expert tests show that it stands all the requirements of the best granite on the market and it glows with color like precious stones. In the sun light the lusture reflects green and pink, cream and grown, black and white.

Although but few stones have been brought to the surface the richness of the deposit led B. F. Keith, the vaudeville magnate, to order a tomb from it to be built on the family lot in Holyhood cemetery. TheS t. Louis Cathedral will use the product in its interior and other churches and memorials will be constructed of it.

Beechwood, Cohasset, about two miles from the Beachwood station is the location of the deposit. It was formerly owned by Charles Hackett and adjoined his farm. He sold the heavily wooded land to Atwood Brothers of Brockton, box manufacturers, who wanted the timber. Gunella purchased from them for three times what they paid for it.

The discovery was made in a curious manner. While making a business call on an Italian he noticed slabs of fine granite steps. Learning that more of that speciman of granite was nearby he investigated and purchased the property soon after.

Borings have not shown how deep the ledge is but several large rocks have been removed. The entire woods is thought to border upon a ledge of valuable granite and preparations are being made to install machinery for quarrying purposes.

Professor Charles H. Warren of Technology, who analyzed the stone,

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

It took a long time for the Sagadahocers to learn that their sheriff did not enforce the liquor law and probably other counties will be getting into line now on the same moral and uplift plan. It was about time the sheriff had resigned anyway.

Coal goes down and ice goes up. It was ever thus.

That promised reduction in the price of ice to Boston consumers was more of a paper dream than a reality judging by the advance price list in Dorchester and Mattapan.

A New York truck driver sung himself out of jail after being imprisoned for violating the traffic regulations and nothing is said of his fluent profanity. It was not as sweet toned as his song was to the judge.

Suffragettes violate the law in London, are imprisoned, then go on hunger strikes and are released to save their lives. Are their lives worthy of more consideration than the lives of the innocent people who may be murdered by their bomb throwing, rail obstructing and incendiary proceedings?

There are times when it seems almost too bad that a few of the old time punishments were not retained and brought up to date.

Now if New Jersey would only create a law against the skeeter as effective as the hat pin law, there would be more cause for rejoicing.

Will it be silence or number please when calling tomorrow?

Carnegie could not pay his taxes, but he is still giving away millions.

SHOULD MEET THE SITUATION.

There is a growing belief that the treatment of the Mississippi river and its great tributaries, by slipping it into the Rivers and Harbors committee, spending money each year on piece meal measures, which have proven ineffective, should be changed and this department should be handed out to a special commission. In other words it should be divorced from the River and Harbors committee. There seems to be some reason in this view of the situation and there is much that meets approval in the bulletin issued by J. Hampton Moore, president of the Atlantic Deeper Waters Association.

Nature cannot always be harnessed and it is impossible to plan so that there will be nothing in the way of accidents resulting in loss of life and property, but much can be done to lessen the toll which is annually paid to the Mississippi river if the matter was handled in a business manner. A system of irrigation, levee building and other means would speedily reduce the death rate and lighten the financial burden which are annually claimed. The Panama canal was a great undertaking and lots of money was spent to make it a success, but while the millions are being poured into the Panama to aid the world's commerce, money is frittered away on the Mississippi because there is not enough at any one time to accomplish that which is most desired and that is safety as far as human ingenuity can devise and construction can accomplish.

AN INDUCEMENT.

New Jersey has passed an anti-hat pin law, which just now is claiming some attention. The fine is of the elastic type, from $5 to $20. But the real edge to the law is given by a provision which permits the complainant to secure half the fine. This offers an inducement for the enforcement of this law which is not permissible in other offenses. Why it should be attached to this edict is hardly debatable, but the fact that it is there leaves room for speculation. It forms the basis for easy money getting for some people who may be inclined that way. That the new law will be more strictly enforced than many others is a foregone conclusion, with the bait of half the fine held tantalizingly to the would be informer. It will not only mean the enforcement of the law, but a more strict adherence to its provisions, because the women realizing that they are at the mercy of any sharper looking for a little coin, if they violate the law will take greater measures to keep within its bounds. There may have been a whole lot of wisdom bottled up in that section of the new law, which meant not only its enforcement but living up to better than most laws. While it is hardly a provision here in Massachusetts which would be favored, yet it has its good features and the main one is a higher respect for the law and greater desire to live within its provisions when such a course is not only right, but economical as well.

THOSE TOWN MEETINGS.

The Boston City Council is engaged in what is termed a course of town meetings. The Council with the mayor visits different sections of the city and listens to the complaints or suggestions of the citizens. Of course they can never reach the plane of the old fashioned town meetings but they have many of the elements. It is doubtful if they are productive of much good, other than to afford some politicians, successful or otherwise, an opportunity to air their views, a few would be orators a chance to spout and practice and the average scolder or fault finder of the district his occasion to relieve his mind of some things that other voters care little about. Still it is a harmless amusement and probably the members of the City Council gain enough recreation to pay them for the time used.

ELLIS BILL ENDORSED.

Dr. L. Emmet Holt of New York, one of the leading specialists of the world on the diseases of children, endorsing the Ellis Clean Milk Bill says:

"I have read the Ellis Clean Milk Bill. It seems to me to cover the important points with reference to a clean milk supply in an admirable manner. The enactment of such a law and its enforcement will I believe be of the greatest advantage to the State of Massachusetts and will result in an appreciable reduction of the death rate, especially among young children. I trust that it may become a law."

RICH GRANITE DEPOSITS

reported:

"This stone is of light color, with a prevailing pinkish tone, and of medium coarse grain. Its coloring is remarkable. The gray of the quartz, pink, white, yellowish green of the feldspar and black of the chlorite, afford a delicate mottling which is not only pleasing but very different from the usual run of granite."

WATERWAYS ASSOCIATION

President Expresses Views on Handling Floods

Congressman J. Hampton Moore, president of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association, in a bulletin issued on middle west floods says among other things:

"Nature cannot always be harnessed by man. Buildings will topple and dams will break in spite of human ingenuity, but that the Federal Government and the various States might have been better prepared to save life and property as a result of the recent floods resulting from the heavy rainfall in the Middle West, is evident to every student of the Waterway problem. It is wholly within the power of the Federal Government and of the States, to build adequate waterways for the carriage of the natural or even the abnormal flow of water, and to erect levees or other controlling works, and it is highly probable the recent disaster in Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and other States along the Mississippi, the Ohio and their tributaries, will tend to increase the public and legislative interest in the whole Waterways problem.

"For many years Federal Government has been spending not lavishly upon merit, but enormously with regard to the total appropriations, for the piecemeal improvement of the Mississippi River and its two great tributaries, the Ohio and the Missouri.

"There is a growing belief in Congress and out of it, that the Mississippi River should be divorced from the jurisdiction of the Rivers and Harbors committee, in order that a special bureau or commission like that of the Mississippi River commission, should take over the problem of flood prevention and leave the Rivers and Harbors committee free to develop commerce and navigation both inland and along the Coast, without each year, being sacrificed upon the altar of reclamation and flood prevention."

Only Relative in this City an Aunt Mrs. Gill

Capt. McKay of the police department received a telegram from the secretary of the Granite Cutters Union at Bethel, Vt., this morning announcing the death at that place Sunday of Charles Dolan of Quincy and asking him to notify relatives. GIRL HAD WATCH FOR SAFE KEEPING

LOCKED UP FOR DRUNK

Sunday afternoon a Finn who gave his name as Charles Erickson came to the police station and reported that his $140 gold watch had been stolen from him in a house at 1 Pleasant street where there was a party at which were a number of country men and women. Erickson was pretty well under the influence of liquor at the time and had rather too much to say so that he was locked up for drunkenness. Later it was found by Capt. McKay that Erickson's sweetheart Katherine Ijas was among the party at the Pleasant street house and that she had loaned her lover something like $70 in money and she had taken the watch. Capt. McKay found that she had given the watch to another girl named Mary Hill from whom the watch was recovered. The Ijas girl claims that she did not steal the watch but realizing that her lover was under the influence of liquor had taken it for safe keeping.

In court this morning Erickson was fined $3 on account of costs for drunkenness. When he came out the Ijas girl was waiting to receive him. While waiting she said that he would pay her money back all right and that she had taken the watch for safe keeping.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS

WOLLASTON METHODIST.

"The True Friend" was the subject of the sermon preached by Rev. Wesley Wiggin, the pastor, Sunday. He said in part: "Friendship is affection growing out of good will. The friendship of Jonathan and David illustrate this thought. Their hearts were knit together. Their affection one for the other was most tender. Jonathan loved David as his own soul. 'A friend in need is a friend indeed.' If we have some personal friend who is distinguished we like to think of them as our friend and we take pride in introducing them to other friends. But this may not be possible for all. But all may have Jesus as a personal friend. Each may say, 'This is my friend.'

"Christ is a friend by virtue of his love. 'God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son that whosoever believeth in him should not perish but have eternal life.' This was the love of the Father to mankind. Christ says 'I lay down my life that I might take it again.' Calvary reminds us of the price of Christ's love to us. He died not for friend alone but for his bitterest enemies and he had not a few.

"We have our select friends; some in whom we confide; we prize their friendship; we esteem it a great pleasure to be in their company; we trust them; we like at times to open our hearts and minds to them; we talk over lifes plans; we learn to love them. But often they betray our confidence; they turn against us for the most trivial reasons. At first they are indifferent and then utter separation follows. But Christ's friendship is true, firm, genuine, unchangeable toward both friends and foe. They could ill treat Him, spit upon him, condemn him to death, forsake him, reject him, turn against him, ignore him, nevertheless, in the tender sweet spirit of love that rejoices not in iniquity but in truth, he prays 'Father forgive them for they know not what they do.' And in the same spirit he says 'He that cometh to me I will in no wise cast out.' His is an eternal love that is the same, yesterday, today and forever.

"Christ is our true friend by virtue of his power. 'All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth.'

"'I have power to lay down my life and I have power to take it again.' To as many as received him to them gave he power to become the sons of God that is he gave them the right to become the sons of God. To the paralytic he could say 'Rise up and walk' and at once he went forth healed; to the man with the withered hand 'Stretch forth thine hand' and immediately it was made whole; to the blind man 'Go wash' and he washed and sight was restored. Two sisters came to him to intercede for their brother who was dead, and Jesus said 'Come forth' and he that was dead came forth with his grave clothes upon him. A few weeks ago all nature was held in the cold embrace of winter but today at the touch of the hand of the unseen One we see indications of life all about us in the swelling of the bud, in the coming of the leaf and soon we shall see it in a more manifest way in the unfolding of the bud into the full grown rose, in the waving of the grass, in the gerination of the seed in the growth of vegetation, in the maturing of the harvest.

"We listen to the bird as it sings its morning song; we watch the tiny bud as it unfolds into the beautiful rose; we observe man as he goes forth to his daily task, strong, robust, full of life and energy. Here is life in three different aspects, but the power that gave life to the bird, the plant and to man comes from Him in His all pawer, 'for all power belongeth unto God.'

"Christ is our true friend by virtue of his wisdom. At twelve years of age we find him in the temple propounding questions that astonish the learned doctors of the law and men well versed in philosophy. Such was the readiness of speech, his clear understanding of truth, his keen sense of wisdom that it was said of Him, 'How knoweth this man letters having never learned.' So wise that he could adjust himself to the humblest of the poor, so profound that he could move at ease among the most refined and learned.

"Christ is our true friend by virtue of his riches. 'Though he was rich, yet for our sakes be became poor, that we through his poverty might become rich.' He was rich in the quality of his manhood, in the strength of his character, in the spirit of love that possessed his whole life, in the vision of his posibilites that led him onward until they became realities, in the fullness of his divine graces to satisfy the needs of men. His is the true riches that endure through time and eternity.

"By virtue of his truth Christ is our friend. Born in an age of corruption and loose morals, entering upon his public career in a time of unrest and dissatisfaction, of unbelief and sinful tendencies, even when they were trying to accuse him on false testimony in order that they might put him to death he could say 'I am the truth.' By the force of his character the purity of his life, the tenderness of his love, the sweetness of his spirit, the sincereity of his purpose, the unselfishness of his service given for good of mankind, the loftiness of his ideal, to always please his Heavenly Father, he demonstrated the truth of this statement proving himself a friend to his foes as well as to those who were his followers.

"His friendship is to be prized. He is worthy of the best we have. He should be loved and obeyed and followed because he is the best friend of all."

The choir with Mrs. F. G. Bennett as organist and Miss Marguerite Louise Holbrook as soloist rendered efficient service in theh ymns, and anthem and solos sung. J.A.Sedgwick superintendent, had charge of the Sunday school which made a good record for the day. Miss Gladys Hirtle led the Junior League service and Walter Starbird conducted the Epworth League devotional at 6.00 o'clock. At 7.00 o'clock the pastor spoke on "Confidence in God."

Tuesday evening at 7.30 o'clock there will be a Great Epworth League Rally of the New England Annual Conference, Peoples Temple, Boston. A selected chorus of 60 voices will render an excellent musical program. The address of welcome will be given by Rev. A. H. Nazarian of the Temple. Rev. Wilbur F. Sheridan, D. D. General Secretary of the Epworth League of the Methodist Episcopal Church, will deliver the address of the evening. It is hoped that all of our Leaguers will go and take their banner. He is worth hearing. Wednesday at 10.00 A. M. The New England Annual Conference will begin at People's Temple. Bishop John W. Hamilton, D. D., presiding.

At 8 o'clock Wednesday evening Prof. Henry T. Bailey will give the fourth lecture in the course at the Methodist church, subject, "Refurnishing the Best Room." All who heard Mr. Bailey at the dedication of the Wollaston New school building will want to hear him again. He is one of the ablest and most interesting lecturers of the state.

Wednesday at 10.00 A. M. the quarterly meeting of the New England Branch of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society will be held at St. Mark's Brookline. Sessions at 10.00 A. M. and 2.00 P. M.

Thursday at 7.45 the midweek prayer service will be held at the close of which the Sunday school board will meet. There will be services at the church next Sunday as usual.

WOLLASTON CONGREGATIONAL.

A large congregation completely filled the Wollaston Congregational church, and listened to an inspiring service. The music was especially good, and mention is made of one number in particular, "Help me, man of God," from Elijah, rendered most acceptably by Miss Hardy and Mr. Everett.

Dr. Sneath preached from the text John 21:17, "An Experience in the Forty Days." During the forty days between the resurrection and ascension, one of the appearances of Jesus was to the disciples in the morning following a night of unsuccessful fishing. After making himself known to them he charged Peter to feed his sheep, but before doing so asked him three time "Lovest thou me." If we do the present duty well it will open the way to the next duty? Peter was put to a severe test on that morning. He was put to a test three times. If the test came to us how would we stand it?

Peter was told that his was to be a life of service which would end with a martyr's death in his old age in Rome. He asked if his friend John could go with him, but Jesus had other work for John, and Peter had to go without his friend. Primarily Christianity is a personal matter, and the fundamental test is one of love to Christ. We love him because he first loved us. Turn this around, and because he first loved us, do we love him as we should. He asks of you and me a supreme love. He says to Simon "Lovest thou me more than these?" A perfectly legitimate question, for Jesus wants more love than we give our mortal friends. He does not ask us to forsake, or not love father, mother, brother or sister, but we are to love him more than these.

He seeks a confession of our love, for that which is unexpressed dies. Our love is going to die if we never confess. Our one reason for so many divorces is because of the lack of love and expression of it between husband and wife. The wonderful love in the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Browning was beautifully brought out as expressing the wonderful home life possible to an ideal devotion and love.

Love also will manifest itself in service and sacrifice. One can gauge his love by the service and sacrifice which it prompts him to make. Jesus calls today lovest thou me. If so confess it. If so go out in service and help your fellow men, and reveal your love for me in love to others.

PLAN WAR ON "SHARKS"

Heads of Big Concerns In Chicago to Establish Loan Agency

Chicago, April 7.—Sixty heads of big industrial enterprises employing an aggregate of 100,000 persons have subscribed funds whereby they expect to drive local loan "sharks" out of business. The scheme is the simple one of establishing a loan agency of their own and for this purpose $50,000 has been paid in.

The beginning of operations awaits only the passage by the legislature of an enabling act which, among other provisions, will provide a board of directors, two of whom shall be appointed respectively by the governor and by the mayor, and fixes 3 percent a month as the legal rate of interest on unsecured loans.

WELL, PEOPLE!

We are glad you like us!

We thought you would!

Tell you why. We knew the patrons of were as quick as those of any other theatre to recognize a good thing.

When one offers the people of Quincy 20 ounces of sugar for a pound, it does not require a club to make them understand it.

One has to study conditions of a new field. He must learn from his experience what best pleases his patrons. Thus it may require a few weeks for us to get real well acquainted—in other words to know your likes and dislikes.

We are here to amuse you, and we shall do so in a clean wholesome manner.

You are not unreasonable. You do not expect a Dolar Show for 10 cents. What you want is as good a as can be had in New England. We shall positively do this for you, and allow you to be the judges. It is cutting prices quite a little to deliver such goods as we have to offer the first half of next week at a 10-cent admission. We refer you to our bills. If you are up in this line we have said enough.

A few Reserved Seats—only 50 in number,— are offered only on Advance Sale. They must be occupied by 8 P. M. or will be sold as 10 cent seats after that hour. This is done only to accommodate any one who desires to come in up to 8 o'clock and be assured a good seat.

Try and be with us at our First Show which starts promptly at 6.30. You will then reach home for a full night's rest.

You must have this amusement. Its rest, just thes ame as sleep. It stimulates just like a beef steak.

MOVEMENT FOR IMPROVEMENTS

Atlantic Association Suggest Things to Directors

The Atlantic Improvement Association, had a lively and interesting time at their regular monthly meeting last Friday evening. Several necessary improvements were suggested, and erferred to the directors to see that committees would be nominated to make it their special business to look up what could be done and report to the association. The association has an amendment for their by-laws to reduce the annual dues and then try to get every citizen to become a member of the association.

MAYOR SIGNED BUDGET ORDER

Officials Decided it was Within the Limit

EVEN WITH $5,000 ADDED

The much mooted question of the Mayor's signing the annual appropriation order as passed by the City Council last Monday night has been settled by the Mayor signing the document. The Mayor was in conference Saturday night with some of the City officials after which he decided to sign. The only question in the Mayor's mind was if the total amount did not exceed the amount which the city could legally appropriate under the twelve dollar limit, plus certain receipts. There was some doubt in his mind, if the additional $5000 tacked onto the appropriation for highways did not bring the amount too large. It was figured out that although the total amount was larger than the Mayor desired it was within the limit and it was therefore signed.

REVERE CHURCH TAKES BOYNTON

Former Member Park and Downs Church Now Suing Pastor

COUNCIL GRANTED LETTER

Chester A. Boynton, whose suit against Rev. William B. Ayers of the Park and Downs Congregational Church of Wollaston for $25,000 for alleged alienation of his wife's affections, will be called Tuesday in the Superior Court in Boston, and who immediately after his trouble with the pastor was refused a letter of dismissal from the Park and Downs Church in order that he might join the First Congregational Church of Revere, was admitted to membership in the Revere church Sunday,

Mr. Boynton was granted a letter of recommendation to the Revere church by an ex parte council, whose recommendation was accepted by the Wollaston church last Thursday evening. The letter states:

"That the Park and Downs Congregational Church on July on July 5, 1912, charged Mr. Chester A. Boynton with having broken faith with the standing committee of that church and that the foregoing charge was not substantiated.

"That on Feb. 2, 1913, Mr. Boynton was unjustly and illegally excommunicated by the Park and Downs Congregational Church without any opportunity to present a defense or to have a hearing.

"We recommend him to your fellowship."

SNOW AND RAIN APRIL VARIETY

Of Weather Served Out Within the Past Few Hours

CHANGES A PLENTY

It is rather unusual to have a snow storm in April yet Quincy in common with other communities in Massachusetts had a genuine snow storm Sunday afternoon and during Sunday night and another this morning. It was a little after 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon when the sky began to darken and it looked as though a rain storm was brewing. The themometer dropped and in the vicinity of 3 o'clock a severe hail storm commenced which quickly turned into snow and for a time the snow fell thick and fast. The storm was soon over however and the sun coming out carried away what little snow that had fallen. Early in the evening however there was another snow storm that seemed to turn into rain.

Early this morning it began to snow again in earnest and at sun rise an old fashioned snow storm was in progress. An inch or more of snow must have fallen before 8 o'clock when the sky cleared again and a little later the sun came out and made havoc of the snow, or more properly speaking made slush of what snow had fallen.

GREAT STRIKE IS THREATENED

Telephone Operators May Tie Up Business at Boston

BALLOTING IS IN PROGRESS

Considered Almost Certain to Be In Favor of Walkout—Men Employes of Company Will Join Them—Indorsed by Labor Unions—Strikebreakers Are Being Hired

Boston, April 7.—Boston seems about to be plunged into the greatest and most disastrous telephone strike in the country's history.

Only the acceptance of the telephone operators' demands today will prevent them from walking out of the exchanges tomorrow.

There is hardly a chance that the company will yield. Its agents are straining every nerve to gather strikebreakers.

The operators are voting on the strike today. It is a foregone conclusion that the vote will be unanimous for a walkout.

The strike signal that will send practically every girl from her switchboard in two minutes has been arranged.

The city faces the question: Are Boston's business interests strong enough to avert the crisis? Can they prevent the paralysis of the great throbbing system of New England's metropolis?

No city of Boston's size has ever been faced with such a situation. The consequence of the strike to business will be almost unbelievable. It will take the city months to recuperate. The citizens will face a thousand dangers and discomforts.

High officials of the union declare that a strike can no longer be averted. They claim they will be able to tie up the metropolitan district telephone system.

Every union of men in the service of the telephone company was yesterday pledged to stand by the girls. It is said practically every present employe of the company will go out. Fears that violence will follow the outbreak of the strike are expressed.

The company is preparing desperately for a fight. Its agents yesterday scoured Greater Boston in taxicabs calling upon all former employes of the company to return to its service.

Many who accepted were told to report today, others to hold themselves in readiness to come when called. Hundreds of letters were sent out urging old operators to resume their duties with the company at once.

These preparations of the company seem to remove the last chance of compromise. No further effort to come to terms will be made by the unions. The girls are eager to come to a trial of strength. They feel certain they will win.

International Vice President Bugnizet of the A. F. of L. is leading the union forces. "A strike will come," he said. "We are ready and we will win."

The Boston Central Labor union yesterday, without a dissenting vote, indorsed the position of the union, pledging its full support to the cause, and ordered its executive board to throw the full power of organized labor for the strikers if a strike is ordered.

The strike vote began at the union's headquarters this morning. Immediately after the vote is counted the executive committee of the union will meet and set the time for the strike.

The strike will be called by a light flashed in the main exchange. The operators there will give the word over a thousand wires, and within two minutes every switchboard will be abandoned. This will probably happen tomorrow morning. It is likely Boston will get its first news of the strike when its telephones stop working.

CENTURY-OLD PRECEDENT

Will Be Broken by Wilson by Reading Message to Congress

Washington, April 7.—Setting aside precedents of more than a century, President Wilson will appear in the halls of congress tomorrow to deliver his first legislative message in person. This decision of the president evoked much comment among the congressional leaders. He will be the first President of the United States to appear officially before either branch of congress in deliberative session since John Adams.

The president believes he can get in closer touch with the members of congress by personally expressing his views to them. In addition to his official visits to the floor of the house, which will become a matter of White House policy, the president will take advantage of these visits to hold conferences with the party leaders in congress.

Both houses of the Sixty-third congress will get down to business in extraordinary session today, confronted by the task of revising the tariff.

ADAMS A COUNTERFEITER

Paroled Convict, Son of Minister, Must Return to Prison

Seattle, Wash., April 7.—George E. Adams, the former cashier of the Seattle assay office, who was paroled after serving half of his sentence imposed for having stolen $200,000 from Alaska and Yukon miners, was convicted of conspiracy to counterfeit United States money.

John G. Webber, aged 70, who was a fellow prisoner with Adams at McNeil's island, was tried jointly with Adams, and was also convicted. The two men were captured in a cabin near Kent, where they had assembled a crude counterfeiting plant.

The conviction of Adams carries with it his return to McNeil's island to serve the unfinished portion of his previous ten-year sentence as well as the new term.

Adams, who is 38 years old, is the son of a Massachusetts clergyman and a member of a family that gave two presidents to the United States.

IN STATE OF COMA FOR EIGHTY HOURS

Nitroglycerin Arouses Boy After Electricity Fails

Lynn, Mass., April 7.—Ten seconds after 1-50th of a grain of nitroglycerin had been injected into the body of 6-year-old Francis St. Croix, who had been in a cataleptic coma for eighty hours, the muscular tension of the body relaxed and within a few moments the boy, fully conscious, sat up in his bed and pleaded with his mother to give him some food.

Dr. Burns, who had previously applied an electric current in the hope of arousing the boy, decided that nitroglycerin might prove more effective than electricity, and he was overjoyed at the success of his experiment.

The boy is a healthy youngster, and while a recurrence of the coma is feared by Burns, the boy will be kept under close observation.

BOMB IN A DOORWAY

Partially Wrecks Stores and Injures Three Men at Bridgeport

Bridgeport, Conn., April 7.—Three persons were injured, one perhaps fatally, by the explosion of a bomb in the doorway of Jacob Kelinberger, a Water street clothier, last night.

Warren Lewis, who was walking with two companions, saw a fuse burning in what appeared to be a giant firecracker. He stopped to investigate and as he did so there was an explosion that knocked him to the ground and set his clothing afire. He is in a serious condition. His two companions were blown from their feet and their clothing torn to shreds.

Several stores were partially wrecked and windows for a block around were broken. The police have found no clues.

BEING FORCIBLY FED

Mrs. Pankhurst Carrying Out Her Hunger Strike Threat

London, April 7.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, who is on hunger strike in Holloway jail, has been forcibly fed, according to The Express, and is in a state of collapse. She refused food and resisted all efforts to feed her.

Rioting at the suffragist meeting in Hyde Park, which has become a regular Sunday afternoon diversion, was repeated yesterday. The crowd, which numbered 15,000, was distinctly hostile, and only the big force of police prevented the rioters from handling the women roughly.

FRIEDMANN INVITED TO RHODE ISLAND

Specialist Is Promised Free Rein In His Practice

Providence, April 7.—Governor Pothier telegraphed to Dr. Friedmann, the German tuberculosis specialist, asking him to come to this state. He is to be given free rein in his practice.

The governor's invitation was sent in response to a message received from Charles Hundt, secretary to the physician, saying that Friedmann would come if he were allowed to practice in this state.

Dr. Schwartz, secretary of the state board of health, says no obstacle will be put in Friedmann's path, and Dr. Harris of the state board has gone to New York, armed with a letter from Governor Pothier. Harris had noted the improvement in the condition of Sadie Berger, the Providence girl treated by the German specialist in New York.

BASKETBALL "IMMODEST"

Conclusion Reached by High School Faculty In an Ohio Town

Dennison, O., April 7.—The Uhrichville high school faculty has forbidden girl pupils to play basketball, declaring that it is immodest. There is much indignation among the young women.

In the order issued banning the game the faculty of the school declared it is not only immodest for girls to play basketball, but that constant participation tends toward improper modesty of those who play it in everyday life.

What constitutes the lack of modesty and decorum in the game the faculty does not say.

THE QUINCY DAILY LEDGER

Colonel TODHUNTER of Missouri

By RIPLEY D. SAUNDERS

Copyright, 1911, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company.

Lottie-May's eyes flashed. "Stam Tucker—shucks!" she cried scornfully. "I wouldn't wipe my feet on him, Tom, when you're around, and you know it. But I can tell you one thing"—and here a note of proud vanity sounded in her voice—"tryin' hard as he is to git Miss Mary Todhunter to marry him, just like you are, Stam Tucker loves me more in one minute than he will love her in his whole lifetime."

"Lottie-May," ejaculated Tom angrily, "you mustn't talk like that! You ought to be ashamed. You've got no right to couple Miss Mary Todhunter's name"—

"No, no, that's it!" interrupted the girl hotly. "I mustn't mention Mary Todhunter's name in the same breath with mine. It ain't right, you think! Well, I will—and I hate her! I hate her!"

"I didn't mean that, Lottie-May," protested Tom. "You know I didn't mean that"—

But the girl was gone. Hagar-like, she moved with a sort of outcast pride, her pretty head held high, her eyes flashing. In a moment she had disappeared in the crowd.

"Tom," said Colonel Todhunter, advancing, "you'd better be hurryin' to where Mrs. Todhunter is and make your peace for stealin' Mary away. You're in hot water, young man."

Tom Strickland flushed consciously. "Colonel, I reckon you heard what Lottie-May Doggett was saying to me?"

"I couldn't very well help it, Tom."

"Well, sir, you mustn't draw any wrong conclusions from what she said, Colonel Todhunter. Lottie-May's a good girl, so far as I know, and I've always felt sorry for her. But she's been brought up under a cloud, and it's made her sorter reckless and full of the devil. I don't believe she cares how black she paints herself, and I think too much of her to take her at her word about knowing that Stam Tucker loves her and makes love to her without thinking of marrying her. That's just her wild talk, sir."

"She's certainly grown up to be a mighty pretty girl, Tom," said Colonel Todhunter. "And now that you've broached the subject and I've heard what I have, will you let me give you a word of advice?"

"Certainly, colonel," replied Tom.

"Well, Tom, speakin' plainly, it's this. You better fight mighty shy of Lottie-May hereafter, suh. I don't mean anything against the girl. But she thinks a lot of you, and she don't mind lettin' you know it, and that makes a mighty dangerous situation."

Then, seeing that the young man was ill at ease and maybe inwardly resentful, Colonel Todhunter left him, to his obvious relief.

But the colonel himself shook his head doubtfully. "There ain't no bigger fool on earth, suh," he communed with himself, "than a healthy young chap in his twenties, with a head fuller of women than a squash is of seeds—and just about as soft as that there squash, too, suh. I don't like to think of Tom Strickland, with Mary on one side of him, and him lovin' the very ground she walks on, and Lottie-May Doggett on the other side of him and her lovin' him the way she does love him."

Even as he thus mused an approaching figure brought a humorous grin to Colonel Todhunter's lips. It was the martial figure of Captain Sim Birdsong of the Nineveh light infantry, but without the aggressive support of his regimentals and with dejection in every line. Sim's face was the tragic mask itself.

"Great name above, cap'n!" vociferated the colonel, mock apprehension in his tone, "what in thunderation is the matter, suh? You look like you'd lost your last friend on earth!"

"Colonel Todhunter," said Sim solemnly, "you're the very man I wanted to see, suh. I'm in a peck of trouble, and I'm a-goin' to ask you to tell me the best way out of it, if you'll be so kind, suh—you havin' more experience in the world than me."

"Sim," replied Colonel Todhunter, "I don't know whether I can or not, but I'll do my level best, suh. Specify your trouble."

"Colonel," responded Sim wearily, "it's Miss Angelica Exall's ma; that's what it is. I can't shake her off, suh. That old woman's worse'n the seven year itch. I can't get rid of her for a minute, Colonel Todhunter."

"What do you want me to do, Sim?"

"I want you to see if you can't tell Miss Angelica's ma away from her for a little while, colonel; that's what I want. The old lady hates me worse'n poison, so I dasn't come right out and face her, suh. I can see right now, plain as the nose on my face, that I've got to leave this picnic without sayin' a blessed word to Miss Angelica 'less'n somebody helps me out o' the fix I'm in. Couldn't you figure out some way of doin' it, suh? Miss Angelica's ma thinks a heap o' you."

Colonel Todhunter smiled grimly. "Sim, there ain't but one way, and that's by draggin' Mrs. Todhunter into it. I ain't got no business doin' that, but I'll try if I can make the riffle. I'll see if I can't fool Mrs. Todhunter into sendin' word to old Mrs. Exall that she needs her to help with the dinner. But you got to hide out when that word is delivered, suh. From what you say Miss Angelica'll have to go right along with her ma if there's any sign o' you bein' in the neighborhood, Sim."

"Colonel Todhunter, that's a mighty fine idea, and I believe it'll work like a charm, suh. If I get any kind of a talk with Miss Angelica, colonel, I'll be grateful to you all the rest of my born days."

Colonel Todhunter chuckled, but made no reply. The next moment he was headed for the spot where his wife ruled the dinner arrangements.

"Well, well, Colonel Todhunter!" that lady cried. "I'm certainly surprised to see you, honey. But I reckon you must have heard that all the work's done and dinner's about ready, and you're too hungry to wait any longer."

Colonel Todhunter laughed into Mrs Todhunter's bantering eyes. "Mary," he said, "I want you to do a good turn for poor Sim Birdsong."

"Why, what in the world's the matter with Sim? That boy hasn't gone and hurt himself, has he?"

"Mary," said Colonel Todhunter, "Sim's havin' the very old scratch of a time. He's tryin' to get just a minute's chance to court Miss Angelica Exall and her ma won't let him have it. We got to help him. Don't you need old Mrs. Exall over here for a minute?"

Mrs. Todhunter contemplated her husband sternly.

"Well, I do declare, Colonel Todhunter!" she ejaculated. "If I was such a dyed in the wool matchmaker as you I'd be afraid to go out among young folks at all. You ought to be ashamed of yourself."

But Colonel Todhunter held his ground manfully. He knew Mrs. Todhunter. Her bosom yearned even now to succor Sim Birdsong in his sentimental plight.

"You go and tell Mrs. Exall to hurry over here," she said. "It so happens that I do need her to help dish up the dinner. If I didn't I wouldn't send for her to save Sim Birdsong's life." But Colonel Todhunter knew better.

Half an hour later Sim waylaid him in a grateful ambuscade. "Colonel Todhunter," he said, "it worked. And I've said some words to Miss Angelica Exall that I've been trying to say for a month, suh. I'll never forget you and Mrs. Todhunter the longest day I live, colonel."

Later in the afternoon Colonel Todhunter laughed to himself.

"I'll tell you, suh," he concluded, "if old Bill Strickland ain't solid with the Daughters of the Confederacy here in Nineveh it ain't my fault. I ain't never worked so hard with the women since I courted Mrs. Todhunter—and she shore did make me work overtime and no mistake, suh!"

CHAPTER II.

Mary Todhunter Entertains the Green Eyed Monster.

COLONEL TODHUNTER was seated in his favorite cane bottomed armchair at the far end of the wide "gallery" extending across the entire front of his home, an old fashioned colonial house of hospitable aspect. With Mrs. Todhunter he had just returned from the Daughters of the Confederacy picnic, and they were awaiting the arrival of Mary and her escort, Stam Tucker, before having supper.

The Todhunter residence stood on the crest of a gentle slope overlooking the pleasing sweep of Missouri countryside that intervened between the town of Nineveh and the colonel's own peaceful fields of growing corn. Mrs. Todhunter sat close to her husband, her hands folded in her lap, her happiness sweetened eyes contemplating the pastoral picture that had come to seem a vital part of her own life.

"They'd better be almighty quick about gettin' here if they know what's good for 'em," grumbled Colonel Todhunter wistfully. "I'm as hungry as a young hound dog this very minute. I'll be shot full of holes if my stomach don't feel like my throat's cut, Mary. I could eat a grindstone right now if somebody'd bust it up and pass it to me on a plate for real victles!"

"You ought to be ashamed of yourself, Colonel Todhunter," smiled Mrs. Todhunter, "after that dinner you ate at the Daughters' picnic. I declare to goodness I was afraid they'd all think you never got anything fit to eat at home."

"When I'm ashamed of having a good appetite, Mary," replied Colonel Todhunter, "and 'specially if I ever come to that day when I ain't got it I'll ask the Old Marster up above to call me to my heavenly home. Th' ain't no man got a right to turn away from wholesome victles when the good Lord's been bountiful enough to provide 'em for that man's eatin'. Nature don't never give a man such a right. If he gets so he can't relish his food it's one of her punishments for his playin' tom fool with himself, sinnin and skylarkin' around. And I ain't never seen no trifler at meal times that was fit to do a man's work."

Mrs. Todhunter laughed outright. "If you're eating to get ready for hard work, Colonel Todhunter, I'm certainly glad to see you eat hearty, because you're likely to be kept mighty busy nominatin' Colonel Strickland for governor of Missouri. You could nominate yourself a heap easier."

"Maybe I could, honey," replied Colonel Todhunter, "but Bill Strickland's a mighty popular man, all the same, and he deserves to be. I reckon I could be elected easier'n him, too, knowin' blame nigh every Democrat in Mizzoorah, but I'd make a mighty poor governor. You got to handle some all fired measly customers in politics, and I ain't got patience enough to handle 'em right. That's exactly where old Bill Strickland's got me beat. He can use all sorts o' men, crooked and straight, to gain honest ends—he proved it when he was chairman of the state committee—and that's what a governor's got to do to accomplish anything worth while. That's why I'm workin' for Bill Strickland. He ain't only my friend—he's far and away the best man for governor of Mizzoorah visible to the naked eye at the present writin'."

Mrs. Todhunter's comprehending eyes rested softly on the colonel's grizzled visage. "Thurston," she said, "I know better than that. I know better than you do why you'd rather have Colonel Strickland run for governor than to run yourself. It's because they couldn't pull you away from Nineveh and this old home of ours with a yoke of oxen."

Something of incredulous surprise flashed into Colonel Todhunter's face. Then his eyes swept lovingly across the familiar Missouri landscape spread out before him. He looked at Mrs. Todhunter and smiled.

"I reckon you've guessed it, honey," he spoke at last, almost wonderingly. "But I'll be tarred and feathered if I ever realized it until you told me. The good Lord above us, Mary, if I was elected governor and knew I had to live up yonder in Jeff City for four years I'd die of homesickness the first dash out o' the box. Th' ain't no money and no fame could pay me for doin' it, suh!"

Mrs. Todhunter's eyes gleamed with laughter. "That's you all over, Thurston, and I wouldn't have you changed a speck, not for anything in the world. No, not even if the dear Lord himself told me he was willin' to do it!"

Colonel Todhunter contemplated his wife gravely. "That's a mighty lucky thing, Mary," he replied then, his eyes twinkling just a tride. "Lucky for you and a blamed sight luckier for me 'cause I reckon I got to stay just like I am to the end of the chapter, honey."

At that moment the sound of young voices was heard from the twilight shadowed avenue leading up to the house. Then a buggy drawn by a high stepping bay mare came into view.

"That's Mary and Stam Tucker now," said Mrs. Todhunter. "And I'm glad Mary's home. I don't like that skittish horse Stam Tucker drives."

"That there mare o' Stam's ain't a bit more skittish than Mary Todhunter herself," Colonel Todhunter responded, chuckling. "And they're both a-goin' to give Stam the surprise of his life one o' these days. Just look at Mary, honey! You'd think she was a kitten set right down by a saucer o' cream, she's so tickled. She's havin' as good a time with Stam Tucker as if they wan't no such young man as Tom Strickland in all the world. And right this minute she wouldn't give Tom Strickland's little finger for Stam Tucker's whole body and soul and all old

DON'T EXPERIMENT

You Will Make No Mistake if You Follow This Quincy Citizen's Advice

Never neglect your kidneys.

If you have pain in the back, urinary disorders, dizziness and nervousness, it's time to act and no time to experiment. These are frequently symptoms of kidney trouble, and a remedy which is recommended for the kidneys should be taken in time.

Doan's Kidney Pills is a good remedy to use. No need to experiment. It has acted effectively in many cases in Quincy. Follow the advice of a Quincy citizen.

P. J. Garrity, 298 Granite street, Quincy, Mass., says: "Some time ago I suffered so severely from kidney disease that I could hardly get about. I was restless at night and could not find any position that was comfortable. The kidney secretions were too frequent in passage and contained a heavy sediment. I was rapidly growing worse and was at a loss to know what to do as the many remedies I tried failed to help me. Finally Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me and I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store. After I had taken the contents of four boxes I was in good health. I highly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to other kidney sufferers."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Make Us Prove It

We dare not exaggerate to you. We are dependent upon your patronage. To get it we must have your trust and confidence. We make the following statements with a full understanding of what they mean to us. You are safe when you believe in these statements.

For the Bowels

If you only knew as much as we and those who have used them know about Rexall Orderlies, you would be as enthusiastic about recommending them as we are. They taste just like candy. They act so easily and so pleasantly that the taking of them is a pleasure.

Even children like Rexall Orderlies; and you know that if a medicine appeals to a child, it will appeal to grown-ups.

help chase gloom, dispel blues and make you feel happy by their splendid tonic, cleansing and strengthening effect upon the bowels.—They act to free the system—and keep it free—from the distress and ill feeling that naturally results from irregular and inactive bowels.

Rexall Orderlies do this quietly, without griping or causing nausea, purging or excessive looseness. They act to overcome and remove the cause of bowel ills and in a short time usually make unnecessary the continued use of physics and purgatives, thus tending to stop such unhealthy habits as may have been formed.

Make Us Prove This

We do not ask you to take our word for this. We want you to make us prove it, and at no cost to you.

Buy a box of Rexall Orderlies at our store. Use them once, or use up the whole box. Then, if you are not thoroughly satisfied, just come back empty handed and tell us. Without obligating you or questioning you we will return the money you paid us for them.

Doesn't that indicate that Rexall Orderlies are at least worthy of trial? Doesn't it prove our faith in them? Doesn't it merit your confidence? Could any offer be more fair to you?

We particularly recommend Rexall Orderlies for children, delicate and aged persons. Rexall Orderlies come in convenient vest-pocket size tin boxes, 12 tablets, 10c; 36 tablets, 25c; 80 tablets, 50c.

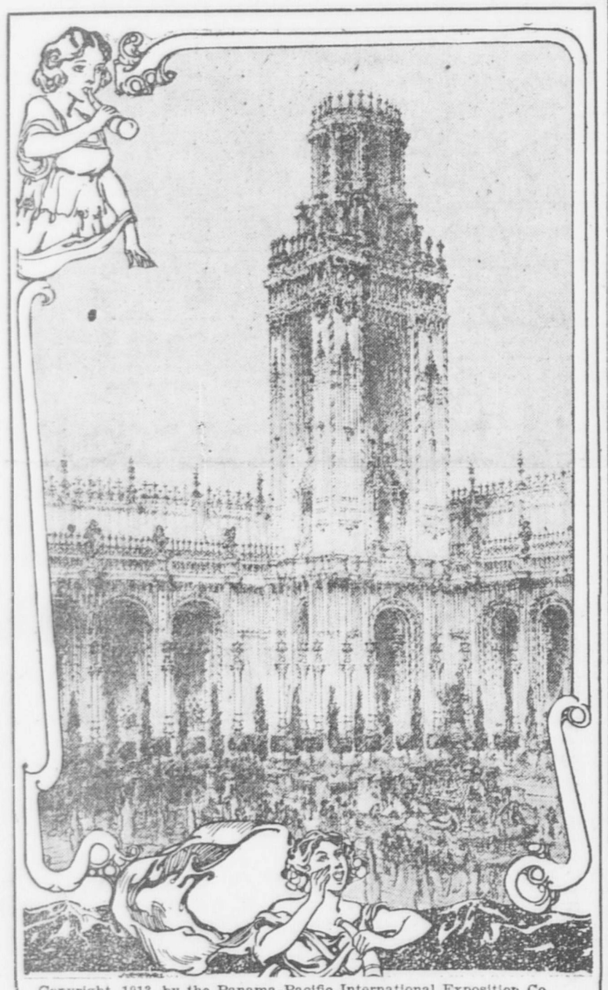

CAUTION: Please bear in mind that Rexall Orderlies are not sold by all druggists. You can buy Rexall Orderlies only at The Rexall Stores. You can buy Rexall Orderlies in this community only at our store:

NICE FAT PIG WILL FIGURE

In the Annual Party of the Cosmopolitan Club this Month

A real, live pig, without the bag, will be disposed of at the Farmer's Ball to be given in the St. Mary's hall, April 24 under the auspices of the Cosmopolitan Club. Suggestions from all quarters of the city were received by the members as to how the pig should be disposed of and it was only after a lengthy debate in which all the members joined that the method was decided upon.

The pig is now in captivity and is receiving the care not generally bestowed on porcines. The date of its birth is unknown and the rings in its tail do not tell its correct age, but its squeal can be heard for a long distance and demonstrates the possession of remarkable sound provokers.

All of ward four seems to be interested in the contest and the ready acceptance of conditions imposed on the winner is accepted in the nature of a joke, but, violation of any of the conditions will result in a petition being filed for an injunction restraining the owner from a further possession of the porker.

THE ENGINES WON.

The base ball season opened Saturday at the Ward 2 playgrounds. The Engine department of the Fore River yeard beat the Hull department 8 to 4. Clemens pitched good ball for the winners and Ryan for the losers. The score:

Engine	0 0 2 0 6 0 0 0 0	8	8	1
Hull	1 1 1 0 0 1 0 0 0	4	6	2

QUICKLY SQUELCHED.

Gasoline on the floor of the Wollaston garage took fire this morning and was extinguished by employees before any damage was done. A telephone summoned the auto from the Central Station but their services were not needed. Several machines in the garage were endangered for the moment.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

DAMAGE SUIT AGAINST PASTOR

Trial of $25,000 Alienation of Affection Case Started

BOYNTON FIRST WITNESS

The case of Chester A. Boynton against Rev. William B. Ayers, pastor of the Park and Downs church, a suit to recover $25,000 damages for alleged alienation of the affections of his wife, Helen W. Boynton was called at the Suffolk superior court this morning and assigned to the fifth Jury session of the court. Judge Morton will preside in the case. Both sides were ready and it was agreed to enter upon the trial immediately. Cutler & James appear for Mr. Boynton, F. & W. Anderson for Rev. Mr. Ayers.

Two jurors were challenged by the defendants counsel. Judge Cutler then presented the opening argument for his client, Chester A. Boynton, addressing the judge and jury. He reviewed much that that has already been made public in this remarkable case. He said that Mr. Boynton is about 30 years old. In April 1907 he married his wife Helen W. Boynton. They lived happily together for three years. Early in the spring of 1909, Rev. Mr. Ayers arrived on the scene. Mr. and Mrs. Boynton were very active in church work and naturally met the minister a great deal. The minister called at the Boynton home a great deal. His friendship for Mrs. Boynton ripened into a stronger feeling. In the summer of 1909 the three people agreed to live in the same house, each one contributing a certain sum for the maintenance. Mr. Boynton noticed the change in his wife's manner towards Mr. Ayers and himself. She refused him admission to their apartment. In February 1912 they separated. The outcome was that he was abandoned and suffered mental anguish and all the discomforts which circle around such a state of affairs. At the close of Judge Cutler's address three witnesses were sworn for the plaintiff.

After the recess Chester A. Boynton took the stand and was still testifying at the recess for luncheon and resumed the stand this afternoon.

He said his name was Chester A. Boynton of Revere, that he was a bookkeeper and 30 years old. He said his wife was Helen Willett Boynton. He said he met her in Boston in 1905 and knew her two years before marrying her. He said the ceremony was performed August 6, 1907.

After the marriage they lived at 138 Bromfield street, Norfolk Downs for two years and 11 months, their relations being ideal and happy. They enjoyed each others' company he said and loved one another dearly.

Mr. Boynton said he was somewhat of a singer and after joining the Park and Downs Church joined the choir. He said he was a church worker and became a member in May 1910, his wife joining at the same time.

GOOD WORK.

Tim Collins for many years one of the faithful employees of the highway department of the city, who some weeks ago suffered a shock was given a complimentary benefit Friday evening. The affair was held at Hibernian hall and was very largely attended. There was a pleasing entertainment consisting of vocal and instrumental music and some boxing bouts. It is thought that about $150 will be realized for Mr. Collins.

VANNAH IS INDICTED

War Veteran Charged With Killing Soldier In Togus Lake Camp

Augusta, Me., April 7.—An indictment for alleged murder was returned against Francis A. Vannah, a Civil war veteran, and until recently an inmate of the National Soldiers' home at Togus, by the grand jury.

Vannah is charged with causing the death of James Hardy, a Spanish war veteran, at a camp at Togus lake on the night of March 20. He will not be tried until September, as the superior court at present does not have jurisdiction in murder cases further than to investigate and indict.

Hardy's wife, who was shot at the same time as her husband, has remained in a critical condition and is not expected to recover.

Boynton the Only Witness Yesterday in His $25,000 Suit Against Parson Ayers

Plaintiff Asked About His Fondness For Girl Friend of Family

Indications are that the suit of Chester A. Boynton against Rev. William B. Ayers, pastor of the Park and Downs Congregational church for $25,0000 damages for alleged alienation of his wife's affections that went on trial before a jury in the fifth session of the Suffolk Superior Court, Monday morning will continue the greater part of this week if it does not lap over into next.

It is understood that a long list of witnesses have been summoned and how long their testimony will take, cannot be considered. Judge Lawton is presiding.

Mr. Boynton and many of his witnesses were present when the case opened. The plaintiff wore a natty blue business suit. While Mr. Cutler, the plaintiff's attorney was addressing the jury Mr. Ayers entered the court room. He carried a large green bag and wore a suit of clerical cut. He took his seat with his attorneys S. and W. Anderson.

Mrs. Helen Willett Boynton, wife of the plaintiff, entered soon after with her father and mother and other witnesses for the defense. Mrs. Boynton was attired in a wide brimmed brown hat of fur felt, a skirt of subdued hue and a simple white waist with a red jabot.

Among those in the court room were Rev. Asher Anderson D. D., a prominent Congregationalist who has stood up for Mr. Ayers from the first. Owing to a large panel of jurors that occupied nearly two sides of the room only witnesses and those directly interested were admitted.

When the noon recess was taken Mrs. Boynton and her companions upon leaving the court house were the target for a battery of cameras and newspaper men who followed the group to a well known restaurant on Hanover street.

Before marriage he attended the First Congregational church at Revere and continued there until joining at Wollaston.

In April 1910 he met Mr. Ayers the first time at the Park and Downs church. His wife was with him and after the meeting Mr. Ayres visited their home frequently. He was invited to supper and after two weeks he commenced calling two or three times a week, usually after church services or meetings. He had supper often since he roomed out and there were no cafes handy.

Mr. Boynton stated he found Mr. Ayers at the house many times when he came home. He said he generally left home at 7.30 A. M. and returned at 6.30 P. M. Often he worked late and did not reach home until 10.30 or 11 o'clock. He said he worked for Chandler & Co., Boston.

Attorney Cutler asked how frequently he found Mr. Ayers in the company of his wife when he came home and he said twice a week half of the time and three or four times at other times. In June, 1910, he moved from the Bromfield house.

Mr. Cutler asked if there was any particular occasion that he found Mr. Ayers there and Boynton replied that one afternoon, about 6 o'clock, he came home during the latter part of May, 1910, and found Mr. Ayers lying full length on the couch and Mrs. Boynton on the edge, near his feet.

Attorney Cutler asked if he had had any conversation with his wife a short while before he left the Bromfield street house and Boynton said that he did about ten days before and it was as a result of that conversation that he moved.

The conversation that caused the removal he said, took place in the presence of his wife, Mr. Ayers and himself, that he had talked the matter over about moving to a house on Beach street and that Mr. Ayers said he had the refusal of a house on Beach street and he moved to the house assuming the lease.

It was agreed that Mr. Ayers would pay $40 a month rent and that he would assume the cost of living and incidentals.

On the 22nd of June they moved to the Beach street house. Attorney Cutler asked if he had any visitors before removal and he said a cousin had come to sing at a concert at the church which was held under his direction.

He was asked if he took a vacation annually and he said yes and that Mrs. Boynton was his companion until this year. This year Mr. Boynton spent the time at his home. Mr. Ayers was at the house during that period.

Mrs. Boynton took a vacation and that Mr. Ayers also took one, the last two weeks of August and first few days in September. Mrs. Boynton and Mr. Ayres were absent at the same time. During that time he lived with his father at Revere.

Attorney Cutler asked if previous to living at the Beach street house they occupied the same bed room and the reply was yes. When asked as

COUNCIL KICKS AT STREET CLOSING BY ABOLISHING GRADE CROSSING

Adopts Resolutions Protesting Against City Liability For Land Damages in Necessary Widening of Streets

Committee Appointed to Convey Sentiments of Citizens. Brief and Harmonious Session Monday Night

A regular meeting of the City Council was held Monday evening. Nothing of an exciting nature came up and things went along smoothly until adjournment. The absent members were Councilmen Boyd, Gilliatt and Ross.

The Mayor forwarded a communication from the Adams family offering to sell the city land adjoining the Mt. Wollaston cemetery, for an addition to the cemetery at the rate of $1200 per acre. Referred to the Finance Committee.

A communication was received from the Auditor relative to the date of maturity of the bonds on the loan order for $1400 for furnishings for the hall in the Quincy school building, suggesting that the date of maturity be changed from 1915 to 1914 and later Councilman Bailey offered an order changing the date to 1914 which was adopted.

The Mayor appointed Harry W. Pray a constable. Confirmed.

Petitions for the apportionment of sidewalk assessments were referred to the Finance Committee.

The Citizens Gas Co., petitioned for a location for mains on Franklin and High streets and Revere road. Referred to Committee on Streets.

A large number of applications for minor licenses were received and referred to the Committee on Licenses.

FOR FLOOD SUFFERERS.

President Whiton read a letter stating that the Christian Syrians of Quincy Point had collected the sum of $100 for the sufferers from the recent floods in the west and a committee consisting of Messrs A. Lahage, M. Kouri, M. Hadad and M. Metri had just called at City Hall and deposited with the Mayor that sum to be transmitted to the proper authorities.

President Whiton also announced the benefit to be held Wednesday evening and that tickets were in the hands of the clerk and he hoped that everybody would purchase. He spoke of the example that had been set by the Syrians. Many of these men he said earned but a small salary and were aliens and it seemed as though everybody in the hall should purchase a ticket.

REPORTS.

The Committee on Streets reported a substitute order for street watering from April 20, to Oct. 20. Read and ordered to a second reading.

The Finance Committee reported on the following matters:

Reference to the City Solicitor on the communication relative to abating street betterment of George L. Phillips. Adopted.

Leave to withdraw on the application of W. P. and Elizabeth Pinel for apportionment of sidewalk betterment assessments. Accepted.

An order apportioning street and sidewalk betterment assessments. Adopted.

Ought to pass on the order transferring $51.76 from receipts for tuition from other towns to pay bills for tuition in the City of Boston. Order passed.

HEARINGS.

A public hearing was held at 8.15 on the petitions of the street railway for a relocation of tracks on Copeland street and for a location for turnouts on the Houghs Neck line.

Supt. Conway appeared in favor and stated that on Copeland street it was proposed to take up the present T rail from Brewers corner and put down the grooved girder rail, also straighten the curve near Centre street.

On the Houghs Neck line he stated that the two turnouts asked for were ordered put in by the railroad Commissioners.

Henry W. French, president of the Houghs Neck Associates spoke in favor of the turnouts on the Houghs Neck line. There was no opposition and the hearing closed and the order was recommitted

A public hearing was held at 8.30 on the petition of the Electric Light Co for a location of poles on Moscow street. Supt. Austin appeared in favor and no one against Hearing closed.

ORDERS.

On motion of Councilman Bailey the order appropriating $1,141.12 for deficit bills of the Poor Department was taken from the table and passed.

Councilman Duffy offered an order apportioning the street betterment assessment on the Daniel Flowers estate on Newcomb place. Referred to Finance Committee.

Councilman Hadlock offered an order for street lights on Vassal street. Referred to the Executive.

Councilman Johnson offered an order for $7,500 for extending Winthrop street from Sea street to Rock Island. Referred to Street Committee.

THE GRADE CROSSING.

Councilman Cunningham of the special committee appointed to attend the grade crossing hearing and oppose the decree plan made an oral report. Councilman Bryant objected. He never knew a committee to make a report in that manner. It should be made in writing that some record might be had of it. He moved a recess of five minutes that the committee might make its report. Voted.

On reassembling Councilman Cunningham for the committee reported as follows:—

"The Special Committee appointed to oppose the decree of the Special Commission separating the grade crossings in the City of Quincy beg leave to report:—

That they appeared before the Board of Railroad Commissioners and entered their protest in the name of the City Council and secured an adjournment to Friday, April 25, 1913 and were further advised that the Board would view the proposed crossings Friday, April 11, at 3 o'clock. Your Committee believe that some provision should be made to receive this Commission and to arrange for some plan to replace the one now before the Commission, and further recommend that a larger committee be appointed to have charge of this matter."

The report was accepted.

Councilman Richards then offered the following order which was adopted.

In view of the fact that every public organization in the city is on record for depression of tracks, also the Mayor and City Government and also the fact that the elimination of the grade crossings in Quincy can be effected without taking from the city any of its public or private ways, we the City Council demand, in the name of the citizens of Quincy, that the elimination of crossings in the city be done along the lines of depression, either by the plans submitted by the city or such modification along lines of depression as will be satisfactory to the citizens ofQuincy.

We therefore recommend, that all new streets required and made necessary by reason of elimination of grades, and in view of the fact that the grades can be eliminated by the city plans without affecting our present adequate ways, such new streets as may be required or made necessary by reason of other plans than the city's must be borne wholly by the railroad company, as such new streets are made necesasry only through the adoption of plans which the citizens of Quincy do not endorse or warrant, hence, we claim are under no obligations for either land damages or cost of construction in producing thoroughfares to replace ones now owned and in use by the citizens of Quincy.

And it is further ordered that a committee of seven be appointed by the chair to carry out the intent of this order, and to invite to the corporation of all organized bodies and interested citizens."

Adjourned at 9.18 until Monday, April 21.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

When it comes to smashing precedent President Wilson is in a class by himself.

Unless there is an improvement in the weather the opening of the base ball season will be rather a raw and cheerless undertaking.

Gov. Foss's latest message is somewhat of a puzzle to his party. The "old boy" has been long time a puzzle to many people beside those of his "immediate party."

The Boston Central Labor Union voiced a protest against sending officers to Hopedale. It probably was better to stretch a point than that lives and property should be jeopardized.

The visits of prominent democrats to Washington is creating some little ripple of anticipation in the breasts of the faithful.

The sections are unanimous in rising on their hind legs against the proposed tariff revision.

Young Mr. Gould's absence and retirement from this country will not be in the nature of a dire calamity to the people in general.

Little progress is being made in the union of the Progressive and Republican parties. Just at present the former appear to be somewhat absorbing a few members of the latter.

Montenegro is somewhat in the position of a small boy defying a giant.

And the Quincy basket ball boys are not to have a fling at that national title after all.

That was a fine young storm which prevailed Monday.

April has commenced her usual period of weeping.

Aviators are now turning their attention to flying across the ocean. Some of them who seriously plan the trip should recall the time taken by the special parcel post aviator from Boston to New York.

Italy really paved the way for the Balkan allies to conquer the Turks.

England did not scorn Mrs. Pankhurst, yet she has developed fury enough to satisfy most any one.

England finds fault about the refusal of the New York Yacht club to accept the cup challenge, contending that American amateur sailors are not good sports. There is still a memory of Dunraven.

Evidently Iowa has no regard for the colored brethren having just passed a law making it a crime to steal chickens.

A French man who came over to lecture on a Persian ball, did not prove much of an attraction, although he was press-agented. On his return he wrote all sorts of nasty things about American people, their manners and the like. He should take a course in good manners himself. It is not good form to abuse a host and even worse so because the host or hostess did not break their necks in separating themselves from some of their coin to the benefit of the visitor.

THE LIBERTY BELL.

The Pennsylvania society of the Daughters of the Revolution have endorsed the plan to refuse to let the Liberty Bell ever go out of Philadelphia. Their position seems appropriately tenable. The changing around of this priceless relic is placed in grave danger of destruction at all times. And then it must be admitted that relic seekers have no conscience, so that between being carted from place to place and the ingenuity and persistency of this last mentioned brand of people the chances were that the bell would some day be mutilated or actually destroyed and then the people of the country as well as those of Philadelphia would have cause for belated regrets. On the whole it is much better that trophies of this kind should have a settled abode with proper care exercised in the guarding of them.

WANT COMPETENT MEN.

President Wilson has a definite plan in the making of appointments which will of course hardly meet favor with the great army of office seekers who have loomed large upon the political horizon. The president desires competent men for the positions at his disposal and he is very wise in taking such a course and it will meet with the approval of the great majority of the people. While elected as a Democrat, on a Democratic ticket and a Democratic platform, the president undoubtedly realizes that it was not alone a party vote which elected him. He has been furnished strong evidence that the people were not only dissatisfied at the existing condition of things but were ripe for revolt against them. It was just this continued practice of putting incompetents, men who had nothing with which to recommend them but a strong political pull, into responsible positions which finally led to the disruption of the Republican party and the political revolution which followed. President Wilson's record as Governor of New Jersey helped him materially in securing votes. The people as a whole want him to live up to the reputation gained in all his acts, and when it comes to appointments, to select able, competent men for the places, even if a few disappointed politicians may consider that it is a violation of all precedence and that they are entitled to carry around a goodly developed grouch in consequence.

ANOTHER TARGET.

Another of Uncle Sam's battleships is doomed for the scrap heap or at least as a target for the guns of the more modern craft. The old Texas was the first victim to fall under this decree and now another one is already booked to take her place and be riddled. It seemed only yesterday that the ships now named as coming along the same route were launched and declared to be the last word in naval architecture. It seems as though something less expensive could be used for a target with just as good results. It looks like a big waste of money to stick a vessel that cost upwards of $5,000,000 up to be shot at by her sisters who in the course of time will share a similar fate. That may not be burning money, but it certainly is ripping it to smithereens in good style. Objection is made to the sale of those vessels to smaller powers, along patriotic and sentimental lines. This objection appears to be somewhat flimsy. By all means if the vessels are beyond their days of usefulness in being up to the standard of the later additions to the fleet, it is hardly good business to simply destroy them. They have a commercial value, which should be turned to account. It is hardly good business to ruthlessly destroy that which is of some value to some one. It is not a business man's way of doing business, but then governments do things quite differently.

FLOOD VICTIMS NEED FUNDS

Citizens Committee Issues an Appeal to the Public

GENEROUS RESPONSE URGED

The Citizens committee having charge of the work of raising funds for the flood sufferers have decided to hold an entertainment in Music hall, Wednesday evening. All who appear will tender their services free and all advertising, and other matters netted for the success of the show are donated. The officers of the committee have issued the following appeal to the public:

FOR THE CAUSE OF HUMANITY.

We appeal to the citizens of Quincy to do their duty.

Let us be proud of our City's contributions to the Flood Sufferers.

We have arranged for an excellent program for the entertainment concert which is to be given at Quincy Music Hall, Wednesday evening. As is well known this entertainment has been arranged for the benefit of the flood sufferers. The program is more than worth the price asked for the tickets. The program consists of solos by Miss Alice C. Foley; a musical program by the Wollaston Cadet Band orchestra; a play "A Foul Tip" which gave such satisfaction a short time since.

The tickets have been placed in various drug stores in the City. At a committee meeting held at the Mayor's office the report from these places upon the sale of tickets was very unsatisfactory.

We the committee are making this urgent appeal to the citizens of Quincy to purchase tickets to this entertainment whether they are able to attend or not. This appeal is the only one being made to our citizens and $1,000 at least should be realized.

Have you purchased your ticket? If not, buy them today.

TURBINE ENGINE AT POWER PLANT

GIVEN TRIAL MONDAY

The new 1500 horse-power turbine engine which has recently been installed at the power plant of the Quincy Electric Light and Power Co. was used Monday for the first time. The change from the generators in use to the new engine required the shutting down of the power in the city for a brief period. The trial lasted all the afternoon and it was then cut out and necessary changes made. After all adjustments are complete it will be placed in regular operation.

The engine is the product of the General Electric Co. It was shipped to South Quincy and difficulties of all kinds were encountered in getting it to the plant. The condition of Brackett street was so poor that it had to be rolled down on rollers, and from the freight yard to Brackett street its progress was marked by long delays because of the sinking of the wheels.

The hauling was done by W. S. Brine & Co. of Boston and "Bill" Harris, a resident of Quincy and one of the best known teamsters in the state drew the reins over the 22 horses hitched to the load.

THREE NEW MEMBERS.

Electrical Workers Union, 189, held a meeting in the Johnson building Monday evening. Leo T. Moran, Robert F. Leighton and John Lampier were admitted to membership. Charles W. Hanscom presided.

☞The new fruit store of the S. G. Emanuel Co., at 1369 Hancock street is well stocked and makes an attractive appearance. They have one of the most attractively arranged show windows we have ever seen.

Fine Array of Talent Delights Braintree Audience

SUFFRAGETTES MADE HIT

An audience that completely filled Odd Fellows' hall and overflowed into the banquet room with many standing at the doorways gathered Monday evening to enjoy the first annual minstrel show under the auspices of the men's club of the South Congregational church, Braintree.

The performance ran smoothly and from start to finish was of such unusual excellence as to stamp it the best seen in this vicinity in recent years. The jokes and "knocks" were new and kept the audience in a roar while the whole program was well balanced and of pleasing variety. The chorus work was snappy and in perfect tune and the "tambos" and "bones" were a whole show in themselves.

Miss Hazel Lothrop was at the piano and no small part of the evening's success was due to the able and artistic manner in which she presided as accompanist throughout the long program.

George E. Dunn made an imposing and dignified interlocutor and carried his part well.

After the opening chorus by the entire company Frank E. Hollis sang "Take me to that Swanee shore." His clever rendering of the ditty was enhanced by the antics of his movable wig which almost got away from him. He got still more laughs with the huge pair of dice which nearly started a crap game and the easy way he had of salting his buttonhole bouquet (of cabbage) and taking a bite brought down the house.

C. Haven Belcher gave a lively rendering of the famous "Row, Row, Row" song in which he was ably seconded by the chorus.

Warren B. Robinson sang with feeling and expression the beautiful ballad entitled "When I lost you."

That rollicking popular song "At the Devil's ball" as sung by Harry Simonds was one of the hits of the evening and he was obliged to respond to repeated encores.

Ernest Woodsum followed with "Bake dat chicken pie" rendered with so much pantomine and vivid description as to make everybody's mouth water. His dancing during the chorus made people sit up and take notice.

Frank Allen was great in his selection ""When the midnight choo-choo leaves for Alabam" and his fancy steps and cake walk antics were so good that the audience demanded repetitions until "Frank" was about all in.

The first part of the program was concluded with the plaintive little ballad "So long as the shamrock grows green" rendered beautifully by Alexander McGibbon. After a short intermission, the entertainment was resumed with a trombone solo by Carl Kenny, "Till the sands of the desert grow cold." Mr. Kenney's playing was very pleasing and he was encored, responding with "My Rosary."

Next came a reading by Urban Landrey. He held the audience enthralled by his mastery of the lines and received such applause that he was obliged to favor his hearers with another selection.

James Madigan did some clever buck and wing dancing and this offering like all the numbers received well deserved applause.

Charles Briggs played the mandola, sang, whistled, danced, played the bones and tamborine and proved himself to be a regular one man band and a good one at that.

Miss Olive Robbins and Frank Allen sang "You remind me of the little girl that went to school with me." It was finely given, with little touches of incidental acting and a bit of a dance all of which rounded out a pretty little act.

The program was concluded with a laughable speciality that almost sent the audience into hysterics.

"General" Rosalie Jones, Mrs. Pankhurst and others were impersonated by Dr. C. V. Harworth, Harry Simonds, Ernest C. Woodsum, Frank Hollis and Warren B. Robinson.

Their costumes and manner were funny enough to make a horse laugh and their songs and speeches brought forth howls of delight from their auditors. It was a new and novel ending to a very good show and all concerned deserve great credit for their efforts in bringing the whole affair to such a successful issue. Many were turned away from the hall because there were no more seats and the show ought to be repeated.

The committee of arrangements and the performers were as follows:

Comimttee of Arrangements —Mr. George E. Dunn, Mr. Frank C. Allen.

End Men and Circle,—Bones—Harry A. Simonds, Frank E. Hollis, Ernest C. Woodsum. Tambos—Frank C. Allen, C. Haven Belcher , Warren B. Robinson.

GIRL REFUSED TO OBEY BOARDER

Italian Became Angry Brandished Knife and Made Threats

FINED $25 PUT UNDER BONDS

Joseph Del Grasso was arrested at Weymouth Monday night for alleged assault on Grace T. Pope, and his arrest gave rise to the rumor that there had been a stabbing affray in the Italian colony. According to the Weymouth police Del Grasso boarded with Miss Pope's mother and Monday he came home and undertook to boss the girl. She resented being ordered about and told him so. It is then alleged that he drew a knife and chased her about the house threatening to cut her deep. His arrest followed and he was brought into court this morning. The Pope girl said that she was afraid of the man. The court then imposed a fine of $25 and placed him under $200 bonds to keep the peace for two months.

OFFICERS GET "LENA BRADLEY"

HUSBAND IS ALSO ARRESTED

Both Are Held After Being Grilled at Boston Custom House—Belief That Shevlin Could Tell of Startling Frauds, but He Is Considered Unlikely to Do So

Boston, April 8.—At midnight last night two more arrests were made in connection with the recent exposures of customs frauds at this port, which resulted in the arrest, March 27, of Terrence J. Shevlin, former deputy collector of the port, and his wife.

The two persons taken into custody last night are Nicholas Schram and his wife. Mrs. Schram is a sister of Mrs. Shevlin and is generally known by her maiden name, Lena Bradley.

Mrs. Schram was expected to connect the Shevlins directly with the smuggling of the big black trunk which was brought here on the steamship Carpathia March 17 by Miss Kate A. Brennan, a fashionable dressmaker of New York, who is also under arrest.

She and her husband, who is an iron worker and is known in fistic circles as "Knockout Brimmer," were taken into custody in New York yesterday, after a search by the federal authorities for the last eight days.

They were brought here on the 3 o'clock train from New York, guarded by three special agents of the department of justice from that city, and on their arrival at the custom house, shortly before 9 o'clock last night, they were subjected to an examination by Assistant United States District Attorney Garland which lasted three hours.

It was not known whether they would be arrested when they arrived, although every preparation was made for doing so. Owing to the long examination and the fact that they finally were placed under arrest it is believed that neither Schram nor his wife told what they were expected to tell.

"If Terrence Shevlin should ever decide to tell what he knows about the smuggling frauds of the port of Boston, there would be such a startling revelation that the entire Atlantic coast would be astonished. He was neither the brains nor the creator of the system that has for twenty years robbed the government of duties mounting into a sum that would be almost unbelievable because of the total. Shevlin was made a part of the working force of this system to defraud the government, not by choice, but by direction."

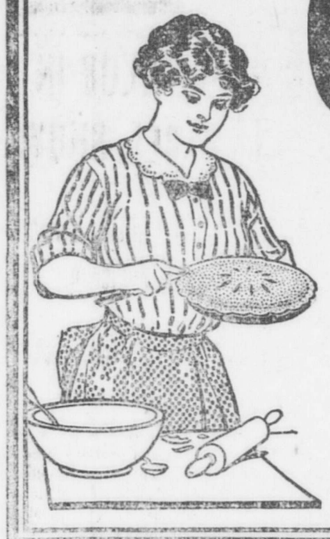

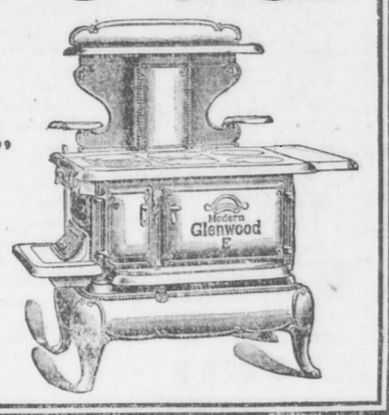

The above is, in brief, a statement that has been made to Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo.

Among the men in the customs service here in Boston it is not believed that Shevlin will ever make a statement of any kind. There was never a man who could keep a secret better than he. But it is admitted by all that he was in a position to know all the workings of the customs service here, and if there have been frauds—and no one denies now that there have been—he would know more than or as much about them as anybody else.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Berman and family and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Silverman formerly of Pearl street, have moved to Houghs Neck for the summer.

BOYNTON SUIT

to when it ceased he replied July, 1910. He exhibited a chart showing the positions of the room and said he changed his because of a conversation with his wife.

He took a room over the living room, and she remained where she was. Mr. Ayers had a front room and a study.

It was brought out that there were several visitors in the fall of 1910 and a question of finance led to an agreement on the part of Mr. Ayers to assume some of the household expenses. A removal was suggested but Mrs. Boynton objected and said she would not lift a hand and that she did not understand how they could not live there happily and comfortably. Grace, a sister of Mr. Ayers visited them and that Mrs. Boynton visited her at Minneapolis, but Boynton did not give his wife the money for the trip. Mr. Ayers was absent at that time and returned a few days before Mrs. Boynton.

In 1911 Mrs. Boynton kept some of her clothing in Mr. Ayer's library closet and that she entered the room sometimes scantily attired, that he had found his wife in the lap of Mr. Ayers very often. She arose when he had breakfast and retired after he left.

One morning he went down cellar to fix the furnace and went upstairs on an errand and saw Ayers coming from his wife's room. He entered his own room and then her room and found her sitting on the side of the bed drawing on her stockings. After this he commenced looking for another place.

He then made arrangements to lie at Bromfield street. On Feb. 2, while Mr. Ayers was sitting in his study, Boynton told him he wanted to give him notice to leave. Mr. Ayers seemed agitated.

According to Mr. Boynton the conduct of Mr. Ayers was the talk of the town and since he was the guardian of the morals of the young women in the community he proposed to protect them. Boynton then claimed that he charged Mr. Ayers with working on the sympathy of Mrs. Boynton and that he had told her that she reminded him of his dead wife.

In the study Mr. Ayers called Boynton a liar, thief and other names and Mrs. Boynton jumped up during the scene and said "you said you were not going to say anything tonight."

Mr. Boynton then walked out and did not again return to the Beach street house.

At this point the court took a recess for lunch.

When the case was again opened at two o'clock Mr. Boynton resumed the stand and told of the events directly preceding the time he left the Beach street house.

On the Tuesday evening following his alleged controversy with Mr. Ayers which he stated occurred on Saturday February 3, 1912, Mr. Boynton said he returned at 138 Bromfield street where his father-in-law and mother-in-law resided.

The furniture he had ordered moved was already there and there were two beds. He occupied one of them, not with his wife.

The next conversation he had with his wife was in the presence of his motherin-law, Mrs. Willett, when he came home in the afternoon to settle the furniture. Mrs. Boynton replied that she and her mother could take care of things and arrange them and Boynton left.

When he came down stairs the following Wednesday morning he met Mr. and Mrs. Willett in the kitchen and Mrs. Willett told him he was ordered to get out of the house and asked him how long he intended to stay.

He replied that he would stay until he had done what he wanted to. That Mrs. Willett jumped between him and the cellar door and said he was willing to accuse someone else for his troubles.

He replied that she should ask about the woman affair Mr. Ayers was connected with in Cape Vincent. At that she called him names and told him to get out of there as quick as he could.

Mrs. Willett's husband took hold of her and she said "If he doesn't get out I'll go. "Mrs. Willett then struck at me" said Boynton, "and he forced her into the other room. They fell and she said 'That is the first time you have struck me in 25 years.' " Boynton went upstairs, shaved and left the house.

He did not return until 9 o'clock on the morning of March 4th when he came with four furniture movers to remove his household furniture at the order of Mr. Willett.

He rang the front door bell three or four times getting no response, rapped twice at the side door. He then went down to George Mitchell's grocery store.

On returning five minutes later he saw his wife and her mother coming out. On March 11 he wrote his wife a letter which was returned to him in the registered mail.

He had overheard conversations in the Beach street house between his wife and Mr. Ayers during which the latter had called her "a dandy little cook," "a fine little housekeeper, a clever little woman" and had said "There isn't very much about housework and housekeeping that you don't know."

The witness recalled a canoe trip on June 17, 1912 taken from Spring Street, Roxbury, by Mr. Ayers, Mrs. Boynton and himself.

Mr. Ayers put the canoe in the water and told Mr. Boynton to get in front. Ayers then fixed the backboard and cushions for Mrs. Boynton so that she faced him (Ayers.)

Coming back Boynton suggested he (Ayers) sit in front but this Ayers would not permit. He then told Mrs. Boynton she was facing the sun but she said that was all right and sat facing Ayers all the way back.

Mr. Boynton said that Mr. Ayers and Mrs. Boynton sat up many times after he went to bed usually after the Friday and Sunday evening meetings of the church. Mr. Ayers made a number of derogatory statements such as "It's too bad Chester's prospects are not better than they are." He is working along the same line and not got very far."

Mr. Ayers also told, witness said, of a series of lectures in Ohio during vacation for which he was to get $100 a piece and which had not taken much time on his part to prepare.

Mr. Ayers referred to his nationality, witness said, by making the statement that he thought he would take the pastorate of a Scotch Presbyterian church because the Scotch were so obstinate and unyielding and like the New Englanders, bigotted, small and narrow. Boynton's maternal ancestors were Scotch.

Mr. Ayers talked about the marital relation and said there were times in the life of every young couple when they come near the breaking point.

Mr. Ayers expressed surprise, witness said, that there were so many in the community just on the breaking point and if the couples did not break apart how much better it would be.

Mr. Ayers took an example from another community, where a husband suspected his wife of unfaithfulness but stuck to her and in that way the family kept together and the community respected him for it.

Witness testified he saw his wife on the fourth day of June, 1912 corner of Rawson road and Hamilton street and she had Mr. Ayer's dog with her. He had never gotten his furniture from the Willett house.

This closed the direct testimony of Boynton who was then cross-examined by Elbridge R. Anderson, counsel for the defense.

Witness testified he had lived since his marriage at 138 Bromfield street, Wollaston in the house with his father and mother-in-law. It was a 7 room single house. They kept house separately, his wife's parents on the first floor and he and his wife on the second. They lived there, from August 1907 to June 1910.

He went to work at Chandlers in September 1905 and had been previously employed by the Boston Elevated as a clerk in the auditing department. He joined the First Congregational church of Revere in 1894 when he was 11 years old. He lived with his parents up to the time of his marriage, and still lived with them.

Mr. Ayers first came to his house on his, (Boynton's) invitation and that during April and May 1910 invited him half a dozen times.

Mr. Anderson brought out the statement from Boynton that Mr. Ayers had eaten with the whole family Mrs. Boynton's parents included once or twice and that the latter were at home when the plaintiff arrived.

Mr. Ayers visited the Bromfield street house 15 times in the two months. He denied telling Mr. Ayers he was about to build a house or that Mr. Ayers should have an apartment in such a structure.

He gave his wife five dollars a week, to buy fruit and produce for table and pay wash women. Sometimes paid more than five dollars, sometime less. He was not aware the washwoman charged two dollars.

When he first went to the Beach street house, he occupied same room as his wife. His wife was not ill when he left. He left of his own accord, at her request. Witness didn't recall any talk with mother-in-law concerning it.

His wife was sick after they went to Beach street house, in the fall of 1910. This was in October, and she was sick about a week.

She had a second illness, and was in bed for two or three weeks. Her mother, was with her part of the time. Mr. Boynton testified that the first time he said anything to Mr. Ayers was on the night Mr. Ayers accused him of certain relations with a young Wollaston girl.

He met this girl in May 1910 at the Park and Downs church while he was coaching a play called "Me and Otis" and met her at the house of William Northrop and later saw her at the choir. In the summer of 1911, he was frequently at her home for quartet rehearsals.

When he first knew her, she worked for a local grocer as a bookkeeper but, went to work at the plantiff's office as a memorandum book keeper in November 1911.

The two worked nights and came out on late trains twice a week. October 18, 1911 he went with her to her aunt's house in Chelsea and another time went to Lynn to his cousin's, Mrs. R. C. Barstow's house.

He admitted talking to the girl in question for half an ohur in his aunt's vestibule and kissing her good night. Witness admitted girl came to his house and worked on books, also sang, but denied improper conduct.

In 1910, his wife went to Walpole for a vacation and he heard from her while there. He received a letter from Mr. Ayers at Cape Vincent two days before he came home. He admitted going to annual meeting of the church five days before his wife went to her father's house, but denied making certain remarks concerning Mr. Ayers to a man named Barney. He did say "a man who could run a church on a business basis so successfully as Mr. Ayers, should have some thanks, from a business standpoint."

He knew Miss Ella R. Musaus, Mrs. Thomas Irving and Mrs. George H. Downes but didn't recall talking to any of them regarding Mr. Ayers.

He did tell Mrs. Tanner he thought Mr. Ayers didn't deserve all the hard things said about him by other people.

Just before February he and his wife had a talk touching on the girl in question. He knew girl had fainted and she cried in church one communion service.

Mr. Boynton related conversation in aisle of the church between the girl Mrs. Boynton and himself in which he denied saying that if the little girl was "shagging" him it was his fault. Further testimony by Boynton concerned appearances of his wife and himself in public. Boynton admitted kissing the young girl in question on two occasions.

Boynton denied that Artemus Dingwell, Jr., asked him to "cut out" his actions with the girl as people were talking about them.

Mr. Anderson asked about a certain written statement said to have been made by Boynton to the Congregational church.

Witness said he didn't know where it was and that when he last saw it in May 1912 Dr. Cady had it. Witness promised to produce it in court in the morning if it had not been destroyed.

When the court adjourned at four o'clock Boynton was still on the stand and resumed his testimony this morning.

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN CHURCH

At the morning service the minister Rev. Carl G. Horst took for his theme "The Great Catastrophe of the Middle West." He said: "The great catastrophes which we witness every little while are not the work of an evil spirit, nor are they sent as a punishment of God for the wickedness of the people, but they show the world still in the process of creation. We shall probably never reach a complete and satisfying solution of these tragedies. We know not the secrets of the universe nor do we understand the plans and purposes of the Eternal. Faith in God, alone, can help us bear whatever burden may be laid upon us to bear. That's what faith is for. If faith is good for anything, the days of adversity is the time to test it. If it does not mean everything at such a time, it is worth nothing at other times. Through faith we believe that we cannot be where God is not. Even if we should meet death in some frightful disaster on land or sea, we believe that the shattering of the body does not mean the extinguishing of the soul."

The Wollaston Forum held its last meeting of the season Sunday and listened to a helpful and inspiring address on "The Man who Arrives" by Frank P. Speare, Educational Director of the Boston Y. M. C. A.

The Wollaston Unitarian club, organized Oct. 23, 1900, the oldest men's club in town, will hold its last meeting of the season Tuesday evening. Dinner will be served at 6.30. The after-dinner speaker is the Rev. Isaac Pierson, who with 20 years experience as a missionary in China will speak on "China in the Future." This will also be the annual meeting at which officers for the year will be elected.

The Ladies' Aid Alliance, which has had a most successful season, will hold its annual business meeting for the election of officers Wednesday. Luncheon in charge of competent committee with Mrs. Frank A. Page as chairman will be served at one o'clock.

The Semi annual convention of the Norfolk County Association of King's Daughters and Sons will be held in the Baptist church, corner Park and Beacon streets, Brookline, Thursday.

The biennial general conference of Unitarian churches of North America will be held in Buffalo, Oct. 6-9. It is hoped that our Church will send a number of delegates.

Unitarians everywhere will be glad to learn that Dr. Samuel A. Eliot, president of the American Unitarian Association, who has just undergone a painful and critical surgical operation for gall stones, is now practically out of danger and no doubt will be able to preside at the annual meetings of the Association and Allied Societies in May.

The spring meeting of the Norfolk Conference of Unitarian churches will be held in South Natick.

The sixth International Congress of Free and Progressive Christians and and other Religious Liberals will be held in Paris, France, July 16-22. The American delegate to this congress will leave Montreal by the steamship "Heutonic" sailing June 28, and the steamship "Arabic" sailing July 1 from Boston for Liverpool.

The annual meeting of the Boston Federation of Young People's Religious Unions will be held with our Union, Sunday, April 27, with afternoon and evening sessions, as is customary.

The annual May meetings which Unitarians form all over the country and Canada attend in large numbers, will be held during the week beginning Sunday May 18. On Thursday of that week the Edward Everett Hale statue will be unveiled and dedicated. There is certain to be a very large assembly to hear the distinguished speakers, including ex-President Taft. The memorial will be given a prominent place on the Charles street mall.

Rev. George F. Pratt of Christ church, Dorchester, was the speaker at Y. P. R. U. meeting.

WHICHER—STEARNS.

The wedding of Miss Helen Louise Stearns to John Thomas Whicher, Harvard, '95 formerly of Quincy was solemnized at St. Paul's Church, Brookline, Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Seamans gave her daughter in marriage. The ceremony was by Rev. Carroll W. Perry, rector of the church. Dr. Edwin Allen Locke was best man and the ushers were Arthur Holden of South Orange, N. J., J. Linden Thompson of New York and Dr. H. T. Karsner, Dr. Francis W. Palfrey, Dr. S. B. Wolbach and Dr. Theodore J. Eastman, all of Brookline. The bride's only attendant was Miss Polly Quincy of New York.

There was a reception at Hotel Somerset with buffet refreshments. Mr. and Mrs. Whicher are to live at 50 Stirling road, Brookline, where they will be at home to their friends after June 1.

DEMOCRATS IN FULL CONTROL

Opening of Special Session of Sixty-Third Congress

TARIFF BILL IS INTRODUCED

Underwood Measure Removes Duties on Necessities and Taxes Luxuries —Even More Drastic In Parts Than Had Been Anticipated—New Englanders Confer Over It

Washington, April 8.—Democracy reigned supreme when the gavels at both ends of the Capitol announced the convening of the extraordinary session of the Sixty-third congress. In the house 435 representatives—the first house under the new apportionment—made merry at the fruition of Democratic hopes and aspirations.

In the senate the orderly, dignified procedure of reconvening after the special session of March 5 was carried through with no unusual features.

While the legislators were finding their new seats, a procession of women suffragists representing every congressional district in the United States invaded the Capitol and presented petitions demanding a constitutional amendment for equal suffrage.

The Underwood tariff bill was one of the first measures to be introduced in the house. It bore endorsement "H. R. No. 10" on the official records.

The first business in the house chamber was organization of the lower legislative body. Its members were called to order by Clerk Trimble, and then organized by selection of a speaker and other officers. James H. Mann of Illinois was the choice of the Republicans for the speakership and Victor Murdock of Kansas that of the Progressives, but it was Champ Clark of Missouri who was elected by the overwhelming votes of the Democracy. The vote for speaker was:

Clark, 271; Mann, 111; Murdock, 18; Nelson of Wisconsin, 1; Cooper of Wisconsin, 4.

More radically sweeping cuts than have been attempted in American tariff revision in a generation are contained in the long-expected Democratic tariff bill prepared by the house ways and means committee and introduced by Chairman Underwood.

The bill has the approval of President Wilson as it stands, and is to be made an administration measure. Its backers predict it will pass the house and will be hard to block in the senate.

It is even more drastic in parts than had been anticipated. Underwood, whose name the measure will bear, asserts it will materially reduce the high cost of living.

It gives free raw wool and tears to pieces schedule K; cuts the tariff on sugar and provides that the product shall go on the free list at the end of three years; revolutionizes the cotton schedule by cuts that are expected to reduce the price of that necessary product; puts steel rails on the free list and slashes all existing duties on iron and steel products, and in the market basket necessities of life—meats, flour, bread, etc.—either abolishes the duty or reduces to an absolute minimum.

All these articles are put on the free list, namely:

Meats, flour, bread, boots and shoes, lumber, coal, harness, saddlery, iron ore, milk and cream, potatoes, salt, swine, corn, cornmeal, cotton bagging, agricultural implements, leather, wood pulp, Bibles, printing paper not worth more than 2½ cents per pound, typewriters, sewing machines, typesetting machines, cash registers, steel rails, fence wire, cotton ties, nails, hoop and band iron, fish, sulphur, soda, tanning materials, acetic and sulphuric acids, borax, lumber products, including broom handles, clapboards, hubs of wheels, posts, laths, pickets, staves, shingles.

These principal items are taken from the free list and taxed: Rough and uncut diamonds and precious stones, furs, coal tar products, 10 percent; volatile oils, 20 percent; spices, from 1 to 2 cents a pound.

Fifteen New England representatives, including members from Massachusetts, Maine, Connecticut and Rhode Island, had an "information conference" last night in the office of Representative Peters of Massachusetts, a member of the ways and means committee. Peters explained at length the proposed changes in the tariff on boots and shoes and woolen and cotton goods.

There is strong individual sentiment among the New Englanders against some of the proposed reductions, but no concerted opposition is looked for. Most of those attending the conference argued against immediate action on the bill by the Democratic caucus, declaring that more time should be given for study of the measure.

Child Killed by Quicklime

Atlantic City, N. J., April 8.—Splashing with a stick in a bed of quicklime in the back yard of his home, 2-year-old Walter Mitchell lost his balance and tumbled into the steaming mortar. He was burned about the throat and eyes and died in a short time.

FLIGHT OVER ATLANTIC

Curtiss Stands Ready to Build Airship For That Purpose

Hammondsport, N. Y., April 8.—With the interest of the aviators of the world and people attracted by the London Daily Mail's offer of a $50,000 cash prize to the first man who will make a flight over the Atlantic ocean, great weight naturally attaches to the opinion of Glenn Curtiss as to such an achievement.

Curtiss, when interviewed, declared positively that he believed the offer would not stand long unwon—that in the course of a year or two the transatlantic flight would be accomplished. And other fliers now at the Curtiss establishment—Charles K. Hamilton, Charles Niles, Beckwith Havens and others—gave coinciding views.

"I stand willing to undertake the construction of a machine for the purpose," said Curtiss. "I am not prepared to give offhand the details of such a machine as would be required to make the flight, but under certain conditions I will undertake to furnish the equipment.

"It is altogether possible that with such aeroplanes as now exist, were full co-operation given in the matter of government aid and the escort of naval vessels, a flight could be made between the two hemispheres—Newfoundland and Ireland. That is a distance of about 1700 miles."

BUFFALO CARS ATTACKED

Stones and Bricks Are Hurled as Strikebreakers Go to Work

Buffalo, April 8.—Scenes of disorder followed the attempt of the International Railway company last night to man its cars with strikebreakers of whom, it is reported, 250 arrived from eastern cities to break the strike of the carmen called to secure higher wages and a readjustment of working hours.

Comparatively few cars were run on the Main street line, and none on the East Side or crosstown lines. The trips made by the Main street cars were fraught with danger, and nearly every car was forced to run through a fusillade of stones and bricks. Considerable damage was done, but no one was seriously hurt.

WILSON CHARGES RECEIVED BY BRYAN

Committee Is Meanwhile Urging Retention of Ambassador

Washington, April 8.—Charges by Luis M. Rojas that Ambassador Wilson at Mexico City was morally responsible for the deaths of President Madero and Vice President Suarez and had refused them protection, were formally received by Secretary Bryan, who declared he had not read the charges and declined to say what his course would be. Likewise, he declined to discuss other published attacks upon the ambassador.

Though it is not expected Bryan will give any official recognition to Rojas or his charges, he probably will investigate carefully Wilson's conduct during the fighting in Mexico City and his relations to General Huerta and General Diaz in their overthrow of Madero.

The situation created by the Rojas charges is the more interesting because it comes just when a committee representing the American colony in Mexico City is in Washington to urge the retention of Wilson as ambassador.

STABBED WITH PITCHFORK

Punishment of Lynn Boy For Hitting Man With Snowball

Lynn, Mass., April 8.—The fun of throwing snowballs in a heavy April snowstorm was terminated suddenly for 12-year-old Gail W. Thompson when he was stabbed in the back with a pitchfork in the hands of Charles Upham, caretaker of the Wyman estate on Beacon Hill avenue.

Upham said the boy hit him. Upham was arrested on a warrant sworn out by the father of the injured boy.

He was accused of defrauding banks and silk manufacturers of nearly $1,000,000 through fraudulent invoices.

"Blue Sky" Law For Missouri

Jefferson City, Mo., April 8.—Governor Major signed the "blue sky" law, which regulates the organization of investment companies in this state. The bill provides that stock in such companies may be sold only after an investigation and report by the secretary of state.

Wrenn Held on Death Charge

Keene, N. H., April 8.—John Wrenn, charged with the murder of J. S. Hamilton at Hinsdale, pleaded not guilty when arraigned in the superior criminal court here. He was held without bail. No date was set for the trial.

"DIGNIFIED AND NATURAL"

Wilson Tells Why He Read His First Message to Congress

Washington, April 8.—President Wilson explained his reasons for deciding personally to present his message to congress today. The president said:

"I think that this is the only dignified way for the president to address the houses on the opening of a session, instead of sending the address up by messenger and letting the clerk read it perfunctorily in the familiar clerk's tone of voice.

"I thought that the dignified and natural thing to do was to read it myself. It is a precedent which has been discontinued a long time, but which is a very respectable precedent."

The president delivered his first message to congress in joint session. He was escorted to Speaker Clark's office and there was received by the vice president and the speaker. An escort of two members from the senate and house were appointed to take the president to the speaker's rostrum in the house. The president was then introduced by the speaker, and read his message.

Hopedale, Mass., April 8.—In an ultimatum last night to the striking employes of the Draper company's textile plant, the company gives until April 9 for all men to return to work. Those who remain away after that date will be considered out of the employment of the company and permanent men will be hired to take their places.

While there will be no evictions by the company it is stated that those strikers who fail to report for work tomorrow will be requested to vacate the company's houses to make room for new men.

Upward of 2000 Draper company strikers and their families and sympathizers paraded from Milford to Hopedale late yesterday. When the employes who have remained at work for the company came from the foundries they were greeted with hoots and yells of "Scab." No violence was attempted by the paraders.

Colonel TODHUNTER of Missouri

By RIPLEY D. SAUNDERS

Copyright, 1911, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company.

SYNOPSIS

Colonel Todhunter booms his friend William J. Strickland for the nomination for governor. Tom Strickland, son of William, loves Mary Todhunter. Lottie-May Doggett loves Tom.

Eph Tucker's money thrown in to boot!"

Mrs. Todhunter laughed lightly. "Mary's just beginning to receive company, Colonel Todhunter," she expounded. "And, like all girls, she wants to have a good time with her beaux. If it don't happen to be Tom Strickland that's handy it'll be Stam Tucker. And if it isn't Stam it'll be somebody else."

"Mrs. Todhunter," returned the colonel, "you're wastin' your breath tellin' me things like that. I know Mary Todhunter, and I knew you when you was Mary Todhunter's age. If she ain't the livin' likeness of what you was then I'll eat my hat, so what can you tell me that I don't know already? Tom Strickland will have his hands full bringin' her to a standstill, I tell you!"

By this time Mary and her escort had reached the house and Stam Tucker was assisting her from the buggy. Mrs. Todhunter and the colonel advanced to meet them.

"You've got to stay to supper, Stam," said Mrs. Todhunter. "I know you must be good and hungry, and Colonel Todhunter will have old Jupiter take your horse around to the stable. You and Mary come right in now."

Stam Tucker gladly accepted the invitation, the colonel calling to old Uncle Jupiter, the faithful family retainer, to take charge of the bay mare, and then the Todhunters and their guest went in to supper.

But, hungry though he had declared himself and grateful as was the Missouri supper of fried chicken, egg bread, butter beans and corn on the ear, with coffee made under Mrs. Todhunter's own supervision, Colonel Todhunter found time to divert himself vastly with the two young people.

"You've got to stay to supper, Stam," said Mrs. Todhunter.

"You boys and girls these days are a mighty low spirited lot," he announced gravely. "I was a-studyin' all of you at the Daughters' picnic, and I never in all my born days saw young folks miss so many chances for havin' fun."

"Why, father!" indignantly cried Mary. "I think we had the nicest kind of a time. I know I did, anyway. Didn't you, Mr. Tucker?"

"Indeed, I did, Miss Mary," promptly replied Stam Tucker, but with a discomforting recollection of Tom Strickland in his mind. "And it certainly was a big success for the Daughters, too. They must have made a lot for the Soldiers' home, I should think."

"They'd ha' made a lot more," said Colonel Todhunter, "if you young people had been more'n half alive. What the Daughters ought to ha' done was to have a good old fashioned fiddler out there and got up a big barn dance, chargin' everybody extra for dancin'."

"A barn dance—oh!" mocked Mary, her pretty nose uptilted. "I'd like to see myself taking part in a barn dance, just like we were living in the backwoods."

"You'd see yourself enjoyin' a mighty fine frolic if you did, young lady," declared the colonel valiantly. "Good old Virginia reels and cotillions and a mazurka and schottische or two sandwiched in between 'em ain't to be sneezed at, let me tell you."

The speaker glared at the scornful young couple. Then he chuckled. "And you ought to ha' played kissin' games, too," he resumed—"'Spin the plate' and 'Pleased or displeased' and 'Heavy, heavy, hangs over your head.' Great name above, th' ain't nothin' like them there old games for makin' young people real sociable."

Mary tossed her head disdainfully. "Kissing games, indeed!" she cried. "If that ain't old fashioned, I'd like to know!"

"'Course it's old fashioned," agreed Colonel Todhunter, the light of relishful teasing in his eyes. "So is kissin' itself, for that matter. But I won't trust none of you Nineveh girls behind the door when there's any kissin' goin' on, old fashioned or no old fashioned, Miss Mary Todhunter!"

"You ought to be ashamed of yourself, father!" cried Mary, mightily indignant. "What in the world will Mr. Tucker think?"

"I don't care what Stam thinks, it's true all the same," returned Colonel Todhunter gravely. "And what's in it to be ashamed of? The trouble with you young folks nowadays is that you are skeered to death o' bein' natural. You know you've got to play the old game, but you think you're smart enough to play it in a new way and you ain't. All you do is to spoil the game like today. I didn't see ary single one o' you do a real natural thing from beginnin' to end, and I had my eyes peeled every last blessed minute!"

"I can vouch for that!" laughed Mrs. Todhunter. "You can't keep yourself out of young people's affairs to save your life, Thurston."

"I want to help 'em along, that's why," chuckled Colonel Todhunter. "But I must say I had mighty hard sleddin' on that there job this day!" At this every one laughed.

"Anyway," continued Colonel Todhunter as they left the supper table and returned to the front gallery, "it's more the fault o' the young men than it is of the girls, I'll be flam-jiggered if it ain't. I never saw such a lot of I'll-run-if-you-touch-me beaux since the good Lord made me. Ain't that so, Stam?"

"I hope not, colonel," replied Stam Tucker, laughing. "I certainly did my best to give Miss Mary and the other young ladies a good time." He looked a bit reproachfully at Mary as he spoke.

"Indeed you did, Stam!" said Mary quickly, remembering Tom Strickland's better treatment by her. "You're just as nice an escort as any girl could ask."

Colonel Todhunter snorted. "Long sufferin' patience!" he mocked. "That's just the trouble, Stam Tucker! All you Nineveh boys are good enough when it comes to fetchin' and carryin' for the girls, but that don't count for shucks. The sort o' man they like is the man that bosses 'em around, that throws his handkerchief at 'em and makes 'em come when he calls, and none of you Nineveh sparks seems to have sand enough for that. You needn't tell me you've got it, Stam Tucker, and not even Tom Strickland"—

"Speak of the angels, colonel," Tom Strickland's own voice interposed from the lowest step of the gallery, "and you hear the flutter of their wings!"

"No, I don't, not by a jugful," retorted Colonel Todhunter, unruffled. "When any of you Stricklands begin sproutin' wings, the world's comin' to an end. How are you, Tom? I didn't know you were there!"

"Why didn't you come in to supper, Tom?" asked Mrs. Todhunter.

"I had supper at home, thank you, Mrs. Todhunter," answered the young man, ascending to join the little group as he spoke. "Howdy, Miss Mary! Hope you're not feeling tired after the picnic. How are you, Stam?"

The jealous antagonism between the two young men made itself instantly felt. Stam Tucker plainly resented Tom's entrance upon the scene. The latter as plainly showed that he had come purposely to be in his rival's way. The situation was greatly to Colonel Todhunter's humorous liking.

"Well, well!" he exclaimed innocently. "Great Scott and Maria, you must have hot footed it away from your victles, young man! If your daddy'll only get such a move on for governor we'll win hands down!"

Tom Strickland laughed. "It all depends, colonel," he made pointed answer, "on how badly my father wants to be governor. If he wants it half as bad as I wanted to call on Miss Mary this evening, I'll back him for a winner against all comers!"

The note of challenge was unmistakable. Stam Tucker's face darkened with anger. Mary Todhunter blushed to the roots of her hair. The colonel's grim lips twitched with amused approval, his eyes twinkling under their shaggy gray brows. But Mrs. Todhunter came to the rescue with some placid remark that eased the momentary strain.

A little later she and Colonel Todhunter withdrew to their own end of the gallery, leaving Mary to entertain her callers. Colonel Todhunter was vastly tickled.

"Lord, Mary," he confided to his wife; "them two young rascals wouldn't like nothin' better'n to get at each other, hammer and tongs, this very minute! I declare, honey, this here old world of our'n don't change a bit. It's precisely like our own young days. I'll be eternally whipsawed if it ain't, and it's been that way for all time—as it was in the beginnin', is now and ever shall be, world without end, amen!"

And so profoundly interested was the colonel that he would gladly have lingered to see which of the two young men "sat the other out" had not Mrs. Todhunter fairly compelled him to accompany her into the house at last. It was with a sigh of genuine disappointment that he arose to do her bidding.

"Bless my soul, it's as good as a show!" he said. "But I don't wonder you pull me away from seein' it, Mrs. Todhunter. Your daughter Mary's playin' every one o' your old tricks over again. You've got good reason for not wantin' me to keep tab on 'em at this late day, madam."

The moon had just moved majestically out from behind a little silver edged cloud. Colonel Todhunter's eyes swept across the softly mellowed Missouri night picture. Then he nodded his head as if communing with himself.

"You're right, honey," he spoke finally. "Good Lord above us! I'm just as much a part of all this as our old house here or the trees and the grass and them there cornfields 'way 'cross the pike yonder. Go 'way from Nineveh? Why, they'd have to pull me up by the roots to make me do it, suh!"

OPERATORS ARE FOR STRIKE IF NEEDED

Tieup of Boston Telephones Is Delayed For a While

Boston, April 8.—The probability of a telephone strike has been put off for some days, at least. In answer to the constant appeals from all sides on the part of the business houses of the city, the girls of the Operators' union signified their willingness to arbitrate.

While the telephone company would not go on record as willing to leave the matter to arbitration, it agreed to further conferences.

In the meantime 1800 telephone girls gathered at the headquarters of the union yesterday and voted to strike. The vote is to be held, pending the results of their conferences and the efforts of the state board of arbitration, which is already at work.

If the conferences between the company and the union bear no fruit and the efforts of the arbitration board are in vain, the whole matter will be up to the telephone company.

RED SOX AND HARVARD

Will Clash Today In Opener For the Season of 1913

Boston, April 8.—Harvard's baseball team will meet the Red Sox in the first ball game of the season at Fenway Park this afternoon. The Harvard nine has been brought to a fair development by Coach Sexton and will do their utmost to keep the champs down to a small score.

The opening game is a boomer not only for Boston fans who are anxious to see the Red Sox in action again but for the students at Cambridge, who feel that it is up to the ball team to make clear the slate of Crimson victories this year.

It was the seventy-seventh year that Bullard has voted in town meeting, and he walked to and from the polls.

OIL STEAMER TOOK THE WATER

New Craft at Fore River Successfully Launched

FOR STANDARD OIL CO.

The oil steamer Richmond built by the Fore River Co. for the Standard Oil Co., was successfully launched at the Fore River plant this noon. The launch was set for 12 o'clock and it lacked but four minutes of that hour when the vessel begun to slide down the ways for the first dip in her natural element.

There was no special function at the launch and outside of a few officials of the Fore River Co. and Standard Oil Co. the only spectators were employees at the yard. Mrs. Henry J. Rahlves wife of the Chief Engineer of the ship, when she goes into commission was the sponser, coming on from Berkley, Cal for that purpose. Mrs. Rahlves arrived at the yard shortly after 11 o'clock where she was greeted by President Bowles and presented with the usual launching bouquet of roses which she carried on her arm.

The launching stand erected at the bow of the vessel was soon reached and work driving home the wedges which lifted the vessel from the blocks onto the ways was immediately commenced. There was a brief lull before President Bowles gave the word to saw away the soul pieces. These blocks were soon rent asunder and as the vessel started down the ways, Mrs. Rahlves smashed a bottle of American wine over her bow and gave her the name Richmond.

The bottle of wine as usual was encased in a steel mesh to prevent the broken glass from flying and was suspended from the bow of the vessel by a tri colored ribbon. As the vessel started down the ways this ribbon was cut and was afterward gathered up and presented to the launching party as souvenirs while the broken bottle was encased in a teekwood box and presented to the sponsor.

Immediately after taking the water tugs hauled the Richmond to the fitting out dock where she will be completed.

The Richmond is built to carry 2,250,000 gallons of oil in bulk and is 435 feet over all, 54 feet beam and 31 1-2 feet draft. She is subdivided into 16 tanks for oil, with a pump room located forward and two tanks for fuel oil aft. The machinery is aft and she is equipped with all sorts of steam windlasses and hoisters for cargo handling, warping and towing. It is expected the engines will develop 3000 horsepower and give her an average speed of 11 1-2 knots.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Attorney Anderson, counsel for Mr. Ayers continued his examination of Mr. Boynton when the hearing was resumed this morning. The domestic relations of Mr. and Mrs. Boynton were reviewed and reference was made to the time Mr. Boynton said he saw Mr. Ayers coming from the room of his wife and set the date as Dec. 18, 1911.

Attorney Anderson introduced the statement that Mr. Boynton had made before the Oversight Committee of the Suffolk South Conference, which related to his complaint against the minister and then questioned him in detail regarding the circumstances of seein g the minister coming from the room of his wife.

Boynton testified that it was about 7.45 A. M., that he had gone down stairs to fix the furnace and remained but a minute and when he reached upstairs he saw Mr. Ayers with his shoes unbuttoned, wearing triped trousers and minus a collar.

Attorney Anderson asked how long he lived there after the incident and he replied several weeks.

Attorney Anderson then read to the jury the charges made before the Oversight Comittee about Mr. Ayers alienating the affection of his wife. Boynton further told that Mr. Ayers had told him he had owned an auto in Cape Vincent but that he did not know this to be so.

Mr. Boynton created some excitement when he said that the only difference between his breakfast and the dog's breakfast was that the dogs was set on the floor.

Mrs. Boynton's opposition to a further fulfillment of a position at Chandler & Co., by Miss Flora Sass was known to Mr. Boynton who secured her the position. Boynton talked with Mr. Colby but did not say to him, "The more I can drag the name of my wife in the dirt the better pleased I will be."

At a meeting in Pilgrim Hall, Oct. 1911 before the Oversight committee Boynton admitted that he defended Mr. Ayer and at a watch night service when 1912 came in at the Park and Downs Church that he had said he hoped he would be better in the year to come and try to lead a better life and do more for the church. He did not say that he would serve the pastor more loyally. When he spoke to Mr. Ayers regarding his alienating the affections of his wife the latter glared at him and went on writing.

BURNED MORTGAGE.

Sunday afternoon, Rev. Carl H. Raupach, formerly pastor of the Hall Place M. E. church, celebrated a signal event in the history of St. Andrew's M. E. Church, of which he is now pastor, when a mortgage note of $5,000 was burned.

The match was applied by Rev. Joseph A. Candlin of Saxonville who was pastor of the Church for five years preceding Mr. Raupach, a cornetist played the doxology, the audience rising and singing it as the cornetist finished.

Rev. Dillon Bronson, D. D., District Supt., paid a very high tribute to Rev. C. H. Raupach for his faithful, unselfish work and Christlike character, a tribute of honor and respect for the minister, who in the face of a call to a larger church and salary, could choose to stay in the apparently smaller one because he felt that God called him to do His work in this part of His vineyard, to the man who not only could say "I'll say what you want me to say, dear Lord," but also "I'll stay where you want me to stay dear Lord"

Mr. Raupach has been unanimously invited to return to St. Andrew's Church for another year, with an increase in his salary. Quincy people who knew him and worked with him while here are pleased to learn of his great success in this difficult field and trust that the coming year may bring still larger results in the work of the Master in St. Andrews.

Quincy friends attended the services on Sunday at St. Andrews.

Wilber sets up the claim that his antagonist, by the medium of his punches, so disarranged his map and anatomy that he has had to stay in his home ever since and that he feels entitled to refund for physician's fees, for attendance of nurse, medicines, time off, etc.

SEES DANGER IN PAN-SLAV WAVE

Germany Outlines Her Attitude In the Event of War

SHE WILL STAND BY AUSTRIA

Believes Attitude of Russia and France Correct, but Sounds Warning to Them—Agreement Regarding Frontier of Albania Prevented European Conflagration

London, April 8.—Germany has thrust herself into the Balkan question in a manner calculated to set the teeth of the dual alliance and triple entente on edge. She declares that a passive European Turkey has been transformed into Russian Pan-Slavic political active states that threaten the balance of Europe.

Russia and France are warned that in event of Austria going to war she will find Germany fighting by her side. The correctness of the attitude of the Russian and French governments is admitted, but doubt is cast on the strength of Russia to control the Pan-Slavic current set loose, and attention is called to the war party in France which believes that the French army outnumbers that of Germany and that it is better armed.

Coincident with this pronouncement is a statement made by Sir Edward Grey, British foreign secretary, in the house of commons, to the effect that there would have been a European conflagration but for the agreement reached by the powers regarding the frontiers of the future state of Albania.

Grey was emphasizing the importance of the international character of the naval demonstration now being made on the Montenegrin coast and the importance of upholding the European agreement on the subject of Albania when he made the grave statement that "agreement is essential to the peace of Europe, and in my opinion it was only accomplished just in time to preserve the peace among the great powers."

In the meantime, Montenegro has told the commander of the fleet of the powers which is blockading her coasts that she will continue to make war on her enemy, Turkey, and that she resents the violation by the powers of the neutrality which they promised to observe when the war began.

What will be the next move by Europe? is the question being asked by war students. Will she use shot and shell to force the puny monarchy to discontinue her attacks on the last Turkish stronghold in Europe? Why is Scutari holding out, anyway? Turkey has accepted the mediation of the powers, and has agreed to cede all her territory in this part of Europe to the allies. The obvious answer appears to be that she is fighting at the suggestion of the powers in the interest of the fictitious Albania which they propose to set up.

Jones Says He Was Given $100 and Promised Job of Liquor Inspector

Concord, N. H., April 8.—Representative Clifford L. The transaction took place at the Manchester House in Manchester last December, Snow testified, the meeting being arranged by Rosecrans W. Pilisbury, a Republican candidate for United States senator. Snow declared he received no money from anybody else.

ADVERTISE IN THE LEDGER.

POEHLER MADE GRAND FINISH

Changed a Loss of 25 in Fourth Box to Victory of 48

CHRISTOPHER HOPEFUL

Paul Poehler took the first leg of his bowling match with John Christopher, at the Boston alleys, Monday evening, by a score of 1105 to 1057, a lead of 48 pins. The second and deciding round of ten strings, for the purse of $500, unless of course the men should go to a tie will be rolled this evening at the same place. Poehler made rather a poor start and Christopher had him by 25 pins at the close of the fourth box. In the fifth Poehler cut loose and hit the candles for 134, while the best Christopher could do was 105, giving the Quincy man a margin of four pins. From that point Poehler was never headed. Christopher showed much sensational play but his scoring was not as consistent as that of Poehler from that fifth string to the finish.

Poehler stock began to soar, for he increased his lead to 19 pins on the next string. To make it interesting Christopher got going in the following inning and he cut Poehler's lead to three pins. The eighth was a lively session. Poehler cracking 135 to 115, which gave the German a lead of 23 pins. He gained five more on the ninth, and in the 10th, with a string of 124, made the margin of 48 pins, with which he will go into the last lap this evening.

The scores:

The match was replete with sensational shooting and time and again cheers and applause greeted some difficult shot. Though behind on the total for the night's rolling, John Christopher did the most remarkable rolling. The smiling Italian repeatedly picked up difficult spares, as did Poehler, but for shots that sent the spectators into a frenzy, the honors belonged to Christopher.

What is rarely seen in a match is a 7-10 spare bought up with but one piece of deadwood. Early in the ninth string Christopher left standing the 7 and 10 pins (for the unitiated the back pins on each side of the alley) and a piece of deadwood was wabbling around. For probably a half minute it rolled back and forth and finally stopped near the No. 1 spot. The deadwood was almost parallel with the alley.

All eyes were on Christopher, as it was plain that he was going to try to make a carom off the deadwood. The Italian measured it carefully and shot. With a smash the fast ball hit the deadwood, drove it across No. 7 pin and then caromed off and cleaned up No. 10 for a straight-on-the-nose hit. The applause that greeted Chris was the greatest accorded by the crowd during the match.

During the early part of the contest Poehler did considerable cutting but his splendid work in the latter strings more than made up for it Chris, on the other hand, had more than his share of tough breaks in the last five strings. Both men, however gamely stood up and hammered away in an effort to make every pin count At the close of the 10 strings Christopher was not down-hearted over the result, for he said that he was confident that he would more than overcome the lead, when he rolls the final 10 tonight on the same pair of alleys

After a little practice rolling the word to start was given, and after shaking hands the men went to their respective alleys, the rule being a string on an alley and then a change Both men cut on the first string and were under the century, Chris having 97 and Poehler 92. Poehler worked hard on the second for 94, while the Italian split 115. Starting the third Chris had a lead of 26 pins, which was then cut to 21, as he got but 93 to Poehler's 98.

MRS. BOYNTON ACCUSES HUSBAND IN SUIT AGAINST PARSON AYERS

Minister Present and Offered Prayer on this Momentous Occasion

Mrs. Helen T. Boynton, wife of Chester A. Boynton, who is suing Rev. William B. Ayers, pastor of the Park and Downs church for $25,000 for alleged alienation of his wife's affections was the principal and only witness in the case Tuesday afternoon and was still on the stand at adjournment and resumed this morning.

Mrs. Boynton's testimony was against her husband.

She not only denied the charges her husband had made in his testimony concerning herself and Mr. Ayers, but declared she had seen him and Flora Sass hugging and kissing in the Boynton home, when they did not know they were observed.

She made allegations concerning the personal habits of her husband, declared that when she accused him of fondness for Miss Sass he had begged on his knees to be forgiven and stoutly denied that there had ever been improprieties between herself and Rev. Mr. Ayers.

The entire morning session was occupied by the plaintiff's side, Boynton completing his testimony and five other witnesses being heard in his behalf.

Miss Sass was in the courtroom all day. Boynton, when not testifying, sat in the front row of witness seats. Rev. George L. Cady, who attended the afternoon session sat at Boynton's side. Rev. Mr. Ayers occupied a seat at the table with his counsel, took copious notes of the testimony and was in frequent whispered conference with his attorneys.

Robert R. Hawley, who is employed in the same place of business as Boynton. He testified to having seen Mr. Ayers and Mrs. Boynton, in December 1910, walking arm-in-arm on Tremont street in Boston.

Mrs. Mabel Barstow of Malden, a cousin of Boynton, testified that on one Sunday when she went with the Boyntons and Mr. Ayers to look over the house on Beach street she had told Boynton that "he had an elephant on his hands." To this, witness said, Mr. Ayers replied that everything had been arranged, whereupon Mrs. Boynton placed her hand gently agafnst Mr. Ayers' cheek to prevent him from saying anything further. Mr. Barstow said she had seen Ayers and Mrs. Boynton together in Boston in 1910

Mrs. Helen M. Dyer of Atlantic testified that she had seen evidence of affection between Mr. and Mrs. Boynton when she visited them before Mr. Ayers came to their home.

Mrs. Mary V. Davis of Lawrence, a sister of Boynton, testified that the Boyntons, when she had seen them before Mr. Ayers came to Wollaston, appeared to be happy.

George Cutler, a neighbor of the Boyntons, testified to having seen Mr. Boynton in the South Station on Feb. 14, 1912, when Boynton had suit case and grip. He also saw Mrs. Boynton that day leading Mr. Ayers' dog. Mr. Anderson had no questions to ask.

Mrs. Boynton after she had testified as to the date of her marriage, said she and her husband lived with her parents until they went to the house on Beach street, June 2, 1910. Since leaving that house, Feb. 6, 1912, she had lived with her parents, with the exception of one week which she spent with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Richardson, her friends.

Prior to the time the Boyntons and Mr. Ayers occupied the Beach street house together, witness said, Mr. Boynton had been talking about moving and had made the suggestion to

STRAW VOTE ON GRADE CROSSING ARRANGED BY BOARD OF TRADE

Blank Petitions In Stores and Citizens Can Give Views For or Against Plan of Special Commissioners

Reason for City's Plan and Against the Proposed Plan Prepared by Augustus C. Bates Endorsed by Directors

Slug—Grade crossing

A special meeting of the Board of Directors of the Board of Trade was held Tuesday evening to take action on the matter of grade crossings in Quincy. After some discussion it was voted to have 500 blank petitions printed which will be placed in public stores throughout the city for citizens to sign and express their opinion. The petitons are so worded that a citizen may express his opinion in favor of having the tracks depressed through the city or of having them elevated.

In this manner the Directors hope to be able to arrive at the general sentiment of the citizens. All citizens are earnestly requested to express his opinion on this most important matter.

Augustus Bates who is strenuously opposed to the plan submitted by the special commissioners has prepared a list of reasons for his position favoring the city plan and against the proposed plan which the Railroad commissioners desired him to present to them in typewritten form.

The Board of Trade Directors have endorsed the reasons and arguments advanced by Mr. Bates. He gives ten reasons against the report of the special commission, and 12 reasons why the city plan is the solution of the abolishment of the grade crossings at Water and Saville streets as follows:

Reasons why the petition of the Old Colony R. R. Co., and the N. Y. N. H. & H. R. R. Co., should not be allowed at this time by your honorable board of railroad commisioners with consent to change the grade of the railroad in Quincy and a certificate, at this time, by your honorable board of railroad commissioners that the adoption of the plan for the abolition of the grade crossings at Saville street and Water street in said city of Quincy as determined by the special commission appointed by the superior court.

First—Because it closes up and makes dead ends of Saville street, a public highway, while the city plan saves and maintains Saville street for public use in its present location in the centre of the city.

Second—Because it takes Irving place, a public highway, for railroad purposes, while the city plan retains and saves Irving place a public highway in its present location, as a public highway for public uses, in the centre of the city.

Third—Because it unnecessarily creates and builds a new highway from Upland road to Granite street, unnecessarily creating great damages by the taking of private property and destroying eight business firms and business property, the largest business block in Quincy and depriving the city of Quincy forever of much valuable taxable property.

Fourth—Because it raises School street twelve feet higher than it is now, making it utterly prohibitive for teaming and travel, besides making great and unnecessary property and business damage by this radical change in grade at School street.

Fifth—Because the twelve foot raise of School street, necessarily requires the raising of the grade of Marsh street, where it intersects with School street, makng further unnecessary property damages on a thickly settled street. The city plan does not raise School street or Marsh street one inch or damage the property on School street or Marsh street one cent

Sixth—Because it places Water street ten feet further down in the hole, requiring the building of two bridges over Water street, one a railroad bridge, the other a new highway bridge for a new highway, causing the closing up of Liberty street and making a dead end, also the closing up of Presidents avenue making a dead end.

Seventh—Because these radical and uncalled for changes in the grades at Water street and Saville street make teaming prohibitive. The making of five dead ends to our present highways and the building of new streets to conform with these radical changes unnecessarily creates great and untold damages to property both business and residential.

Eighth—Because of these radical changes in grades and the wholesale taking of property and damages to many firms in business, it will incur many law suits which the city of Quincy is obliged to settle. The city plans very largely eliminate the law suit industry.

Ninth—Because it builds a "Chinese Wall" through our city destroying the city for business purposes on the westerly side of the railroad forever, which is by far the larger half of the area of Quincy.

Tenth—Because we believe the special commission exceeded the scope of their authority by making such radical and unnecessary changes creating unfair and disasterous conditions to the city of Quincy, and its abuttors, and the taxpayers, showing in the extreme its partiality to the railroad and selfish interests to the great disadvantage and irreparable damage to the City of Quincy, its tax payers and its people.

Why the city plan, without a flaw, is the correct solution of abolishing the grade crossings at Saville and Water streets.

First—Because it makes perfect railroading by levelling the tracks in their present location on road bed.

Second—Because it makes more natural and harmonious conditions for the City of Quincy and its people as well as the railroad.

Third—Because it is the best and most economical way of abolishing the grade crossings in Quincy.

Fourth—Because it benefits all parties interested, railroad, City of Quincy, and the tax payers who pay the bills.

Fifth—Because it saves every street now crossing the railroad, and places every street over the railroad where the people will be up in God's sunlight and fresh air, out of harm's way, with easy grades for teaming and can be loaded any height.

Sixth—Because it makes no dead end streets.

Seventh—Because it does not require the taking of another foot of land other than is now used for railroad purposes to abolish the grade crossings at Saville and Water streets.

Eighth—Because it makes Irving place a level and beautiful boulevard 40 feet wide over the railroad from Saville street to Granite street in the heart of our city.

Ninth—Because it provides a new way for a beautiful boulevard 80 feet wide over the railroad from Adams street to Granite street connecting with the Metropolitan Parkway on the north at Adams street and the new state highway from Granite street across the meadow to Quincy avenue, making a complete State road from Boston to Plymouth besides this new boulevard through the centre of our city over the railroad will relieve the future congestion of Hancock street, for the next 100 years. Think it over, Mr. Citizens, this proposition alone is worth a cold million for the future of Quincy.

Eenth—Because it provides the way at any future time when necessity demands it, a public highway can be built over the railroad anywhere between Wollastona nd Braintree.

Eleventh—Because it provides for the Furnace Brook Parkway to be built over the railroad and not under the railroad.

Twelfth—Because the City of Quincy in mass meeting voted for the depression of the railroad, because the City of Quincy demanded in public hearings before the special commission the depression of the roailroad at Saville and Water streets, backed by the Board of Trade, Granite Manufacturers' Association, Citizens' Association and the labor organizations of Quincy.

RELATIVES OF THE RICHARDS LOST EVERYTHING IN THE FLOOD

Lived Near the Famous Y. Bridge in Zanesville Which Stood the Strain

Mr. Richards People Taken from Second Story Window in Boats

William A. Richards the monumental designer whose mother and brother resided in Zanesville, O., and Mrs. Richards whose parents resided in the same city have heard from their relatives and were of course more than pleased to learn that they were safe and sound although they lost about all of their belongings.

Mr. Richards also received newspapers published in Zanesville which contain graphic stories of the great flood. His mother and brother resided near what is known as the Y bridge and although this bridge stood the strain and was not carried away, it was with one exception the only bridge in the city that remains intact. Mr. Richards says that his brother in a letter states that when the water began to rise they had no idea of the extent of the flood. He got the piano onto the dining room table, thinking that it would be safe there but as the water continued to rise he and his family were eventually forced to the upper floors, and were finally taken off in boats to a place of safety from the veranda on the second story. Practically everything they had was ruined. The piano and furniture fell apart and the only clothing saved was what they had on their backs. The flood was five days coming and going and after the water receded there was three inches of mud on the floor and beds.

The house of Mrs. Richards mother which was nearer the river was completely submerged. The famous Y bridge was twenty feet under water but as it is built of concrete it got by with having some of the railing smashed.

The case of Mr. Richards family is but one instance of hundreds and unless one has been on the spot and seen the wreckage no idea can be formed of its extent. According to letters he has received people stood on the high land and watched buildings crumble until finally they became so frequent as to excite no interest. More than one-half, possibly two-thirds of the incorporated area of Zanesville was submerged to a depth of from one to 30 feet with an estimated property loss of $15,000,000, and a complete business paralysis that can not be estimated in dollars and cents.

Scores are homeless, hundreds are hopeless and thousands are heartsick. That is the situation which faces Zanesville one of the stricken districts last Saturday according to the Zanesvillt Signal published on that date.

Thousands of families have lost their all and must have help to get on their feet that they may make a new start in life. The business interest of the city generally speaking does not need assistance but what this city

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

The development of the dictagraph will mean that people will have to become more familiar with the deaf and dumb alphabet.

New England it is announced has been hit hard by the tariff. On the whole Massachusetts and New England does not appear to cut much ice in the present administration.

Money without stint has been lavished on costumes for a charity ball is the advance announcement which means of course that the ball is first for display and then charity if there is anything left.

The president threatens to take the stump and tell the people all about it if the congressmen should play bad boys and not obey their teacher.

The phone girls certainly are to be commended for holding off in the interests of public welfare. A sudden strike of all the operators at a given signal could not fail to create immense loss and confusion in all walks of social and business life.

And the smuggling cases have been more than ten days old and not a yap from "Big Bill" Kelliher as to his ability to reveal the whole situation. "Big Bill" as a writer did not figure long in the literary limelight.

A Colorado mayor was elected by one vote. His gallantry in holding a baby while the mother voted was the means of getting him the needed vote in the contest. Which only goes to show that you never can tell.

While many republicans are scoring the proposed tariff, it should be remembered that people in general have been scoring the existing tariff a great many years without producing any beneficial results.

The poor Worcester police did not have quite such a snap as they thought their Boston brethren were having so they quit Hopedale. Would they quit their jobs on the Worcester force on the same grounds?

The Washington police did better the second time they had to handle a suffrage parade. It should be remembered however in justice to the police that on the first parade there were over 200,000 people of all kinds and shades, not residents of the city who were gathered within the borders.

London authorities are driven to determine if children born six weeks apart are twins, and the matter of 30 shillings hangs in the balance for the parents.

The north and south poles have been located so that there is no need to worry about them, and the next thing will be a complete circuit of the globe by airship, that is some time after the Atlantic has been navigated.

Artistic freaks is the name some attach to the latest type of out of the ordinary who are setting forth a lot of trash which they call art. If the word artistic was left off the name would be more appropriate.

BE GENEROUS.

The people of Quincy will have a chance to be generous to their fellow man and aid the sufferers from the flooded district of the middle west, tonight. An entertainment will be given at Music hall, to raise a Quincy fund for the sufferers. The hall, talent, advertising and every thing connected with the show have been given free. Those who appear have genrously given of their services. Others have been as generous in contributing in a way in which they could when called upon. It remains for the people at large to do their share. The tickets have been placed at a reasonable figure within the reach of all. Let every one do their share. Be generous in proportion to their means and show to the world that Quincy has sympathy and gencrosity in a manner that counts in such emergencies for the destitute and homeless.

AT THE BAT.

The base ball season will open tomorrow in the big leagues. A little earlier than usual, but the demand for the game appears to warrant, in a measure, the advanced movement. It may be possible that this early start may have a different effect than is expected. The uncertain weather, and if there are any cold days coming cannot help having their effect upon players and may mean a serious handicap to many of the stars who have been basking in the warmth and sunshine of southern climes the past few weeks.

The lay off of a star player at the start before the warm weather arrives may mean a serious handicap to any team and when teams slump in position there is a corresponding slump in the box office receipts. However the season will open tomorrow just the same. The results will be brought home soon enough. It is to be hoped that none of the players will be handicapped as this would mean a serious matter to the fans. Baseball has become the recognized national game. The past few years there has been a growing tendency to keep it warm all winter. And the past winter there has not been any manifest inclination to allow the players or fans to get cold upon the subject.

Here's success to the teams and may the fans have as good an article of ball as ever, and of course the hope in this vicinity is that Boston will annex another world's pennant which will heighten the interest in the game felt in this region.

LEAVE IT TO THE WOMEN.

The suffragettes of Iowa have decided to postpone their campaign for woman suffrage for another year at least. The proposition which confronted them was not a new one by any means. It was pointed out by the Quincy Ledger some months ago. It was simply to find out just how the women, not a few, who were advocates of the measure but all women, felt upon the subject. The idea was to hold an election upon the question of women suffrage, confining the vote to women alone, and permitting every woman the right to express her views by vote upon the subject. Not an unreasonable suggestion by any means. If the majority of the women wanted it they could say so and then it could be given more intelligent consideration. If the majority of the women were opposed to women suffrage, then the majority, should in this case as in others rule.

The Iowa women took the ground that they were not financially equipped to conduct a state wide campaign and that the indifference on the part of many women would mean that the bill would be defeated. This very indifference to the right to vote is not alone confined to women. It is noticeable to an alarming extent in those who have the power of franchise and fail to exercise that right. Every election offers abundant evidence of this condition. But that has no bearing upon the merits of the case. If the women as a whole wanted to vote they would not hesitate to give expression to their views and it is only reasonable that hey should be afforded a chance to express themselves.

THE TARIFF PROBLEM.

President Wilson has presented to congress his message with regard to tariff revision, and the document, together with the proposed tariff bill are now in the hands of the committee for consideration. The proposed bill is undoubtedly radical in many features. It would seem that the leather industry has received a smart blow and other necessities likewise come in for a share of cutting which will have to be given careful consideration. Everything except luxuries has been pruned with a sharp knife.

Already sectional opposition has risen to the bill. Senators and congressmen have been importuned by their constituents to vote against the bill as a whole and if those requests have the weight they usually do, the party in control of congress will have an internal contest which will be interesting to watch.

Senator Lodge is bitter in his opposition to the bill. He declared it is extremely radical and very hostile to the prosperity of Massachusetts. Members of congress will probably come to look upon the bill in a similar light when they have analyzed its effect upon the industries of the sections which they represent, so taken all in all the consideration of the bill until it meets its fate one way or the other does not hold forth much promise of the most perfect harmony within the ranks of the party in power.

Already Gov. Foss of this state sounded a warning note that it would cripple New England industries. Other leading Democrats of the state have not hestitated to anounce that they were opposed to a reduction of the tariff on shoes.

The situation is the same that has confronted the country every time there has been any attempt to tinker with the tariff. President Wilson is credited with being strongly in favor of the proposed bill. It is pointed out that he will appeal to the people of the country in case congress manifests a disposition to make changes.

Even the most strenuous advocates of the measure doubt the feasibility of attempting to pass the bill as a whole and their advice upon the matter is that it be taken up in sections.

The tariff has for years been a football of politics. It is claimed that the wall of protection has been so high that it passed beyond the scope of protection to American working people and was the basis for the accumulation of large fortunes. The intelligent voter is fully able to determine this view of the case to his own satisfaction.

While the cost of living has soared there has not been a corresponding increase in wages. The first it is claimed is due in part to the tariff, but there are other reasons which are just as apparent for this view of the case.

The wonder is that the tariff has so long been a subject of treatment by congress. The best way it would seem to have this whole matter adjusted and prevent these periodical disturbances to trade and commerce would be to have an expert tariff commission, handle this problem from a scientific standpoint, based upon knowledge as to capital invested, wages paid, cost of living and other elements which must enter into it. When this is done there will be more commercial and trade quietude and the whole country will not be up in arms every once in a while by congress changing the tariff one way or another.

MANUEL WOULD COME BACK.

Another unit has been added to that lately augmented "come back" class, and this time it is in the form of deposed royalty. The "come back" athlete, base ball player, pugilist to say nothing of others in the down and out class who have similar aspirations are numerous. With the prize fighter it means a lot of easy money. The others have more difficulty in making good their claims. But in each case, the kale is the Alpha and Omega of their desires. King Manuel, or rather former King Mamuel of Portugal, is the latest addition to the "come back" class. That it is a question of finances is quite evident. The young man says he will soon return to the throne of Portugal. It is doubtful if there are many of his countrymen who consider that his aggrandizement is worth the price of blood and treasure which would be poured out in this "come back" process. Still he is not deterred in his ambition to get a throne and have a long suffering people contribute to his maintenance by any such considerations. However fond he may be to return and get some easy money and flit around with a royal diadem on his cranium, it is hardly within the possibilities considering the wide spreading tendency to Republican form of government which is gaining root and wonderful growth throughout the world. At the present writing, it looks very much as if Manuel as a "come back," would hardly be successful in his efforts.

OLD RESIDENT DEAD.

Charles Wilson of 257 Granite street, for years one of Quincy's well known granite men passed away Tuesday night, after an illness of same duration aged 81 years. Mr. Wilson has resided in Quincy all his life and since becoming of age has has been engaged in one branch of the granite business, that is the paving block and curbing part. All over the city there are men going from quarry to quarry buying rip rap stock which they fashion into paving blocks. These Mr. Wilson would buy and accumulate, latter taking contracts from many cities throughout New England for the blocks. In this way he did a quiet yet large business.

He was not a man who sought to become affiliated with any of the numerous societies and as far as known was not a member of any organization He leaves a widow and one son by a former wife, Charles Wilson, one of Quincy's young attorneys.

NO MORALITY IN SCRAP HEAP

Either Can Intellectuality Flourish There

SAYS SOCIALIST POET

A large number attended the lecture on "Socialism" at Electa hall, Tuesday evening by William Francis Barnard, the poet of the party. After finely distinguishing between Socialism and its relations to the present he said that a high standard of morality and intellectuality could not flourish in a scrap heap and to bring about this plane a reversal of some conditions were necessary, particularly child labor.

He closed by reading an original poem on the wage slavery question. Edward Brault presided at the meeting.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies and by constantly failing to cure local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

QUINCY WOMEN'S CLUB.

Dramatic afternoon of the Quincy Women's club Tuesday at Quincy Music hall brought out one of the largest gatherings of the season and proved to be also one of the most enjoyable.

A feature much enjoyed was the promenade concert from 2.15 to 2.30; Mrs. Thomas, violinist and Mrs. Merchant at the piano. There was music also after the business meeting, between the acts of the comedy and to close the afternoon.

Mrs. Eben W. Sheppard, president, called the meeting to order and reports were given by the secretary and treasurer, followed by announcements by the president and committees.

Among the president's announcements were:

Through the courtesy of Simmons college, Boston, a food sanitation conference will be held in room 116 of the college Saturday. The programme will open at 10.30 A. M. with a lecture on "Some Simple Tests of Food Adulteration," by Dr. Alice F. Blood. This will be followed by a discussion questions and answers, together with reports from clubs of work accomplished. At 2 P. M., "Solving the Problem of Clean Milk and a Trip Through Beautiful New England," will be described in an illustrated lecture by N. C. Davis, M. D. An opportunity for questions will be given.

Food sanitation chairmen, with their committees, club presidents and all club members interested are cordially invited by Mrs. Charles O. Tyler of Abington, chairman of the food sanitation department, State Federation. Luncheon will be served by students of the college to those who desire it.

Mrs. John R. Richards and Mrs. George Macfarlane will represent the Quincy club and other members are urged to attend.

An announcement of local interest was of a reading under the auspices of Unity circle of King's Daughters. Margaret Deland, who was to have given the reading at the home of Mrs. Theophilus King of Adams street, on the afternoon of April 26, has on account of illness in her family, been obliged to cancel her engagement. Very fortunately, it has been possible to secure Mrs. Mabel Loomis Todd, who will lecture on "An Ascent of Fugi the Peerless." Mrs. Todd's charming personality, added to her fascinating lectures on countries personally visited, will be an opportunity of value. The Eberle Musical club, who are to give a three quarters of an hour musical program, will make this their first formal appearance before a Quincy audience. This club is composed of four young ladies—violinist, 'cellist, pianist and soprano soloist. The 'cellist, Miss Marion Moorhouse, is already favorably known, having given great pleasure by her playing at the May morning musicales given by the Music committee of the club last year. Mrs. V. E. Miller, Mrs. F. J. Moore, Mrs. G. L. Badger and Miss Turner are receiving subscriptions for the reading

Several club members were interested in the announcement of the National Federation Biennial conference at Washington last of the month. Headquarters of the council will be at Hotel Raleigh and arrangements have been made by the state federation with the Pennsylvania railroad and tickets will be issued April 17th. A reduced rate on the certificate plan, enables delegates and club women to have the advantage of three-fifths fare returning. Details of the excursion trains may be obtained from R. Macdonough, New England passenger agent. Official notices have been sent to federated club women in regard to the arrangement of the Washington meeting, whereby passengers should buy regular first class one way tickets to Washington, informing ticket agents that they are delegates to the Central Federation of Women's clubs and securing from them certificates showing the purchase of their tickets. Care should be taken to see that tickets read, via the Pennsylvania railroad from New York to Washington.

The certificates, when properly vised at Washington should, when passengers are ready to leave for home, be presented at the city office of the Pennsylvania railroad company, 15th and G. St., N. W., or at the union station, and tickets will be issued to starting points by routes used, going three-fifths the regular first class fare.

Several club members are arranging to go to Washington and a fine trip and meetings are anticipated, also many enjoyable receptions, and side trips, including a reception at the White House. Members of the club should try and go as Washington is at its best in the spring and the gathering will be of representative women from all over the country.

An announcement of importance to members and to the club treasurer was that the annual dues for 1913-1914 are now payable and must be paid before May 1st. If not paid by that date the name is dropped from membership.

Mrs. John W. Sanborn for the Education committee announced the annual children's festival at Music hall April 26 from 2 until 5 p. m., and asked for contributions of maybaskets especially inexpensive ones that would sell for 5 cents and as low as one cent. Mrs. George Fleming of 34 Grand View avenue was in charge of the maybasket tables.

Mrs. A. W. Jelenick for the Arts and Crafts committee spoke of the classes now forming and urged members to join.

Mrs. E. B. Marsh of the Program committee spoke of the children's party Saturday afternoon at the clubhouse from 2.30 to 5 o'clock and regretted that Mr. Hubbard could not be present but that a substitute had been secured.

Mrs. J. D. Mackay for Mrs. Kitson of the Art Committee announced that some of the best works of Boston and New York artists had been secured for the loan exhibit at the clubhouse April 21-24.

Mrs. J. B. Worster for the Music committee said that tickets were now ready for the three May morning musicales at the clubhouse, May 7, 14 and 28 and fine talent had been secured.

Mrs. Wilson Marsh for Mrs. Chandler W. Smith of the Philanthropy committee announced an "at home" at the clubhouse Tuesday afternoon April 15 from 3.30 until 5.30 to meet Miss Jenny Purchase, who was completing one year's service as secretary of the Associated Charities. Members were cordially invited to attend whether especially invited or not.

Mrs. Worster gave an interesting report of the musical conference at Somerville March 25 which brought the business meeting to a close.

Mrs. Sheppard in opening the afternoon's program said a few words of welcome and introduced Mrs. Edward B. Marsh of the program committee, who in turn gracefully introduced Leland Powers of Boston, the entertainer of the afternoon, who was given a hearty greeting.

Mr. Powers gave the three-act comedy "Lord Chumley" in his own inimitable way, his artistry being of a high order.

Every character in the play was finely portrayed by Mr. Powers, his presentation of them being as enjoyable as though they were actually present in the flesh and speaking their own parts. In his delineation one could not fail to see the hearty good natured produce merchant, the maiden aunt, the daughter and friend and the maid of all work; the son of the house, his chum and central figure of the play Lord Chumley; the French adventurer and the convict all were so characteristically impersonated. It was one of the best entertainments of the year.

Among the guests present: were Mrs. Alan Stockdale, of Boston; Mrs. George Owen, Newton; Mrs. Arthur Thayer, Roxbury; Mrs. D. C. French, East Braintree; Mrs. Fred Simmonds, Dorchester; Mrs. Clifford, Whitney; Newtonville; Mrs. H. J. Cushing, Rockland; Mrs. W. C. Hartwell, Somerville, Mrs. W. B. Rand, Dorchester; Mrs Paul Nixon, Brunswick, Maine; Miss Ruth L. Flanders, Malden; Mrs. J. S. Copland, Toronto; Mrs. R. Hewiston, Dorchester; Mrs. William Brooks, Milton; Mrs. Franklin Whittier, Weymouth; Mrs. Frank Bradford, Dorchester; Miss Claflin, Cambridge, Mrs. John Flagg, Wellesley; Mrs. Arnold, Braintree; Miss Mabel Cutris, Rutland, Vt., Mrs. Henry Reynolds, Braintree and Prof. Bickford of Quincy.

ADAMS CHAPTER.

Adams Chapter, Daughters of Revolution, met Monday afternoon at the John Adams birthplace. Rev. Adelbert Lathrop Hudson gave an interesting talk on his ancestor Rev. John Lathrop, first minister of Barnstable, which was very interesting. Mrs. Jessie Scott Hogan, vice president of the Squantum Women's club also spoke briefly.

Mrs. Eugene R. Stone and Miss Edith Stone, wife and daughter of Mayor Stone wer special guests and after the addresses, they, with Dr. Hudson and the Regent held an informal reception, after which punch, cake and candy were served, the hostess committee being Mrs. Walter E. Piper, Miss Harriet B. Pierce and Mrs. Frank F. Brewer. The meeting was largely attended.

THE MINIMUM WAGE.

Women have made marvelous progress in some directions during the last few decades, but what a frightful loss they have sustained in many others.

In the old days they were "restricted" to a home, a husband, and children, where comfort and love and true happines were the general rule, whether it was a home of wealth or of poverty.

Today they are striving to throw off this home restraint and be independent, self-sufficfent, and they are becoming the slaves of necessity—the slaves of daily labor that men once took pride in doing for them. They are going against nature, and the price must be paid.

An economic storm has arisen. Women have become the competitors of men. They are leaving their natural sphere as makers of homes for the "mess of pottage" that is all the world can give, with its number of wage earners so vastly multiplied.

And women who are instigating this destruction of the age-old institution of home are the first to complain because of the shortage of homes.

But what a shame, what a crime, what a lie, that they know to be a lie, for social "reformers," in their foolish zeal to win an argument to say that "wages make morals," to say that virtue can live on $12 a week, but a lower wage drives girls and women into the streets.

Money buys virtue every day—always has bought it—just as the flame forever draws the moth. But no wage scale has any bearing on this case. The girl whose father has fifty millions is bought almost daily to marry some man with more millions, regardless of whether she loves him or not. The stage artist who makes $1,000 a week is continually being bought by some millionaire—with or without a marriage certificate, as conditions make necessary.

Yet because a few store girls, among some thousands, have been discovered to go wrong the whole Nation is being told one of the most cruel, most damaging, most untruthful series of stories that ever got into print.

For twenty-seven years I have been intimately associated with store work and conditions in large cities and small. First as a co-worker with the young store women and men, familiar with their daily experiences and their daily lives, hearing their confidences, familiar with their pleasures, their troubles, their love affairs, their habits, their good traits and their bad. I know, too, a great deal about people in other walks of life; but I do not know, and I challenge any one to prove to the contrary, any other work or profession where the standard of morals is higher or the opportunity to go wrong is one-half so great.

Yes, the big store is a menace to virtue:

1. If coming in daily contact with women who have money to spend is a menace.

2. If learning to be clean, careful in appearance, dressed in good taste is a menace.

3. If learning to be good conversationlists, by daily contact with people of education, is a menace.

4. If placing a girl where men have a chance to see and admire her is a menace.

5. If developing multifold qualities of beauty of face, figure, and mind—which would be dormant in factory girls—is a menace.

If it is a menace for flowers to bloom and be fragrant for fear that they will be broken from their stems; if to be where there is constant stimulation to bring out the best talents that are in a girl, then the store is a menace to their virtue.

Perhaps no other environment in which a girl that toils may be placed does so much to develop the very qualities that are instilled into the girl who is protected in a home of means to make her charming and attractive in society as serving the shoppers in a well-conducted store.

No other occupation develops better women to become wives and mothers, and I could tell of some remarkable examples of women who have come from behind the counters in a store to build homes of happiness and be a constant inspiration to husbands who have won large success by their aid.

Of course, I have known girls in a store to go wrong, from women buyers making $5,000 a year down to girls making quite small wages; but I have never personally known of a girl who went on the street because she couldn't live on the wages she earned in the store. All the girls that were reputed to make money this way were in the class that earned from $12 to $25 a week.

It is not wages, it is not occupation, that is the menace to virtue. It is the same old devil that stalked in the Garden of Eden to deceive the mother of us all—temptation.

Human hearts are weak, and the forces of temptation are the strongest forces in our natures. Let us be honest with ourselves now that we are studying this subject. It is too big, too vital to trifle with.

The only solution of this great problem must be: Protect the girls.

And, again: Condemn the man with the woman.

That is a bigger and infinitely more important battle than any that women have yet begun to fight.

Why is it that "He's a devil of a fellow among women" is a title of approbation?

Why is it that such a fellow is always among the most desirable guests at any social function?

The incident which wrecks a girl's whole life becomes, for the man who shared it, a tale that he gloats upon telling at the club. It is rather to the discredit of a man not to be experienced in the thing for which a woman is eternally damned. Isn't it strange that brothers should never think of forbidding their sisters to associate with men whose bad characters are so glibly made known to them?

Is it fair to damn the woman and laud the man for the same act?

Protect the girls, if you can; but, if you can't, plan to supply first aid to the injured.

Supply a safe and sympathetic refuge for the girl or woman after she has first erred.

As for the immediate problem on hand, the question of a minimum wage for girls and women in stores and elsewhere—efficiency, earning power, productiveness—in the last analysis decides what wages the worker receives.

No other business is more competitive than the department store business. In no other industry is the competition more keen to secure workers of developed efficiency. Stores are continually outbidding each other to secure men and women who have shown real ability in selling and other fields of merchandising.

On the other hand, there is probably no other work at which it is so easy for the beginner to start. The big stores always need hundreds of young women to wait upon shoppers. And "wait" is the word, perhaps spending an hour needlessly showing goods to some woman who is an hour early for her "bridge" engagement, and has nothing else to do.

And so she reduces that girl's earning capacity.

And so thousands of women every day reduce the earning capacity of girls and women by frittering away the time of the store girls, because modern store courtesy makes it easy and pleasant to do it.

On the other hand, thousands of girls are graduating each year, and thousands more are leaving school to try and make money.

By far the large majority of these girls receive no commercial education, and if they have the opportunity to study stenography, bookkeeping, and other commercial branches they are able to seek positions where they have some basis of value.

Perhaps 90 per cent., and more, probably 95 per cent., of these girls do not take the time, or do not have the means, to secure this commercial course. And the big store is the one opportunity to go immediately to work and earn definite wages without any preparation for the business and without any knowledge of selling.

The stores, as a rule, provide schools to teach them the rudiments of the work and pay them wages while they are getting practical experience.

There is always a tremendous shortage of salespeople who are really efficient, and there is always a tremendous surplus of girls and young women who are inexperienced and whose work is only of small value, if of any value at all.

In the old days the value of a salesman or a saleswoman was measured by the number of customers he or she could wait on at the same time and give satisfactory service. In my own experience it was nothing unusual for a salesman to wait on six different sets of customers intelligently and efficiently, and to the entire satisfaction of those customers.

In those days the salesperson's value was vastly greater than today,

SCANDINAVIAN PROGRESSIVES

Organized in Quincy for Active Campaign this Fall

ALLIANCE FROWNED UPON

The Progressive Party mindful of the strength gathered in Quincy last fall, have again rekindled the political flames, and with enthusiasm similar to that in a fall campaign organized the Scandinavian supporters of the city, as a potential factor of the party.

Elmer C. Adams state organizer presented the outline at a meeting in Union hall Tuesday evening. A large number attended and took immediate action.

Col. Henry L. Kincaide acted as temporary chairman. The speakers were Prof. J. Larson of Everett, Elmer C. Adams and Louis Peterson of Boston.

All spoke along the lines of the Progresive Party and urged the "Bull Moosers" to stand close and to refuse an alliance with any party since the old Democratic and Republican organization were not willing to incorporate many Progressive plants in their platform.

The following officers were chosen:

President—Gus Lodengaard.

Secretary—Oscar Frisk.

Treasurer—Andrew Anderson.

Organization committee— Charles Chilstedht and Lars Dahlberg of Ward 1, Charles Frieberg and John Olmquist of Ward 3, and Charles Johnson and Frank Sandblom of Ward 4.

AMENDMENT OF CONSTITUTION

Seventeenth Formally Ratified by Thirty-Six States

SENATORS BY DIRECT VOTE

Final Action Taken by Connecticut, No Action by Congress Being Needed—Change Effected Only After Sixty Years of Discussion—New Law Put Through In Quick Time

Washington, April 9.—Direct election of United States senators became one of the provisions of the constitution yesterday by Connecticut's ratification of the amendment to that effect. Thirty-six states, the requisite three-fourths of all in the union, now have approved the change. It remains only for the governors of all states which have acted favorably to formally notify Secretary Bryan and for him to issue a proclamation announcing the change, no action by congress being necessary. The amendment to the constitution is the second within the last few months.

The new amendment to the constitution, for the popular election of United States senators, is the seventeenth to be adopted. It reads:

"The senate of the United States shall be composed of two senators from each state, elected by the people thereof, for six years; and each senator shall have one vote. The electors in each state shall have the qualifications requisite for electors of the most numerous branch of the state legislatures.

"When vacancies happen in the representation of any state in the senate, the executive authority of such state shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies, provided that the legislature of any state may empower the executive thereof to make temporary appointments until the people fill the vacancies by election as the legislature may direct."

The amendment primarily transfers the power of electing senators from the state legislatures to the people at the polls.

For more than sixty years proposals have been made to change the constitution so as to provide for the direct election of senators. It was not, however, until June 24, 1911, that the senate was induced for the first time in its history to give its consent to the change. On that day it voted to submit to the states the proposed amendment. The resolution to submit had already passed the house in a somewhat different form. Before adjournment of the session, both houses agreed to the language to be employed, and the resolution was deposited with the secretary of state May 16, 1912, for distribution among the states.

The original theory in establishing the choice of senators was that they represented the states, whereas the members of the house represented the people of the districts. It was because of this theory of the state as a unit that all states, large and small, were given equal representation in the senate, Rhode Island having the same number as New York or Pennsylvania.

In the theory of the constitution framers this entity of the state was thus made more distinct under the federal system, and the state legislature was regarded as the suitable medium for expressing this state entity. Later it was contended that state entity would still be preserved if the people of the entire state, instead of the legislature, chose the senators, and this view has now been accepted as the basis of the new system.

TIGHTENING THE BLOCKADE

British Admiral Warns Montenegro That He Will Land Marines

London, April 9.—Montenegro and Servia have continued the siege of Scutari, though the predicted assault did not occur, according to dispatches from Cettinje.

The international fleet has tightened the blockade of Antivari and it is semi-officially stated that the British admiral has given the Montenegrin premier warning he will land marines if the demands of the powers are not complied with at the end of three days.

It is agreed in diplomatic circles that a conflict between Austria-Hungary and Montenegro at present seems unavoidable, but there is no likelihood any other powers will be involved. In the event, though, that the Balkan alliance should stand by the little kingdom, it is admitted grave complications might follow.

PHONE STRIKE NEAR AT HAND

Bitter Industrial Struggle Can Hardly Be Averted

SERIOUS OUTLOOK AT BOSTON

Hundreds of Women Imported as Strikebreakers and Quartered In Best Hotels—Company Said to Be Planning Efforts to Precipitate Walkout of Its Employes

Boston, April 9.—Boston seems about to witness one of the bitterest industrial battles in its history. Nothing apparently can prevent the calling of the telephone strike this afternoon. The desperate efforts of Mayor Fitzgerald and President Storrow of the Chamber of Commerce to avert the impending conflict seem to have been of no avail.

The mayor rushed at milnight to a conference with the operators and the Central Labor union, but little hope was held out of staying the strike.

Like two wrestlers about to grapple, the company and the union jockeyed for the advantage last night. Both sides appear ready for the crisis.

The sentiment of the operators is that a strike should be called at the most favorable moment. The company, fortified by a horde of strikebreakers, has thrown off all pretense of desire to evade the conflict.

At midnight Storrow and other leading business men held a conference with members of the telephone union.

An air of mystery seems to envelope the proceedings of both the telephone company and the union officials. Both are carefully concealing their final intentions.

Acts of telephone officials indicated that they would actually welcome an immediate joining in battle with the operators. Supervisors in exchanges drove the girls almost to distraction with cross-questioning. Carefully planned efforts were made with the apparent purpose of precipitating a walkout at once.

The questioning was so persistent that, with reports of the swarm of outside operators being poured into Boston from every big city in the east to take their places, the girls could hardly be held at their posts by the pleading of their leaders.

In the face of the tremendous expenditures being made by the company to fight a strike, the leaders counselled the operators to wait.

They urged the operators to let the company go on keeping hundreds of girls at the costliest Boston hotels and maintaining squadrons of automobiles till its patience was exhausted. "Strike when the company has got tired of paying the cost of getting ready to fight us," was the plan which seemed to appeal to some of the union members.

Some members of the union grew terrified by the overwhelming preparations which the company pushed ostenstatiously along all day. This, and the grilling of the girls in the exchanges, brought the first signs of wavering in the ranks of the operators. Desertions from the union and cases of girls throwing away their buttons were reported last night, although denied by union officials.

The whole power of the American Telephone and Telegraph company has been concentrated upon the strike situation here; and arrangements are complete for filling the Boston exchanges with nearly 2000 strikebreakers.

Hundreds of these girls were already in Boston last night, and trains bearing hundreds more are on their way here.

At the Copley-Plaza hotel 350 girls were quartered yesterday afternoon, waiting in suites which have housed the leading social lights and actresses of the land for the word to take their places at the city's switchboards.

There were 107 more young women at the American House, three at Young's, and accommodations for more had been arranged for at several other hotels.

Steamer Reports Icebergs Adrift In North Atlantic

New York, April 9.—Icebergs are adrift again in the north Atlantic near the spot where one sent the ill-fated Titanic to the bottom nearly a year ago.

The steamship Kroonland, from Antwerp, reported she had received wireless information that the steamship Russia had sighted ice last week in latitude 42.50, longitude 49.

The Titanic struck a berg on April 15 last in latitude 41.16, longitude 50.14.

HELD AS WITNESSES IN SMUGGLING CASE

Court Orders Bail For Mrs. Schram and Her Husband

Boston, April 9.—Mrs. Lena Bradley Schram and her husband, Nicholas Schram, were brought before Judge Morton in the United States district court and held in $1000 and $500 respectively as witnesses for the federal grand jury investigation of the smuggling plot uncovered at the port of Boston.

Late yesterday afternoon they testified. The other witnesses were all minor custom house officers. The evidence was presented by Assistant United States District Attorney Garland, assisted by Assistant Attorney Shea.

A vigorous search for smugglers was made by inspectors from the Boston custom house yesterday when the Leyland line Devonian arrived from Liverpool. No traces of smuggling were found.

BOSTONS BEAT HARVARD

College Boys, However, Hold Down Champions to Four Hits

Boston, April 9.—Harvard's pitchers, Felton and Frye, held the Red Sox sluggers to four hits at Fenway Park yesterday, and this fine performance took the sting out of the defeat which the students had hardly hoped to prevent. The score—5 to 0—represented bases on balls, technical errors and errors of judgment.

Although the Red Sox did no hitting, they showed their admirers a remarkable team game in the field. They worked together like the assembled parts of a well-oiled machine. Frequent substitutions did not seem to break up this ability to play together.

THAW CALLED AS WITNESS

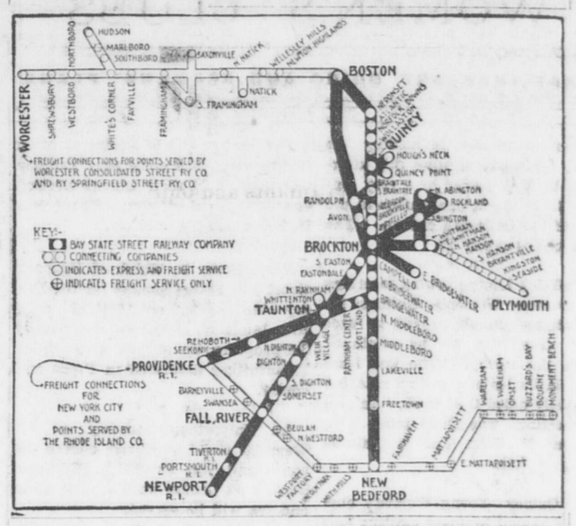

Must Tell of Charges of Bribery to Release Him From Asylum

New York, April 9.—A writ of habeas corpus for the production of Harry K. Thaw as a witness before the grand jury which is investigating charges of attempted bribery in connection with an effort to release him from the Matteawan hospital for the criminal insane was issued by Justice Seabury of the supreme court.

The writ demands that the Matteawan authorities bring Thaw here to testify next Thursday. It was issued upon the motion of the district attorney.

Colonel TODHUNTER of Missouri

By RIPLEY D. SAUNDERS

Copyright, 1911, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER III.

"For Governor, William J. Strickland of Nineveh."

COLONEL TODHUNTER'S heart swelled with an unselfish pridefulness.

The favorite old Mississippi steamer, Gray Eagle, now in full view from where he stood at the Nineveh landing, was bringing homeward the Hon. William J. Strickland of Nineveh, at last an avowed candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor of Missouri.

Colonel Todhunter himself had organized the public reception at this very moment awaiting the most distinguished of Nineveh's citizens. "I'll be shot full o' holes, suh," he said to Dick Cantrill, editor and proprietor of the Nineveh Weekly Blade, "if we don't show the people of this here state what old Bill Strickland's home folks think of him, anyway. Th' ain't nothin' more helpful to a candidate than provin' that them as knows the most about him has the least against him, suh."

"What about Squire Tucker's opposition, colonel?" asked Dick Cantrill.

"That's better'n his indorsement, suh!" retorted Colonel Todhunter. "Long as I've known Bill Strickland if I knew old Eph Tucker was supportin' him I'd be against him on suspicion, suh, blamed if I wouldn't!"

Knowing the speaker better than he knew himself, Dick Cantrill laughed. Colonel Todhunter and Colonel Strickland were friends from boyhood. Friendship was something in the nature of a religion with Colonel Todhunter. In his simple creed he did not simply "like" his friends. He loved them with a trustful steadfastness that knew no limitations of loyalty or of potential sacrifice.

"Barrin' his wife and children, suh," Colonel Todhunter was wont to say, "a man's friends is all that's worth while in this here world of our'n. And his old friends, them that was young with him when he was makin' as many different kinds of a fool of himself as the law allows—well, suh, th' ain't no price can be set on 'em, neither gold nor rubies nor jasper nor frankincense and myrrh, as the good book says, suh!"

Colonel Todhunter had been vastly impatient for the return of the Hon. William J. Strickland. When the Gray Eagle rounded the bend in the river two miles below Nineveh and waked the Missouri echoes with the mellow tunefulness of her famous baritone whistle the colonel's face became splendidly illumined.

"There he comes, folks!" he cried. "There comes old Bill Strickland, the man we're a-goin' to nominate and elect governor of Mizzoorah! All ready, now? Hip, hip, hooray!"

A mighty cheer rose from the crowd assembled on the Nineveh wharf boat and smote afar the ears of Colonel Bill Strickland where he stood beside Captain Beverly Leigh on the Gray Eagle's upper deck. The candidate's eyes twinkled as they met those of the weatherbeaten riverman.

"That's old Thurs T. Todhunter's doing, Bev," he spoke. "I'll bet he's got nigh about all the male population of Nineveh rallyin' around him at that landing. The old rascal!"

Once more the cheering from Nineveh throats rose as the Gray Eagle neared the landing, and the Hon. William J. Strickland waved his hand toward the waiting multitude. It increased in volume as he made his way downward until he stood pictorially framed in at the farther end of the lowered gangplank. It was a great moment for Nineveh.

Already the Nineveh brass band was playing "Hail to the Chief!" with tremendous fervor. The gorgeously uniformed Nineveh Light infantry stood in company front at parade rest behind the band. All Nineveh, it seemed, was assembled back of them on the wharf boat and along the immediate river front. The ardent gathering split the air with shouts of high acclaim as the well known figure of Colonel Bill Strickland crossed the steamer's gangplank. The next moment Colonel Thurs T. Todhunter, advancing, was seen to grasp his hand.

Each man accomplished a splendid cavalier sweep of his wide brimmed soft hat. Then they stood facing each other in a fine attitude of cordial dignity. They were prime types of two of the four strains of pioneer blood that are blended in the Missouri type itself. Colonel Todhunter coming of Kentucky stock and Colonel Strickland of Tennessee. Virginia and New England were the other contributors to the blend. The three southern states named are responsible for the emotional endowment that has made Missouri "spellbinders" long famous on the stump. The eastern states have supplied that cooler, steadier and more practical strain that constitutes Missouri's balance wheel in character adjustment.

Linking arms, Colonel Todhunter and the Hon. William J. Strickland moved through the applauding hosts to an open carriage.

"After you, suh," said Colonel Todhunter, ceremoniously waving his companion to the seat of honor. "And, suh, I beg to notify you that this is the beginnin' of your triumphal progress to the executive mansion at Jefferson City, suh."

Renewed cheering greeted this imposing announcement. The Hon. William J. Strickland took his place in the carriage. Colonel Todhunter followed him. The mayor of Nineveh, the editor of the Blade and other local celebrities occupied the remaining vehicles.

Captain Sim Birdsong of the Nineveh Light infantry, a veteran of the Spanish war, now stiffened until his spine was as straight and rigid as a ramrod. Ordinarily Sim was rather an awkward young Missourian, sandy haired, freckle faced and easily abashed. But he became fiercely martial the moment he donned his regimentals.

Even as the thrilling commands were given and the Nineveh Light infantry, in column of fours, came swinging on and took its station in front of the Strickland carriage the Nineveh brass band at the head of the column struck up "Stars and Stripes Forever!" and the first parade of the Strickland campaign for the governorship of Missouri was under way.

"Seems to me, Bill," said Colonel Todhunter as the carriage moved off, "that you came out for the nomination at exactly the right minute in that St. Louis announcement of your'n. The old machine crowd's a-buckin' Steve Yancey to a fare you well, and the people's sick and tired of the whole outfit, suh. I miss my guess if th' ain't a stampede in your direction."

Colonel Bill Strickland smiled doubtfully. "Our side seems to think that I'm the best man to make the race, Thurs," he spoke, "but you're 'way off if you think there ain't goin' to be a fight. It'll be hot and heavy straight down the line. Whoever wins will win after the toughest scrabble you and me ever saw in Missouri politics, my friend."

"I ain't objectin' none to a fight," said Colonel Todhunter. "But this is the fust time in the history of Mizzoorah that the Democrats nominate their candidate for governor at the polls 'stead of in a nominatin' convention, and I b'lieve they're a-goin' to make sure of an honest man. It looks good to me, suh."

Pausing for just a moment he resumed. "Here's the way I size up the situation. Mizzoorah Democrats know now that the old gang is crookeder'n a dog's hind leg, suh. They know you've been frozen out of the state committee chairmanship because that bunch ain't got no more use for you'n a hoss thief's got for a square sheriff. You stand for a return to straight politics in their eyes. And now the voters don't have to leave the nominatin' business to a convention that's fuller of tricks'n a cur dog is of fleas, suh. That's why I'm a-countin' on your bein' nominated."

"Maybe so," replied the other. "But the machine's going to fight me all it knows how from start to finish. The fight'll begin right here in my own town. Old Eph Tucker, the richest man in Nineveh, is Stephen K. Yancey's personal representative in this neck o' the woods, and old Eph Tucker hates me so hard it keeps him awake at nights."

"Well, suh," chuckled Colonel Todhunter, "if the old gang waits for Eph Tucker to spend any of his money in politics they'll wait a mighty long time, suh. He squeezes ev'y dollar o' his'n till the eagle screams and flies back into his own pocket, and you know it."

Colonel Strickland laughed. Suddenly he held up one finger. "What's that?"

A sound of strident music, punctuated by terrific and hollow thumpings at rhythmic intervals, came from the little strip of Nineveh lying between them and the town hall.

The light of battle leaped into Colonel Todhunter's eyes. "I'll be eternally flimflammed," he cried, "if it ain't that there Nineveh bugle and drum corps that's been cavoortin' 'round here at the head of the Stephen K. Yancey Campaign club! You look a-here, Bill Strickland! If them fellows has had the impudence to turn out on parade when we're a-welcomin' you home to Nineveh I'll sick our boys on to 'em as sure as my name's Thurs T. Todhunter, suh!"

Colonel Strickland was laughing outright. "What did I tell you?" he said "They haven't lost any time declaring war, and somebody's paying good money for it too!"

Colonel Todhunter leaned out of the carriage and spoke to the nearest Strickland partisan. "You run up yonder at the head of that there band," he said, "and tell Samson Meek to come back here a minute. I want to see him."

Samson Meek, leader of the Nineveh brass band, hurried back. He was so buttoned up and padded in his gorgeous drum major's uniform, topped off with a gigantic fur shako, that the sweat poured down his lank and honest Missouri face like rain.

"Samson," spoke Colonel Todhunter ominously, "if we run across that Stephen K. Yancey bugle and drum corps, I want you to drown 'em out and keep 'em drowned out, suh. Do you understand?"

Samson Meek brought his baton to a present. "Colonel Todhunter, we'll smother 'em, suh. I just been waiting for the chance."

"Then you go back and tell your horn tooters what's expected of 'em, suh," commanded Colonel Todhunter. "'Specially that little fat fellow with the horn bigger'n he is. Tell him to blow himself inside out. This here Strickland parade ain't a-goin' to be interrupted by no Steve Yancey and Eph Tucker foolishness as long as I'm in charge of the welcome ceremonies, suh!"

because modern store methods enable a woman to demand the exclusive and undivided attention of a salesperson during as long a period of time as she wishes to take to make her decisions about purchases. She feels no responsibility whatever if, after having wasted an hour's time, she makes no purchase at all. And it must be remembered that if a purchase is finally made in order to please the salesperson, with the thought that the goods may be returned tomorrow, that amount is necessarily deducted from the credit of the salesperson, because the wages of the latter must necessarily be based on the amount of goods actually sold to and retained by the customer.

This is why the stores must employ so many thousands of girls at small salaries. They can give their time to waiting upon people who require such attention and get their training to properly serve customers by continually asking questions of the more experienced girls beside them.

As one store woman has recently said, "A great many girls are actually lazy and have practically no earning capacity at all." Certainly these are not the girls who have a living to earn. They are girls without responsibilities usually, with homes that permit them to spend the money they earn in their own way. They do not realize the value of money, and they do not realize the seriousness of earning a living. Perhaps the greater proportion of them are living in the daily expectation of getting married, with the thought that there is no work about that.

Certainly this criticism cannot apply to girls who are actually hungry, and do not get enough to eat out of their wages. They realize the seriousness of life, and they are usually the girls that develop into the best saleswomen or the best workers in any department in which they may be.

The big stores are only too glad to see their people develop in efficiency and to encourage it. And the efficient people are well known and eagerly retained, and if proper wages are not paid in the store in which they happen to be there is always opportunity for girls with a good working record to secure the highest wages they are able really to earn in other stores.

Legislators must very carefully study the problem of a minimum wage, for fear they may do a greater wrong. Thousands of girls have proved by experience that they can live virtuously and happily on the wages they receive, and which have been termed inadequate.

Certainly the vast majority of these girls do not possess the ability to earn any more, at least immediately. If a minimum wage were legislated, which the stores could not pay, then thousands of these girls would have to step aside for the more efficient, and new applicants could not be employed at all.

Then what will law and philanthropy do for the girls who can't make a living at all?—W. R. Hotchkins of Gimbel Bros., New York.

ELKS OFFICERS INSTALLATION

BANQUET AND SPEECH MAKING

One of the most enthusiastic and largely attended meetings of Quincy lodge of Elks was held in Colonial hall Tuesday evening, the occasion being the annual installation of officers. A past Exalted Ruler of Quincy lodge was the installing officer, Robert J. Williams, Jr., acting Grand Exalted Ruler. On his honorary staff was J. Frank Donahue, secretary of State and E. Mark Sullivan, Assistant United States District Attorney. His immediate staff were as follows:

Grand Esquire—Joseph N. Shafer of Melrose.

Grand Esteemed Leading Knight—William R. Sheppard of Wakefield.

Grand Esteemed Lecturing Knight—J. J. Fitzgibbons of Everett.

Grand Treasurer—John V. Shoemaker of Everett.

Grand Secretary—Robert Evans of Everett.

Grand Chaplain—R. Winchell Magoun of Shawnee, Okla.

The grand officers were received with due honors by Exalted Ruler Philip H. Sullivan and officers and members of Quincy lodge and escorted to the lodge room. The business of the evening was immediately commenced and the following officers inducted into office.

Exalted Ruler—Philip H. Sullivan.
Leading Knight—John Hilderbrand.
Loyal Knight—Edward D. Larkin.
Lecturing Knight—Ira T. Doble.
Secretary—John D. Smith.
Treasurer—Charles O'Connor.
Tyler—Maurice Cohen.
Trustee—William Cashman.

After the installation Quincy lodge was heartily congratulated by the grand officers on the rapid strides which it had made during the past year and upon its most excellent financial condition, as shown by the annual reports.

Brief but stirring addresses were then made by Secretary of State, J. Frank Donahue, Assistant United States District Attorney E. Mark Sullivan and others on the suite. Particularly interesting were the remarks of R. Winchell Magoun of Shawnee, Okla., who is the rector of a prominent Episcopal church in that city.

After the meeting the brothers adjourned to the club rooms on Foster street where Bro. Anthony J. Thompson served a banquet, the menu of which included lobster, potato and chicken salad, escalloped oysters, chicken croquettes, rolls and coffee.

While the brothers were busy with the banquet the bell on the little clock in the reading room tolled the hour of eleven. Immediately all was hushed as the brothers stood a brief toast to departed brothers was given by P. E. R. Thomas J. Reardon of Everett. Most of the grand officers took the 11.09 train for Boston, but not before they had expressed themselves as having a most enjoyable evening.

FRIEDMANN IN PROVIDENCE

Will Treat Charity and Private Patients, the Latter For Fees

Providence, April 9.—Dr. Friedrich F. Friedmann came to Providence yesterday afternoon to demonstrate his vaccine which he claims to be a cure for tuberculosis. The German physician will remain here for at least a week and during his stay will be accorded the privileges of a practicing physician. He will treat as many poor people in the hospitals and sanitoriums as possible, he announced, and will also, for the first time since his arrival in this country, receive private patients for fees.

Dr. Friedmann arrived at 2 o'clock and went at once to the state house, where he was welcomed by Governor Pothier and other state officials. Later he held a reception at the Narragansett hotel, and today he will begin his clinics.

Mr. Ayers. She said that Mr. Ayers told them both to consider fairly the proposition before entering into any agreement. She described the house on Beach street and told what rooms Mr. Ayers used.

Until September, 1910, witness said, she and her husband occupied the same room. She became ill at that time and her husband took the room across the hall, while her mother occupied the room with her. After she recovered her husband came back and they occupied the same room again. In October she was ill again and Boynton went to the room across the hall, while her mother and she had the same rom.o After that witness and her husband had separate sleeping rooms. There was never a time, witness said, when her husband was denied access to her room.

Mrs. Boynton testified that her husband provided her with $5 a week with which she bought fruit and vegetables, paid $2 for washing and 50 cents for the church pledge. Once he gave her $8 which amount was to provide shoes for herself.

"Did he ever ask for any of the money back?" asked Mr. Anderson.

"He did," answered witness.

"Did you give it to him?"

"He went to my purse and helped himself," replied Mrs. Boynton.

She knew Flora Sass and had seen her husband put his arms around her and kiss her. Miss Sass, she testified would come to her house and sit at the table with her husband under the pretence, witness alleged, of working. Miss Sass also came to her house to accompany her husband on the piano.

On one occasion Miss Sass told Mr. Boynton that "they weren't going to let her in the house," and Mr. Boynton said, "Is that so; well, you can come in, for I'll let you."

Mrs. Boynton told of seeing her husband kissing and hugging the Sass girl in the Boynton home. They did not see her as she was watching them from another room. She could not remember the date.

Mrs. Boynton said that on two occasions, the first and second Sunday in January, 1912, she had seen Flora Sass crying in church. Witness declared that the choir girls and others had told her about her husband and Miss Sass and that Miss Sass' mother had also spoken to her about them.

One night about 11.30, witness said Mrs. Sass came to her house looking for her daughter, but Flora was not there. Witness said that she had seen from her window Flora Sass and Boynton walking arm-in-arm together after a late train had arrived from Boston and on other occasions.

"How many times did you see them?" asked Mr. Anderson.

"More than I can recall," witness replied.

Mrs. Boynton said that she spoke to Mr. Ayers and that Mr. Ayers spoke to Boynton about it in her presence. She said that Boynton said the girl followed him, but admitted that "he had been a fool."

Mrs. Boynton said that she told her husband in the presence of Mr. Ayers that if Flora Sass did not leave the store where Boynton and Miss Sass were both working, she, witness, would leave him.

Witness declared her husband expressed sorrow for what he had done and got his wedding ring and begged her on his knees to forgive him. She said she put the ring on his finger at his request and that Mr. Ayers offered prayer."

Mrs. Boynton never heard Mr. Ayers offer to fight her husband or tell him to "take off his glasses."

There was nothing said to her by Ayers, witness asserted, to induce her to leave her husband. Mr. Ayers never said he wanted her to leave her husband.

Mrs. Boynton said she did not appear in the public rooms of the house when not properly clothed. As to eating breakfast with her husband she either ate with him or not at all. She said that she kept one suit and a hat in a closet adjoining the pastor's study because there was no other place for them. She never went to the closet undressed.

She declared Mr. Ayers was not in Walpole when she was there nor in Minneapolis when she visited there with Mr. Ayer's sister.

She was able to go to Minneapolis on the $80 of $90 which Mr. Ayers had paid her for boarding his sister and other of his friends at the Boynton house.

Witness said that she saw very little of Mr. Ayers and that he was not at home much during the daytime. She declared there was never any action of familiarity between Mr. Ayers and herself and declared her husband never made any charge to her about Ayers coming out of her room. She said that Mr. Ayers might have expressed appreciation of her cooking. She had not received any communication from her husband since the Spring of 1912 except a letter which she had returned to him.

Court adjourned at this point until 10 o'clock this morning.

TODAY'S SESSION.

No spectators were admitted to the court room this morning because of the large number of witnesses and a large panel of jurors.

A large delegation of ministers who attended the "ex-parte" council of the Suffolk South Congregational Conference were present, among whom was Rev. George L. Cady of Dorchester and many Wollaston people, some of them members of the Park & Downs church were noticed in the crowd.

Mrs. Boynton resumed the stand and continued her direct testimony.

She testified as to what she heard regarding the friendship of Miss Flora Sass and Mr. Boynton and that Boynton had found no fault with the domestc arrangements at the Beach street house. She had been to Boston with Mr. Ayers three times, the first time being to purchase furnishings and rugs for the Beach street house, the second to meet guests of Mr. Ayers and the third time to help him in the selection of Christmas presents. She had purchased the dog mentioned in Tuesday's testimony for the sum of $5 from Mr. Ayers.

Harry L. James cross-examined the witness.

Mrs. Boynton said that it was possible that she had loved her husband at the time of her marriage, and that there was affection on his part and that she did not repulse him.

Q.—Did you marry him for convenience.

A—Possibly.

Mrs. Boynton said her respect for Boynton ceased after she learned of his habits. She said that she had a great deal of respect for Mr. Ayers and that she believed in him. She voted in favor of Mr. Ayers at the church meeting and at every other opportunity.

She admired Mr. Ayers as a preacher and also as a man, that her admiration was based on his manhood and preaching ability and said that as far as she knew Mr. Ayers had never taken part in a dishonorable act or told an untruth.

Q.—Have you a feeling of resentment against Mr. Boynton?

A.—Yes, but my testimony is not prejudiced.

Mrs. Boynton said she saw Boynton and Miss Sass acting towards each other as though they were on very friendly terms and that she told Boynton that she objected to the kissing episode.

A recess was taken at this point by the court.

LEAGUE MOVE ABANDONED

Organized Base Ball Will Not Materialize

PROMOTERS NOT DISCOURAGED

Organized base ball in Quincy for the summer of 1913 is up in the air, the plans of the promotors of the proposed Old Colony league not materializing at the meeting in the rooms of the Quincy A. A. Tuesday evening. One of the chief drawbacks to the formation of the league was the inability of the Quincy teams to secure enclosed grounds.

After the meeting Tuesday evening the interested parties had a conference with the Park Commissioners relative to the possibility of charging admission to the public parks of the city in the event of a league game. This could not be arranged since most of the parks now controlled by the city are subject to deeds will not allow charges for admission.

It was at first thought that three Weymouth, two Braintree and three Quincy teams would comprise the league. One of the chief obstacles was the proposition advanced by some of the out of town managers which would limit teams to players within the city or town lines. This would practically tie up some of the local teams because the number of players here would not supply the demands.

Individually, the teams will organize and are in the field for games with semiprofessional teams. An assignment of dates on the Merrymount park field will be made shortly by the Park Commissioners.

A meeting of the Commissioners will be held within a few weeks in the Council Chamber and managers can then be awarded the dates they require. For the past two seasons this method has worked out to the advantage of the Commissioners and the Managers.

REELECTED OLD OFFICERS

Wollaston Unitarian Club Listen to Story on China

REGRETTED BOWLING RESULT

The annual meeting of the Wollaston Unitarian club was held Tuesday evening and the following officers were unanimously re-elected:

President—Louis F. R. Langelier.
Vice President—Arthur W. Rohn.
Secretary—John E. Simmons.
Treasurer—Charles P. Loring.
Executive Committee—Arthur B. Hillman, William M. Burrell, Rev. Carl G. Horst.

John E. Simmons and Charles P. Loring read the annual reports of secretary and treasurer respectfully. Edward J. Cummings brought in the report of the nominating committee.

Dr. Charles E. Munroe gave a report of the bowling match between the Unitarian and Congregational clubs. He admitted the fact that the Unitarian were beaten by some 70 pins. It was resolved to send another team against the Congregationalists that would reverse the score.

The speaker of the evening was Rev. Isaac Pierson, field secretary of the American Tract society. Mr. Pierson has had twenty years experience in China and spoke on "China in the future."

LOUIS F. R. LANGELIER
President Wollaston Unitarian Club.

Mr. Pierson spoke of the vast population of the Chinese, some 400,000,000 which represents a quarter of the world's people. The customs of the people and the lands' natural resources were dwelt on.

The reason that China had existed so long, the speaker said, was because of certain moral virtues ingrained in the race.

There is respect for old age and obedience of parents. The Chinese have a certain business integrity that is pavingt hew ayi nb usiness relations in many countries.

The Chinese have the industrial virtues of frugality, industry and perseverance. They love flowers and birds and have a reverence for literature.

Mr. Pierson told of the awakening of China caused by the efforts of Dr. Sun and the Russo-Japanese war and the siezing of their ports by foreign powers, which made the Chinese realize something must be done.

The change to a republic in China was characterized by the speaker as a Christian revolution. By request Mr. Pierson who is familiar with the language spoke several phrases in the Chinese tongue and closed with the Lord's Prayer in Chinese.

After a question box by the members all sang Auld Lang Syne and adjourned until fall.

HARDWICK STAR PERFORMER.

Tack Hardwick of Quincy, a Harvard football star, made good with the Harvard base ball team in the game with the Boston Red Sox, Tuesday, getting two of the three hits credited to his team, putting out two men and playing without an error.

BOWLING

Paul Poehler took sweet revenge out of John Christopher in the final round of their third match at bowling Tuesday night when he ran away from him in the ten strings rolled and won the match by a total score of 2216 to 1043, a margin of 173 pins. With a margin of 48 ahead of his opponent, Poehler came to the scratch for the second session feeling consfderably encouraged. This is the third meeting of those two men. Christopher won the first two and lost the last, and this last one was well worth winning.

Poehler did not indulge in any skyrocket work, his rolling, if anything, being steadier than on Monday night when the pair lined up for the first 10 strings. His total for last night was consistent with the one on Monday, for he improved upon it only to the extent of six pins. On the initial instalment he registered 1105, and last night the sheets showed 1111.

Christopher, on the other hand was woefully weak.

Under a severe handicap on the opening night from bad breaks he made things interesting for Poehler, for his total was 1057 against the German's 1105. Last night his scorer was not so busy, for John had but 986 pins to show for the 10 boxes. His highest string was 111 and the lowest 91—the curtain-raiser.

By comparison, it is plainly seen that Poehler over-matched him by a big margin. On Monday night the German punched in a high string here and there which brought up his total to 1105 pins. Last night his sphere work was steadier. He opened with a single of 108, and never fell under a century until the ninth tring when the result was a foregone conclusion. On that string he hit 91. He came back with a crusher for the getaway, hitting 121, his second best single, the top one being 127 on the seventh string.

The score:

Poehler—108, 116, 106, 100, 112, 111, 127, 119, 91, 121—Total 1111. Grand Total—2216.

STILL ON STRIKE.

The painters who went on a strike Monday are still out and as far as is known none of the Master Painters of the city have signed the new bill of prices which calls for a $2 per week increase and a 44 hour week, bringing the weekly wage up to $20. Business is practically at a standstill throughout the city in the painting line.

WOULD-BE BURGLAR TELEPHONED FOR INFORMATION BEFORE VISIT

Rung Up House of City Solicitor McAnarney and Learned He Would Not Be Home

Caught Crawling in the Window Later by Miss McAnarney

It is not advisable for ladies, left at home alone evenings in answering telephone calls to inform the party calling, especially if a stranger, that they are alone for unwelcome experiences are apt to follow as in the case of Miss McAnarney, sister of City Solicitor John W. McAnarney Tuesday evening. On this evening the City Solicitor was obliged to be away from home on business, his daughter and sister being left alone in the house.

Shortly after 9 o'clock the telephone bell rang. Miss McAnarney answered and the man on the other end of the wire asked if Mr. McAnarney was at home. Being informed that he was not the next question was when he was expected to return, the reply being that she did not know. Then the party asked over the wire, "Are you all alone in the house?" Not stopping to think, Miss McAnarney answered "yes." This ended the conversation.

In thinking over the conversation it came over Miss McAnarney that she had been unwise in telling a stranger that she was all alone and the more she thought about it the more nervous she became, until she timidly ventured down stairs to see if everything was all right. Entering one of the rooms she was startled to see a man in the act of crawling through a window. She uttered a piercing shriek at which the fellow turned back and in doing so lost his balance and rolled down the steep banking.

By this time Miss McAnarney was completely unnerved and after switching on all the lights in the house sat down on the stairs to wait for her brother to return home, in her excitement forgetting to telephone to the police for aid.

Miss McAnarney had nearly collapsed by the time her brother arrived home an hour later. The burglar who ever he was had no difficulty in getting away although he must have been shaken up somewhat by his roll down the steep banking.

INSPECTION OF AIR TANKS

Committee Reported A Bill with Many Changes

PRACTICALLY NO OPPOSITION

(Special to the Ledger)

The committee on Mercantile Affairs reported favorably on Representative William J. Leslie's bill providing for the inspection of compressed air tanks. This bill is of great interest to the granite industry because all engaged in that business use compressed air.

The bill is considerably changed from its original state. There are certain exceptions, and there is a change that puts "teeth" in the bill in the way of providing for a fine of $50 or 30 days imprisonment, or both for violation. If they measure less than 18 inches, they do not come under the terms of the bill.

The first section says that the owner or user of the compressed air tank, if it be insured and inspected by an insurance inspector, it need not be inspected by the State Police. It does say, however, that after the insurance inspector has made his inspection he must report to the Chief of the State Police on special blanks made for the purpose. A fee of $3.00 is required to be paid by the owner or user of the tank for each inspection and each tank must be inspected at least once in every three years. The bill is to become law ninety days after its passage.

The bill does not leave it to the inspector's judgment as to how strict the inspection shall be made, but specifically says that all inspections shall consist of a hammer test, also a hydrostatic test, the pressure of which shall be one and one-half times the pressure allowed on said tanks or receptacles. The tank must be prepared for the inspection by the owner or user. The tank with less than 50 pounds pressure or less than 18 inches in diameter need not be inspected.

Rep. Leslie introduced this bill as a direct result of an accident in a local granite yard, where the explosion of an air tank caused the death of two men.

Mr. Leslie has little doubt but what the bill will go through without opposition, as all objections to the original bill seem to have been met by the redraft.

MRS. WILLETT SLAPPED HIS FACE AND CALLED SON-IN-LAW A LIAR

When She Ordered Him from the Willett Home for Accusing Mr. Ayers

Mrs. Boynton Accused Husband of Having Assaulted Her

Mrs. Helen H. Willett, mother-in-law of Chester A. Boynton, who is suing Rev. William B. Ayers for $5,000 for alienation of his wife's affections, told the Superior Court Wednesday that on the morning she ordered Boynton from the Willett home where his wife was living that she slapped his face and called him a liar. She said it happened Feb. 6, 1912.

She acted so because of Boynton's acusations against Mt. Ayers' character in connection with the latter's wife in New York state before coming here. She said she then called to her daughter to summon Mr. Ayers to face his accuser, and that she locked doors and doors and did what she could to imprison Boynton until Mr. Ayers' arrival.

Additional sensational testimony was brought out by the cross examination of Mrs. Boynton. She said that her husband had asaulted her in her sleeping room one morning and that she parti ally lost consciousness and her husband becoming alarmed called upon Mr. Ayers for assistance.

Six witnesses were called during the afternoon and with one exception were members of the Park and Downs church.He was Rev. Chauncey Hopkins of the Central Congregational church of Jamaica Plain, and a member of the Oversight committee which heard the charges against Mr. Ayers in an attempt to unfrock him. Rev. Mr. Hopkins testified that all the evidence presented by Boynton in support of his charges was that Mrs. Boynton kept her clothes in a closet in Mr. Ayers' study and often went there for her clothes in dishabille and prepared breakfast mornings while wearing a loose robe.

Mrs. Willett said she had heard her daughter tell him he would have to leave if the Sass girl did not leave his office. I asked him what he intended to do and he said he intended to remain until he had driven that hound out of the church and that he had evidence that the minister had been guilty of doing wrong in Cape Vincent N. Y.

She said she then slapped his face and called him a liar and told him he would have to face Mr. Ayers and make the charges. "While Helen was getting Mr. Ayers, Boynton went upstairs and came down with a suit case. I insisted that he remain but he went out through the cellar and I did not see him until the trial."

Mrs. Willett further said that her husband also told Boynton to leave.

Her daughter had complained of the personal habits of Boynton and that she herself had seen evidences of it. Judge Lawton would not allow her to tell what the evidences consisted of.

Among those who testified in behalf of the accused pastor were the members of the church and standing committee, including Artemus M. Dingwell of the choir, William J. Colby, superintendent of the Sunday school. Lieut. James D. Wilson, U. S. N., Charles A. Richardson of the United States internal revenue service and William B. Holmes.

All spoke of instances where Boynton spoke highly of the pastor just previous to the break in the marital relations of Mr. and Mrs. Boynton. They said that Mr. Boynton proposed a vote of thanks to Mr. Ayers for what he had done for the church.

Mr. Colby said that Boynton told him the more he could drag the name of his wife and Ayers through the mud the better he would like it and he said if Ayers had been unfrocked he would not have entered the suit.

Mrs. Boynton testified that she told her husband that if he would give up the Sass girl she would do her duty towards him as she saw it but that she had no respect for him at the time. She said that the replacing of her wedding ring on her finger even though it was sanctioned by prayer meant nothing to her.

The hearing was resumed this morning with Mrs. Willett on the stand for cross examination.

Mrs. Willett said when she slapped Baynton's face and called him a liar she was not defending Mr. Ayers but her daughter.

Six witnesses were called this morning, Mrs. William J. Colby, Mrs. Ella M. Brown, Miss Ella R. Mussaf, Miss Ruth Page, Artemus Dingwell, Sr., and Mrs. Mount.

Mrs. Brown stated that Boynton had told her of the intended trip of Mrs. Boynton to Minneapolis.

Mrs. Colby said she also had talked with Boynton about the trip. At the annual meeting she testified Boynton expresed his confidence in Mr. Ayers and spoke of him very tenderly as "our pastor."

Miss Page said she saw Boynton kiss Flora Sass as they were leaving after a C. E. meeting, that Flora bent back and Boynton forward in order to accomplish it.

Miss Mussaf said she had seen them whispering and talking and passing notes back and forth to each other in the gallery. She admitted hearing rumors about Boynton and Miss Sass and of having spoken about it to Mrs. Boynton. She told that while riding with Boynton to Boston one mornig he said that Mr. Ayers had been in the house the past year and a half and had always conducted himself as befits a minister.

Rev. Herbert A. Barker, pastor of the Boylston street Congregational church, Jamaica Plain and a member of the Oversight committe of the Suffolk Conference told of the trial before the ministers.

COMMISSIONERS TO SEE STREETS WHERE GRADES ARE AFFECTED

Organizations Invited to Send Delegations to Protest Meeting

Citizens Earnest in Opposition to Proposed Changes

The Railroad Commissioners are to come to Quincy tomorrow afternoon to view the grade crossings at Saville and Water streets. They will arrive in Quincy on the train due at 2.50 and be met at the depot by the special committee of the City Council, who has also extended an invitation to the several organizations of the city to be represented by delegates. After viewing the Saville street crossing the Council Committee has provided a special car to take the Commissioners and others to the School street bridge, which under the plans proposed is to be boosted up into the air twelve feet higher than the present bridge. From School street a view will be taken of Water street. It is the intention of the committee and other organizations of the city to show the Railroad Commissioners that they are in earnest in their opposition to the separation of the grades in Quincy as proposed by the plans.

The special committee has also called a meeting for next Monday evening in the Council Chamber at City Hall to which several organizations of the city have been invited to send representatives.

The object of this meeting is to lay out a plan of action for the continued hearing to be held before the Board of Railroad Commissioners Friday, April 18. It is probable that at Monday night's meeting some definite plan will be adopted which will be presented to the Railroad Commissioners and its adoption urged.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Sir Thomas has withdrawn his limitation clause but it looks as though he had put the New York Yacht club in somewhat of a hole at that, with his 75 foot boat.

The visiting telephone girls find Boston a nice and easy place. Their quarters and conditions are far superior to any of the regular operators of the Boston exchanges. Nothing more need be said.

With the base ball fans the 1913 calendar did not start until today.

As usual women are the chief claimants for front seats at the Boynton-Ayers trial in Boston. Comment is unnecessary.

If the threatened clash between the telephone company and the American Federation of Labor should come to pass, it would be a case of Greek meeting Greek.

Ice is promised to go up, because there was no little cutting the past winter. When will the trials of the consumer cease?

Various sections of Boston are now claiming they have been neglected in the handing out of improvements Certainly the outlying districts have nothing to boast of in the way of highway favors.

Tack Hardwick is equally as good on the ball field as he was on the gridiron but withal he is a modest fellow who gets along nicely without being pictured in the papers every day.

Few of us will worry much over running up of the income tax to 50 per cent on incomes of $15,000,000.

Somerville lays claim to the smallest park in the world. It may be so but when it comes to the smallest enclosure that little jib piece down at Houghs Neck is in the running.

The American suffragette who was jailed in London has been released and taken in hand by her mother. The maternal ancestor would do well to administer old fashioned but healthful chastisement.

It is quite noticeable that the most active in labor troubles are among those who have the least to do except of course organizing and the like.

The anti-saloon men with their numerous bills for changes in the liquor law received short shift from the committee in charge of their matters.

If Houghs Neck does not get that dredging there will be an awful screech all along the line. When it comes to river and harbor improvements there is harmonious harmony of action.

President Wilson is credited with remarking that he wrote intelligently of the consular service when he knew nothing about it, which is about on a line with many people who talk of great reforms and how they should be accomplished without even being within hailing distance of practical experience on the subjects.

And is it not about time that something was done with regard to Adams Academy. If the building is left deserted and untenanted much longer it will soon be in good shape to demolish.

There is much to be desired yet to further perfect the parcel post and make it of service to every business and the people generally. As at present it discriminates unjustly against much matter that should be mailable. Take printed matter for instance—a printer can telephone to Boston for a box of cards which can come out by parcel post. They are printed and are wanted at Wollaston, Braintree or some nearby place but cannot be sent by parcel post because there is printer's ink on them. The cards are no more valuable printed than in the blank, so far as the government is concerned. Then why this discrimination? The dry goods merchant, the grocer, in fact most any one can benefit by the parcel post except the printer. Why is it thus? Is it fair?

ICE GOING UP.

When will it ever cease? This perpetual movement of advancing prices. It has been claimed there is no such thing as perpetual motion. All nonsense. All one has to do is look at the advance of prices in all commodities, and especially the unreasonable increase in the necessities of life, for the past few years to be convinced to the contrary and satisfied that the perpetual motion problem had been solved. Without any rhyme or reason coal advanced last fall. There was a delightful opportunity for the politicians to proclaim the outrage from the stump and announce what they would do if elected. On the whole those elected who were the loudest to cry out for and assure probe in the coal situation have forgotten all about it and again the people were fooled by the same old tactics.

And now it is the price of ice that is going up. That has been threatened, but it was believed that it was staved off. Again the politicians began their work. Investigations were promised in fact ares till in the promised state, put away into cold storage to be resurrected once more when there is another howl of protest from the people or on the advent of an election.

Those investigations afford little satisfaction, very little is accomplished towards any desired end and certainly they fail to produce beneficial results. They do cost money and some one gets a slice and by the time the committee or the individual has prepared a report which is not very clear, every one has almost forgotten the incident and people have become so used to paying the advance that they forgot that it was higher than a few weeks before. Coal went down a little when it was not needed to be reduced, but the only ones who could take advantage of this were the rich people who could order their coal delivered in June and have the bill sent along even if they did not settle before the next June. But the poor people had no such advantages and could not save any money at the time when prices are down, because they must pay cash on the spot.

On the whole there seems to be need of some sort of radical course to check this perpetual upward motion. If it can be accomplished by a revision of the tariff, then the quicker the tariff is revised and relief offered the people the better it will be for the country.

At the present, the condition is well nigh unbearable and the burden to the poor people far greater than they can or should be called upon to bear.

RATHER A TIGHT FIT.

Sir Thomas Lipton has issued another challenge for the American cup, in which he has eliminated the size qualifications, accepting the decree of the deed of gift that the boat should be anywhere from 65 to 90 feet waterline. His first challenge was to limit the defender to 75 feet water line. This was not acceptable to the New York Yacht club. But in the closing words of his announcement of the second challenge the Irish baronet says, "I shall look forward with pleasure to racing my 75 footer in 1914." Which of course means that he is going to bring over a 75 footer and place the New York Yacht club in the awkward position of meeting that challenge with a 90 footer, which they have a perfect right to do under the rules, or else practically accept the challengers qualification with any being made. In other words Sir Thomas has backed the New York Yacht club into a corner in the most approved style. They would not agree to a 75 foot defender, but a 75 foot challenger is coming over and true sportsman qualities demand that too much advantage cannot be taken of an open opponent. In the parlance of the street, Sir Tommy has put one over on the defenders in pretty good shape.

IT IS SIGNIFICANT.

The suggestion that the special election in the Thirteenth congressional district to select a successor to Senator John W. Weeks is of no consequence because result cannot change existing conditions in congress is rather a weak attempt to belittle the place or else an effort to throw dust in the eyes of the voters as to the real significance of the result.

It may be accepted that so far as the individual selection of a congressman from that district by the voters may go that it will have little to do with the legislation contemplated by congress, so far as the single vote of the member counts. One member more or less, by his vote in congress at the present time can have but little weight, but the expression of the people at the polls on this occasion cannot fail to produce a world of significance to the powers that be. There are three candidates, a Democrat who stands for the party principles, a Republican who upholds the doctrine of protection and opposition to the proposed wholesale revision of the tariff and a Progressive who is fully awake to the tenets of that party. As stated before the influence either one of those gentlemen on legislation would be slight but there would be a vast significance in the way the voters expressed themselves if they turned out in large numbers at this special election. It is their duty to do so on this occasion. It is fortunate at this time that an important district of this state has a special election. The voters should realize the importance of the issues and the weight which cannot fail to be accorded their decision at the polls.

It is the duty of the voters of the district and an obligation they owe the entire state to turn out in large numbers and record their views as expressed by their ballots. If a large per centage of the voters turn out their choice cannot fail to give those in control of the government at Washington some idea of just how Massachusetts stands on the legislation contemplated cannot fail to carry the weight it should deserve.

If on the other hand there is indifference, a lack of interest and a small vote that district has the grave responsibility of putting the whole state in a false position at this time. The voters of the Thirteenth district, should awake to the emergency. They should record their preference in large numbers. In doing so they will be discharging a mighty obligation to the state and show which way the wind blows. Laxity on the other hand will manifest nothing and place the district in a position of indifference which will be accepted as the attitude of the state. Seldom has a single district the opportunity which the Thirteenth has at this history making epoch in politics. It is up to the voters of the district to rise to the occasion and show just how Massachusetts stands on the important measures which are now before congress.

EQUALIZATION MUCH NEEDED

Also Change in Method of Assessing Urged by Johnson

AT HOUGHS NECK MEETING

Equalization of taxes and needed changes in the present assessing system was the topic of a comprehensive lecture by Charles H. Johnson at a meeting of the Houghs Neck Associates Wednesday evening. A very large attendance marked the opening spring meeting.

Although no action on the abolition of grade crossings was taken, at the meeting the sentiment seemed to favor depression. Many voted that way on the balots in the store of Capt. Oliver Fosdick.

Mr. Johnson was presented by President Henry W. French. He talked for one and one half hours and interestingly described the methods in vogue. He pointed out the unfairness of the system in many ways.

General dissatisfaction was expressed because the Bank Commissioners did not favorably report on the petition of beach residents for the incorporation of a co-operative bank.

Col. "Al" Whitman extended a cordial invitation for all to join the Quincy Board of Trade.

Representatives were present from the Wollaston and Montclair Improvement Associations.

OSWELL HAS LONG RECORD

Arrested For Boston Police Charged with Stealing a Coat

William Oswell of South street was arrested by officer Broberg Wednesday evening for Boston officers by whom he was wanted for the alleged larceny of an overcoat belonging to William J. Smith from the hotel Blanheim two nights ago. It is alleged that Oswell when he left the hotel carried away the overcoat. The arrest was made for Special officer Anderson of Station 4, who took him to Boston.

Oswell is well known to the Quincy police and has a long record in the Quincy court dating from 1907 when he was fined $50 for violation of the Lord's day act. He has been in court a number of times for drunkenness and paid fines and in Nov. 1908 received a sentence to the Massachusetts Reformatory for breaking and entering the office of Charles Gallagher. At that time Oswell was arrested in Newport and the police went down after him.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co. Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

The club voted to apply for admission to the General Federation of clubs. This club is especially interested in the work of the Department Committee. The question of purchasing land whereon to build a clubhouse was talked over with much enthusiasm and as the land committee had submitted a report it was finally decided to consider a piece of land belonging to the Graham estate on Washington street. The club means business and on Wednesday afternoon April 30, will hold a May festival when there will be for sale May-baskets, home made candies and cake, also a beautiful braided rug such as our grandmothers used to make. NAVAL WEDDING AT WOLLASTON

Lieut. Nimitz and Miss Freeman United in Matrimony

BRIDE CUT THE CAKE

It was a naval wedding, characterized by all the eclat of such an occasion which was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Rich Freeman, 40 Grand View avenue, Wollaston, Wednesday evening, when the daughter of the house, Miss Catherine Vance Freeman was united in marriage to Lieut Chester William Nimitz U. S. N. The groom was surrounded by a group of his fellow officers in the full dress uniform of their rank, and their blue and gold lace with the pretty gowns of the women made a pretty and memorable picture one long to be treasured in the memory. And this scene was enhanced by the simple yet effective house decorations of spring flowers and jonquils. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Carl G. Horst, pastor of the Wollaston Unitarian church.

The bride wore a gown of white duchess satin trimmed with point de Venice lace and carried a bouquet of lilies of the Valley. She was attended by her sister, Miss Elizabeth Emerson Freeman as maid of honor and she was gowned in blue satin with overdress of white chiffon, embroidered in gold and blue.

The groom who is a son of Mr. and Mrs. William Nimitz of Kerrville, Tex., had for his best man, Lieut. George V. Stewart U. S. N. of the Annapolis Naval Academy.

A reception followed the ceremony and the bride and groom were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Richard R. Freeman. The ushers were Lieut. L. Dean Causey, USN. of Mississippi, at present in command of the Atlantic submarine fleet, Lieut. Clarence N. Hinkamp of Milwaukee, commanding the USS. Tonopah; Lieut Warren G. Child, USN. of Utah, on duty at the Fore River shipyards; Lieut Ralph A. Koch, USN. of Nebraska, now on duty with the Bureau of Navigation at Washington; Lieut Donald A. Bingham, USN. of Alabama, on duty at the Navy Department, Washington and Richard R. Freeman, Jr., of Ishpeming, Michigan, a brother of the bride.

Just perceding the reception, the bride followed the Naval custom on such occassions by cutting the wedding cake with her husband's sword. All assembled around the table on which the confection rested. The groom drew his sword from the scabbard, kissed the hilt, and reversing it presented the hilt to the bride who immediately proceeded to cleave the mammoth cake in several pieces.

After the reception Lieut. Nimitz and his bride left on a honeymoon trip to his old home in Texas and after staying there for a while the couple will sail for Europe. Lieut. Nimitz is one of the best-known of the younger Naval officers. He graduated from Annapolis in the class of 1905 and most of his service has been with submarine boats, on which he is an authority. He recently was relieved from the command of the Atlantic flotilla of the submarine boats and his place was taken by his best man, Lieut. George V. Stewart, USN.

ATTENDANCE NOT HEAVY

At the Benefit For the Flood Sufferers in Music Hall

RECEIPTS WILL BE BETTER

Many social events in the different sections of the city prevented a larger attendance at the entertainment in Music hall Wednesday evening for the benefit of the flood sufferers. The slim attendance however did not indicate much, for there were many tickets sold to parties who were unable to attend in person.

Owing to the illness of Mayor Stone he was unable to be present to open the meeting and this was devolved upon John L. Hamilton, president of the Board of Trade. President Hamilton said that he regretted the somewhat small attendance which was due to many conflicting dates. He also stated that many tickets had been sold and thanked the management of the hall for its use and the talent for their services.

The program was an interesting one and included the presentation of the comedy "A Foul Tip." In addition to this there was music by the Wollaston Cadet band orchestra and soprano solos by Miss Alice C. Foley.

It is impossible to tell at the present time just how much has been raised for the sufferers. There were many tickets out for sale in different parts of the city from which returns have not as yet been received. In addition to this, several cash contributions have been left with City Clerk Crane.

Professor Marchiafava admitted this morning that the pope was suffering from inflammation of the kidneys, complicated with dropsy of cardiac origin.

$75,000 BILL A TRIFLE HAZY

Uncertainty As To How and Where It Should be Spent

MAY BE CHANGED

(Special to the Ledger)

The bill that gives the Directors of the Port of Boston an additional sum of $75,000 to spend on improvements and developments in greater Boston Harbor, and is intended to cover the indebtedness incurred in the work proposed in several small bills that were put into the charge of the committee on Metropolitan Affairs, is creating some interest. Out of this appropriation will come the provision for the dredging at Houghs Neck channel to the steamboat wharf and Mayor Stone's bill, and the provision for further improvement of Weymouth Fore and Town Rivers.

The bill as drawn is not satisfactory.

Members from some of the districts which have small bills for appropriations similar to Quincy's point to the fact that the Fort Directors under the terms of the bill need not spend a cent on any improvements and if they do, they are not bound by the bill to spend on any of the money on the bills as stipulated. It is left to the judgment of the directors whether the public demand at Houghs Neck is sufficient to warrant their spending any part of the $75,000 although the bill apparently reports favorably upon that proposition.

It will be surprising if some of the members do not propose an amendment making the bill most explicit and naming precisely the numerous bills that are supposed to be covered by the committees report.

MASQUERADE COMMITTEE.

The committee in charge of the masquerade to be given in the Christ Church Parish house Friday evening consists of Miss Olive Smith, Miss Elizabeth G. Dickie, Miss Helen Schools and Miss Marion Bolster. The affair will be conducted by the St. Margaret's Guild.

SQUANTUMITES STILL ACTIVE

Community House, Street Improvements, Better Car Service

ALL AROUSE ENTHUSIASM

Enthusiastic endorsement of the plans of the Squantum Woman's club for building a community house was voted by the Squantum Improvement association at its meeting Tuesday night at the bungalow of C. E. Carlson, Huckins avenue. There was a good attendance of members and the plans of the Woman's club were explained.

On motion of Vice President Herbert A. Smith the association voted its moral support to the clubhouse movement also to give a minstrel show June 17 and donate the funds to the Woman's club.

In support of the motion T. F. Callahan, treasurer of the association, said: "I believe it is time the men recognized the work of the Woman's club officially. They are doing a grand work for this community and should be supported in every way, if I was able I would sign a check for $5,000 tomorrow and make it a gift to the Woman's club so firm am I in the belief that the ladies are working in the right direction and doing an excellent work for Squantum."

President Carlson, who presided, John R. Nelson and William N. Kenyon also spoke in support of the Woman's club house movement and said it was the duty of every man who had the interest of Squantum at heart to put his name to subscription paper circulated for the sale of mortgaged bonds for as large a donation as they could afford. Before business was transacted a motion was passed expressing sympathy to the surviving family of Mrs. Perley Bostwick. It was voted that a suitable memorial piece be sent to the funeral and resolutions of condolence be forwarded to the family, President Carlson appointing the following committee for this purpose: Vice President Smith, Hiram A. Morse and John R. Nelson.

It was voted that the street committee wait upon Mayor Stone, and Commissioner of Public Works Tupper in an effort to get the grades of Bellevue road and Huckins avenue so that those who wish to lay out sidewalks may do so. It was voted that the street committee hold a special meeting Friday evening to take this matter in hand and appoint a subcommittee to wait upon the public officials to see what can be done.

On motion of Mr. Callahan it was unanimously voted that a letter be forwarded to Postmaster Mansfield asking that Mr. Paul, the letter carrier who has served Squantum so efficiently for the past three summers be re-assigned to Squantum for this season. It was also voted that the postmaster be asked for an earlier date for mail delivery in Squantum than heretofore.

President Carlson introduced Mr. Davids, secretary of the Atlantic Improvement association, who expressed his pleasure at visiting his neighbor association and extended an invitation to the Squantum association to visit Atlantic association at its next regular meeting May 2d which was accepted.

Mr. Kenyon in speaking of car service and trolley express business said that he had promises of a daily trip being made to Squantum by the trolley express in the near future. The matter of street railway service was left about as it has been.

Chairman Kenyon of the street lighting committee announced that the money was now available for the installation of 15 additional street lights and that he expected that Mayor Stone would give the order for the installation within a week.

A communication was read from the Houghs Neck associates inviting a representative of the Squantum association to attend the meeting at Houghs Neck protesting against land assessments as now levied.

WIN PORTION OF THEIR DEMANDS

But Strike of Hub 'Phone Operators May Be Ordered

ABOLITION OF "SPLIT TRICK"

Main Point on Which Dispute Is Centered After All Night Conference Between Union Leaders and Company Officials—Desperate Efforts of Business Men to Avert Strike

Boston, April 10.—Yesterday was one series of nerve-racking postponements of the final calling of the telephone strike. With everything ready to flash the walkout signal in the exchanges, the strike in the afternoon was only put off from hour to hour.

Only the success of a final conference between the company and its employes, called last night through the desperate efforts of Mayor Fitzgerald, the state board of arbitration and the Chamber of Commerce committee, can prevent the strike today.

Union leaders and company officials met at Young's hotel and struggled for hours to thrash out their differences.

The company by midnight was said to have conceded practically all demands of the union except the abolition of the "split trick." This, they claimed, would mean so many additional operators that they stood out strenuously against giving in on the point.

This conference came after all hope of staving off the strike seemed gone. At midnight the representatives of the union and of the company were meeting in different rooms and had exchanged in writing what were said to be absolutely their last terms.

The company was understood to have given in on the demand for an increase in wages and for a grievance committee of three operators, to which all matters of dispute were to be referred.

Full preparations to strike at 2 o'clock yesterday had been made by the operators. Delay in a meeting of the two parties with the state board of arbitration caused a postponement till 3:30. Everything was ready to flash the strike signal through the exchanges then.

But the influence of powerful business men and of the city and state authorities prevailed. After a wrangle between Samuel L. Powers for the company and International Vice President Bugniazet of the union, in which broken faith was freely charged and negotiations all but broken off, Mayor Fitzgerald and the members of the state board carried their point for another conference.

The report from this conference, which lasted well into the small hours of this morning, will be made to the state board today.

If no agreement has been reached between the company and its employes a strike is likely to follow at once. This morning the chance of opening any further negotiations seemed very slight.

The Chamber of Commerce committee, after being in a series of conferences with both sides for practically twenty-four hours, went into session at Young's with the company and union representatives in what seemed the last hope of bringing about an understanding.

Conferences did not for a moment slacken the strenuous preparations of both sides for a strike. Strikebreaking girls reached Boston by almost every train from the west and south till Back Bay hotels were literally filled with them.

By 1 o'clock this morning 1700 outside operators were housed in Boston and the surrounding suburbs. The last detachment of 300 girls arrived from Chicago on a special train after midnight.

Chaos in the hotels was threatened last night, when the waiters and cooks' unions voted unanimously to refuse to have any part in serving strikebreakers at hotels, if a telephone strike is called, and with the engineers of the hotels agreed to strike if necessary to enforce their stand. They pledged themselves to every effort to force the strikebreakers out of the hotels if the operators walk out.

MAN WHO SHOOK LINCOLN'S HAND

Gave Delightful Reminiscences of Secretary John Hay

BETHANY BANQUET SUCCESS

Hon. Solon W. Stevens of Lowell, who is proud of the fact that he shook hands with President Lincoln on Inauguration day in 1861, was the speaker at the annual banquet and ladies' night of Bethany Brotherhood, Wednesday evening. His subject was "John Hay" and his reminisences of men of half a century ago were exceedingly interesting.

About 125 ladies and gentlemen were in attendance and enjoyed a social hour in Bethany chapel previous to the banquet which was served at 6.30 in the dinning room. The only decorations were American flags. Aside from the head table, each of the tables seated ten persons. The pastor invoked the divine blessing.

The menu was an excellent one, as follows:

Roast Turkey with Cranberry Sauce
Delmonico Potatoes
Salmon and Peas Chicken Croquettes
String Beans
Banana Fritters Chicken Salad
Orange and Vanilla Sherbet
Harlequin Ice Cream
Tutti Frutti
Assorted Cake
Rolls Coffee

During the banquet one of Edison's latest phonographs operated by W. G. Shaw and Albert Rennie rendered several beautiful selections including "Dream of Galilee" and "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere."

Mr. Stevens, was for fifty years organist at the Lowell Congregational church where Rev. Mr. Willmott was pastor, and he was prevailed upon to play "Auld Lang Syne" on the piano, which he did with artistic effect. When encored he gave old hymns with variations. A. L. Hayden also contributed solos, accompanied by Mrs. Daisy Bemis Sampson.

Mr. Stevens was happily introduced by Rev. Mr. Willmott. He expressed gratification at being present to see Rev. and Mrs. Willmot in their new and delightful home, and said some of the people of Lowell did not feel just right toward Quincy for having taken him away.

It was in 1858, he said, that John Hays and he graduated from Brown University. He spoke of his youth, his college life and his genius. He was the class poet, and later issued a volume of poems, from which Mr. Stevens read "Little Breeches" "The Ballod of the Prairie Bell" "The Enchanted Shirt" and "On Tabors Hill."

After Hay left college he studied law in an office adjoining that of Abraham Lincoln, and the latter recognized his worth and selected him as private secretary. Mr. Stevens said his attachment for Hay caused him to go to Washington on Inauguration day. The reminiscences he related of that red letter day were of great interest.

Then Mr. Stevens told of the success of Hay on the French legation, and in other positions, notably as secretary of states. By training a statesman, he was selected because of fitness. He was the confidential friend of Lincoln. He outgrew provincialism. His fame is secure. The world is richer and fined because he lived in it.

Rev. Mr. Willmott spoke briefly along the lines of the address of Mr. Stevens.

Colonel TODHUNTER of Missouri

By RIPLEY D. SAUNDERS

Copyright, 1911, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company.

SYNOPSIS

Then he turned to Colonel Bill Strickland. "That settles it, suh!" he snorted. "I'll be shot full o' holes if I don't take the stump for you myself, Bill Strickland, if they're startin' the fight right in your own town, suh, the fust minute you come home, suh. I'll make imperial Mizzoorah howl for William J. Strickland, too, suh; hang my picture if I don't!"

In full view of the parading crowd Colonel Bill Strickland grasped Colonel Todhunter's hand. "You old war horse!" he cried. "I'd rather have you stumping Missouri for me than all the state committee spellbinders that ever breathed the breath of life! Bully for you, Thurs! We'll fight 'em to the last ditch!" Great was the cheering at this incident.

But the Strickland parade did not encounter the Nineveh bugle and drum corps and the Stephen K. Yancey Campaign club at this juncture.

The encounter came later.

It came at that tremendous moment when Colonel Thurston T. Todhunter, majestic on the town hall stage, was just reaching the fervid peroration of a speech that was to close with the inspiring mention of the name of the Honorable William J. Strickland as Missouri Democracy's sure choice for governor.

It was a premeditated blow at the glory of the Todhunter brand of oratory, the cherished pride of Colonel Thurs T. Todhunter's ardent soul.

Entering the town hall and defiantly marching up the main corridor to the wide double doors that gave a view of the Strickland meeting, the Nineveh bugle and drum corps, heading the Stephen K. Yancey Campaign club, awoke the resounding echoes.

Never, it would seem, had earth heard such clamor of trumpet and tambour.

It crashed into and through the town hall assembly room. It rose to the roof and came thundering back into the aisles. It smote the ears as with cataclysmic bolts of sound. It stilled the eloquence of Colonel Thurs T. Todhunter as if that mighty speaker were an infant lifting voice against the voice of elemental chaos.

And Colonel Todhunter paused, crestfallen.

Then the lust of righteous battle flamed from his indignant eyes. He waved his right hand with a Jovian gesture. "Drive 'em away, Samson!" he shouted. "You and Sim Birdsong. I ain't done yet!"

And the gallant Samson Meek rose to the occasion. With a mighty wave of his baton he rallied his bandsmen in close order behind him. Captain Sim Birdsong, no less dependable, formed the Nineveh Light infantry in line behind the band. There was a magnificent flourish of Samson Meek's silver knobbed rod of office, a quick command from Captain Sim Birdsong, and then—

The Nineveh brass band and the Nineveh Light infantry deployed into the corridor and charged upon the enemy.

It was an assault sonorous and irresistible. Its slogan was "Hail Columbia!" This gave the big horns an almost unearthly opportunity. The "little fat fellow with the horn bigger'n him" seemed resolved to obey Colonel Todhunter's injunction and "blow himself inside out." His fellows followed his example. The resultant cyclone of wind clamor wiped out the Nineveh bugle and drum corps as if it had not been. Triumph shone on the face of Drum Major Samson Meek, truculently waving his glittering baton.

But an ominous cry rose from his front. "Rush 'em, boys! Make a rough-house!"

Even as the Strickland forces leaned forward for a countering rush into combat, however, a resolute figure sprang in between the battle lines. It was the figure of Constable Pete Fanshaw, embodying the law of Nineveh. It waved a sternly forbidding hand for a moment.

"None o' that, you boys!" he shouted. "I ain't takin' no sides, but this here's a public meetin' and it's my sworn duty to see that there ain't no disturbin' of the peace. Stam Tucker, you turn your men right around and march 'em out o' here double quick! And you, Tom Strickland, quit your edgin' up to git a lick at Stam! There ain't goin' to be no fightin' here this load o' poles!"

Every young chap in Nineveh knew Pete Fanshaw's fiber. He stood restrainingly between the lines. He was not to be trifled with. If necessary he could enlist either faction under the standard of the law, to punish the aggressor if battle were precipitated.

Stamford Tucker glowered at him for a moment. Then his eyes narrowed in a venomous flash at Tom Strickland.

At last, sullenly, Tucker gave the order that set the Yancey clan in motion to abandon the field.

War had been averted.

And five minutes later, again getting up steam, Colonel Todhunter completed his speech. The Hon. William J. Strickland advanced to the front of the stage and began his own address. Soon the first rally of the Strickland campaign for the governorship of Missouri peacefully reached its appointed finish, and the crowd dispersed.

CHAPTER IV.

Lottie-May Doggett Weaves a Web.

LOTTIE-MAY DOGGETT, her dark and eager face alight with excitement, had attended the political meeting which followed the Strickland parade. Nearly all Nineveh indeed, ordinarily so quiet, was in public evidence this night, grateful for a little diversion.

The girl was a witness therefore to the dire interruption of Colonel Todhunter's speech and had also seen the clash of the rival factions, headed by Tom Strickland and Stam Tucker. Her eyes shone with expectancy of a personal encounter between the two young men.

"Lord, I'd like to see 'em clinch!" she exclaimed, pushing a bit forward as she spoke. "They'd make a good fight, too, seein' as how there ain't been no love lost between 'em for some time. I bet they'll get at it!"

Her companion, a girl who envied Lottie-May that partial acceptance by Nineveh's good families which was due to her grandfather's honorable Confederate record, laughed a bit significantly. "It won't be your fault if they don't fight some day, Lottie-May Doggett!" she charged. "I hear you've been settin' your cap at both of 'em in a mighty dangerous way."

"I ain't been doin' nothin' of the sort!" indignantly denied Lottie-May, resentment in her face. "It ain't my fault if Stam Tucker sets up to me, is it? And I reckon Tom Strickland's got the same right, ain't he? You better mind your own business and let my affairs alone."

"Land alive! What a spit cat about nothin'!" protested the other. "But Tom Strickland better leave Stam Tucker alone. My brother says Stam always carries a pistol and is a dangerous man when his blood's up."

Lottie-May's eyes flashed instant disdain. "I reckon Tom Strickland can take care of himself," she retorted hotly. "I wouldn't be afeared for him in a difficulty with Stam Tucker."

Her companion laughed triumphantly. "I caught you that time, Lottie-May!" she cried. "I just wanted to see which you liked the best, Stam or Tom. And it's Tom, that's who it is!"

"You think you're smart, don't you?" countered Lottie-May, but blushing angrily. "Well, you ain't. Neither one of 'em is makin' me lay awake of nights, I can tell you."

"It'll be Tom does it, if anybody does," calmly returned the other. "But they ain't a-goin' to clinch this time, at any rate. Pete Fanshaw's just called 'em down and put a stop to their foolishness."

Lottie-May was still fuming with resentment of this open bantering concerning Tom Strickland and Stam Tucker when she started homeward. Not at all unwilling to accept the secret wooing of either, she intuitively shrank from the open coupling of their names with hers. The shadow of her mother's shame oppressed her, and it was only in moments of sudden anger or other excitement that she surrendered to a mood of reckless defiance of her dark inheritance.

Even now, however, it gave Lottie-May a thrill of vainful triumph to remember that Stam Tucker was awaiting her somewhat farther along her lonely homeward way through the night and that he would accompany her as near to her suspicious old grandfather's house as she dared permit. But Tom Strickland himself intervened before her meeting with Stam Tucker this night. He, too, was homeward bound, encountering the girl at a secluded crossing of their respective roads. Lottie-May's heart gave a great leap as she recognized him in the darkness. A sudden impulse of passionate enticement possessed her soul.

"Goodness me, Tom Strickland!" she cried. "You skeered me 'most to death! I took you for one of them Black Bottoms men from the trappin' camp."

Emphasizing her claim of panic, she stood very close to Tom. A loose strand of her hair blew against his face. Her dark eyes were velvety with unconcealed tempting, her voice vibrant with appeal.

"You oughtn't to be going home by yourself at this time of night, Lottie-May," said Tom. "It ain't safe—for as young and—and as pretty a girl as you are." His voice shook just a little.

Lottie-May laughed. "There, Tom, you've actually paid me a compliment!" she exclaimed, a perilous exultation curving her red lips. "It's the first one, too. Maybe you ain't so hard hearted in the nighttime as you are in the daytime, Tom!"

There was the frankest wooing in the girl's manner. She moved until her softly rounded young shoulder touched Tom's arm.

"I never saw the day I was afraid to tell you how pretty you are!" he said. "But that's just the trouble right now. I don't like to see you going home alone so late at night."

Lottie-May Doggett felt a sudden glow of love for Tom thrill her. At the same instant, though remembering, she recklessly ignored the fact that Stam Tucker was waiting for her farther along the way.

"Maybe you better come home with me, then, Tom," she said softly. Tom Strickland laughed.

"That's what I'm going to do, Lottie-May," he responded. "I'd never forgive myself if anything happened to you with me knowing you had to go home alone. You—you're sure you're willing for me to come with you?"

The girl's eyes were liquid soft.

"Willin'?" she repeated. "You know I'm willin'—and more than willin', Tom. I just asked you—and I ain't never goin' to forget this night as long as I live!"

Again Tom Strickland laughed. "You will have me making love to you first thing you know!" he said. "You'd better be careful, Lottie-May, if you ain't willing!"

"I dare you to, Tom!" the girl replied in a low voice. "I dare you to! And no real man ever took such a dare from a girl!"

They were moving side by side along the road. The girl's free carriage seemed that of some wild and beautiful young animal of the woods. Tom Strickland bent toward her, passing his arm about her soft little waist.

Plenty of evidence of their worth.

Mrs. Ellen Lawler, 51 Meridian St., East Boston, Mass., says: "I praise Doan's Kidney Pills just as highly today as I did some years ago when I gave a public statement in their favor. The cure this remedy effected has been permanent. The principal symptom of kidney complaint in my case was a dull, heavy ache in my hips and back, often accompanied by pains in my loins. I became dizzy when I stooped and lost my strength and ambition. My entire system was run down and I did not know what to do for relief. Finally I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills and it was not long before they restored me to good health."

"When your back is lame—remember the name." Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—ask distinctly for Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Lawler had. 50c all stores. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

TWENTY STRING MATCH.

The next big event in bowling circles is the 20 string match between Bernard Burke and Herbert Smith, high average men in the Fore River League. The first leg will be rolled Tuesday evening and the final Thursday evening, at the Coliseum alleys.

Burke has never rolled individually but his friends are banking on him to hold to his regular showing. Smith is an experienced match bowler and a good man from all angles.

The Fore River yard enthusiasts are generously backing both men and pools are being made up in the strings and totals.

Appearances indicate that about $500 is now shelved and the fund seems to be growing.

AFTER WEDDING TRIP SOUTH

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Jones Will Make Home in Braintree

A pretty wedding of much interest to many Braintree people was solemnized Wednesday evening when Miss Augusta M. Schwan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Schwan of Englewood, New Jersey was united in marriage to George H. Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Jones of 34 Stedman avenue, Braintree. The ceremony was performed at Englewood at 8.30 o'clock by Rev. James G. Bailey, pastor of the Englewood Presbyterian church. Ralph W. Burnham of Braintree was best man and Miss Emilie M. Schwan of Englewood was the maid of honor. She was gowned in white silk marquisette and carried pink roses.

The ushers were William Schwan and George Schwan of New York, Frank Walker of Leonia, New Jersey, Philip Rose of Englewood, New Jersey and Frank C. Drinkwater of Braintree. Miss Emilie L. Walker of Leonia was flower girl and Master Howard Rose of Englewood was the page. Both children carried baskets of sweet peas and made a pretty picture as they carried out the duties assigned to them.

The groom's present to the bride was an amethyst brooch surrounded by pearls and the brides' present to her maid of honor was a ring set with five pearls. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a beautiful creation of white satin charmeuse and rose point lace, trimmed with pearls and orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of brides' roses and lilies of the valley.

The wedding march was played by Miss Mildred Gerrish of Paterson, New Jersey. After the ceremony there was a reception at the home of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Jones left on a late train for a wedding trip to Washington and the south and on their return will reside in Braintree. They will be at home after June 1st.

Mr. Jones is a well known and popular young man of precinct two where he is employed at the local office of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company as line repair man. Mrs. Jones before her marriage was in the employ of a large importing house in New York and among the many handsome and valuable wedding gifts received by the young couple was a check for a very generous amount from her former employers. The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Jones unite in wishing them a long and happy married life.

FIRE BLAZES UP IN MILTON HOUSE

Just After Syrian Owner Had Left the Premises.

THIS WAS SECOND FIRE

Kergis Barsoon a Syrian was arrested by the Milton police early this morning charged with arson and was arraigned in the Quincy court later on two complaints for arson and held in $1000 on each complaint until April 12. Barsoon owns a three flat house on the corner of Blue Hill avenue and Brush Hill road Milton which he values at $13,000 and which is insured for $10,000. Barsoon was seen about the premises early Wednesday evening and later, or about 9 o'clock the building was discovered to be on fire.

Barsoon was suspected of knowing something about the fire and a Milton officer and Metropolitan Park officer were detailed to watch the place for the remainder of the night. Shortly after 2.30 this morning Barsoon was seen coming from the building and was promptly placed under arrest by the officers on watch. Before the officers could get to the police box with their prisoner a lively blaze broke out in the building.

When questioned at the police station about the fires, he denied all knowledge of the fires. He said that when the first fire was discovered he was in Boston and that he had been informed by a friend that his house was on fire and had immediately come out. He denied being about the building earlier in the evening although the police have witnesses who saw him. He also denied all knowledge of the second fire.

ROAD'S PLEA SUSTAINED

Separate Trials For New Haven Officials Charged With Manslaughter

Bridgeport, Conn., April 10.—The four officials of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, charged with manslaughter in connection with the Westport wreck last October, in which several lives were lost, will be tried separately. Judge Greene, who is hearing the case in the superior criminal court, so decided after listening to arguments that had lasted all yesterday morning and a part of Tuesday.

The officers are: Vice President H. J. Horn, now resigned; Superintendent B. R. Pollock, C. N. Woodward, formerly superintendent of the Shore Line division, and L. J. Carmalt, engineer of maintenance.

State Attorney Judson had argued for the trying of all of the men together. Attorney Cummings of counsel for the defense pleaded that the duties of the four men were separate, and that it would be extremely prejudicial to try them otherwise than separately.

COMPANY AND GIRLS AGREE

Threatened Strike of Operators Averted After Conference

SETTLEMENT TODAY

The threatened strike of the telephone operators of greater Boston was averted by an agreement between the company and the operators today after conferences which led into early this morning. The complete basis of adjustment is not available at present, but it is understood that both sides have made concessions. This trouble created more interest in Boston and New England than any labor disturbance which has occurred in many years.

NEW BLOOD IN CUSTOMS

McAdoo Begins by Shaking Up the Staff at Philadelphia

Washington, April 10.—Reorganization of the personnel of the customs service by the Democratic administration was begun when Secretary McAdoo of the treasury department took steps to displace all the high customs officials at the port of Philadelphia in order that their places may be filled by persons in sympathy with the present administration.

In announcing the action the secretary said: "It is considered vital in the interest of the public that new blood shall be brought into the service."

Treasury officials contented themselves with that brief statement, which was the first indication that a sweeping reorganization of the customs service was about to begin.

WILSON PASSIVE ON ALIEN LEGISLATION

Will Not Interfere With Measure Aimed at Japanese

Washington, April 10.—President Wilson has let it be known that the federal government would not interfere with pending legislation in California by which aliens who have not declared their intention of becoming naturalized as American citizens are prohibited from owning land or property. He communicated this decision informally to Representative Baker.

Though the measure is aimed primarily at the Japanese, the fact that specifically it makes no discrimination of race, as well as the desire of the president not to interfere with the sovereignty of the state, has precluded any action by the federal government at this time.

The president was told by Baker that the people of California would enact the law through the initiative and referendum if the legislature refused. He said the sentiment was five to one in favor of the law.

A dozen or more hold-ups are attributed to this gang. The case in which they pleaded guilty was the hold-up of Bird Newman, restaurant proprietor. Many thousands of dollars in booty has been obtained, the police assert, by the gang and its accomplices during the past six months.

FALSE VALUES RETARD GROWTH AND DEVELOPMENT OF QUINCY

An Old Story of Taxation System Told in Perhaps a Different Form

Mr. Johnson Suggests Feeling of Equality by Assessors

The statement that "The value placed on Quincy property is fictitious and retards outside capital from coming here" caused the members of the Houghs Neck Associates to sit up and take notice while Charles H. Johnson talked on "Taxation" before them Wednesday evening. The speaker dwelt on taxation from early Quincy days and wound up by giving the Advisory Board a knock out. He received marked attention.

Mr. Johnson gave a history of the land grants and how 50 acres were set apart by residents of Boston for investment purposes. He gave an analysis of the town form of government and showed how inadequate were the methods of records.

"The three first assessors took office in 1792. They were Ebenezer Miller, Esq., Capt. John Hall and Benjamin Beal, Jr. The population then was 1081 against about 36,000 of today and the valuation of that year was $1759 against the 35 odd millions we have today. Under the old system much land was practically lost to sight. One of the essential characteristics of an assessor should be a feeling of equality for all.

"The card system in vogue in the assessing department became effective in 1900. One of the best ways to secure equality is to notify the board when a house is completed and file a statement with them.

Mr. Johnson said he believed in a change of the method of house assessment. He believed that as a house grows older, the value should decrease and the land should increase, provided it was warranted. This would satisfy tax payers. He spoke of land that is held in business centres for investment purposes and of the refusal of the owners to sell except at exhorbitant figures. He felt the assessors would be warranted in placing a real value upon it. This

In speaking of exemptions which are outside of the assessors hands he said that the state allowed the National Sailors Home and the Snug Harbor to acquire savt tracts of land which are exempt, and since they are not necessary to the comfort of the inmates he could not see why such land grabbing should not be tolerated.

Some organizations have been exempt because of short sections on charity in their constitutions. All this comes back on the overburdened small holder.

In explaining the makeup of the tax rate and the overlay he said he would relieve the small holder.

Personal taxation has not been solved as yet. Disclosures after death having shown many evasions and the wealthy man has the opportunity of keeping his secret in life at least. He cited the instance of Quincy's recent collection and the immediate removal of the family affected to another town.

Most waterfront is held for investmentand assessors are justified in creasing the assessment and the 25 miles here are now held at fabulous prices.

In speaking of the foreign inhabitants he said they settled where homes looked hopeless and through industry created surroundings worthy of commendation. They are however taxed to the limit although they are situated in some cases in almost uninhabitable sections.

Mr. Johnson defied any man to find a small holder that was not taxed to the limit.

wanted to be perfectly fair to the board and say that he voted for an abatement in the Fore River taxes so that they could become established, but that they were now on a firm basis and should bear their proportionate share. He said that during his term of office the tax rate was made after a consultation with the treasurer and auditor and with no interference with the mayor.

He spoke of the importance of men with experience serving on the board and said that the reason the state passed the one, two and three year term of service law was because of experience.

The advisory Board, to Mr. Johnson, was a ridiculous creation and nothing had been heard from them. The board should be qualified and not in need of suggestions from an Advisory Board. This meant a division of responsibility and the assessors should stand ready to fall with the judgment they place on property.

Observing that he did not appear with the intention of speaking of Houghs Neck assessments he advised all who thought they were over the limit to call on the board and state their case.

Mr. Johnson received close attention when he said "When my name was suggested for another term on the Board under the first year of Mayor Stone, certain charges were made by certain men that I had favored in-

PARSON AYERS MUCH AFFECTED WHILE TELLING OF LIFE STORY

Married Three Times, Twice Before He Was 21 and the First Contracted When 15 Annulled, Third Woman Dying

Actor In His Youth, Emphatically Denied the Charges Brought Against Him by Chester A. Boynton

Rev. W. B. Ayers, pastor of the Park and Downs Congregational Church of Wollaston, moved to tears during his recital, Thursday proved the most dramatic witness in the trial of the suit against him for the alleged alienation of the affections of Mrs. Chester A. Boynton.

He wept as he told of the death of his third wife and related his experience with two previous wives, before he had reached the age of 21, and described his adoption of a stage career in order that he might secure an education for the ministry.

Attorney Eldridge R. Anderson, counsel for Mr. Ayers, made a sudden and unexpected move at noon by calling his client to the witness stand in his own defense.

For two and one-half hours the Wollaston minister related his history since he became connected with the Wollaston church and of his acquaintance with, and friendship for the Boyntons with whom he made his home for many months.

It remained, however, for Attorney Harry L. James of counsel for the plaintiff to bring out the dramatic side of the young minister's life on the cross examination which was commenced half an hour before the closing of the afternoon session of the court.

Mr. Ayers frankly admitted on cross examination that he did not know the date of his birth, but that he believed himself 28 years of age, that he had three times been married, the first time at the age of 15, parting from his first wife upon an order of the court annulling the marriage; being divorced from the second before he was 21 years old and losing the third by death one month after he had married her.

After calling for a witness who was not present, Attorney Eldridge R. Anderson suddenly turned to his client who was sitting just back of him and said: "Mr. Ayers, take the witness stand."

The direct examination of Mr. Ayers was begun about 12.15 o'clock. In reply to Mr. Anderson, the defendant said he had been on the stage from the time he was 16 years old until he was 21. He had been married three times but was not married when he came to Wollaston in January 1911.

Witness said that when he accepted Boynton's invitations to take his evening meal or other meals at Boynton's home on Bromfield street, he had made it a point not to go there until Mr. Boynton had arrived home.

"Was there any time when you were lying on a sofa and Mrs. Boynton was sitting on the sofa at your feet," asked Mr. Anderson.

"No, sir, witness answered.

Witness said that Boytan sympathized with him because he had to live alone and proposed taking a house where he could have rooms. He told Boynton to think out a plan which Boynton did.

He denied that any conversation took place in which Mrs. Barstow and the Boyntons had part and Mrs. Boynton placed her hand on his face to prevent him from talking. Mrs. Barstow did say on that occasion that Boynton had taken a large establishment on his hands and the witness had said that the arrangement had been satisfactory and was all right.

Asked about the plan of conducting the Beach street house, witness said "It was to be my home and they were to keep house for me. I was to have the run of the house."

Mr. Ayers testified that when Mrs. Boynton was ill and Mr. Boynton moved into a separate room, Boynton told him he preferred to sleep apart from his wife.

"I was embarrassed at what he said," declared Mr. Ayers.

Witness said that at Christmas, 1910, Boynton gave him a letter case as a "love token." Witness made no presents to Mrs. Boynton at that time, but at Christmas, 1911, he gave Mrs. Boynton a clock because Boynton had chided him for not giving his wife a Christmas present in 1910.

His trips to Boston with Mrs. Boynton were known and discussed by Mr. Boynton, who was either with them on the different occasions or understood that they were for the purpose of buying articles for the house or for presents for Mr. Ayers' mother and sisters. On the other trips to Boston Mrs. Mount or Mrs. Potter were along.

As to the alleged relations between Miss Sass and Boynton he had spoken to Boynton about Flora Sass breaking down and crying in church and had told Boynton that he was "too old for that sort of thing."

"One night when I went to the door in answer to a ring of the bell I found Flora Sass there. I asked her whom she wished to see and she said she wanted to see Mr. Boynton.

"Miss Sass then crowded past me, and seeing Mr. Boynton said, 'What do you think, he wasn't going to let me in.' Mr. Boynton said, 'You can come in.' Then Flora and Mr. Boynton went into the living room and closed the door.

"I went down cellar and brushed my shoes. While I was there I heard them singing love songs."

"Do you remember what they were singing?" asked his counsel.

"Yes, they were singing 'I Need Thee After the Day's Hard Toil' and something else which I do not recall. I was disturbed about it and I got my hat and coat and went out and took a walk to think it over. When I came back I heard them giggling. The lights were turned down."

"Was Miss Sass there at other times?" asked Mr. Anderson.

"Miss Sass was there several times. On one occasion I saw them through a window and they were sitting extremely close together. When I later entered the room there was the length of a table between them."

Questioned as to what he had said to Boynton about his alleged conduct with Flora Sass, Mr. Ayers said that Mrs. Boynton went upstairs and that witness then said to Boynton, "Chester, it is not right or wise to bring Flora Sass here again."

"I told him," witness went on, "that he was too old to be doing that. I asked him for Flora's sake, for the sake of the church and for the sake of his family and his home, to give her up. I told him that a lot of talk had been going around and that such talk would surely reach the ears of the head of his firm. I asked him what he was going to do.

"At first he denied it. Then he said, 'My relations with her are those of a big brother. If she has misunderstood then she is a little fool. I did not mean anything by it. She has chased me up."

"I then said, 'Then there will be no trouble to straightening this matter out.' Boynton agreed. I said, 'It will not be necessary for you to see Flora Don't go to her. Drop her a note.'

"Later that night he came into my study and said, 'I have changed my mind, I am not going to ask Flora to leave the store.' Then I said, 'Chester, you went down to see Flora Sass after promising me you would not do so.' He said that he had. I then said, 'You mean you are going on the same way as you have been. If you are, you will have to leave here at the end of two weeks.'

"Mrs. Boynton then came into the room and told him that it was his duty to her to drop Flora Sass and do the square thing. 'If you will, I will do my best to make you a good wife,' was what Mrs. Boynton said. I told Mr. Boynton that I wanted to appeal to his sense of manhood.

"Chester Boynton cried and said, 'I've been a —— fool.' He then went and got his wedding ring and brought it to his wife and dropped on his knees for her forgiveness. He asked me to give a word of prayer and I did so."

"Did you ever call Mr. Boynton a thief and a crook and other names?" Mr. Anderson asked of witness.

"There were no names spoken in anger."

"Did you offer to fight Mr. Boynton?" counsel asked.

"No, indeed," answered Mr. Ayers.

Witness said it was either late January or early February, when he had heard of Boynton having been with Flora Sass again, that he told Boynton that he would have to go. Boyton asked if he could stay until the first of March, but the pastor said: "No, you will have to go as quick as you can."

"I had seen Mr. Boynton with Flora Sass twice when he told me he was going somewhere else, and that was my reason for telling him he would have to leave."

Witness denied the conversations testified to by Boynton as to Mrs. Boynton and Mr. Ayers asking Boynton's consent for the plan to move; that Mrs. Boynton had said to Boynton in his present that she would not move because she thought Boynton's purpose was to go back and live in five rooms and that Boynton had said that his share of the expense of the house was $1,400.

"Did Mrs. Boynton ever go into your room and sit there in the evenings?" his counsel asked.

"No, Sir."

Q. Was there any occasion when Boynton came home and found Mrs. Boynton in your study with you? A. There was no such occasion.

Q. Was there every an occasion when Mrs. Boynton went to the closet in your room when you were there and she was not properly dressed? A. No, sir.

Q. Was she ever in your study not properly dressed? A. No. sir.

Q. Did you ever take breakfast with Mrs. Boynton? A. I don't think that Mrs. Boynton ever took breakfast with me alone. Mrs. Boynton would put my breakfast on the table and then go about her housework upstairs.

Q. Were you ever in Mrs. Boynton's bedroom. A. No, sir.

"Mr. Boynton came to me and said, 'I think Helen has fainted.' I went to the medicine chest I keep in my room and got some aromatic spirits of ammonia and some water and put them in a glass and stood on the threshold of Mrs. Boynton's room and gave them to Mr. Boynton.

Q. Was that the only occasion? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was there ever an occasion when you were coming out of Mrs. Boynton's room. A. There was not.

Q. Did Mr. Boynton ever make this

AUDITORIUM THEATRE.

The new week-end bill at the Auditorium Theatre drew large audiences on Thursday evening and all were pleased. There was variety in the moving pictures and variety in the program as a whole. Five reels were shown, including "The Cheaper Way" which told of an elopement; "A Life in the Balance," Two Men and One Woman"", and others. James Dirkin sang "When I Lost You" and the audience joined in the chorus. Dittel and Fritz, the acrobats made a hit in their comedy knock-about act, and the Trimount Trio sank trios, duetts and solos. Illustrated songs completer the program.

Tonight is "bargain day" with the Carebet Boys in a big extra act.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

The bill against tipping was defeated in the Pennsylvania legislature. The waiters must have made some dire threats of soup spilling.

Big business and little business both breathe easier now that the threatened telephone war has ended.

The boxing bill was killed in the senate. There is no great degree of mourning among the average citizens. It is not a necessity and should be subjected to a high duty.

Gov. Sulzer emphatically told a big interests man that he put the dollar above the man, while the governor put the man above the dollar, all of which indicates that the empire state has a governor who thinks and knows what to say and do in defense of the people no matter who he hits.

A boxer has sued a New York club for damages for injuries sustained while in the ring. This is going the limit. He got his rake off and now wants damages. He should sue the state by whom the events are licensed.

And the Railroad commission will have a chance to hear what Quincy people think of that grade crossing decree today. There should be no division of opinion.

It is quite natural that opera in English has advantages, especially to those who do not understand French or Italian from a hole in the wall.

Will the fourth leaf of the Marine Shamrock prove the lucky bird?

Home Secretary McKenna's suggestion that the Militant Suffragettes be released on bail during good behavior would mean one continuous revel of burning, breaking, smashing and possibly killing joy for the ladies. The Secretary should be more original and certainly in his wisdom come across with something more effective.

They miss the soothing effects, to say nothing of fattening qualities of sugar at Salem in the alcohol splits. It is said that some here abouts have a more palatable concoction.

And now there has leaked out from Washington echoes of an alleged scandal in which a senator is concerned but is covered up because of the toga. No occasion for such discrimination, out with it and out with the senator if he fails to appreciate the dignity of his place and act like a rowdy.

Patrick Cudahy must know something about the cost of beef and his advice suggesting a reduction should not pass unheeded.

The state commissioner of taxes says there are over $400,000,000 dollars of personal property escaping taxation in this state. Hard on either the powers which the law gives or the department having charge of the collections.

Now that the start has been made how marvelous for their inability to be within four miles of the true state of affairs were some of those winter expert predictions on base ball teams and individual players.

Ty Cobb is again in the limelight. This time it was a little battling, not batting, with another personage.

FICTITIOUS VALUES.

Speaking from his wealth of experience as a former assessor Charles H. Johnson made some statements at Houghs Neck which made his hearers sit up and take notice. Yet there was hardly anything really new in what he said. Such things as he suggested exist in every city and town of this state and probably other commonwealths. As to the assessors bearing the responsibility there seems to be some good ground for that. An advisory board should not be in any better position to judge land or property values, in fact not so good as the assessor. Much stress was laid on the card system. That cannot be said to have any weight in determining values, it is merely a convenient form of keeping records. The election of a mayor outside party lines is given too much importance. This is demonstrated year after year in elections. The mayors of Quincy cannot be said to be elected on party issues, party lines or by a tightening of party sentiment among the voters.

Mr. Johnson sounded a good many truths, but they are not near so new as many imagine. They rehearse conditions which have existed, will exist and continue to operate for a long time, until the voters release themselves from alleged leaders and politicians, express their approval on merit alone in holding office and the citizens as a whole come honestly forward, without any personal selfishness and assume and bear their proportional burdens.

It may be said that such a thought is a dream, an ideal or even an idle poetic fancy, nevertheless that is just what is needed and until that self sacrifice is entered into by every citizen, things will go along in the same old way year after year and the same complaints will be heard without any remedy in sight.

REAL EXPERT ADVICE.

Patrick Cudahy, the veteran expert packer and producer, furnishes a few words upon the cost of living discussion, which while perhaps not overflowing with that nectar flavor of eloquence or the loftiness of a cross of gold and crown of thorns, for plain every day sense is far more worthy of consideration than many flights of frothy oratory which have held audiences spell bound.

It has ever been thus. The flights of fancies hold the fancy and are repeated, but the solid meaty remarks of a man calculated to know his subject is obscurely placed, few read and a less number desire to put it into effect.

Here is what Mr. Cudahy says:

"A law prohibiting the slaughter of calves for veal and allowing beef and livestock to come into this country duty free would be two great steps toward solving the problem of the high price of beef.

"John D. Rockfellers parrot like repitition of the old advice to school teachers to save their pennies was telegraphed from one end of the world to the other. It amounted to nothing Hardly worth the uttering. But Mr. Cudahy has said something which is really worth while. Here is a chance for congress to do something along the lines suggested and relieve the situation.

"Here is a chance for the coal barone, oil barons, and other barons to come forth with some good advice as to the manner in which their products should be legally treated to get good results, and not as in the farcial alleged busting of the Standard Oil when the price of gasoline almost doubled soon after the supposed dissolution.

"For a dissolved and disrupted and broken apart and completely separated concern in all its units to so harmoniously unite upon the nation-wide jump in the price of gasoline, so soon after the alleged slaughter can be counted among the marvels of the present century."

TELEPHONE TROUBLE SETTLED.

Boston, and in fact the whole of New England is to be congratulated upon the settlement of differences between the telephone company and the operators and th incidents and good judgment which averted a strike, the consequences of which it would be difficult to reckon upon or with.

Both sides showed remarkable forbearance during a tense period where the slighest raw edge would have put things in confusion and turmoil. Both sides made concessions. Each naturally feel that in this course they have gained. That is natural. The girls gained more than mere dollars and cents and better working hours. The company has gained more than good natured and wholly contented service on the part of its employees who at one time looked in revolt. That which both have jointly gained is the great good will and the confidence of the public and the latter feel that the employees and company have displayed an efficiency in handling difficult situations, forbearance and good feeling to a point beyond the expected.

Both sides and the public owe much to James J. Storrow, president of the Chamber of Commerce. How much can never be reckoned. There were some other factors which entered into the settlement, or at least were injected into it by official position or ability to slip in, and there were a few on the outside looking in, who had "an eye on situation," as if that would have accomplished anything, but without exaggeration or extravagant phrasing, Mr. Storrow was the large dominating figure, which had the confidence of the employees, the company and the public and did something.

OUR SQUANTUM FRIEND.

by Jessie Scott Hagen.

We shall meet, but we shall miss her,
There will be the vacant chair
And the face we'll long remember
We'll not see as we look there.
She has stepped out from among us,
Stepped into another sphere.
Her sweet spirit will be with us
Yes—as well, as over there.

'Twas her thotfulness of others,
Made her trip along life's way.
Taking burdens from their shoulders,
From the morn; till close of day.
And at last, God sent the message
From above, for her to share,
In the reaping of that harvest,
She had sown, so long, with care.

We shall miss that ever ready
Ever willing, kindly way
And altho our steps seem steady,
Let us watch and work and pray.
Let us spend our time in living
To uplift, in word and deed,
Every living human being,
Only God can know their need.

FALSE VALUES

terests in ward one and after some inquiry I traced its origin. I asked the men responsible for it and they denied it. I told them that raises were made on Hancock street property and after the bills were issued the agent of a large property owner came before the Board and asked for a decrease. When he understood the same condition existed everywhere he retired.

"The burden of taxation here rests on real estate owners and the small holder should be relieved. I hope to see the time come when a chief executive can be elected free from party lines who will give the city his whole attention and make necessary changes. The value placed on Quincy cy property is fictitious and retards sales to outside capital. People should become interested and help solve the problem.

A board of assessors should be free from political influences. I believe in a thorough reorganization of the water department and want to see it placed on a business basis. Satisfactory answers have never been given about the way the department is conducted.

SUSPENSION NEAR AN END

People Wondering What Will Be McDevitt's Attitude

WHEN MAY 1 ARRIVES

The suspension period of John J. McDevitt from the Massachusetts Senate expires May 1, and if a public apology is filed he can then resume his seat. There is grave uncertainty about the course he will pursue, many believing that he will hold to his dramatic utterance before the assembled crowd, "I will never apologize for telling the truth."

It is understood that a movement is afoot with the intetnion of enlisting people to his side from a sympathetic standpoint. In West Quincy rumor has connected prominent Boston men with the origin of this sympathetic canvass and it would not be surprising to many former supporters of McDevitt if an effort would be made to secure a hall and present a list of speakers who would argue in his favor and for sympathy.

In ward 4, the home of the suspended senator, the support which was once turned into the McDevitt camp at the asking has turned toward other prospective candidates, it is claimed. From the time McDevitt's Wollaston speech appeared in print until the present the interest in the case has not abated, but if the conversation heard is any test of support there has also een a lessening in the strength formerly extended to the suspended senator.

TRIP MAY PRODUCE RESULTS.

But two countries made better records in foreign trade than Argentina last year according to a report made by the Pan American Union. Holland and Belgium alone made better records.

The foreign trade of Argentina last year totalled $840,000,000 averaging about $120 to each inhabitant. The statement shows the per capita trade of the United States was approximately $40.

The trip by members of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, it is thought, will tend to increase the per capita United States trade.

AWFUL RESULTS WERE PICTURED

By Dr. Miller From Mating of Persons Mentally and Physically Unfit

The April meeting of the All Souls' Men's club and the last one of the season was held in the parish hall Wednesday evening. Supper was served at 6.30 o'clock covers being laid for 172, with practically every chair filled. There was a most appetizing menu consisting of hot roast beef with brown gravy, mashed potato, string beans, cabbage salad, rolls, coffee, ice cream and cake.

After the repast and a short "sing," cigars were lighted and president Alva Morrison introduced as the speaker of the evening, Newton Miller, Ph. D., professor of biology in Wheaton college. Dr. Miller's subject was "Our state dependants" and he gave a terse, comprehensive and intensely interesting discourse on 'englenics, or the science of human breeding. It is a vital, economic question and should appeal to all thinking people.

Dr. Miller told of the appalling consequences arising from the mating of individuals one or both of whom are mentally or physically abnormal He quoted statistics stating that in as the result of congenital defects. He quoted statistics stating that in this country alone there are 300,000 feeble minded persons, the offspring of insane, drunken, vicious or diseased parents. The speaker stated that the money expended to care for these people mounted up to the millions and urged that some means be taken to remedy the conditions.

He quoted the law of mendelism and proceeded to show by the aid of the stereopticon, many charts exhibiting the truly awful results arising from the union of unfit persons. The children of such parentage are tuberculor, criminal, sexually immoral, imbecile or addicted to alcoholism and their care and housing means an annual expenditure of millions to the several states. He told of the "Jukes" and "Kallikak" families the greater partw of whose descendants are meutally or morally unbalanced.

Dr. Miller thinks the states should pass laws to unsex such person, segregate them in asylums or homes, forbid them to marry, or compel all applicants for marriage licenses to sign papers declaring themselves physically and mentally qualified therefor. Indiana has passed a law relative to the first mentioned idea and it was voted that the president of the club appoint a committee of three to investigate the matter and bring it to the attention of the State legislature. After Dr. Miller's address, an opportunity was given to the gentlemen to question the speaker who courteously and clearly answered the many queries propounded. He was accorded a rising vote of thanks for his able and instructive presentation of the subject.

A letter was read by the president from Mrs. George O. Wales thanking the club members for their floral offerings and for the kindnesses which they rendered at the time of her recent bereavement. The letter was by vote ordered spread upon the records.

The gentlemen also voted to send the two large bouquets of carnations on the head table to Dr. Irvin J. Johnson of Spruce street, one of their fellow members who is undergoing treatment at a Boston hospital.

Plans formulated by the club for a memorial to the late George O. Wales will be carried over into the autumn. The election of officers was then in order and the fololwing gentlemen were elected to serve for the ensuing term:

President—Frank P. Rhoades.
Vice President—George H. Wetherbee, Jr.
Secretary—Harry W. Bond.
Treasurer—Gordon M. Keating.
Executive Committee—Edwin L. Emerson, George H. Hamblett, Harold M. Gage, Moreton Swallow and Frank H. Waters.

The retiring president Alva Morrison, referred to the able and unselfish work of Edwin L. Emerson on the executive committee, a sentiment to which all heartily agreed. Mr. Morrison thanked the members for their support and co-operation and congratulated them on their choice of the new president. Mr. Morrison was accorded a rising vote of thanks for his efficient services and the meeting was placed in charge of the incoming president, Mr. Rhoades, who pledged himself to do all possible for the future success and welfare of the club.

Tickets were placed on sale for the club play, entitled "Lady Gorinee's necklace,"" to be presented in Cochato hall on the evening of May 2.

The meeting adjourned for the season at 9.20 o'clock.

COSTELLO—DELOREY.

Miss Elizabeth Delorey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Delorey of 50 Newcomb street was married to Edward J. Costello of 47 South street at the parochial residence by Rev. John J. Coan at 6 o'clock Wednesday evening. She was attended by her sister Miss Edith and George C. Costello brother of the groom was best man.

At the reception the ushers were Joseph Delorey brother of the bride and Charles and Fred Costello and Edward P. Histon. They were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Delorey and Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Costello.

Guests were present from Weymouth, Braintree, Milton, Norwood and Quincy. Mr. and Mrs. Costello were the recipients of many beautiful presents.

After an extended trip to New York and Washington they will reside at Broad street, East Weymouth.

NEW WOODWARD CURRICULUM.

The new course of study adopted by the Board of Directors of the Woodward Institute, will be ready for distribution to eighth grade pupils who are eligible for admission in a few days. The new curriculum produces very little change in its contests, but a substantial rearrangement of studies is involved. There will be three broad courses open for selection, the college course remains in the same form as used for several years back and is so far arranged that a girl may fit herself for college certificate or examinations after a course of either four or five years as she may prefer or as her health and ability may suggest.

The Normal course also remains in its old form, not varying a great deal from the college course as the requirements of admission to college or to Normal school are now very much alike. The number of girls at Woodward Institute now fitting for college or Normal schools is quite large and much attention will be paid to this side of the school work.

The third and remaining course is the general course and this course in addition to the studies previously included now takes over essential subjects of the household arts course and the commercial course which have been merged in this one course. It retains in its new form all its cultural subjects and adds bookkeeping, stenography, and typewriting to its two final years and provides opportunity for an elective class in cooking and sewing for seniors if they so desire it.

The effect of those changes in curriculum will be to lay emphasis on the cultural education, without omitting in its later years the vocational element for those who wish it.

In deferring any attempt at the vocation until these later years, it is believed that there will be two results:—a concentration of the school's effort with consequent better results and a temporary decrease in entering classes to a point where the Institute will be able to handle them without undue congestion.

The Superintendent of Schools plans to devote one afternoon next month to each school building in the city, distributing to those eighth grade pupils who are eligible to enter, the courses of study of the High school and of Woodward Institute and explaining to the pupils and to the parents who will be invited to attend, the courses in those schools and in the Independent Industrial School. The more complete the knowledge is of these schools, the better will parents and pupils be able to make choice between them and the opportunities they offer.

MASS. FIELDS SCHOOL.

The pupils of grade VIII are rehearsing for the entertainment which they are to give at the next Parents-Teachers meeting April 25th. A portable platform or stage will be built by the boys in Manual Training.

The school base ball team is having daily practice. It has played two games with Wollaston winning both scores 5-0, 15-6. Harry Wetmore is pitcher and Lester Drew catcher.

WOLLASTON SCHOOL.

The regular meeting of the Parents-Teachers' Association will be held in the assembly hall next Monday evening, April fourteenth at eight o'clock. David H. Goodspeed master of the school, will speak, subject "Our school what it is doing, and what it may do." Every parent in the district should make an effort to be present. The building will be open for inspection, and drawings and school work will be on exhibition. There will also be a candy sale, by the Benevolent committee, to raise money for charitable purposes.

The people of Wollaston are very glad to see the old school lot being graded. The old cellar has been filled and the men are now busy giving it a coating of rich soil. It is to be called Safford Park.

Mr. Nolan, the Boston agent of the A. N. Palmer Co., spent the afternoon of Tuesday at the Washington school and gave instruction in the Palmer method of writing in the grades and after school to the teachers.

WILLARD SCHOOL.

A Japanese Corner is proving very helpful and interesting to the pupilsof grade eight in their study of Japan. The collection consists of views, post-cards, prints, newspapers and other articles that are products of Japanese art. The pupils are led to appreciate the characteristic patience and love of detail these people display in their work. Illustrated booklets on the country are being prepared as a part of the class work in language.

The Workmaster, a paper published by the prevocational class in the Lewis School, Roxbury, has this item:

"Boston is not the only city which has a Prevocational System in the public schools. Quincy, Mass., has established different classes in this work at the Willard School."

From the Golden Rod, Quincy High School: "The Willard Echo: You have a fine little paper for a beginning. Keep it up."

"It might be of interest to our exchanges and other readers to know that 'The Willard Echo,' is edited and printed by the pupils of the Willard Grammar School, Quincy."

A candy sale, to raise money for athletic purposes, was held Monday at 3.30, about eight dollars being cleared.

A meeting of the parents and teachers will be held Monday, April 21, at which Mr. Ernest L. Collins, Head Master of the Quincy High school, will speak.

Is my child going to the High school? Shall he take a commercial course? Wouldn't a technical course do him more good? What has the Quincy Industrial School to offer my boy? What course shall my daughter take? These and similar questions every parent, having a child who will graduate from a grammar school in June, should be considering carefully.

Supt. A. L. Barbour will be at the Willard School, at a later date to explain the courses of study offered at the High School, and to confer with any of the parents in regard to what work would be best adapted to the capacity and needs of the particular child in question.

INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL.

Up to last night, Mr. Spofford the principal of the Independent Industrial School had received the names of 25 boys who desire to enter the school in September or whenever they can be accommodated. As there are now 41 boys in the school and only five or six expect to complete their apprenticeship this year, it would appear that there will be more applications than can be cared for by September and the year is likely to start with a waiting list even although an additional teacher is to be employed.

ADAMS SCHOOL.

The new Adams School will not be completed until September next but the Parents' and Teachers' Association plan to have a goodly sum of money on hand at that time with which to start the decoration of the beautiful building. One of the methods of raising this money is by means of the entertainment to be given in Music hall next Tuesday evening. The two-act play, "Mishaps of Minerva" is to be presented in which many well known amateur actors will appear. The pupils of the school will be seen in a pretty little operetta, "Loyal Men and Women of the Revolution" and Provosts' orchestra will furnish music..

CRANCH SCHOOL.

Mrs. George E. Pfaffmann gave a very interesting bird talk to the pupils of the upper grades last Friday afternoon. Mrs. Pfaffmann told the children that she had seen eighty-three different species of birds in Quincy and by means of colored charts and pictures showed the pupils how to recognize these birds and explained when they might be expected to appear. Mrs. Pfaffmann was assisted by Mrs. James Slade who sang bird songs for the children.

QUINCY TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION.

Mr. Edward Avis, who is to speak before the Quincy Teachers' Association at the Coddington School hall, Thursday evening, April 17th, is known in the field of Nature Study as the "Bird Mimic" and in reproducing the songs and calls of the birds as they are heard in the woods and fields he is probably without a peer. His whistling is a natural gift possessed in a like degree by no other known student of the art, while his bird songs are the result of constant study and close companionship with the little feathered musicians. The stereopticon views presented by Mr. Avis, are, many of them, illustrations of bird life photographed by himself in the woods where much of his time has been spent for many years, and the pictures are singularly interesting and varied. They are the scenes of his various haunts, his discovery of hidden nests and of numerous varieties of his bird friends, helping greatly to tell the story of his outdoor life and intimate knowledge of birds.

Mr. Avis is a cultured musician as well as a naturalist and uses his violin with pleasing effect in connection with his remarkable whistling numbers.

Mrs. James Slade will add to the program by rendering several bird songs.

CODDINGTON.

The annual meeting of the Parents-Teachers' Association of the Coddington school will be held in the Assembly hall of the school on Wednesday evening, April sixteenth, at eight o'clock.

Mr. Albert L. Barbour, Superintendent of schools, will speak on "Public Education and Public Expenditure."

Soloists—Miss Beatrice Griffin violin; Miss Gladys L. Flieger, soprano.

Refreshments will be served. This is to be an interesting meeting and a large attendance of parents and friends is desired.

MILTON FIREMAN REGULAR HERO

Pursued and Captured Fiery Runaway Horse

DRAGGED BUT HELD ON

The wild dash of a green horse and the stopping of its mad career by James Hanner, a fireman of the East Milton house on Thursday afternoon was one of the most sensational incidents ever seen on Edge Hill road. The horse, attached to a vegetable wagon, became frightened at an electric car which was passing and bolted. Hanner jumped from a swiftly moving car and gave chase. The course led across several fields and through the yards of houses near Pleasant street. Nearly a mile was covered before Hanner was able to reach the head of the horse. As he grabbed the bridle the animal reared and plunged but Hanner held on, although he was dragged about ten feet before the horse came to a full stop. The wagon was slightly damaged and its load of vegetables was upset. The horse suffered no apparent injury although it is now under the care of a veterinary. Hanner modestly accepted the congratulations of his friends who witnessed the affair.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

THE BOYNTON CASE

charge to you? A. No, sir, Mr. Boynton never made any charge involving his wife and myself.

Q. Did you do anything to try and bring about a separation of this couple? A. No, sir, nothing.

Q. Did you ever compliment Mrs. Boynton for her cooking? A. I always praise a lady's cooking when I think it safe.

At this the pastor himself smiled as did Mr. Anderson and many others in the court room.

Asked as to what terms he had used in praising Mrs. Boynton's cooking, the witness said he had called her "a fine cook."

On the canoeing trip which Boynton had testified to, Mr. Ayers said he had planned to take a young woman friend to make a party of four. The young woman went on a vacation, so rather than abandon the party Mr. Ayers took the Boyntons.

Q. Were there any occasions when you and Mrs. Boynton sat up after Mr. Boynton had gone to bed? A. I remember once after we had had supper after church that Mr. Boynton said he had to get up early and went to bed. I went down to fix the furnace and Mrs. Boynton went out to wash the dishes. When I came upstairs I worked in my study alone.

Witness denied that he had ever said anything to Mrs. Boynton to belittle her husband's prospects. He had never claimed he was going to give a lecture and receive $100 a night. "If I could get $100 a night I wouldn't be here," witness said.

Mr. Ayers said in answer to Mr. Anderson's questions concerning his ancestry that his mother was a Scotch Presbyterian, his grandfather was an Irishman, his father English.

Witness had never discussed the "breaking point" referred to by Boynton in his testimony, but had preached on that subject of marriage and had spoken in the pulpit of "the breaking point" in the lives of young married couples.

Q. Did you advise Mrs. Boynton to leave her husband? A. No, sir. He had seen Mrs. Boynton after the separation on two occasions. These were at the Richardsons in the presence of her parents or the Richardsons. He had seen her other times in public places, but nowhere else.

He heard Boynton speak in praise of him at the church meeting in January 1912, and at that time Boynton told him he was the one who introduced the resolutions indorsing the pastor. Witness said that he had written to Mrs. Boynton from Minneapolis to ask if it would be all right for his sister to visit there; then to say that his sister was coming and then a third letter to say that his sister had changed her mind. He also sent some views of Minneapolis to Mrs. Boynton.

Mr. James began his cross-examination of the witness by asking, "Mr. Ayers, when were you born?" Mr. Ayers answered, "I don't know."

Q. You don't know the date of your birth? A. No, sir. If you ask me to figure it out by the birth certificate perhaps I can tell.

Q. What does the birth certificate say? A. Twenty-eight years.

Mr. Ayers said that he was born in Walkerton, Ont., and had stated that he was born in Toronto as he always supposed, Walkerton to have been a part of Toronto.

Witness said he was first married when he was 15 years old but that the court had set aside the marriage because he was a minor.

Witness told about playing in stock companies and on the road and of reading and studying meantime. He left the stage, he said, in 1906.

"When were you married again?" asked Mr. James.

"In Duluth," answered the witness. "That marriage ended in a divorce."

Witness said that he lived on the road with his second wife. It all happened before he was 21 years of age. While he was on the stage he belonged to the church in Minneapolis and preached as a supply preacher in churches.

Q. When did you come to Cape Vincent? A. In 1907.

Q. Where did you come from? A. From Brownsville.

Q. Were you a regular ordained minister of the Methodist church? A. No, sir.

Q. How long were you a pastor in Brownsville? A. From April 1906, to April 1907.

Witness said that he was connected with the Presbyterian Church in Brownsville, but came into the Methodist Church in Cape Vincent because the Methodists asked him.

Q. Where did your third marriage take place? A. In Watertown, N. Y. I married a woman who was dying. I knew she was dying when I married her. She died after we had been married about a month.

Mr. Ayers was about to answer questions as to his residence in Cape Vincent when his eyes flooded with tears. After a time he recovered his composure.

He was asked about his studies at Andover and why he did not give his correct age when he entered that institution. He answered that he wanted to be absolutely certain of the date of his birth and told the clerk at the institution he would not give his age, as he was not sure of it. He entered Andover in the Fall and left the next Spring. He did this to prepare for his work in Wollaston.

"You were friendly with the Boyntons at Wollaston?" asked Mr. James.

"The same as I was with the other people in my parish," answered Mr. Ayers.

Q. Why did you want to live in a house where there was a family to keep house for you? A. Because I believe that it was well for a single minister to do that.

Q. Did you ever publish a book? A. I wrote a book, but it was never published.

Mr. James wanted witness to tell what the book was about, but Judge Lawton would not allow the question. Witness was describing the events which led up to his going to the Beach street house with the Boyntons, when court adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning.

HILL IGNORED COURT SUMMONS

Officers Went in Force and Took Father By Mistake

THEN CARROLED SON

Court Officers W. M. Marden and A. B. Hultman had a lively time Thursday night at Braintree trying to summons witnesses for an inquest to be held before Judge Avery on the death of Ernest Hill of Eutaw avenue Braintree who was killed a month ago by the cars. The inquest was scheduled for last week and among the witnesses summoned was Theodore Hill, a brother, who was an eye witness. Theodore however disregarded the summons issued by Judge Avery so that Thursday night the two officers journeyed to Braintree to serve a third summons.

When they arrived at the house which is on the outskirts, they found the premises in possession of Ezekiel Hill father of Theodore and the dead man. He warned the officers to keep away from the house threatening to shoot them if they did not keep away. When the officers informed the old man why they wanted the son he promptly informed them that the only way they could get him was to drag him off by main strength,

Then the officers enforced their demand and took the old man and brought him to the Quincy police station. On arriving there he told them that he was not the one wanted but that the son Theodore was at home and if they wanted him they would have to go and get him.

Back to Braintree the two court officers again journeyed and as they passed through Braintree they gathered reinforcements in the persons of Chief of Police Horace Hunt and Officers John Shay and Jeremiah Gallivan.

The five brave officers faced Theodore who readily signified his willingness to accompany them back to Quincy although he would not explain why he did not heed the summons that had been served upon him.

The inquest which was continued to get this one important witness was held this morning.

Father and son were both in court this morning on criminal complaints. Ezekiel the father was arraigned for interfering with an officer and for threateninf to assault Officer Hultman and Theodore Hill was arraigned for default in failing to answer a summons to appear at an inquest. In the case of the father the court dismissed the complaints for want of prosecution. In the case of Theodore Hill the court continued the case until next Wednesday, the date for the continued inquest and said that at that time it would impose a fine of $10 for contempt.

CIRCLE GROWING.

The Quincy Womens Circle 26, Loyal Order of Moose initiated five candidates at a meeting in Electa Hall, Thursday evening. The Circle organized only five weeks ago has been rapidly growing. It was reported that Mrs. Walter Barnard is slowly recovering from illness at her home on Granite street. The following persons were chosen as a sick committee Mrs. Hadaash Williams, Mrs. Bertha Weixler, Mrs. Johann Norrie and Mrs. Cora Carmen.

AMUSEMENTS

DOINGS ON THE STAGE IN BOSTON AND VICINITY

BOSTON THEATRE.

The welcome that has been accorded Maclyn Arbuckle in "The Round Up" at the Boston Theatre the past two weeks shows that it has not lost a whit of its popularity, and the capacity audiences since the opening have been genuinely enthusiastic. The wild scenes of Western life appealed alike to the orchestra and the gallery, and proves even to a casual observer, that playgoers of all classes enjoy melodrama. Mr. Day's play is not as improbable as some of the "thrillers." Play and players, however, give just the touch of unreal sentiment and heroic action that keeps the spectator keenly awake to the situations on the stage, and when a melodrama of this kind is acted by a company that gives it the swing and the vigor that makes melodrama convincing, for the moment, it is no wonder that all playgoers accept it and are satisfied to think for the time being, that they are looking at a picture of real life. In such a play the acting must be exaggerated to force home to the audience the lofty sentiments and undisguised pathos which the playwright has liberally provided. There is little call to go into detail again about the peice itself, but it may be noted that a second view of the wonderful battle scene gives one a profound respect for the amazing knowledge of stagecraft evinced by the actor who devised and brought to such excellent completion one of the most realistic fights that the modern stage has known.

A special bureau has been established for the expeditius handling of mail orders, which when sent with cash or money order and accompanied by addressed, stamped envelope, receive immediate attention. Regular matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.

"Kismet," with Otis Skinner in the picturesque role of Hajj the Beggar of Bagdad, is now in the third week of its run at the Hollis Street Theatre, Boston. The splendid impersonation given by the star, the perfect ensemble acting of the large company and the magnificent mounting provided by Klaw & Erlanger and Harrison Grey Fiske, have won the same enthusiastic praise in Boston as in New York, Chicago, and other American cities. In all his ambitious and successful career Mr. Skinner has never had a role so splendidly suited to his personality, his genius and his art as that of Hajj.

The character, invented by Edward Knoblauch, but based upon a number of characters to be found in the "Arabian Nights" is essentially romantic and vigorous, and yet is possessed of a humor that is ever present and that lends a human quality to the Beggar of Bagdad which endears him to the spectator in spite of his many and various crimes. Hajj runs the entire gamut of human emotion in the course of the play;; rising to the heights of ecstacy at one moment only to be plunged at the next turn of Fate to the uttermost depths of despair. To interpret a role such as this, the greatest possible technical skill is required, as well as broad sympathy and understanding on the part of the actor. That he possesses such skill and such personal qualities is splendidly evidenced by Mr. Skinner in his portrayal of the character. His achievement in this role establishes him firmly in the position of the foremost romantic actor of America at the present time. Owing to the length of the performance and the magnitude of the production the curtain rises at 7.45 in the evening and at 1.45 at the Wednesday and Saturday matinees.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE.

An announcement that will be hailed with delight by thousands of theatregoers all over New England, is the return of Peter, the Great, the wonderful Simian wonder who comes to B. F. Keith's Theatre next week after a triumphant tour of the world. On his last visit to Boston Peter had the whole town by the ears. He visited all the important personages in and around Boston, including Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, and dined at the Touraine. He is without question the most wonderful chimpanzee that ever was brought to this country. Peter dresses and undresses himself, eats with a knife and fork, runs a typewriter, rides the bicycle, roller skates, in fact does everything except talk. He is best described by the phrase, "He was born a monkey but he made himself a man." Peter's engagement is for one week only. He will be the feature of a wonderful show, among the big attractions being B. A. Rolfe's latest musical comedy, "The Purple Lady," with Ralph Lynn, Mercedes Lorenz, and a company of twelve pretty girls; Kaufmann Brothers, up-to-date originalities; Robert Emmett Keane, the American Englishman; Spa Brothers, two wonderful European equilibrists; Those Four Entertainers, a great quartette of singers and funmakers; Searl Allen and his company of farceurs in a brand-new skit built for laughing purposes only; Jennings and Dorman, novelty entertainers. Pero and Wilson, acrobatic clowns, and the wonderful Thomas A. Edison Kinetophone or Talking Motion Pictures, with new subjects.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

At the Castle Square next week, John Craig will revive Oliver Goldsmith's famous English comedy, "She Stoops to Conquor," which has not been given at that theatre for seven years. Its sparkling dialogue and humorous scenes will be cordially welcomed again, and it is remarkable that although written nearly one hundred and fifty years ago, they are as up to date as though they were the work of some twentieth century Stoops to Conquer," which has not has for its subtitle "The Mistakes of a Night," and its plot involves the experiences of two young men who mistook a private house for an inn. The subsequent happenings are merry and hilarious, and every incident within the portals of the Hardcastle mansion are made the subject for mirth and laughter. For the Castle Square revival next week, Mr. Craig has selected a cast that includes William P. Carleton as Young Marlow, Carney Christie as Hastings, Walter Walker as old Hardcastle, Donald Meek as Tony Lumpkin, Al Roberts as Diggery and Mary Young as Miss Hardcastle. The coming week will be Miss Young's final appearances at the Castle Square this season, as she is contemplating a brief pleasure trip abroad before beginning her New York engagement in "Believe Me, Xantippe."

REFURNISHING THE BEST ROOM

Henry T. Bailey Told Wollaston Methodist How It Should be Done

A lecture Wednesday evening by Henry Turner Bailey entitled "Refurnishing the best room" was the concluding one in a series of four in the course of the Wollaston Methodist church.

"The best room we used to mean" said Mr. Bailey was closed most of the time. It had a carpet of red and green and curved back chairs of horsehair so smooth when in repair that we slid off them and when out of repair so sharp we did not care to sit on them.

"Now the best room should mean the room in which the family is supposed to appear at its best, the most hospitable the most homelike."

Mr. Bailey described the best room of the average well to do American family as "not having a place in the room for the soul of the eye to rest."

"The houses of the wealthy," he said, "are unclassified museums. There is assuredly no peace for the wicked in a home like that. The home must be a restful place.

"What must we do? First we must clean out and then consider what is to be done. We must first decide if the room has light enough or too much light. The restful room should have a temperate amount of light.

"If it has a large number of windows or a direct exposure the room should have a dull finish. The color scheme should temper the sunlight. If a northern exposure the room should have a warm color scheme.

"The effect of the room must be a unit, the greater variety the better if the combination offers as a whole a unity of effect.

"The first thing to select is the floor covering. This should be the basis for the whole color scheme. Then we should find the wall paper, then the ceiling and woodwork. As we go upward the tones should grow lighter. Fine Art has been defined as 'The free and adequate embodiment of the idea in a form particularly appropriate to the idea itself.'

"What then is the function of wall paper? It is to complete the color scheme and serve as a background for the pictures of ourselves and our friends.

"What is the function of curtains or draperies at the window? Curtains or draperies are to prevent people loking in, to shut out the view from the inside, to shut out the sun and to make the design of the room more complicated. They should be made to fulfill their purpose.

"Now about the arrangement of the room. In the afternoon it is more cheerful near the lighted window. In the evening the open fire is most attractive, for the ideal best room should have an open fire. These two areas are essential.

"The piano ought to between these two groups as it is used both in the afternoon and evening. The children will need to study in the evening. Let us put a strong table in the centre of the room directly under the electric light.

"By the fire should be something big enough for two people. We should plan to have in the room what we need and keep out everything else."

Mr. Bailey took up the art of hanging and selecting pictures in harmony with the room.

"There are plenty of things in this world we can't change" said Mr. Bailey in conclusion, "but in our homes we can make the surroundings reflect us at our best for the good of our friends."

RIDDLED WITH BULLETS

Car Filled With Passengers Fired Upon by Four Unknown Men

Milford, Mass., April 11.—One man was shot and about fifty passengers on a Milford and Hopkinton line trolley car were thrown into a panic last night when four men, armed with revolvers and shotguns, fired many shots at the car as it was running through a wooded tract near Wood's Corner.

George H. Davis, an auditor for the Draper company in Hopedale, was shot in the right hip, but as the bullet that hit him passed through two panels of the car, it did not penetrate very far into his body.

Many of the passengers were returning from the Draper factory, where they are employed. The men had been lying in wait among some bushes and as the car was passing they stood up and emptied their revolvers and shotguns at the moving car. Each man had two revolvers and two also had shotguns.

The half a hundred passengers leaped from their seats to the floor of the car when the shots were fired and everyone had a narrow escape, as nearly all the windows were smashed and the car was riddled with bullets.

MORGAN'S FUNERAL

Services Will Be Simple, In Accordance With His Instructions

New York, April 11.—J. P. Morgan, some time before he died, left written instructions as to how his funeral services should be conducted. In accordance with these instructions, simple ceremonies will be held over his body at St. George's church, of which he was senior warden. They will consist of the Episcopal burial service, without eulogistic address of any kind.

Morgan's body is expected to arrive here on the steamer France late this afternoon, and until the hour for removal to the church will rest in the Morgan library, adjoining his residence. Only immediate relatives and the most intimate friends will be allowed to view it.

TROOPS ON DUTY IN INDUSTRIAL CITIES

Belgians to Quit Work to Gain Universal Suffrage

Brussels, April 11.—Troops have occupied many of the great industrial centres of Belgium, such as Courtrai, Alost, Mechlin, La Louviere, Tournai and Renaix, in preparation for the general strike for manhood suffrage ordered for Monday, when 300,000 or 400,000 men will quit work.

In most of the cities large crowds gathered to watch the arrival of the troops, and cheered the soldiers as they marched past with their regimental bands playing.

The Socialist strike leaders in the various localities have offered to the authorities the services of special constables drawn from their own ranks to aid in preserving order. They affirm that any outbreak of violence will delay the cause of manhood suffrage for half a generation.

REVOKES PREVIOUS ORDER

Public Will Get Treasury Department News of Legitimate Interest

Washington, April 11.—Secretary McAdoo of the treasury department practically revoked his previous order by which subordinates were forbidden to give out news, except through the secretary's office.

The secretary issued the following amendatory instructions to his assistants:

"The secretary's memorandum with reference to the giving out of news was not intended to prevent the publication of routine matters of legitimate interest to the public. Heads of bureaus and chiefs of divisions may give to representatives of the press any ordinary news, but matters involving questions of policy or reforms in the department should be submitted to the secretary for his approval.

FATHER AND SON DROWN

Boat Overturns While Booming Logs In a Maine River

Ellsworth, Me., April 11.—While booming logs, John W. Moore, aged 55, and his son, Cecil, aged 21, lost their lives in Union river. How the accident occurred is not known, as there were no witnesses.

A flat bottomed boat which the men were using in poling logs was overturned in some way, throwing the occupants into the water. When found, the elder man was clinging to a log and it appeared that he died from exhaustion.

LONG UNDER SUSPICION

Federal Authorities May Soon Arrest a Boston Dressmaker

Boston, April 11.—The arrest of a Back Bay dressmaker, whom the customs authorities have vainly sought to entrap for years, is expected to result from the investigation by the federal grand jury into the recent smuggling disclosures at this port.

She has been directed to produce her books of account, invoices and other papers relating to importation of gowns and millinery for the past ten years.

SENATE WILL RUSH TARIFF

Ways and Means Committee Work Considered Satisfactory

HEARINGS ARE NOT NECESSARY

Features Considered Practically Free Trade to Be Attacked by Republicans—Opposition to Free Raw Wool and Free Sugar Propositions—Protest Against Flour From Boston Men

Washington, April 11.—The senate finance committee has determined not to have hearings on the tariff bill. Manufacturers in many lines of industry have appealed to Chairman Simmons and other members of the committee for an opportunity to present arguments against the rates proposed in the Underwood bill. The senate committee members take the position, however, that the hearings conducted by the ways and means committee in January were sufficiently thorough to cover practically all points the senate needs to consider in connection with the tariff revision.

It is believed now that the tariff bill after it finally reaches the senate will not remain in the committee more than ten days. Some expert testimony and some new information upon certain disputed ideas may be secured by the committee, but no open hearings will be held.

Republican forces are preparing for a united attack upon the Democratic revision on the ground that it not only destroys all protection to many American industries but that in many features it practically is a free trade bill. It is reported that a conference of Republicans will be held within a few days to discuss some of the more drastic features of the proposed Democratic revision.

Indications seem to be that the house Democratic caucus eventuany will ratify the schedules as presented, including free raw wool and the 25 percent cut in sugar with the provision for its going on the free list in three years. Opposition forces, however, are preparing for a struggle for a duty on raw wool and to eliminate the free sugar provision.

Opponents of free wool are making the argument that the party went to the people in the last election committed to a duty on raw wool, as based on the wool schedule passed in congress and vetoed by the president. They declare that when the house agreed to a duty of 20 percent and later accepted 29 percent in conference it went on record before the public.

"The Boston Flour club earnestly protests against the enactment of the proposed duty of 10 cents a bushel specific on wheat and 10 percent on flour only from countries taxing flour milled in the United States. This enactment would result in free flour from Canada, which would surely remove its duty on our flour in order that its mills might secure our markets in which our own millers would be unable to compete because of the duty on wheat.

"For the same reasons British port millers could largely undersell in our seaboard markets and in all foreign markets United States mills grinding the same identical foreign wheat. We urge that the duty, if any, on wheat and the duty on flour be equalized, preferably on a specific basis, reckoning five bushels of wheat to one barrel of flour."

ALONZO THOMPSON DEAD

Hints of Plot to Rob Noted Spiritualist of His Great Wealth

Denver, April 11.—Alonzo Thompson, millionaire Spiritualist, whose troubles have stirred the public prints for several years, died here, aged 81. With a poem on his lips, a verse said by him to have been dictated by the spirit of his father, he sank back on the pillow dead.

According to Mrs. Thompson, who was divorced from the Spiritualist last November, the passing of her former husband means the revelation of a plot to rob him of his great wealth. She openly charges an attempt to defraud him by Spiritualistic trances.

Murderer a Suicide

Freehold, N. J., April 11.—Charles D. Clayton, who was convicted Wednesday for the murder of Policeman Lippincott of Asbury Park, committed suicide in jail by cutting his throat. Clayton was to have been sentenced next Monday.

Killed When He Left Armor Home

New York, April 11.—Amadio Buonomo, to whom was handed down the legacy of a Black Hand feud that had cost more than half a dozen lives, ventured out of his home without his coat of mail and without a bodyguard and was shot and killed.

Customs Department In Error

Paris, April 11.—The French customs department was ordered by court to pay $7000 to two men of Dunkirk, falsely accused of smuggling, because tobacco seized by the government actually was in Belgian waters.

At top, Pope Pius X., whose critical illness aroused anxiety. At bottom, Cardinals McConnell and Farley, who will make first trip to college of cardinals at Rome when new pope is chosen.

POPE STILL VERY WEAK

Statement That He Suffers Only From Influenza Is Questioned

Rome, April 11.—The pope's condition appears to be much improved. His temperature is normal and seems to show that the acute crisis has passed, but his weakness continues.

The doctors, in addition to other stimulants, are now giving him champagne mixed with milk to overcome his depression. They are also administering opiates.

Dr. Marchiafava admits having signed daily bulletins which were not intended for publication. He makes no reference to the recent fainting spells of the pope or to the fact that he was summoned to the Vatican at 4 a. m. or to any other circumstances which are regarded as questioning his statement that the pope is suffering merely from influenza. His statement is so contradictory that it has in no wise allayed the alarm as to the pope's condition.

FORMER GOVERNOR DOUGLAS MARRIES

Going Abroad With Portland Widow as His Second Wife

Brockton, Mass., April 11.—Former Governor William L. Douglas was married to Mrs. Alice K. Moodie of Portland, Me., who was his housekeeper after the death of the first Mrs. Douglas, two years ago. The ceremony was performed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Russell, the latter a daughter of Douglas. Only immediate members of the family attended. The officiating clergyman was Rev. Albert Hammatt. The bride and groom left at once for New York, whence they will sail Saturday for a tour of Europe.

Announcement of the marriage caused surprise in Brockton, as the plans had been kept secret. Douglas took out a license Wednesday and at his urgent request the city clerk did not mention it. In order to avoid the five days' wait under the law and the possibility of publicity, Douglas secured a special permit from Judge Reed of the Brockton court.

TWENTY LIVES ARE LOST

Train Ditched When Engineer Speeds It Up to Please Passengers

Mexico City, April 11.—Twenty passengers were killed and forty injured in a wreck on the Mexican Central railway near Tula because the engineer yielded to the importunities of the passengers.

The engineer, fearing to run into rebels, was moving cautiously. The passengers, believing that safety lay in greater speed, induced the conductor and engineer to consent to full steam. The train was ditched.

CHINESE ATTACK BRITISH

Hillmen Join Forces In Assault on Battalion of Police

Calcutta, April 11.—A detachment of Chinese troops attacked a battalion of police attached to a British surveying party on the frontier of Burmah. The hillmen in considerable numbers joined forces with the Chinese.

The British column repulsed the attack, but sustained a few casualties. Among the wounded was Sir Charles Bernard, chief commissioner and head of the surveying party.

THAW ON WITNESS STAND

Testifies Before Grand Jury In Alleged Attempt at Bribery Case

New York, April 11.—Harry K. Thaw was before the grand jury investigating the alleged attempt at bribery to get him out of the Matteawan asylum for the criminal insane. Mrs. Thaw was on the witness stand for fifteen minutes.

Thaw and his mother returned to Matteawan last night. Attendants from Matteawan carried several boxes of documents belonging to Thaw, the nature of which was not divulged. It was said the grand jury would not require any further evidence from Thaw.

Because Thaw had been adjudged insane his testimony cannot be considered in the light of evidence from a witness in chief, but will have to be viewed as corroborative.

TO TEACH DOCTORS

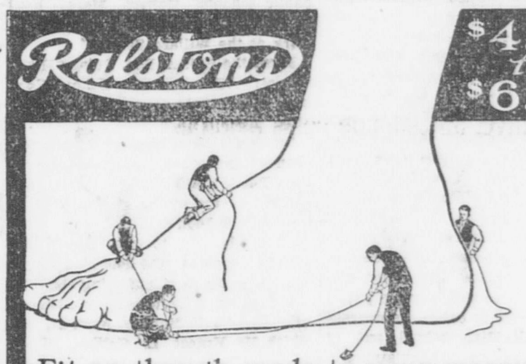

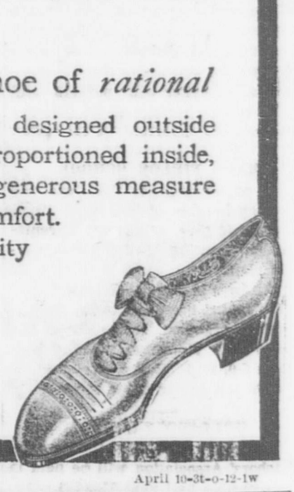

Friedmann Will Instruct Rhode Islanders How to Use His Serum

Providence, April 11.—Dr. Friedmann will instruct four Rhode Island doctors today in the use of the serum which, he claims, can cure tuberculosis. Friedmann made the announcement last night.

The physicians will be the first in this country to be told how to administer the serum and the way to treat the patient thereafter.

The doctors selected are W. L. Howard of the state board of health, W. G. Swinnel, a bacteriologist, in whose laboratory Friedmann is making serum; Harry L. Barnes, superintendent of the Wallum lake sanatorium, where Friedmann applied the serum to a number of tubercular patients, and S. W. Starr, assistant to Barnes at the sanatorium.

Colonel TODHUNTER of Missouri

By RIPLEY D. SAUNDERS

Copyright, 1911, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company.

SYNOPSIS

Colonel Todhunter booms his friend William J. Strickland for the nomination for governor. Tom Strickland, son of William, loves Mary Todhunter. Lottie-May Doggett loves Tom.

"Kiss me!" whispered Lottie-May in reply. "Kiss me, Tom. I love you so!"

Even as she spoke Tom Strickland had taken her in his arms, pressing his lips to hers.

And at that moment Stam Tucker, waiting to meet Lottie-May by appointment, stepped out of the shadow at the road's edge. His face was black with jealous rage.

Lottie-May Doggett gave a little cry of dismay. "Why, Stam!" she cried, releasing herself from Tom's arms and essaying to laugh. "You are waiting for me after all, ain't you? I was afeared you'd gone home, so Tom Strickland here was goin' with me instead."

"Let him alone, Lottie-May," said Tom Strickland. "He won't shoot."

An ugly sneer was on Stam Tucker's face. "So I see," he replied, glancing venomously from one to the other. "And you seem to be having a good time, both of you."

"Oh, shucks, now, Stam, it's nothin' but foolin', that's all!" cried the girl, a note of pleading in her voice. "I was teasin' Tom for bein' bashful, and I dared him to kiss me, and he would not take a dare—and that's the whole truth."

"I reckon it's all the truth you intend to tell," replied Stam. "But I'll tell you what it looks like to me. It looks like"—

"Stop right there, Stam!" interrupted Tom Strickland. "If you've seen anything you don't like I'm the responsible party. Say whatever you've got to say to me, not to a woman!"

"I don't ask anything better, Tom Strickland," instantly retorted Stam, turning swiftly from the girl. "And I won't mince any words saying it either. You're a"—

"Stam!" cried Lottie-May, running to the speaker and placing a restraining hand on his that had suddenly been thrust back to his hip pocket. "You shan't do it! You mustn't do it, Stam! It'd ruin me in Nineveh forever and ever!"

"Let him alone, Lottie-May," said Tom Strickland. "He won't shoot. Just you stand aside and let him crack his whip."

Stam Tucker made a movement to throw Lottie-May off, but the girl clung to him desperately. Tom Strickland's eyes hardened as they watched Stam Tucker with an ominous alertness.

A farm horse drawing a ramshackle spring wagon emerged into view around a bend in the road some distance away and came lumbering along toward the three.

"Good Lord, it's granddaddy!" cried Lottie-May Doggett. "For my sake, please—please, Stam, you and Tom both—don't let him see there's been any trouble!"

Old Rafe Doggett, white haired and stern of visage, scowled suspiciously at Lottie-May and her companions as he brought his horse to a halt.

"Where in the world have you been till this hour of the night, Lottie-May?" he asked. "I was on my way to town after you. What have you been doin', girl?"

Lottie-May stood shamefaced. "Why, granddaddy," she replied nervously, "I just stayed to the political meetin', that's all. There was to be a brass band there and speakin' and all that, and I just couldn't come away till it was over!"

The old man kept his accusing eyes on the girl's face for a moment. Then he turned and looked searchingly first at Stam Tucker and then at Tom Strickland. Tom felt a sudden and overwhelming sense of shame and self reproach and pity for the good old man whose dread, harried eyes were so somberly bent on him.

There was a moment of silence. "Well, seein' all there was to see," old Rafe Doggett resumed then, "what did you do after that, girl? How comes it that you're here on the road with Stam Tucker, facin' Tom Strickland like there'd been a quarrel? Tell me the truth!"

Lottie-May Doggett flashed a quick appeal of her eyes at Tom Strickland. It was plainly a mute and desperate entreaty for his forbearance with whatever she was about to say.

Then, "Why, granddaddy," she made answer, "Stam offered to escort me home, and we met Tom on the way, and we just all three stopped to talk for a minute—that's all. Quarrelin'? Stam and Tom wasn't thinkin' of such a thing; that's the truth. I cross my heart, please, sir!"

The girl's voice trembled with fear of her grim old grandfather, to whom her mother's memory remained but as meaning a lifelong disgrace and humiliation. The old man seemed not entirely satisfied with her explanation. He sat silent, still studying the group confronting him. Then he sighed.

"Well, Lottie-May," he spoke at last, "since Stam wants to escort you home he can still do it, I reckon. But you both better come along with me in the wagon. There ain't no sense in your walkin' now."

Lottie-May's frightened eyes were pleading with Stam and Tom to abide by her story and comply with her grandfather's wishes.

"All right, Mr. Doggett," spoke Stam finally. "I'll be specially glad for Lottie-May to ride. I reckon she's pretty tired by now, so I'll just see her home that way, along with you."

Tom Strickland stood silent as Lottie-May was lifted into the wagon by Stam Tucker, who mounted to the seat beside her. Old Rafe Doggett clucked to his horse.

"Good night, Tom!" cried the girl.

"Good night, Lottie-May!" replied Tom. "Good night, Mr. Doggett!"

The next moment they were gone.

And Tom Strickland, shamed to the soul at thought of what he had seen in old Rafe Doggett's worn and wasted face, made his own way homeward.

* * * * * * *

The Hon. William J. Strickland and Colonel Todhunter were parting company for a few days after a final conference concerning preliminary campaign plans.

"I'll have to get back to St. Louis and see how things are starting off at my headquarters there," said Colonel Strickland. "Then it'll be necessary to take a run across the state and establish headquarters in Kansas City, right under Steve Yancey's nose. I'll want you to make a few speeches for me in St. Louis about next week, Thurs. old fellow. And don't forget—I'm going to hold you to your promise to stump the state for me."

"I ain't forgettin'," responded Colonel Todhunter. "I'm cocked and primed for a campaign that'll bring every old time Democrat in Mizzoorah out o' the brush and set 'em to whoopin' things up for you to beat the band, suh. The almighty dollar ain't the only thing that talks in this here state yet—not by a jugful—and I'm a-goin' to prove it, Bill."

"It's what we've got to beat, though," commented the candidate. "Things ain't like they used to be in Missouri politics, my friend."

"That's why we got so many o' them professional politicians and so few real statesmen nowadays," replied the other. "But, all the same, the people of Mizzoorah's honest, if the politicians ain't, and this here new primary law's a-goin' to give 'em their best chance to name their own choice for governor, suh."

"It will, if there's no crooked work at the polls," said Colonel Strickland. "I'm afraid of the cities for that reason."

Colonel Todhunter nodded his head emphatically. "I'll just be jig whiffled if all the corruption in American politics don't seem to come from the big towns, suh. It looks like it's plumb natural for cities to be sinful. It's been that way ever since Sodom and Gomorrah, sun. Do you reckon the Old Marster up above couldn't ha' found ten honest men among the shepherds watchin' their flocks and the husbandmen tillin' their fields in the country? He couldn't ha' missed findin' 'em 'less'n he'd struck a bunch of 'em like old Eph Tucker here in Nineveh, suh!"

Then, after a reflective pause: "The trouble with old Eph Tucker, suh, is that he's got so he can't see anything but money. I ain't talkin' against money in its rightful proportion to the rest of life. I like to have it as well as the next man, and sometimes I need it mighty bad, too, but I'll be struck limber jawed if it ain't plumb foolish to plug up your eyes with it, suh. It don't cost a cent to see the beauty and goodness o' this here world, suh, not a cent, and if you miss seein' it, you miss seein' the whole show. That's too big a price to pay for the privilege of lookin' at a dollar instead, suh."

The Hon. William J. Strickland contemplated Colonel Todhunter with a smile on his grim lips.

"Thurs," he said, "I don't know anything sounder than your faith in the good of life and your enthusiasm for livin' it on that basis!"

CHAPTER V.

In the Nineveh Blade Sanctum.

It was shortly after this that Colonel Todhunter and Judge Strickland parted. Colonel Todhunter went direct to the office of the Nineveh Blade when he had seen Strickland off for St. Louis.

Dick Cantrill, editor of the Blade, was a red headed young Democrat who cherished old fashioned principles. There was no thought in his clean mind of devious ways to make politics pecuniarily profitable. One could no more have "bought" him than one could have "bought" Patrick Henry or "Old Hickory" Jackson, and he was just about as fiery and fearless as those two earlier Americans. Consequently, many politicians spoke of him as "that stubborn young fool, Dick Cantrill of the Nineveh Blade."

As Colonel Todhunter entered the Blade office a fuming little man almost extinguished under a big and very rusty silk hat was terminating what had plainly been a stormy interview with Dick Cantrill.

"Hello, Eph!" said Colonel Todhunter, surprised. "It ain't often I find you hobnobbin' with Dick Cantrill. Go right ahead. Don't let me interrupt you!"

There was a wicked smile on young Cantrill's mouth. "We're just about done now, colonel," he interposed. "Squire Tucker was trying to induce me to support Yancey in this campaign, but I had to decline. The Blade's for Colonel Strickland tooth and nail, now that he's out for the nomination."

FOUND DEAD FOOT OF STAIRS

Daniel Leary of Braintree Had a Big Gash On His Head

WATCH AND CHAIN ALL RIGHT

Word was received at South Braintree this morning of the death at a Boston hospital of Daniel Leary aged about 50 years who for the past three or four years has made his home at the Brunswick House, in South Braintree. But little information as to the nature of the accident could be learned other than he fell down stairs. Leary was employed as a section boss on the New Haven railroad and was not married. Just where the accident happened could not be learned.

A dispatch from Boston this noon says that Leary was found early this morning at the foot of a flight of stairs leading from the sidewalk to a Chinese place at 12 Oxford street. He had a deep gash on his head which might have been caused by a blow or a fall. His gold watch and chain was found in his clothing but a sum of money which he was supposed to have had was missing. Medical Examiner McGrath will hold an autopsy.

FINAL GAMES IN S. S. LEAGUE

Title Depends Upon Result of Game Saturday Night

The final games in the Sunday school basketball league will be played in the Y. M. C. A. gym Saturday afternoon. Three tight games are expected and one of them will attract especial interest inasmuch as the championship title depends upon it. If Bethany wins it will have the title but if First Presbyterian comes out victorious in this game the two teams will be tied for first place with eight games won and two lost. Bethany has not lost a game on the floor but was obliged to forfeit to Wollaston Congregational last Saturday. Christ Church and Wollaston Congregational are now tied for third place and if both of them win their games this week another game will be necessary if the teams wish to play off the tie.

Hints on Hair Health

If you use our treatment, we will either stop your hair from falling or pay for the treatment ourselves.

Dandruff is a contagious disease caused by a microbe, which if not removed causes baldness. This microbe often comes from a comb or brush belonging to someone else.

If you are troubled with dandruff, itching scalp, falling hair, or baldness, we believe that Rexall "93" Hair Tonic will do more than anything else to remove the dandruff, destroy the germ, make the scalp healthy and stop falling hair, and, if there is any life left in the roots, also promote growth of new hair.

We believe that probably 65 per cent of the cases of baldness could be overcome if people would only use Rexall "93" Hair Tonic for a reasonable time, as directed.

We don't want you to take our word for this. We want you to test the merits of Rexall "93" Hair Tonic at our risk. If you use it and it does not give satisfaction, just come back to us and tell us, and we will immediately hand back to you the money you paid for it. You promise nothing, sign nothing and your mere word will be taken for it.

We are dependent upon your confidence and patronage, and we would not make these claims, or make this offer if we did not believe that Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is the very best hair preparation you can use. Two sizes of bottles, 50c and $1.00.

SCHOOL STREET BRIDGE.

One of the things that greeted the eyes of the Railroad Commissioners when they viewed the School street bridge this afternoon was a pole erected one side of the bridge surmounted by a little red flag, 12 feet above the present grade. This was to show the Commissioners what the height of the bridge would be if it was elevated as contemplated under the decree of the special commission the separation of the railroad grades in Quincy.

GOOD FOR JOHN.

He is almost a daily visitor at the State House and is working hard to get improvements at Quincy. Every month several days before the monthly meeting of the organization he has his guests for supper the directors of the organization, at which time matters pertaining to the welfare of the Granite city are discussed and put in shape for presentation to the members at the meetings.—Whirligig of Hub in Boston Herald.

The police were called by telephone and the fellow was taken to the police station to sober off. When he came too, he said his name was John Leary and that he worked at the Fore River. ALIENATION CASE ARGUMENTS WILL BE BY COUNSEL MONDAY

Evidence All in the Famous Suit of Boynton Against Clergyman

Arguments in the suit of Chester A. Boynton against Rev. William B. Ayers, pastor of the Park and Downs church, at Wollaston, for $25,000 damages for the alleged alienation of his wife's affections, which has been on trial this week before Judge Lawton in the fifth session of the Suffolk Superior Court, will be made Monday morning. Just before noon recess Friday both sides rested and court adjourned.

During the greater part of the morning Mr. Ayers was again under crose-examination. He emphatically denied Boynton's charges, declaring he had actually appealed to the husband in an effort to keep the family together. He also said he had done everything in his power to save Boynton's standing in the church and had been the only person to vote against his expulsion.

Mr. Boynton then took the stand in rebuttal, contradicting Rev. Mr. Ayer's testimony and that of certain witnesses for the defendant. He declared that he had never introduced resolutions into the church meeting in praise of the pastor and his work.

Miss Flora Sass, who has been an interested listener at every session of the trial and whose alleged relations with Mr. Boynton have been described by the defendant and a number of his witnesses, was not called to testify.

The cross-examination of Rev. Mr. Ayers was resumed by Harry W. James, counsel for Boynton.

"Did you register as a voter in Watertown, N. Y. at the age of 32 years?" asked Mr. James.

"I am not sure that I voted there," answered Mr. Ayers.

Witness said he was not an elder in the Methodist Church when identified with that denomination.

Witness said he had considered the coming to the Beach stree house of two other persons. Asked if he had his noonday lunches at the Beach street house, witness answered "not always."

Q. Did you eat alone with Mrs. Boynton? A. Possibly.

Q. Did you talk to Mrs. Boynton? A. Naturally.

Witness would not say that Mr. Boynton had left the house when witness ate breakfast. Mrs. Willett came frequently to the Beach street house.

Q. Were you ever in or about your study or your chamber on the second floor when Mrs. Boynton was on the second floor, and there was nobody else in the house? A. Yes, I worked in my study.

Q. There was one furnished chamber without a permanent occupant? A. Yes, when we moved in it had no occupant.

RAILROAD COMMISSIONERS VISITED GRADE CROSSINGS

Accompanied by Officials and Citizens who Point Out Bad Features

Of the Plan as Set Forth by Special Commissioners

The Railroad Commissioners accompanied by their engineer George F. Swain came to Quincy Friday afternoon saw the two grade crossings that are to be abolished and then took their departure for Boston. There was no hearing of any kind and the Commissioners said nothing, but probably did considerable thinking.

The visitors arrived on the train due in Quincy at 2.50 and were accompanied by City Solicitor McAnarney representing the city, Representatives W. J. Leslie and M. T. Sullivan At the depot was the special committee of the City Council, Henry M. Faxon, Paul R. Blackmur, John Q. A. Field, G. B. Bates and ex-Representative W. R. Thomas and several others representing the Board of Trade, including the president John L Hamilton, and other organizations in the city.

The Commissioners went immediately to City Hall where they entered the Mayor's office and after consulting the plans for a few minutes automobiles were taken for a view of the premises. First they looked at the Saville street crossing, then at the Dimmock street bridge, thence over Goffe street, viewing the outlet of the proposed extension of Irving place at Granite street.

From here they went to the School street bridge. In the centre of the bridge was a 12 foot pole showing the height the bridge will be raised according to the decree plan, while on the easterly side was a pole 14 feet tall showing the height of the easterly end of the bridge when it is widened out for the four tracks.

The Commissioners shook their heads and looked wise when they saw this but said nothing although one remarked that it would be rather high.

Five or ten minutes was spent at this bridge. Then the automobiles were again taken and the party proceeded via School, Pleasant and Water streets to the Quincy Adams depot. But a few minutes were spent here, then the Commissioners returned to City Hall and took the 4 o'clock train for Boston.

It was impossible for all of the Council committee and representatives of the different organizations to take the view in the automobiles but they were provided with a special electric car which took them too and from Quincy Adams.

Monday evening the Special Committee of the Council, together with representatives of the several organizations of the city will meet in the Council Chamber at City Hall and arrange a plan of action for the continued hearing to be held before the Railroad Commissioners next Friday.

YOUTHFUL SURPRISERS

Bertha Lund, Eight, Presented with Ring by Chums

Miss Bertha Lund, the eight-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Lund, Federal avenue, was agreeably surprised by a large party of her young friends at her home, Friday evening. The young surprisers connived a complete steal on their little chum, but they were none the less welcome. Jessie McIntosh in behalf of the young people presented Miss Bertha with a handsome ring. The gift was presented and accepted in little speeches that were most creditable. Games, music and a merry good time was in order for all. Miss Annie Irwin presided at the piano, and rendered many selections. A very delightful collation was served the young people by Mrs. Lundfi who was necessarilly into the secret of the surprise to insure success. Ice cream, cake, fruit, fancy cookies and other goodies were served in abundance. It was 9.30 when the party broke up and the happy youngsters returned to their homes.

WOMAN WOULD BUY A DIAMOND

Her Actions Excited Suspicion of the Watchful Clerks

AT THE STORES VISITED

A stylishly dressed young woman, tried to pull off a trio of flim flam stunts in jewelry stores in Quincy, Friday afternoon.

At Pettengill's store she was waited upon by William Michael the clerk. She asked to see some diamonds and examined three of considerable value putting them on the fingers of her right hand and remarking that they looked good. She slipped one of the rings off, transferring it to the palm of her left hand and then remarked she could not tell which of the two to choose from. The clerk promptly told her there were three. She seemed somewhat surprised, but the clerk was persistent and they commenced a search for the ring and he told her it was in her left hand and she opened the hand and seemed surprised to locate it there.

The woman said a gentleman friend was going to buy her a diamond and he would come in later and make a selection. She then left the store.

The woman also visited the jewelry stores of Sandberg Bros. and T. L. Williams but owing to the watchfulness of the clerks she did not get away with a solitaire diamond. At the store of Sandberg Bros. she was waited upon by Mr. Sandberg in person. He says that he did not like the looks of the woman and that he kept his tray of diamonds in the case taking out one at a time. The woman finally said that she would return with a friend later and make a selection. Here she gave her name as Miss McCarthy and said that she lived on Elm street.

It was about 5 o'clock when she entered the store of T. L. Williams. Here she told the clerk that she was to be married next Monday and wanted to select a diamond ring and that her gentleman friend was to meet her in the store and pay for it. She got one ring into her possession which she held in the palm of her hand. She kept glancing toward the door but made no attempt to leave. When it came time for the clerk to go home to supper he told the woman that he could not wait any longer and called Mr. Williams daughter to look after the customer. Miss Williams after hearing the circumstances told the woman that she had better put the ring back into the tray as it could be goten out very quickly. This the woman reluctantly did and a few minutes later left the store saying that she was going up town to meet her gentleman friend and would be back soon. Up to the present time however she had not returned.

She did not give any name at Mr. William's store but she showed a tag on a key ring which read Elm house, Brockton.

The description of the woman as given by the clerks in all three stores tallies showing that it was the same woman that visited each store. She is described as being rather stout of medium height, about 30 years of age and weighing fully 150 pounds, and light complexioned. She did not have the appearance of a girl that was well to do but more the appearance of one in moderate circumstances.

SALE OF MILK NOT STOPPED

But the Product Must Be Pasteurized Before Delivery

SAYS HEALTH BOARD

Mrs. Gertrude McClure of Atlantic has not been prohibited from selling milk by any order of the Board of Health. The board has however ordered that the milk must be pasteurized before it is sold.

The Board of Health was busy all day Friday tracing the source of milk supply in that section of the city. They believe that they determined just where it came from and have taken steps to guard the health of the community. Another case of typhoid was located in that section of the city yesterday.

The milk delivered by a contracting firm is stamped "Pasteurized" and in addition to this each bottle must bear the stamp of the local Inspector of Milk. According to the Board of Health all milk sold must be pasteurized until the danger of further contamination has been passed.

NARROW ESCAPE OF TWO BOYS

Who Were Thrown Under a Kicking Horse

Joseph Caravaglio and James Carroll both of Robertson street crawled uninjured from under a kicking horse attached to a delivery wagon of the Puritan Spring Bottling Co., this noon in full sight of hundreds of people in City Square after they were thrown under the horse when the forward wheel of the wagon got caught in the East Weymouth switch.

Both landed in range of the horses feet which were flying in all directions in rapid fire order. Caravaglio who is the son of the proprietor was driving and when the wheel caught was the first to be pulled forward. Carroll was thrown forward when the horse viciously kicked the side of the seat. They wasted no time in reaching a safe distance.

The horse became entangled in the harness and while being extricated demolished the shafts. He was slightly cut about the head and knees but did not receive serious injuries.

Both boys escaped with a heavy coating of mud and tarvia. The team was loaded with empty tonic cases and several soda tanks. None of the load was damaged.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

There is no telling much about it in base ball.

Harry Thaw manages to have his little excursions every once in a while despite the fact that he is supposed to be confined as a dangerous lunatic.

Save money and leave city hall as it is the rugged granite walls, darkened, stained, and mellowed by the time and weather. Granite buildings were not intended to be whitwashed every spring.

Besides it would be a little saving in expenditure and every little helps to make a reduction in the taxes.

Rain yesterday saved Boston from frenzy one way or the other.

State Secretary J. Frank Donahue is a progressive all right. He has only been in office four months but finds that increasing duties should bring a corresponding increase in salary.

The proposed telephone strike breakers had a good time. They had little to do and secured considerable easy money.

Two men on a sprinkling cart may not be out of place but one hardly sees the actual necessity for such a force on one lone cart.

Los Angeles has abandoned its municipal newspaper. The receipts were nothing and the cost for 32 weeks ate up the entire appropriation of $36,000. About time the people awoke.

Miss Taft is singularly unfortunate. First she lost a place in the White House, then her pet dog and now the silver mesh bag presented to her by Washington friends. Trouble never come singly.

Every morning about the same headline grets the eye in the morning paper, "Lieut. Gov. Walsh Attended." The Lieutenant governor is getting a full taste of the arduous duties of his job. If he can both hold his temper and maintain his digestion he is to be congratulated.

The 90 year old man who has applied to Hamilton college for admission is not trying for the foot ball or base ball team or the boat crew, only looking for a degree which is secondary to so many of the present college attendants.

Clean up day let every one clean up the back yard and cellar and rest the next day Sunday.

Are those altar fires the English suffragettes are raising or just plain plebian blazes?

The first mackeral will never have a chance to tell his mates how it seemed to strike land. He has gone hence long ago.

Friday's April shower looked to the average citizen like a small sized flood but there is no need of melting the type with what the base ball fan thought of it.

Champ Clark's son as parliamentarian of the house may have a chance to put it over his father once in a while but just the same it is mighty poor taste appointment.

One would never know half the things in this world if it were not for the periodical rifting of the tariff.

HARDLY A NECESSITY.

That city hall in its "faded coat of gray" looks good enough and dignified enough to the average citizen appears to be the concensus of opinion. Who conceived the idea and why it was pressed with such vigor to change the tone of its stately granite walls, seems to be somewhat uncertain. The only solution would be that some one wanted a job and some one else wanted to spend some money. The first is hardly reason enough for spending public money and the second is no excuse in view of the city's financial condition and the high tax rate. Economy should be practiced wherever convenient and this seems to be one of the many cases where a few dollars might be saved to good advantage. The dark, grey, rich coloring of walls, stained and mellowed by time and weather have taken on the color and aspect which nature intended they should assume under the existing conditions. To clean them and whiten them at this time would be sacrilege. There is no need of it. Nature never intended that granite should be given a coat of whitewash every spring.

And another reason why it is nothing more or less than a useless waste of money is the very fact that in a few weeks it will be as dark as ever from the smoke of the hundred and odd locomotives which pass by there daily.

AN UTTER FAILURE.

There has been much said in the past few months in this state relative to a state paper, handled by the state, fair in its distribution of political news and catering to no one. So far as those features are concerned, it is hardly necessary that the paper would probably be about a couple of days in the political campaign when some one or other would be accusing editor of unfairness and whiff would vanish the aleged good it would do in that direction. Because the candidate would undoubtedly assail the editor on the stump and the editor would reply to the oratory by means of the columns and the idea of some bias not getting into the columns would never again be dreamed of. Besides it only requires one editor to edit a paper. On the other hand there are many political parties, and many candidates, to say nothing of the near candidates and their supporters. For one single person to satisfy that varied assortment of grouches, would be so far from attainable that it is beyond the realms of imagination. But there is another side to this public newspaper plant or whatever you care to call it. Los Angeles, Cal., tried a municipal paper for a time. The sum of $36,000 was appropriated for the first year. Of course receipts wer excepted. In 32 weeks ther were no receipts, the entire appropriation had been eaten up and the people of the city wisely decided to dispense with this money burning proposition. It is hardly necessary to say anything on the municipal or state newspaper proposition. There is argument enough in the Los Angeles effort to forever cripple such a movement.

FIFTY CANDIDATES.

The first class initiation of the Quincy lodge, loyal Order of Moose under the new officers will be conducted in Faxon hall, Sunday afternoon. Dictator James A. Daley will have charge of the ceremonies and the work will be performed by the degree team of the order under Capt. Albert Jardine. It is planned to have 50 candidates take the degrees.

RESOLUTION ADOPTED.

We, members of the John Boyle O'Reilly Club citizens of Quincy, assembled to honor the memory of George Washington proclaim our unwavering allegiance to the principles of government set forth in the Declaration of Independence and to the Constitution of the United States.

We affirm our conviction that the warning against Entangling Alliances with the Powers of the Old World conveyed to the American people in Washington's Farewell Address has been jully justified by the progress made by this Republic, largely by strict adherence to that policy, during the past century. It is more than ever necessary now, when the conflicting interests of the great powers have turned Europe practically into an armed camp and made the out-break of war on a colossl scale a strong porbability in the near future. In such a war American interests could be protected by strict neutrality.

We favor the peaceful settlement of all differences that may arise with foreign governments, but we are unalterably opposed to the arbitration of any question involving the vital interests, the honor, the domestic policy or the territorial integrity of the United States, or the conclusion of an arbitration treaty with any European power that might be interpreted as binding this country by special ties of friendship with that power, or calculated to injure, even incidentally, the interests o f any other nation; and we protest in an especial manner against any extension of the provisions of the existing Arbitration Treaty with Great Britain, or of the treaty ratified by the Senate in March 1912, but not yet put in forge.

We oppose that passage of the bill introduced into the Senate by Mr. Root to repeal the free tolls portion of the Panama Canal Act; we protest against the proposition to submit to arbitration an Act of the United States Congress affecting the domestic policy of the country and the regulation of its shipping, and we heartily approve and endorse the attitude on this question of Senator James A. O'Gorman of New York and Representative James R. Mann of Illinois.

We emphatically protest against the proposed appropriation by Congress of $7,000,000 for the celebration of one hundred years of peace with England, and against the appropriation of any public money whatever, either by State or National authority , for any such purpose. We protest in an especial manner against the proposed joint naval and military reviews in connection with that celebration as a direct menace to the peace of the world and a deliberate attempt to aid England in her quarrel with Germany over questions which involve no American interest, and we brand the whole movement as a thinly disguised attempt to bring about Anglo-American Alliance, fraught with disaster and dishonor to this Republic.

We favor the proper celebration by the government and people of the United States of the centenial of the battle of New Orleans, of the writing of the National Anthem, "The Star Spangled Banner" and of the burning down of the Capitol in Washington by the British Army. We are anxious to be at peace with England, as well as with the rest of the world, but we insist that the nation which sought to destroy this Republic during the Civil War and which swept American commerce from the sea with vessels built in English ship-yards, armed with English guns and manned by British seaman, while the other nations of Europe, except the French Empire, were friendly, shall not be selected for special marks of friendship when its government is notoriously preparing for war, and alone, of all the governments of the world, is contesting our control of the Panama Canal.

We favor the eventual removal of all monarchical authority from the American continent and the acquisition by purchase of Bermuda, Jamaica the Bahamas, St. Thomas, the Belize and all other insular or continental territory now held by European governments and which may be used as bases of operations against the Panama Canal, or for attack on the United States, and we assert that such acquisition is absolutely necessary not only for the safety of the canal, but for the adequate protection of the interests of the American people.

Cornelius Driscoll, Pres.
Thomas Rogan, Sec'y.

TOO MANY AT THE WHEEL.

There has been considerable interest in the Yacht Racing Association of Massachusetts the past few days over the discovery that for the past two years three members have been elected to the executive committee, whereas the constitution calls for only two, and the question has been raised whether the actions of the executive committee of the association have been legal.

The tangle was straightened out at at a meeting Thursday night.

Comparative Digestibility of Food
Made with different Baking Powders
From a Series of Elaborate Chemical Tests:
An equal quantity of bread (biscuit) was made with each of three different kinds of baking powder—cream of tartar, phosphate, and alum—and submitted separately to the action of the digestive fluid, each for the same length of time.
The relative percentage of the food digested is shown as follows:
Bread made with Royal Cream of Tartar Powder:
100 Per Cent. Digested
Bread made with phosphate powder:
68¼ Per Cent. Digested
Bread made with alum powder:
67¾ Per Cent. Digested
These tests, which are absolutely reliable and unprejudiced, make plain a fact of great importance to everyone: Food raised with Royal, a cream of tartar Baking Powder, is shown to be entirely digestible, while the alum and phosphate powders are found to largely retard the digestion of the food made from them.
Undigested food is not only wasted food, but it is the source of very many bodily ailments.

Emerson of Hampden, sheriff of Penobscot county, was convicted by the Maine legislature of the charge of malfeasance in office through failure or neglect to enforce the prohibitory liquor law in the city of Bangor. It was voted to send an address to Governor Haines, asking for his removal.

The action was similar to that taken in two preceding impeachment cases which resulted in requests for the removal of the sheriffs of Sagadahoc and Cumberland counties.

Just as the trial of Sheriff Lowe of Androscoggin county on the same charge was about to open yesterday afternoon, his resignation was received by Governor Haines and he will not be tried.

GERMAN COMEDY IN ORIGINAL

By High School Pupils Pleased Large Audience

A play, "A Treasure for the house" acted in German was given Friday afternoon by students of German in the High School in the High School Hall. The play was very well acted and much credit for its success is due the director Miss Zella, the German teacher.

The plot centres on a search for a servant girl by a noble family. Edward, the son is in love with Marie, and his mother, becoming disgusted at not being able to find a servant, promises to allow Edward to marry Marie if he gets her a servant. Marie goes to the 'baroness' home as Martha a servant girl and succeeds in pleasing the family. Edward then makes his mother hold good her promise and confesses that Martha is really Marie. The family consents to the marriage of the two and everything ends up happily for all.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

GLEANERS IN MERRY MOOD

The regular monthly business meeting of The Gleaners of the Swedish Baptist church was held Friday evening at 23 Cranch street with Miss Effie Weeden as hostess. On account of the inclemency of the weather, but a small proportion of the members were in attendance, although a most pleasant evening was spent.

There was no special business to be transacted and after the reading of the secretary's report and the roll-call to which the members responded with a verse or quotation on "hope," the meeting was adjourned. Piano selections and singing by the class were enjoyed after which the girls made post-card hangers, tied together with tape which are to be hung on the walls as an adornment in the crude homes of the Africans. These cards are of great value to missionaries in lecturing to the natives who are very much interested in views of our country.

Refreshments of ice-cream and cake were served by the hostess, the members departing at a late hour.

SUCCESSFUL PRESENTATION

Of Two Act Drama by Loyal Orange Ladies Lodge

DANCING FOLLOWED

"Down by the Sea", a two act drama, was presented to a crowded house in New Colonial hall, Friday evening by the members of the Maple Leaf club of the Daughters of John Adams, Loyal Ladies Orange lodge, No. 11.

Dancing followed until one o'clock, music being furnished by William Wilson. John J. Phalen directed the drama and the committee was Miss Annie Beaton, Miss Grace McKinnon, Mrs. Jessie McLeod, Neil McDonald and John McLeod.

The cast was assisted by Miss Grace McKinnon, who gave several readings and Graham Patterson who rendered several solos. The cast follows:

Abner Raymond, A City Merchant,
Neil McDonald
Captain Dandelion, A City Flower,
James Smith
John Gale, A Fisherman,
Gordon Budd
September Gale—March Gale, Protege's of John Gale
Charles Ross and Wilbert Wynot
Jean Grapeau, An old French Pedlar,
Samuel Bond
Kate Raymond, A City Belle,
Miss Anna Bond
Mrs. Gale, John Gale's Wife,
Mrs. Beatrice Bond
Kitty Gale, John Gale's Daughter,
Miss Lizzie Budd

The story deals with the wreck of a vessel off the English coast and the casting ashore of two infants and a French pedlar. His disappearance and the adoption of the twins by Abner Raymond precedes a life of difficulty, and romance, the knot unravelling after the pedlar's unexepected visit and the disclusure of his secret. The usual fund of love, sentiment and humor is well developed throughout.

The parts were all well taken and the cast proved to be as apt at amateur production as the more experienced players.

STRENGTHEN TEAM.

With a view to strengthening its defence for the cup games, the Fore River team of Quincy has signed Edward Long late of London, England. Long is a goalkeeper of considerable reputation, having kept goal for the West Ham team of London, a member of the Southern league, and was picked to keep goal for England versus Scotland, in the International school game a few years ago. Manager McVicar of the Fall River team says he will alternate with Sharples in the Williamson cup games.

Long's addition to the Fore River ranks is the result of a special effort being made by this club management to get a few good substitutes signed in case of accidents.

TOWNSENDS LOST SUITS

Decree Rendered for Igo as Plaintiff and Defendant

INTERESTING GRANITE CASE

Judge Avery handed down his finding this morning in the case of Igo against Townsend & Townsend of New York and the case of Townsend & Townsend against Igo. The case was one of particular interest to local granite men and was heard before Judge Avery early last month. A large number of witnesses were heard and the hearing consumed several days.

The suit of Patrick Igo was to recover the sum of $209 for a monument cut for Townsend & Townsend of New York. The suit of Townsend & Townsend against Igo was for breach of contract and loss of profits in the sum of $300.

Messrs Townsend claimed that the contract called for dark Swingle stock and that instead of that stock, a stock of inferior grade was furnished which was full of knots and sap and that it had been doped to give it the appearance of dark stock.

Igo claimed the stock furnished was what was called for in the contract, that it was not full of knots and sap and that it had not been doped.

The court found for Igo in both suits. In the suit for cost of monument the court found for Igo in the sum of $211 and in the cross suit of Townsend & Townsend it also found for Igo. It is understood that Messrs. Townsend are to carry the case to a higher court.

HURLED 150 FEET BY EXPRESS JONES' BODY FELL ACROSS TRACK

Train Then Passed Over it and Mangled it Almost Beyond Recognition

Did Not Hear Train As He Started Across the Track

Bradford C. Jones aged about 50 years was instantly killed at the Wollaston depot about 5 o'clock Friday night. Mr. Jones was crossing the tracks at the depot on the way to his home on Berlin street. The outward track was clear but a fast express train was approaching on the inward track. This Mr. Jones evidently did not see and although witnesses to the accident say their attention was attracted by the shrill whistling of the inward train he evidently did not hear it for he continued on his way across the tracks stepping directly in front of the approaching express train. The locomotive struck him a terrific blow which threw him fully one hundred and fifty feet and when he fell it was to fall onto the tracks again so that the engine passed over him mangling the body in a horrible manner.

The train was stopped and the body taken from beneath the cars and placed on one side of the tracks to await the arrival of Medical Examiner Dr. Fred E. Jones, who ordered the body removed to Hall's morgue.

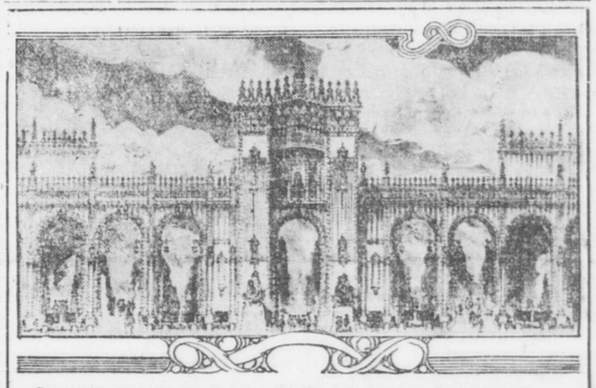

Mr. Jones was a familiar character about Wollaston having been employed for years about livery stables at the time of his death being employed at M. J. McGraths stable at Wollaston. He was also well known on the grand circuit racing centres having for several years been in charge of the stable of Lotta Crabtree and he was familiarly known by the title of Dr. Jones

He was about 50 years of age and resided at 35 Berlin street where he leaves a widow and one daughter

Add to Jones killed

A most touching incident happened as the persons engaged in that sad task were removing the body of Jones from the railroad track.

The widow who works in Boston, arrived on the 5.28 o'clock train. She noticed the unusual commotion and crowd of people and stopped to inquire the cause. Some one told her a man had been killed. She expressed sympathy for the unfortunate and for his family and then inquired his name. The feelings of the poor woman can better be imagined than described when some one told her it was her husband. The blow was a severe one but she stood up under it well and on convincing herself of the truth of the announcement proceeded to her saddened home.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

Hubbite Hatpins under Ban of New Law—Policemen Do Not Relish Job of Warning Ladies of Uncertain Temper—Signs of Boston's Spring—Cantabrigian Trade School Shows How to Make Girls Self Supporting—A Symphony Inspired by a Greek Head is Famous Composer's Latest Achievement.

Spring is indisputably, undeniably here. Not only have the Red Sox begun the summer's campaign, but the football squad at Harvard is once more in practice, and all eyes are turned one way or the other. The championship of both of Boston's representative teams last season makes the interest the keener, and preparations are under way in many business offices to get the work so well along in the mornings that the afternoons may be stolen for baseball, while the girls round Harvard way are wondering who will be the lucky mortal to get a bid to the Yale-Harvard contest in the Stadium this fall. Many of them are questioning why the Athletic Association doesn't offer Mr. Haughton such a salary that he could not consider refusing for a moment—surely he is just as important to the University as the president.

Enforcement of the hatpin law is now under way. No arrests are reported as yet, but cases of warnings by police officers have been noted in the streets of the Hub. One young woman, a stranger in the city and unaware of the new law, is said to have promptly stuck a cork on the point of her hatpin when warned by an officer that she was transgressing the law. This adornment she wore for some time to the amusement of the public. Many women have thus far paid no attention to the warning, but a large number are discovered wearing little ornamental protectors. Officers, it is suspected, do not particularly relish the job of accosting ladies of questionable temper regarding their hatpins, though as a rule it requires but one warning to accomplish their purpose.

Surprising progress has been made in the two months in which the Girls' Trade School in Cambridge—one of five similar schools in the state—has been in operation. Already one business firm has guaranteed work for thirty girls a year from this school at a salary of $8 a week to start. These same girls would probably have considered themselves in great good luck to have started in on $3.50 or $4.00 under ordinary circumstances. Another firm will take a number of the best girls and pay them $12 a week. The young women have been trained in millinery, cooking, sewing and other useful feminine trades. The girls do not make hats and dresses for themselves, as in some of the evening trade schools, but for the market, where the test of their success is the facility with which they are sold. The school is not confined to Cambridge girls, for any girl can enter from a town where there is no similar school. The success of the idea promises a great future for the school, and hitherto unequalled opportunities for those girls who must earn a livelihood without the advantage of long preparation of the necessity of apprenticeship at starvation wages for two or three years.

How music and the plastic arts may work together in the "great white city of enlightenment" on Huntington Avenue has again been illustrated—this time in a symphonic poem suggested by a sculptured marble head of four centuries before Christ. For now nearly ten years the Boston Museum of Fine Arts has cherished as one of its greatest treasures a beautiful little head of Aphrodite, unearthed in Greece and given to the Museum by Francis Bartlett. Laymen as well as artists and art students have delighted in the charm of its rich translucent marble, its aspect of sweet contemplation. Among its admirers is the distinguished composer and director of the New England Conservatory of Music, George W. Chadwick, who after years of observing the work, was moved to write a tone poem, a symphonic fantasie, embodying some of the emotions which study of this likeness of a Greek goddess may be supposed to call up. How pretty the idea is, need hardly be said; the working out of the themes is said to embody just the principle that Mr. Chadwick so often insists on in his classes in composition—that of being sure at all cost that any piece of programme music is also good abstract music. The piece was first blocked out three or four years ago as a sketch for the orchestra. Then the fantasie was given its final form and was presented by the Litchfield county musical association at Norfolk, Connecticut. Finally it has been presented for the first time in a large city by the greatest of all orchestral organizations, the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The applause after the performance called the Conservatory director again and again to his feet—a little indication of present day Boston's appreciation of its composers.

ARGUMENTS OF THE SUGAR MEN

New Proposition Makes Impression Upon President

ONE CENT A POUND GROSS

"Gentlemen's Agreement" That Sugar Schedule May Be Reopened at End of Three Years—Depressing Effect Upon Business If Admitted Free—Cuba Wants New Treaty

Washington, April 12.—Events in the senate committee on finance are shaping toward a solution of the sugar problem which may materially facilitate the passage of the tariff bill in the senate.

The clause providing for free sugar in three years following a 25 percent reduction of the duties meantime has been the great sticking point. Men with money invested in cane and beet sugar have declared to the president that they might as well be wiped out now as three years later, for the banks would not encourage further investments in the sugar business or assume too great risks in carrying along the firms now engaged in it if sugar were to be made free in three years.

Former Governor Adams of Colorado told the president that, while the industry in his state could stand a reduction to 1 cent a pound, as now provided in the tariff bill, the knowledge that sugar would be free at the end of three years would have a depressing effect on business during the intervening period.

Robert Ewing, Democratic national committeeman from Louisiana, discussed the question with the president and took the same position as Adams. He went away with the impression that the president was still carefully considering that feature of the bill.

President Wilson evidently has been impressed by the arguments of the sugar men. The proposition now is that the president shall waive the three-year clause if the senators will consent to cut the rates to 1 cent a pound gross with 20 percent off for Cuba.

This is with the understanding that at the end of three years the sugar schedule may be reopened and the cane and beet growers be required to prove to the satisfaction of the administration that free sugar would destroy them.

Such an arrangement could hardly be expressed in terms in legislation, but would constitute rather a gentlemen's agreement which the president would expect the sugar senators and their colleagues in the house to live up to.

Cuba is practically certain to move for a new commercial treaty, whatever rates are fixed upon in the Wilson-Underwood law. Minister Rivero has pointed out that every reduction in the American rate means also a lessening of the advantage given to Cuba by the treaty.

Louisiana doubtless would oppose the new Cuban proposition as vigorously as she fought the Cuban treaty in 1903. Secretary of Commerce Redfield has just given out figures of a comparison for five years of Cuban and certain Louisiana factories, which shows that the yield in Cuba was 229.3 pounds per ton against only 161.9 per ton in Louisiana. The Americans will urge that the climatic advantages of Cuba offer sufficient compensation without increasing the preferential.

DUTY OFF SHOE MACHINERY

House Democratic Caucus Orders It Put Back on Free List

Washington, April 12.—Shoe machinery, now taxed 45 percent, and on which a reduction to 25 percent was proposed by the tariff revision bill, was ordered transferred to the free list by the Democratic caucus of the house.

It was the first real break of the Democrats from the ways and means committee rates, though earlier in the day the caucus had agreed to an amendment under which lead, containing a strain of less than 3 percent of zinc, would be admitted free of duty on the zinc contained in it.

The shoe machinery amendment was carried by a viva-voce vote without substantial opposition from the members of the committee.

Man Who Read Bible Constantly Believed He Could Walk on Sea

Plymouth, Eng., April 12.—A steerage passenger by the name of Duro on the American liner St. Paul, which arrived here last night, who declared that he could walk on the sea as Christ did, jumped from the vessel in mid-ocean on April 9.

He was rescued, but he died later from shock. He had read the Bible throughout the voyage.

Colonel TODHUNTER of Missouri

By RIPLEY D. SAUNDERS

Copyright, 1911, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company.

SYNOPSIS

"And you and the Blade are both durned fools, sir—that's all I've got to say!" snapped the little old man under the big hat. "You don't know which side your bread's buttered on, Dick Cantrill!"

"Squire," said Dick, grinning coolly, "that ain't the only viewpoint from which I look at the matter. I know Colonel Strickland and I know Steve Yancey, and I know Strickland's the best man. That makes it my duty to support him, squire!"

"It's to your interest to support the winner, you young idiot, and I was talking to you for your own good!" cried old Tucker. "Stephen K. Yancey has got all the money influence behind him in this campaign, and he'll be nominated by an overwhelming majority. You'll put up a mighty poor mouth then, Dick Cantrill, begging for the public printing in the Blade, and I'll see to it that nothing comes your way!"

"Go right ahead. Crack your whip, squire!" retorted Dick Cantrill calmly. "I reckon you and I have different ideas about politics, but there needn't be any hard feelings unless you insist on it. Anyway, we might as well get the whole thing thrashed out right now, as long as we've got started."

"I'll see if I can't make you change your tune before I'm done with you, sir!" And old Tucker's cold little eyes narrowed venomously. "You're talking mighty big now, Dick Cantrill, but the Yancey administration'll have the last say, my young gamecock!"

"The Yancey administration be hanged!" replied Dick Cantrill, and then he laughed and settled back in his chair. "But, shucks, squire, I can't talk to you like I could to a younger man. Let's go easy. You're for Yancey, and I'm for Strickland, and that's all there is to it. Every man's got a right to his own opinion in a free country, squire."

"Very well, sir, very well, if you will have it that way," retorted old Eph Tucker. "But you're backing a loser, Dick Cantrill, and you're going to suffer for it. Stephen K. Yancey will snow Bill Strickland under so deep that Bill's friends 'll never be able to dig him out, sir!"

Dick Cantrill stretched his arms above his head. "Such being the case, squire," he replied, "it don't make any difference to you Yancey people what me and the Blade see fit to do, so you can just keep your shirt on."

Old Tucker glared at the amused speaker.

At this moment a fourth figure was added to the group. It was that of Lycurgus Quivey, the schoolmaster of Nineveh, a gaunt and homely representative of rustic learning with a face pathetic in its meek wistfulness.

"Well, well, Lycurgus!" cried Dick Cantrill cordially. "I'm glad to see you. Blest if I hadn't begun to fear the Blade wasn't going to have a poem from you this week. And that would never do, sir!"

Lycurgus Quivey cleared his throat nervously. "I reckon you'll be surprised, Mr. Cantrill," he said at last, "but the truth is I've written a political poem this time. I know Colonel Strickland so well, sir, and I like him so much that I thought I'd write a Strickland campaign song. It might do some good at mass meetings and barbecues and such things, it seemed to me."

Old Eph Tucker snorted and glared at the embarrassed speaker. Colonel Todhunter beamed his approval. Dick Cantrill's sense of humor reveled in the situation.

"Bully for you, Lycurgus!" he exclaimed. "That's just fine! You bet the Blade will print your campaign song. And, by George, sir, come to think of it, here's Squire Tucker doing his level best to convert me to the Yancey cause. I'll just read your poem to him and see if it won't bring him over to the Strickland side!"

At this old Eph Tucker's wrath exploded.

"You won't do anything of the sort!" he ejaculated. "You and your fool poets can go it alone supporting Bill Strickland. It's about all the support he'll get!"

Then he turned on Lycurgus Quivey. "As for you, Mr. Schoolteacher," he snarled, "if writin' campaign poetry for Bill Strickland is the best you can do I'll see if we can't get you more time for it by gettin' you out of the Nineveh school, sir. I can do it too. I'm chairman of the school board, and I'll h'ist you out of your job without lettin' any grass grow under my feet!"

"No, you won't, squire," spoke Dick Cantrill quietly. His steady eyes held those of old Eph Tucker with a distinct menace.

"Squire," Dick continued, "I know you just well enough to know that you're willing to make that threat good. Don't you dare do it, sir. This man is a worthy man in his place, and outside of his working hours he's privilliged to write poetry to whoever and whatever he pleases and to make his own choice in politics, sir. I give you a piece of advice, Squire Tucker. Don't you lift a finger to get Lycurgus Quivey fired, sir. If you do it'll be the worse for you."

Old Eph Tucker glared at the speaker. "What'll you do, Dick Cantrill? That's mighty big talk to come off of such a little stomach, sir. What'll you do if I see fit to teach Lycurgus Quivey to mind his own business?"

"What'll I do?" repeated Dick Cantrill, his eyes flashing. "I'll skin you alive, Squire Tucker; that's what I'll do. I'll flay you from head to heels, sir, and then I'll hang your hide out here in front of the Blade office so the people of Nineveh can see just what a miserable skunk you are, sir. If you're going to make a personal fight on this man because he backs William J. Strickland for governor of Missouri I'll make the same sort of a fight from the Strickland side of that proposition. And you'll be the first man I'll make it on, squire. I've got the material to do it with, and you know it. You know your own record. You won't last a minute if the Blade goes out after your scalp, Squire Tucker. You'll shrivel up quicker than a dry oak leaf in hell, sir!"

A grim silence followed these words. Then old Eph Tucker spoke.

"Well," he said slowly, "it strikes me you're goin' off half cocked, Dick. We've both lost our tempers a little and probably said more'n we meant. Anyway I haven't done anything against Lycurgus Quivey yet. Maybe you better just keep cool and wait till I do before you start in to tear up things the way you've been threatenin', sir."

"I'll skin you alive, Squire Tucker. That's what I'll do."

Dick Cantrill laughed. "Sure, squire," he replied. "I can wait just as long as you can, I reckon, but not a minute longer. Keep that in mind, squire—not a minute longer!"

A few moments later Colonel Todhunter was alone with Dick Cantrill. "That was a right lively session while it lasted, Dick," he chuckled. "You called old Eph down almighty hard, suh."

"The old scoundrel!" exclaimed Dick. Then he added, "I don't like to talk to a man of his age that way, colonel, but that cold blooded threat against Lycurgus Quivey, as defenseless a man as ever lived, sir, flung me off my balance."

"I reckon you ain't done no harm, Dick," said Colonel Todhunter. "Are we gettin' any news of how the other side regards Bill Strickland's candidacy?"

"Well, colonel," grinned the Blade's editor, "there's some mighty amusing surface indications. They haven't lost any time springing one old moss grown political trick on us at any rate, sir."

"What trick is that?" quickly asked the other.

"Why, sir, they've induced Hamp Judson of Carthage and Judge Sanford of Bowling Green to come out, both of 'em, in the race for the nomination. Each of 'em will take votes away from Colonel Strickland. It's an old move, but a shrewd one, colonel. They know Yancey will get the solid vote always controlled by the machine, and they're working to divide the rest between Strickland, Judson and Sanford, sir."

"I'll be eternally condemned, Dick," vociferated Colonel Todhunter, "if I'd ha' believed either Hamp Judson or Jim Sanford would lend themselves to such a game, suh. I hate to think it of 'em now, even on your say so."

"It isn't my say so, colonel. It's the cold facts," replied Dick Cantrill. "Judson and Sanford both entered the race within twenty-four hours after Colonel Strickland announced his candidacy down there in St. Louis. They know they haven't got the ghost of a show for the nomination. All they're working for is to get solid with the old Jefferson City ring by helping to defeat Colonel Strickland. I'd be willing to bet that their campaign expenses down to the last dollar on the last day will be paid by Yancey's campaign managers, sir."

Colonel Todhunter looked at the speaker indignantly. "And you're a-settin' there ca'mly, suh," he inquired, "knowin' these things and not movin' a finger to expose their game?"

"Colonel," replied Dick Cantrill, laughter in his eyes, "don't you be uneasy. I've got my end of the fight started. At the proper moment, and that moment isn't far off, you'll see Hamp Judson and Judge Sanford jumping and howling at every crack of the Blade's whip, sir. I'll make 'em the two sickest men in Missouri before I'm through with 'em."

"That sounds like business!" cried Colonel Todhunter, much relieved. "Give it to 'em good and hard, Dick."

A little later, crossing the town square, Colonel Todhunter held counsel with himself.

"Well, suh," he said, "the owner of a newspaper ought to flop down on his marrowbones every night and pray, 'Our Father, deliver us from temptation.' He can help or hurt crooked men more'n any other one influence, and they know it. He sure must have a hard fight to keep straight. The longer he stays virtuous the more they're willin' to pay for him. I'm glad I ain't in the business, suh. Old Satan's got grip holds enough on me as it is."

ENVIRONMENT AND YOUR CHILD

The fourth meeting of the Cranch Parents' and Teachers' association was held at the school hall, Thursday evening. Music for the occasion consisted of solos by Miss Baxter with the flute obligato by Mr. Schenkelberger. The applause showed how greatly their selections were enjoyed.

Mr. Townsend, the principal of the school and the speaker of the evening took for his subject, "Environment and Your Child." He pointed out a few ways in which we could bring up children to the best possible advantage. "Tales of ghosts and goblins and "the bogie-man" should not be told to children. Tales of the horrible and supernatural usually have a lasting, undesirable effect. Great harm may also be done by the discussion in the child's presence of deeds of violence and crime. The parents, too, should avoid, in the presence of the child, laughing and joking about his own pranks during his school days, because the child not only wants to imitate his father, but if he is a real live boy, "to go him one better." A great deal of harm may also come from some moving picture shows. These ought to be censored by the parents, before they are presented to the children. Every parent and teacher should see to it that the standard of behaviour he sets before the child is as worthy as possible. Then particular attention should be paid to the child's room, which should contain some good pictures, points of the great master pieces, some good story books and simple text books in grammar, history, geography, mathematics and the sciences."

Closing, Mr. Townsend said, "The child born upon this earth has a sacred right to the best that is in us, and it is your duty and my duty to do our parts well.

Mr. Townsend was given hearty applause.

The social hour was in charge of Miss Healey of grade four and her committee Mrs. Herbert Blake, Mrs. William A. Richards, Mrs. John Fornel and Mrs. Daniel Lane.

MOTOR TRANSPORTATION BUILDING, PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION, SAN FRANCISCO, 1915.

THE Motor Transportation building at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition will be one of the largest of the exposition palaces, approximately 275 feet front by 800 feet deep and covering more than five acres. The theme of the architecture will be emblematic of the triumph of modern transportation, the automobile. Groups of statuary will typify the triumph of the motor over the elements. The main group will typify the conquest over the land. Other groups of statuary will convey allegorically the victory of the motorboat over the sea and of the aeroplane over the air. On either side of the entire length of the building there will be a frieze ten feet high in bas-relief giving the history of transportation from the early log cart up to the most modern automobile. The dome which surmounts the center of the front portion of the building will be 130 feet high.

HOW DRESSES WERE STOLEN

New York Factory Employe Wound Them About His Body

New York, April 12.—Detectives assigned to find why dress goods were disappearing from factories involved in the recent garment workers' strike noticed the huge girth of Isadore Kaitz, a white goods presser, when he left his place of employment. They followed him to a nearby saloon, where he met his brother, Abraham, who had a big paper bag which he had brought there inflated with air and which he took away with nine white dresses occupying the same space. The dresses were taken from beneath Isidore's overboat. Abraham and Isidore were arrested.

Isidore, when arraigned, pleaded guilty and was held for the higher court. A detective reported having found several trunks full of dress goods in Abraham's home.

LOSS OF $800,000 A DAY

What Will Happen If Big Belgian Strike Goes Into Effect

Brussels, April 12.—Belgium stands to lose $800,000 every day the general strike lasts if, as the Socialists declare and hope, 50 percent of the industrial workers leave their jobs next Monday. This is the estimate made by the economists.

The full realization of the tremendous economic blow impending is beginning to permeate all sections of the population and a feeling of great uneasiness reigns throughout the country. The government and the local authorities are fast completing final arrangements to meet all emergencies.

According to latest reports from strike centres the walkout will be complete among the miners, metal workers, quarrymen and textile workers.

GIGANTIC SLIDE MOVES INTO CANAL

Battery of Steam Shovels Working In Culebra Cut

Washington, April 12.—A giant shoulder of rock that for the past few years had prevented a mountain of earth from slipping into Culebra cut on the Panama canal at last has given way and the slide has moved into the canal a distance of eighty feet and is still traveling.

A battery of thirty-two steam shovels is now tearing away at the earth and rock and besides this many other shovels are engaged in terracing the banks and in miscellaneous operations.

As a result the obstacle has been so far overcome that the excavation has reached grade in all but 8000 feet of the ten miles' length of the cut.

Up to Jan. 31 last the United States government had expended on the canal $281,702,630.55.

SONS PLEAD NOT GUILTY

Head of Musica Family Too Ill to Appear In Court

New York, April 12.—Antonio Musica, charged with his sons, Philip, Arthur and George, with defrauding banks out of nearly $1,000,000 by means of false invoices on shipments of human hair, of which they were importers, was too ill to appear for arraignment in court. In a state of collapse he remained in his Tombs cell while the sons pleaded not guilty, with permission to change or withdraw the plea on April 18.

Bail in the case of the father and son George was fixed at $10,000 and $20,000, respectively. Under this sum they probably will be released. No application for bail for the other sons was made.

The Musicas were arrested in New Orleans recently after their flight from New York when their alleged operations were uncovered.

PROVE FITNESS FOR PROMOTION

Daniels Requires Officers of Navy to Do Sea Service

POTTS AND ANDREWS FIRST

Aid For Personnel and Recent Chief of Navigation Ordered to Warships —Head of Naval Academy Affected by Secretary's Determination to Do Away With "Swivel-Chair" Navy

Washington, April 12.—Secretary of the Navy Daniels has demonstrated that he was in earnest in his declared policy to require actual sea duty of naval officers in their present grade before promotion to the next, and by so doing made evident the prospect of more or less momentous changes in the duties of the commissioned personnel in the near future, among these being the probability of a new superintendent of the naval academy after the close of the present academic year in June.

Secretary Daniels demonstrated his purpose to adhere to his announced policy by ordering Captain Potts, now aid for personnel, and Commander Andrews, until recently chief of navigation, to sea "to demonstrate their fitness to perform the sea duties of the advanced grades," as a condition precedent to their advancement to the next higher grades.

Many officers are affected by this determination, among them the most notable being the superintendent of the naval academy, Captain Gibbons, who has had no sea duty in his present grade and who probably will come up for promotion to the rank of rear admiral within the next two years.

Simultaneously with the assertion of his policy Daniels ordered Captain Potts to the Louisiana and Commander Andrews to the Montana. If the two officers, who have been reported to to be qualified professionally, physically and morally for promotion, demonstrate their fitness for command at sea they will be promoted to fill vacancies which occurred on March 26 last. Potts has already had ten months' sea service in the grade of captain. Andrews has been at sea only two months since he attained his present grade.

In transferring Potts to sea duty Daniels announced that he had selected Captain Mayo, commandant of the Mare Island navy yard, at San Francisco, for his aid for personnel, to succeed Potts. Mayo has had twenty-three years' experience in the various grades of the service up to his present rank.

It is intimated by Daniels that he would prefer those officers who have not had sufficient sea duty in their present grades to ask to be sent to sea on their motion, instead of leaving it to him or to the aid for personnel to suggest or order it, and it is expected that numerous requests for such assignments will follow.

Secretary Daniels' declared policy is that officers coming up for promotion "shall have had sufficient sea service in the grade from which they are to be promoted to insure beyond doubt that they are fully qualified and experienced at sea to perform the sea duties of the next higher grades."

It is recognized that Daniels is aiming at so-called "swivel-chair officers," and his action was not wholly unexpected.

BROOKS OVERFLOWED BANKS FORMING LAKES EITHER SIDE

Town Brooks First Mad Flight Beyond Bounds Since 1889

The recent heavy rains caused the Town brook and Furnace brook to overflow their banks flooding cellars in the immediate vicinity. Along Cherry avenue, Town brook overflowed to such an extent that the water was on a level with the bridge over the brook on Cherrington avenue and several cellars were filled with water. Along Furnace brook from the railroad back to West Quincy the water overflowed the banks and the fields on both sides of the brooks became great ponds.

Should the water in Town brook rise to a higher level many of the houses along Revere road, Bigelow street and Miller Stile road would be flooded.

It is many years since Town brook overflowed its banks, the last time being in the spring of 1889. At that time there was but one house on Miller Stile road, that later occupied by Dr. Everett. The remainder of this territory where there are now upwards of one hundred houses was covered with water. Along Washington street at that time the street was overflowed so as to be impassable.

After the water receded the city widened and deepened the culverts under Washington street and on Miller Stile road and there has been no further trouble. This morning the water had lowered somewhat and no further trouble is looked for.

The condition of Butler's brook is about the same as the Town and Furnace brooks. There is a dam in Butler's borok near the old Dorothy Quincy house and this has caused the brook to overflow its banks back of the dam toward Newport avenue. The water is rushing over the sides of the brook and the meadows in the rear of the car barn are flooded as is also the meadow between Hancock street and the railroad tracks. No damage has been done however as there are no houses near enough to be affected.

PROPERTY GAINS ALL OVER STATE

Quincy Shows a Material and Gratifying Increase

TWO TOWNS SHOW LOSS

Only two towns among the 356 Massachusetts cities and towns failed to show an increase in property valuation in the tax statistics made public this year by State Tax Commissioner William D. T. Trefry and compared with statistics made public in 1910.

They are Wellfleet, Barnstable county, which slumped from $1,238,537 in 1910 to $1,065,109 this year, and Goshen, Hampshire county, which had $250,569 this year as against $252,904 in 1910. Quincy made a big gain.

The total valuation in 1910 of all cities and towns was $4,001,820,713; polls, 905,331; poll tax, $905,331; property, 9094,669. This year the total valuation is $4,997,939,070; polls 905,-969; poll tax, $905,469; property tax, $9,034,531. The increase in property valuation is $996,118,357; the increase in polls, 60,138. The average increase in property valuation for each of the 358 cities and towns is $2,792,467.

This tidy little increase shows Massachusetts is steadily gaining in this as in all other lines, but State Tax Commissioner Trefry isn't satisfied. Recently he made a special report to the Legislature, in which he stated that there was about six billions of intangible personal property of all kinds escaping taxation because there were no laws in effect to compel the disclosure of such property.

The following shows the increases made by the cities in property valuations, the first-named amount in each instance being the present valuation and the second-named being the 1910 valuation:

The question, "What shall be done with the Adams Academy property?" will probably soon be disposed of since the City of Quincy, through John W. McAnarney, City Solicitor, this morning filed in the Supreme Judicial Court a bill to provide a means of disposing of the property in a manner which will be proper and equitable to all concerned, and has named as the respondents to the bill the following parties:

James H. Swift, attorney general; Charles F. Adams, 2nd of Concord, Frederick H. Smith of Quincy; Fred B. Rice of Dover; Henry M. Faxon of Quincy; Walter P. Babcock of Quincy; supervisors of the Adams Temple and School fund; Luther S. Anderson, Walter P. Pinkham, George M. Sheahan, Perry Lawton, Herbert S. Parker and Walter E. Piper of the Board of Managers of the Adams Academy; Charles F. Adams of Lincoln, as he is the only male descendant of John and John Quincy Adams; Adelbert L. Hudson, Richard E. Armstrong and John J. Coan, as they are ministers inhabitating in Quincy; Eugene R. Stone and E. Granville Pratt; representing the magistrates of Quincy; Russell A. Sears, William P. Thompson, as representing the lawyers of Quincy; John H. Welch, Nataaniel S. Hunting as representing the physicians of Quincy; Charles F. Adams of Lincoln as the oldest living male descendant of the late Charles Francis Adams; Thomas Minns of Boston, executor under the will of Robert C. Billings, late of Boston; the First Congregational Society and the Episcopal Society of the city of Quincy. It is filed for the purpose of having the court pass upon the question; after setting forth the history of the fund, etc., "The City of Quincy represents that there is difficulty, if it is not as a matter of fact impracticable to administer the fund along the lines indicated in the several deeds of gift of John Adams and John Quincy Adams, and therefore it prays the court to provide a scheme by which the general charitable purposes of the donors and testators may be carried into effect and that the City of Quincy be given authority to sell the proper-

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Many a poor person in London would give a good deal for a chance at the food which the suffragettes are scorning.

Shots across the border sounds good, but better at a distance than in close proximity.

The New Hampshire candidates were given a clean bill of health but the man who is alleged to have offered to sell his vote is recommended for expulsion. If the investigation had been conducted by a grand jury behind closed doors the results might have been different.

Gov. Sulzer has signed the bucket shop bill. What ever happened to the measure in this state?

An Asbury Park, N. J. man dying at 104 has left a record in favor of coffee. He drank eight cups every day and never experienced any ill effects.

The flim flam lady did not get away with it quite as easy as she probably expected.

There is a demand for simpler naturalization laws by some people. The present measure might be made less stringent and yet no one would suffer from it.

California should be reasonable and understand that no state can enact laws which would conflict with treaty regulations of the nation.

The supreme court has handed down a decision, of great moment to which all the members do not subscribe.

The telephone girls refusing the bonus offers probably preferred the rewards in the present rather than in the future.

Tomorrow will mark the first anniversary of the greatest marine tragedy in the world's history, the sinking of the Titanic on her maiden trip.

The esteemed Advertiser hits the nail on the head when it says, speaking of the state buildings at expositions, "About all that a Massachusetts state building at such an exhibition accomplishes is a pleasant little junket for a few favored habitues on Beacon Hill."

If this country was to start a brokerage in titles to recover all the fortunes which have been dissipated by idle Europeans belonging to American heiresses there would be little if any time to devote to real public affairs.

If the girls will dance in foreign courts and wear meaningless empty titles, they must pay both the fiddler and the producer.

If Massachusetts has been frozen out of official Washington she can claim neighborly sentiments with the summer capital.

Representative Hobson having failed to stir up a war is now raking up the one term plank. He must have had a long search upon the political waters for it, he has been quiet so long.

And the rulers or rather the servants of the people as usual tossed out the first base ball of the season and the fans were happy in some places of course for only a short period.

CLOSE SEASON FOR FROGS.

Ye who have ever reveled in the delights of frogs legs will undoubtedly feel some regret over the decision of the New York authorities in enforcing the closed season on those dainties of the epicurian art. Under the new law in New York there is to be nothing doing in the frog taking enterprise during months of April and May the spawning season. In this vicinity the industry has not reached the heights to which it has in the faster whirl of the Gothamites for spice and variety. Possibly in some of the swell restaurants in Boston if ordered, the frogs legs would be produced with all the culinary art with which they are presented in New York, but as a general diet by the seekers for novelties in the eating line, frogs legs have been given the go by to a great extent in this locality. For the novelty of the thing many eastern people when in New York have attempted the feat of becoming palated to the frogs legs, and have repeated the performance on succeeding visits to the Metropolis, but hereafter they must be content to dispense with this particular brand of feed during the months of April and May. As an indication of its purpose to enforce the close season the New York commissioner the other day, seized 192 quarts of frogs legs in one place and smaller quantities in other places and they were confiscated and destroyed. All kinds of frogs come under the law so three is not much chance for evasion because of type or breed. So the Frogs Leggers must dispense with this portion of their daily menu for some weeks yet.

SICK BARRED FROM HOTEL.

Of course it is business but hardly up to the highest plane of Christianity, when poor sufferers from a disease when offered a chance for cure are barred from a hotel at which the mecca of their anticipated relief is sojourning. This is the situation which Dr. Friedmann and the tuberculosis patients who sought his aid were confronted with in Providence. The proprietor of one hotel, acting no doubt upon the complaints of his guests refused to permit patients to come and go from the hotel in which the doctor was located. Naturally the proprietor looked to his business affairs. He is not to be blamed so much. But it does seem as if there was a tinge of selfishness to say nothing of a lack of Christian forbearance on the part of guests who would threaten withdrawal of patronage because some poor sufferers might have a chance for a longer lease of life.

On the other hand, realizing that such a condition might arrive, as it was pressaged by the action of a New York hotel proprietor, the authorities of Providence might have had forethought enough to meet such an emergency, and provide an isolated place for the treatment of the patients.

It is so hoped that when Dr. Friedmann comes to Boston to make tests that the proper authorities will see to it that he is provided with a suitable place, where no one can offer any objections, to carry on his tests in the curing of patients suffering from this disease. It is all right to attend to business, but the calls of humanity should not be forgotten in that pursuit.

MERIT TO COUNT.

With many of the heads of departments at Washington openly announcing the firm belief in merit counting for tenure of office in the public service, there must be some poignant periods of disconsolation in the Democratic ranks throughout the country. The Postmaster General evidently following the well known views of President Wilson upon this subject of merit, promptly gave out his decision with regard to the post offices. Secretary of State Bryan has now come forth with a similar proclamation relating to the consular service.

While consistency would naturally demand merit in all departments, possibly efficiency and merit could in no other departments be more honestly required for good service to the nation. Outside of the corps and brigades of the disappointed army of those seeking appointment plums with nothing but political influence to establish any claim to the places, the great majority of the people will say "Amen" to this determination on the part of the heads of the departments.

WHIST CLUB MEETING.

Mrs. Albert A. Hall of 37 Faxon road, entertained the Quincy Whist club at her home, Friday. They met between 10 and 11 o'clock in the forenoon, and sewed until noon, when a luncheon of escalloped potatoes, cream chicken, cold ham and tongue, egg salad, olives, pickles, coffee, whipped cream pie, fruits, crackers, cheese, nuts and candy, was served.

The dining room was pretily decorated with lavender crepe paper streamers and wisteria. The table was also decorated with lavender streamers. The same color scheme was carried out on the place and menu cards.

Whist was enjoyed during the afternoon, a souvenir being awarded to every lady.

Those present were Mrs. George Spooner, Mrs. Eugene R. Stone, Mrs. George Sprague, Mrs. W. White, Mrs. J. Wilkins, Mrs. T. Smith, Mrs. Hayden, Mrs. Alva Beede, Mrs. W. Drake, Mrs. William Hersey, Mrs. John Thomas and Mrs. Hall.

BOYS TO APPEAL TO MAYOR

Want a Dressing Room Building at Athletic Field

APPROPRIATION RUN OUT

The spirits of the local athletes, particularly the High and Grammar school boys, are perturbed because the Park Commissioners have not erected a building of some description on the new athletic field near Merrymount Park. The boys claimed that although a monster grammar school meet is scheduled for May 24, and an outdoor high school meet proposed, those who enter will be obliged to dress in the woodlands within sight of the field.

The appropriation of the Park Commissioners hardly allows the expenditure of money to erect the building. The boys have learned this after some investigation. They are not content however with the prospects and say they will appeal to Mayor Stone to asume the expense from his miscellaneous appropriation.

Mayor Stone is now confined to his home with illness and several days will elapse before they can make their personal appeal.

$6,000 LOSS FROM GASOLINE

Four Cottages Destroyed at North Weymouth Friday Night

OTHERS IN DANGER

Fire that started from the explosion of a gasoline torch destroyed four cottages at North Weymouth Shore and their contents with a loss of $6000 at 6 o'clock, Friday evening.

Two cottages were owned by William Graffam and valued at $1500 each. The third belonged to Samuel Carroll of East Boston and was valued at $1800. Another, owned by Mrs. Jennette Condon of Somerville, was valued at $1700. The Carroll and Condon cottages were unoccupied.

Graffam occupied one of his cottages and Frank Aiken the other as permanent homes. Graffam was burning paint from a boat in the basement of his home with a gasoline torch when it exploded and set fire to the building. The blaze quickly spread to the three other structures but apparatus that came from several districts in response to two alarms kept the fire from spreading to more cottages.

Previously the house of James J. Martin at 678 Front street, South Weymouth, was damaged $600 by fire which started from an unknown cause in the L. The L was destroyed and the upper story of the main structure gutted.

SUNDAY IN OUR CHURCHES

Topics and Announcements For Coming Week

SUNDAY SCHOOLS

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN.

No pastor was ever more beloved than the late Rev. James Edwin Bagley, whose ministry here began Oct. 1, 1894 and terminated with his sudden death, March 1, 1899. His ashes repose in the crypt of our church. A copper box containing various documents relating to the ministry of this talented young preacher will be placed in the vault ere long. Among these documents is a sermon entitled "Will it be all the same in a hundred years?" As many of his friends and admirers had expressed the desire to hear that sermon again, Rev. Carl G. Horst, the present pastor, preached it yesterday morning to a most interested congregation. The sermon is published on the fourth page. A crayon of Mr. Bagley occupied a prominent place in the chancel. The girl choir sang "Lovely Appear" by Gounod and Mrs. Royal L. Turner rendered most acceptably "Jesus Lover of my Soul." After the service not a few availed themselves of the opportunity of inspecting the original manuscript of the morning sermon, which after being deposited in the vault will probably not see the light of day again until many generations as yet unborn will have passed to their reward.

The Junior Lend-a-Hand Club meets with Gretchen Horst, Tuesday, April 15, at 3.45.

An all star concert under the auspices of the Young People's Religious Union will be given in the church, Monday, April 21, at 8 P. M.

The annual meeting of the Boston Federation of Young People's Religious Unions will be held in our church, Sunday afternoon and evening, April 27.

Many from our church attended the Young People's Rally in Channing Church, Dorchester, last evening. The address was by Rev. William Sullivan formerly a Paulist Father, author of "The Priest" and "Letters to his Holiness Pope Pius X," books that are having a wide reading. Mr. Sullivan conducts the noon services in King's Chapel, Boston, this week Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

The annual meeting of the New England Associate Alliance will be held in Springfield, Mass., Thursday April 17. Trains from Boston 7.10 and 8.30.

The Bible Class had a most helpful session yesterday dealing with "The Fundamentals of Faith" under the leadership of the minister.

BETHANY CHURCH.

Remarkably large congregations attended both the morninfg and evening services at Bethany church, Sunday, although the weather was bad. The pastor's message in the morning was "The right way," and in the evening he lectured on "A liberal religion." He maintained that the religion of Jesus was a liberal religion.

Some think a liberal religion is one that makes no demand on our living, but that is not christianity He quoted the story of the Good Samaritan, showing that the priest and the Levite did not have a liberal religion. He was willing Bethany church should be tested by the world's standard— a church that is working for the community; a church that does things. Every man and every woman is welcome here. We do not ask them to be saints, but to give Jesus an opportunity to mold their lives. We recognize no class, but have regard for the rich man and the poor man alike. Some claim that another church stands for the liberal wing of Congregationalism, and we for the conservative wing, but this church is not the wing to anything; it is the whole bird. A church that believes in authority.

When any church claims to be a liberal church, ask what good things it is doing for the community. This church has a liberal reach and is liberal in doing, and will grow wider as the days go on.

WOLLASTON CONGREGATIONAL.

The sermon preached by Dr. Sneath was inspiring in its nature that doubts and misgivings in the minds of any of his hearers must have been dispelled The text "Art Thou He?" was the question of the imprisoned John sent by two of his disciples to Jesus. Why should John who had baptized Jesus and boldly proclaimed him the Messiah have fallen prey to doubts?

Reformers in all ages have experienced like periods of doubt and discouragement. Moses, David, Elijah, Luther, Levanarola and many others have given way at times to despair.

It is true of us all. We experience times of testing and doubt. Where do we go for relief? Too often in the midst of trial we are tempted to turn even to sources of doubt, and to rely on the arm of flesh. Thousands facing questions too hard for them to solve go down under the strain, failing to recignized that the true source of help is not in man. Let us learn from John to go direct to Jesus himself. How did Jesus answer? Jesus Christ is the perenniel source of satisfaction to every soul.

The study of the centuries, contrasting non-Christian lands with Christian lands should be testimony enough, and a source of inspiration and assurance to the Christian. Jesus told the disciples to tell John what they had seen again and again. So we need to get back again and again to Jesus Christ and study the gospels over and over, to fortify our faith that God is God and will not desert his people.

CLOSET FIRE MADE BIG STIR

Still and Bell Alarms and Boarders Broke Down Door

The alarm from Box 73 at 2.53 Sunday afternoon was for a slight fire in a closet in the upper part of a boarding house at 102 Chubbuck street conducted by Margaret Stevens. The occupant of the room was away and the fire was discovered by other boarders who saw smoke coming from the room. They broke in the door and extinguished the fire. In the mean time Hose 4 had been summoned on a still alarm and some excited party ran to Box 73 and sent in a bell alarm. The fire was all out by the time the apparatus arrived and the recall was immediately sounded. The loss was very slight.

CHAPEL BELL DEDICATED

Anonymous Gift to Houghs Neck Hou s f Worship

IMPRESSIVE EXERCISES

The new bell on the Peoples Union Chapel at Houghs Neck was sounded for the first time at 8 o'clock Sunday morning by Rev. W. B. Sayre, the pastor, and at 10.45 he officiated at the dedicatory service of the bell and tower. Rev. Mr. Sayre, with the assistance of the men of the congregation, donned overalls and erected the tower during the past winter.

The bell was given by a member of the church whose name has been withheld and is in memory of the late Mrs. Annie I. Acorn, for many years an active worker in the church's behalf. It weighs 350 pounds and has a low, mellow tone.

The ceremonies were impressive and were participated in by a large number of Houghs Neck residents who are not members of the congregation. Rev. Mr. Sayre preached the sermon and the music was by the choir. Vocal solos were rendered by Wallace Higgins and trios by Clarence Rose, Mrs. Mary L. Baker and Miss Ella Acorn, the latter being the daughter of the woman in whose name the bell was given. The program was in charge of a committee consisting of Angus A. Brown, George Bell and S. S. Marsters,

ADAMS LECTURE WILL BE RARE

A New Phase of the Civil War and its Effect on Trade

CONDITIONS IN ENGLAND

A new phase of the Civil War and its relations with and effect on the trade conditions of England will be given at Oxford University this month by Charles Francis Adams, son of the former minister to Great Britain, resident of the Massachusetts Historical Society and one of the most acceptable latter day historians and lecturers. He will deliver a series of four, one of which will be devoted to a solution of the Home Rule dilemna.

Mr. Adams is accompanied by Dr. Worthington Chauncey Ford, chief of the research department of the Congressional Library, who is assisting him in searching the British archives for civil war documents. Mr. Adams said:

"While I do not intend to present a harsh arraignment of the English government at the time of the civil war, I hope to interest the present government to the extent of studying the United States and our successful experiment with reference to the treatment of Ireland. I shall thus get away from the usual methods of presenting lectures on history.

"One of the lectures is devoted to Robert E. Lee, who seems to Englishmen to be the transcendent, outstanding figure of the war. Beyond that they are apparently not interested in the rebellion and prefer the South African and Russo-Japanese conflicts. In the second lecture I hope to show how the attitude of England was influenced by the Lancastershire cotton famine of 1862, which resulted from the war, and has apparently been forgotten; then I shall take up the reconstruction period.

"At the time of the war England insisted that it was impossible to overcome the confederacy, but that if the North succeeded, then it would only be possible to hold the territory by armed occupation. They were wrong on both views, for after the war the entire management of the South was turned over to the South, which soon became contented."

GRANITE CLUB PROSPEROUS

All Bills Paid and Money in Treasury and Trust Fund

OFFICERS ELECTED

The annual meeting of the Granite City club was held Saturday evening in the club rooms in the Savings Bank building, and was very largely attended. Previous to the election of officers two business men were elected to membership, and an amendment was adopted to the by-laws, providing for a salary for the chairman of the Entertainment committee.

The reports of the treasurer, finance committee, trustees and secretary showed eighteen admitted to membership during the year and one death. Several had resigned yet the membership with those admitted at this meeting was up to the limit.

The report of the financial officers showed the financial condition to be exceptionally good. All bills were paid and there was a balance of several hundred dollars in the treasury while the trust fund in the Savings Bank had been increased during the year by the added interest.

The election of officers was unanimous and resulted as follows.

President—Samuel T. MacQuarrie.
Vice President—Nathan Ames.
Clerk and Collector—W. W. Mitchell.
Treasurer—John Q. Cudworth.
Finance Committee—James H. Penniman, Henry F. Tilden and Russell T. Anthony.
House Committee—Mark L. Read, Jr.
Membership Committee—James H. Lalley, George P. Mead, Warren H. Rideout, Ernest L. Saunders, Charles W. Garey.
Entertainment Committee —Thomas G. Smith, James H. Lalley, Rollin H. Newcomb.
Trustees—J. Warren Nightingale, Henry McGrath, George H. Field.

In resigning the chair, after having served two years as President, Eben W. Sheppard thanked the members for the hearty support given him during his term of office. He asked that the same courtesy be extended to his successor.

One of the first duties of President MacQuarrie on assuming the gavel was to put a motion for a rising vote of appreciation to the retiring president.

Samuel Tupper MacQuarrie the new president is one of the well known and active members of the club. He is private secretary to President Bowles of the Fore River Ship Building Co., as well as being secretary of the corporation.

Nathan Ames the new Vice president is one of the active business men of City Square being the proprietor of the hardware store on Granite street.

The indications are that the coming year will be a prosperous one with the club.

SCIENCE THE LAW OF TRUTH KNOWLEDGE REDUCED TO SYSTEM

Lecture on Subject at Weymouth by Dr. Francis J. Fluno

About 600 persons, members and friends of the First Church of Christ Scientist, gthered in Bates opera house, Sunday afternoon and listened to an interesting address on "Christian Science," by Dr. Francis J. Fluno, C. S. D., of Oakland, Cal., member of the Christian Science board of lectureship of the First Church of Christ Scientist, Boston

The speaker was introduced by Oscar M. Crocker who presided.

Much interest was manifested at the remarks of the speaker.

The address in part is as follows:

By Francis J. Fluno, C. S. D., member of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, Boston.

"Christian Science is the law of Truth" (Science and Health p. 482) known, understood, and found demonstrable. It is the Science of being; the Science of Life.

It is the knowledge of Truth and true being, reduced to a system.

Its name defines it, for it is perfectly Christian; because it countenances no wrong, either in theory or practice.

It is Scientific, for it admits of no error, either in premise or conclusion. Its name is just what it should be; is as definte and significant as it can be.

Christian Science is the law of Life, Truth, and Love, understood and demonstrated, that has come to the world; and has come by revelation to one who through many years was being fitted to receive it and give it to a waiting people.

Christian Science is being recognized and acknowledged as Science; and hence is being received and taught Scientifically and understandingly.

Because it is Science, it is demonstrable and is being demonstrated in every nation of the civilized world; and because it is Science, and can be, and is being demonstrated, therefore the world must and will receive it, and nothing can stand before it.

It is the eternal truth, whose convincing and converting powers nothing can daunt, and whose onward march no foe can cope with.

Those who have espoused this cause are working earnestly and courageously, demonstrating for themselves and for the world this gospel, of "On earth peace, good will toward men," and though they find at times the burden large and heavy, yet added strength is given with each added load to bear. They feel that much has been done for them, and of them much will be required.

Christian Science cannot fail any more than the science of numbers can fail. Mathematics never deceives; the science of numbers will never fail in any problem and figures will not falsify concerning it. Likewise Christian Science is absolutely scientific, and the Science of being cannot fail.

The eternal laws of Life, Truth, and Love, having their foundation in the one God, can no more fail than their foundation Principle, the eternal God, can fail.

LOGICAL AND SCIENTIFIC.

Christian Science makes its statements logically true and scientifically correct. The Science of being is as independent as the science of mathematics. Like the spirit of Love, it seeks no reward and fears no punishment.

Since it is the eternal fact of being, itcan stand alone; being true, and its Principle Truth, it asks no support from any one or any thing. It is the same whether thousands rally to its standard, or seek to trail its banner in the dust. It is a living reality, and its Principle everlasting Life, and therefore it cannot die; it will live through all the ages yet to come, as it has lived through all the ages that have already come.

Christian Science is the eternal law of being and does not teach eternal banishment from God, or good; but on the contrary it teaches that all must come to Truth at last.

God is omnipotence; and being the same "yesterday, and today and for ever" His omnipotence forever has been, and forever will remain. Hence no other power can be, no other power has ever been, and no other power can ever be able to stay His mighty hand, or thwart Him in His purpose.

Therefore God and heaven are, and their opposites, the devil and hell, are not; and Divine Science is the angel that comes today to lay hold on "that old serpent, which is the Devil, and Satan," and will chain him "and cast him into the bottomless pit" (the great nowhere), and all his angels with him. But neither Satan nor his angels are personal devils. Satan is the lying spirit, or spirit that lies; which is but the testimony of the physical senses which never tells the truth; and the angels of Satan are personified evils resulting from the testimony of these false senses, such as jealousy, hatred, revenge, hypocrisy, sickness, sin, and death.

Christian Scientists, being students of this Divine Science and finding how scientifically true it is, naturally and necessarily (in a measure at least), grow to become one with it; to reflect it, to represent it and express it, in thought, in word, and in deed. And while this with them is a growth, and is attained to by degrees, yet patiently and by degrees it is attained. And like the shepherds of old, having seen this light, they are following where it leads, and would point others to that light, that they may follow also.

BOOK TEACHES PURE SCIENCE.

This book teaches pure Science; it does not teach a mere belief.

When Mrs. Eddy discovered Christian Science she gave up her former opinions and ideas concerning God and man, and wrote nothing but the unfolding of Science, from the basis of the one divine Principle—God.

Christian Science is not another religious belief; it is Science, and Science is something to be understood and demonstrated, not merely believed.

Christian Scientists canot properly be termed simply believers in Christian Science, any more than a mathematician could be called a mere believer in mathematics. They are students of Christian Science; they are studying to understand Christian Science, but not trying to believe it.

They soon see that their beliefs do not change anything; that what is true, is true whether they believe it or not; but if they would get the benefit of it they must understand it—the same in the Science of being as in the science of numbers.

No teacher in mathematics, after demonstrating a proposition for a pupil, ever asked that pupil whether he believes it; he asks him if he understands it, knowing that his belief or disbelief will not change the fact; and what is true in the science of numbers in this respect is emphatically true in the Science of being.

Christian Science is not made up of mere personal opinions. It is the Science of being; and like the science of numbers it never asks what we think about it, or how we feel about it, or whether we like it or not.

It never changes to suit our likes or dislikes; it never varies one iota to gratify any one's particular wishes or desires; no difference what your rank, how exalted or how abased, how rich or how poor, or what your seeming needs may be, or however much you beg for assistance.

But, from its unchangeable laws of correctness and right, it stands as unmoved and relentless as the science of numbers, and from its great heart of Love is saying, "You must come to me, I cannot come to you. You must concede to my requirements, I cannot concede to yours." "I have eternal Life to give, but you must needs surrender all false belief to get it."

It grants your right desires, and every human need, but they must be given in God's way, and can only be your way when you have conformed to His.

Christian Science is based on the one universal good; hence is good alike to all, and changes not for any.

Therefore it should never be read with the question before us, whether we are going to like it; but, Is it true? is the question to be considered.

It should never be studied with the idea of liking, or disliking it, as though our likes or dislikes, our acceptance or rejection would in any way affect the great fact of being.

What matters it whether we believe that one half times one half is one fourth? If we reject it, does that prove it false? Or if we accept it, does that make it true?

Does our acceptance or rejection alter the fact that can be scientifically proven and practically demonstrated?

Likewise, in divine Science, what matters it whether we believe that man, in his true spiritual being, by his relation and sonship to God—the Father—has for his inheritance, perfect, unchanging health, sinlessness, and everlasting life. Does our accept-

TO REPOSE IN VAULT.

The following sermon is of special interest to the people of the Wollaston Unitarian church as it was preached by Rev. James E. Bagley during his pastorate over the church and was selected and presented to the church by his widow to be deposited with other documents in the vault in the tower of the church where his ashes is deposited. The sermon was also preached on Sunday at the church by Rev. Carl G. Horst, now pastor of the church.

Text:—"Never mind, it will be all the same in a hundred years!"

Thus saith the Lord, Deceive not yourselves, saying,—the Chaldeans shall surely depart from us, for they shall not depart. Will it be all the same in a hundred years from now? No, it will not be all the same, although to a certain degree there is a legitimate consolation to be found in this old proverb, bringing in its peacefulness and trust to the soul torn by the unspeakable petty trials and strains, acute spiritual fevers, frets and small jealousies of life and society.

For the man hot with the commercial anxieties and speculative intensity of the hour,—vexed by the small adulterations, petty dishonesties and white falsehoods: for those religiously immersed in small bickerings about creeds and names, torn by their petty schemes of success and still more petty fears of pain, it is a pertinent question to ask. What will it amount to in a hundred years from now? How will it seem upon the record of a hundred years? In that far-off day, how many of our dogmas will survive: for how many of our plans shall we even wish success?

While recognizing the power of this old phrase to administer comfort,—let us seek the hurt that lurks in it, discover if we can the falsehood in the interest of which it is perhaps most often uttered. The implication that it will be all the same a hundred years from now,—whether we do this or that,—whether this thing be done or left undone, is a suggestion utterly false at once to science, philosophy and human experience. It is an insinuation that can abide only in the mind that sees no ruling power in the Universe, or seeing it, regards it in the old light of a lawless God ruling by uncertain and fitful methods. When we admit that it will be all the same, we are forgetting that each day we are weighed in the same balance that weighs Jupiter,—that we are estimated in the markets of God with the same standard of valuation that rates races, compiles the worth of nations.

If science teaches anything, it teaches the awful significance of what in common speech we call insignificant. No fact is so small but it forms a vital link in the chain of cause and effect. Change any one of these links, and the entire chain is modified. The demonstration most valuable contributed by science to mortals is the one which proves that great issues flow from small beginnings.

The most obvious results to which we give the words "good" or "evil," which make demonstrably for our joy and our woe have had their beginnings in causes so small that they are discoverable only to the most careful. The microscope reveals as much of God as the telescope. The stars yield the secret to us, when we untwist a ray of light and count the strands therein. It is exactly so in the realms of history,—indeed there is no history outside the experience and conduct of individuals, most of whom seem to drop out of sight in a hundred years. The Rubicon was a petty brook which a horse could leap, but when Caesar crossed it, it made a difference in the geography of the world. When Buddha, in the quiet of the midnight hour, chose the way of the good rather than the way of greatness, and determined on wandering alone, crownless and homeless,—that mankind might be helped, it made a difference with unborn millions of India,—yes, with teeming nations outside of India. The difference between an Eastern despot and Buddha, lay in that decision. It made a difference whether Luther remained a monk or the father of the Reformation. It made a difference not only for a hundred, but for a thousand years that Socrates took the hemlock instead of avoiding it,—that Jesus accepted the cross, and Mohammed welcomed exile.

Sam Walter Foss recently put into rhyme the lesson of the vagrant cowpaths of Boston. The unprophetic roadmasters allowed these paths to stiffen into streets, to the annoyance and confusion of posterity. Two hundred and fifty years after this calf survey was made, millions of money have been invested in trying to correct a little of this waywardness, to straighten a few of the crookednesses.

Thus it is that the thoughtless waywardness of the few confuses and twists the paths on which succeeding generations must travel. There are scores of towns in the Connecticut and Merrimac Valleys, whose early settlers made their water-fronts the dumping ground of their back yards, as did the Pilgrims of Plymouth, where the back doors too often look toward the bay, then streets solidified, and the water line which might have been a source of joy and health, a thing of beauty forever, instead of a ragged line of back doors.

Will it make no difference a hundred years from now what we do today,—whether we construct broad thoroughfares for the soul and face the doors and windows toward God's great deep of truth?

Let us beware how we cheapen the significance of our conduct by such an easy dismissal of our deeds, in defiance of the solemn lessons of evolution, which regard every individual and every passing act, not as dead wood borne along by some river of progress, but as living factors entering into the general structure, contributing their might for the help or for the hurt of the world. The seemingly insignificant accumulations of our daily lives looking toward moral thrift, make for integrity and nobility in our children, in the community and country, long after our bodies have mouldered into dust, while a squandering of character means moral want, social wretchedness and intellectual pauperism in our posterity.

A Chicago physician some years ago told of a family in Alabama suffering from an inexplicable attack of small-pox which seized every member of the family. The physicians were baffled in their attempt to trace it by any known principle of contagion, until a letter of condolence came from a friend in Saeramento, California, which said,—"I know how you suffer, for when I wrote you before I was but just able to sit up and use my eyes after a similar infliction." More subtle still is moral contagion. How it spreads from the contaminating touch of thoughtless fingers, blighting the lives of those in the far-off lines of the hereafter.

The mountain spring babbles in beauty through the rocky canyon, murmuring sweetly over the pebbles at the base, and disappears in the sandy plain below, absolutely lost to the thoughtless, but reappearing to the thoughtful in the lovely verdure and fragrant blossoms of distant prairies.

There is an absolute connection between the snow on the sides of the Rocky Mountains, and the cacti blossoms on the fields of Arizona. As truly as there is a telegraphic connection between Wollaston and New York, so truly is there a connection between one good deed and another. The silent loveliness of some peasant mother shrinking from the cold embraces of worldliness and coarseness, springs up again in some far-off land, adding gentleness to valor in some manly heart. Abraham Lincoln was unquestionably an Arethusa spring that had its origin away back in the gentle blood of some Virginian matron.

Again, crime breeds crime with awful fecundity,—while character is as contagious as disease. The material Universe responds to the smallest ripple of physical force. As the scintillations of a firefly's wing help light up the dreary spaces of the night, so the smile of the poorest mortal helps to brighten the darkness of the world in which we live.

"How far that little candle throws its beams!
So shines a good deed in a naughty world."

These verities, friends, are as demonstrable as those of the statistician: it will make a difference a hundred years from now whether we lean this way or that,—go here or there. It may be a small thing but small things reach far. It may be a trifle,—but a century takes heed of trifles.

"When a deed is done for freedom, through the broad earth's aching breast Runs a thrill of joy, prophetic, trembling on from East to West."

Sanscrit scholars have proved that the terrible rite which has burned thousands of Hindu wives on the funeral pyres of their husbands, a barbarous rite which was suppressed by English law in the face of much opposition only a short time ago, rests upon a false reading of an old Vedic text. Scholars now say that the old Bible of the Hindus read,—"The wife shall return from the funeral pyre of her husband and resume her household care." Suffer not a witch to live, decreed a hard and dark generation, in the book of Exodus. Who can compile the statistics of woe, the ghastly murder figures based upon that one ill-considered sentence. And were not some of the strongest arguments for the perpetuation of slavery uttered from the pulpits? Dr. Hedge, a cautious writer, says that an interpolation of two words in the service of the Eastern or Greek church, has driven whole villages in Russia into fiery death. This old adage, then, is an infidel phrase, full of irreverence, and atheism when used to cover indifference, when used as a cloak to hide laziness, when used as an apology for petty indulgences, for living in any hour or in any act in a careless, trifling or law-defying spirit.

Will it make no difference a hundred years hence whether the river of life that God has stretched out as a ribbon of silver through the land, be skirted with garbage or with flowers?

Will it make no difference which way the temple of life faces?

Will it make no difference whether the farmer plants an elm in his front yard, under whose graceful branches his grandchildren may play, or a poplar, whose rotting bulk will offend the eye and threaten the health of his children?

Will it make no difference whether our boys grow up sober, earnest, industrious men, or flippant, dissipated ones? Our daughters grow up sweet, broad-minded, gracious women, or selfish, narrow-souled creatures?

No difference whether we contribute our mite and our moments to the acquirement of that wealth of character that is permanent and divine, or of that wealth that is fleeting and frivolous?

No difference a hundred years hence whether we devote ourselves to the decoration of our bodies or the adornment of our minds?

Will it be all the same one hundred years from now whether we contribute our daily pittance toward the support of a saloon or of a church?

No difference whether we buy a yard of ribbon, dead lark wing, or a cigar or a book,—whether our life is thoughtful, a prayerful search after truth, or a profane indifference to all ideas?

Men and women, brothers and sisters in middle life, will it make no difference a hundred years hence whether we are indulgent of tongue and imagination towards the impurities, whether we court the better part, commit mind and purse, imagination and tongue, the daily activities as well as Sunday relaxations to the things that sweeten and enoble life?

Women, no difference whether you carry your faith, hope and love into your kitchen, or keep it for Sunday?

Man, no difference whether you do your business according to the dictates of justice and the Golden Rule—though you die penniless, or whether you do business as other people do,—to succeed, and die in competency?

George Eliot puts into the mouth of the famous violin maker of Cremona, old Antonio Stradivari, the proper thought on this point.

"The masters only know whose work is good;
They all choose mine, and while God gives them skill,
I give them instruments to play upon,
God choosing me to help Him.
Heresy or not, if my hand slacked,
I should rob God, since he is fullest good,—
Leaving a blank instead of violins.
I say, not God himself can make man's best,
Without best men to help him.
'Tis God gives skill,
But not without men's hands: He could not make Antonio Stradivari's violins
Without Antonio."

Antonio was perfectly right: God never made a violin all alone, and He never will. He never builded a church all alone, and He never will. He never yet established a Sunday school, founded a State, humanized a community, purified politics, all alone, and He never will. He never dissipated a superstition, sanctified a home, builded a library, founded a university all alone, and He never will.

You say, what difference will it make a hundred years from now whether I attend the parish meeting of this church tomorrow evening? If all answered that question negatively, where would the church be, and does it not make a difference whether we and our children are wooed to the higher life by love, taught to do right for right's own sake, that character is above all churches and creeds, and the only salvation, than for a religion to prevail which tries to scare men into heaven by pictures of the penal fires that flame up from below, or do right,—all simply because they are afraid of going to hell if they do otherwise.

You who ask the question do not realize for a moment what an influence at this moment this church has, on this community, not only in keeping our own hearts pure and brave and comforted, but in broadening and liberalizing the theology all around it.

It is going to make all the difference in the intellectual, moral, spiritual and liberal atmosphere of this place in the next hundred years, whether this church has a strong life here or not,—a difference for our children and our children's children. We ought not to ask ourselves the question if we believe in this church and what it stands for, so precious to us all. Then we should be present at the parish meeting tomorrow evening, whether or not we have ever attended before,—whether or not we have already joined the forces.

Never let this old proverb pass our lips again as an indication that we hold human conduct, however inefficient, as cheap. Every drunken today, will have its wretched tomorrow. Every today filled with earnest, loving work, will have its blessed tomorrow.

It will not be all the same one hundred years from now, whether we are cowards or heroes today, bigots or thinkers, worshipping at the shrine of expediency or of principle, offering our oblations on the altar of reason and justice, or the altar of fashion, tradition and convention. Life is short, but it is long enough to plant an elm, —long enough to start a century plant, that will bear blossoms in the hundred years hence. Life may be but a day,—but Lowell puts in words what Columbus achieved, when he wrote,—

"One day, with life and heart,
Is more than time enough to find a world."

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LECTURE

ance or rejection alter the fact, that can be and is found logically true, and by practice is being demonstrated?

This fact is being proven and demonstrated every day and every hour, and mankind is being healed, not only of his physical ills and personal sins, but is being corrected of such things as sickness and sin.

TEACHES THAT ALL IS GOOD.

Christian Science teaches that all is good; not, however, that sin and and evil are good, but that all that is, is good; and that which is not good, is not at all.

That sickness, sin, and death, matter and mortality are not of God, the only good, and therefore are not good, and hence are not at all.

Christian Science teaches what the Master taught, that "there is none good but one, that is, God." He, therefore, is the only good, the spirit of good the Principle of good, good in quality and in substance.

His creation, like Himself, must have the qualities of good; i.e., good could not produce evil, "Like begets like."

The effect must always be like the cause.

"God saw every thing that he had made, and, behold, it was very good." He made all that was made, but He did not make that which was not made.

SKY IS INSTANCE OF ILLUSION

That sky out there, for instance, that seems so real, seems like a canopy spread over earth, is but the illusion of the limited senses. We are looking out into what to finite sense is unlimited space, and we see as far as we can, and we call the limit the sky.

Acording to physics light travels at the amazing rapidity of more than eleven millions of miles in a minute of time, and yet there are stars so distant that their light is hundreds and thousands of years in reaching our planet.

Christian Science Galley THREE

Then talk about seeing the sky!

God's creation is spiritual and good: always has been, always will be, and never can be anything else. In His creation there is no sickness, sin, or death, matter or mortality, or anything contrary to God the only good. The so-called material world, wherein dwelleth sickness, sin, and death, matter and mortality, is not of God, and is not good and hence is not, at all.

"While we look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen; for the things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal."

WHY LAZARUS WAS RAISED

Jesus of Nazareth did not raise Lazarus from the dead, simply to restore him to family and friends and a temporal life, again to suffer and die, and be mourned and lamented; but to show the power of Truth to overcome error; to show that Life was the master of death; that the Christ could triumph over every evil,—sickness, sin, and death.

Since, as the Bible declares, sin brought death into the world, therefore the overcoming of sin is the overcoming of death; and as sickness and sin are overcome by the same Christ power, therefore to the extent that sickness or sin is overcome by Truth, to that extent is death overcome.

Therefore, whenever Christian Scientists demonstrate over sickness and sin, either in themselves or others, they are overcoming death in a measure, and with the disappearance of sickness and sin death will disappear, and be as though it had not been—as, indeed, it never was.

THE DIVINITY OF CHRIST

Christian Science, more than any other religion, teaches the Divinity of Christ. On this point allow me to quote from our text-book, Science and Health, page 26, line 10.

"The Christ was the Spirit which Jesus implied in his own statements: 'I am the way, the truth, and the life;' 'I and my Father are one.' This Christ, or divinity of the man Jesus, was his divine nature, the godliness which animated him. Divine Truth, Life, and Love gave Jesus authority over sin, sickness, and death. His mission was to reveal the Science of celestial being, to prove what God is and what He does for man."

The glorious Science of being comes in the name of Christ, with healing on its wings—to promulgate the kingdom established by him, of which there should be no end.

Colonel TODHUNTER of Missouri

By RIPLEY D. SAUNDERS

Copyright, 1911, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company.

SYNOPSIS

Colonel Todhunter booms his friend William J. Strickland for the nomination for governor. Tom Strickland, son of William, loves Mary Todhunter. Lottie-May Doggett loves Tom.

Stamford Tucker pays attention to Mary. He and Tom are rivals. They clash at the Todhunters'.

A political rally of Strickland's supporters is interrupted by the Yancey men, led by Stam. His father, Eph Tucker, is Yancey's main supporter in Nineveh.

The colonel was still deep in philosophic musings, not more than halfway across the town square, when he was interrupted by a genial hail.

"Howdy, Kunn'l Todhunter; howdy, suh. You sho'ly ain't gwine walk right p'intedly pas' me 'thout sayin' howdy to you' old A'nt Mirandy, is yo', suh?"

The speaker was a fat, gray wooled black woman, festively arrayed in a gaudy calico dress, a bandanna handkerchief knotted around her head like a turban, a big market basket on her arm.

"Well, well, Aunt Mirandy!" returned the colonel. "I ain't seen you for so long that I reckon I wouldn't ha' known you anyway, you're lookin' so peart and gayly. How are you, Mirandy, and how's that no 'count husband of your'n?"

The ancient negress cackled joyously. "I tell yo' de gospel trufe, Kunn'l Todhunter, and I sho ain' tellin' you no lies—dat ar wufless ole man o' mine am sutt'nly mighty trifflin', suh. He gittin' wuss'n wuss ever' day, too, kunn'l. Whut you reckon done happ'n to him now, suh? Well, I jes gwine tell yo'. Dat ole Jed been out-fishin' an' come traipsin' back home wid de roomatis', suh, an' layin' flat on he back gruntin' an' groanin' lak he gwine die ever' minit, suh!"

"You're too easy on him, Mirandy. That's the trouble," laughed the colonel. "You ought to take a broomstick and wallop him till he ain't too proud to work, the old rascal! Quit cookin' such good vittles for him, Miraudy, and let him go hungry for awhile!"

Old Mirandy rolled her eyes heavenward. "Kunn'l Todhunter," she gurgled, "I jes' nachully kain't do dat, suh. 'Tain't dat ole Jed don't 'serve it, kase he do, but he sho kin put up sich a po' mouf, suh! He's de mos' mizzubul nigger on a em'ty stummuck, suh, dat I ain't got de heart to 'fuse him when he say he hungry. Dass de fac', kunn'l—I jes' ain't got de heart, suh."

"Well, but, good Lord, Mirandy, you must be put to it mighty hard to 'tend to your washin' and look after that trifflin' old scoundrel at the same time!"

"I sho' is, kunn'l. I ain't nebber had no baby what's mo' trubble'n dat ar old Jed. Whuss I doin' now, suh, but rubbin' dat ole fool's j'ints wid liniment whilst I oughter be right at my washtub all my time, suh? I tell you, suh, I got to scrabble fo' a libbin' wuss'n a scratchin' hen dese heah days, suh."

"Where are you livin' now, Mirandy?"

"Whah I libbin'? Whah I libbin'? Well, now, suh, I mos' shame fo' to tell you, suh, but me'n ole Jed is jes' a-squattin' down yander in a 'serted cabin whut wuz em'ty on de Black Bottoms road, suh, 'twell me'n him jes' sorter moved into it, suh. Yass, suh, hit's ercross f'um whah ole Mr. Rafe Doggett an' he young granddaughter, Miss Lottie-May, libbin', suh. An' hit's sho' am a lonesome place. Ef hit wan't fo' some skylarkin' young man a-comin' out f'um Nineveh to cote Miss Lottie-May when her ole granddaddy ain't home, I tell you p'intedly, Kunn'l Todhunter, hit'd be jes' lak a graveyard, suh."

"I reckon so," said the colonel. "And who are the young scamps that come out to see Miss Lottie-May, Mirandy?"

"Lawd bless you, suh, dey's two—three uv 'em, suh. Mr. Stam Tucker's one. An' Miss Lottie-May sho' am a pow'ful han'some young g'yel, suh. An' her ole granddad, he sutt'nly do 'pear to be mighty skeered 'ca'se she so gay an' flirtatious-like, suh."

"Well, Mirandy, I reckon that's only natural for a pretty girl. You ain't never seen Tom Strickland callin' on her out there, have you?"

"No, suh; not to reckernize him, Kunn'l Todhunter, but dat ain't sayin' he ain't been dar whilst I been away so much o' de time, kunn'l. Hucoome young Mr. Tom Strickland takin' to anybody but Miss Mary Todhunter, yo' own daughter, suh? Ain't he jes' p'intedly head over heels in lub wid Miss Mary, suh?"

"He ain't tellin' me so, Mirandy," laughed the colonel. "But I reckon Lottie-May ain't no more to him than any other of a dozen pretty girls. I was just wonderin', that's all."

Then he put his hand in his pocket and drew out a bill.

"Here, Mirandy," he said. "I would not be surprised but what this might come in handy while you're a-wrastlin with that old scamp Jed and his rheumatism. And if you'll stop by and see Mrs. Todhunter next time you come t town I'll ask her if she can't give you a basketful of vittles she don't need."

"Glory hallelcoyah!" cried old Mirandy. "Dat ar money looks big as de side of a house to me, suh—it sho' do. Yass, suh, an' I gwine drop by you all's house, too, suh. An' I ain't nebber gwine fergit you fo' it, kunn'l; I sho ain't. Some o' dese bright days I gwine pay you back more'n dat ar money; you see if I don't, suh!" Sudden tears had come into the brave old woman's eyes. Pouring out a flood of thanks she hobbled happily away.

Colonel Todhunter looked after her almost sadly. "Them old niggers," he said. "I love 'em just like they was kin to me, and they love us too. But the new breed—they hate us, and I ain't got no more use for 'em than I have for a snake. It's curious and it's somethin' of a tragedy, too, suh. I'll be dadblamed if I know what's goin' to come of it all some day!"

CHAPTER VI.

The Strickland-Tucker Feud.

HALF an hour later as Colonel Todhunter emerged from the law office of Judge Boiling he heard a sudden hurrying of footsteps, and Sim Birdsong joined him, breathless and much perturbed.

"What's on your mind now, Sim?" asked the colonel. "'Tain't often you go gallopin' aroun' with your tongue hangin' out o' your mouth like a young dog's in his first rabbit chase. What's the trouble?"

"I was jes' startin' out to look you up, colonel," replied Sim. "There's trouble enough, suh. Tom Strickland's got to drinkin' and picked a quarrel with Stam Tucker in the hotel barroom, and you better come quick, suh, and prevent its bein' a mighty serious difficulty."

"I ain't got no patience with you young fellows here in Nineveh, Sim Birdsong," commented the colonel. "When Tom Strickland gets two or three drinks under his belt and wants to pick a fuss why don't some of you turn in and lick the stuffin' out'n him? That's one of the best cures for the whisky quarrelin' habit that ever was invented, suh."

The colonel chuckled as he spoke. "The most quarrelsome man in his cups I ever knew, Sim, was old Bob Prewitt, in my regiment durin' the late unpleasantness, and he was cured just that way, suh. Sam Fossbrooke made a point of campin' on Bob's trail ever' time Bob got to naggin' any o' the other fellows, and Sam'd thrash Bob till his own mother wouldn't ha' known him, suh. And, suh, before the war was over I'll be double hamstrung if Bob Prewitt wasn't a teetotaler, suh, and he never got fightin' drunk after the war neither till he'd put two whole counties between him and Sam Fossbrooke. Some of you boys ought to try that plan on Tom Strickland, Sim."

"Colonel," answered Sim solemnly, "it's a sort o' curse on the Stricklands, that fierce temper o' their'n when they get under the influence of licker, suh. You mustn't forget that Tom's own uncle killed his best friend, Lawrence Tolliver, durin' a spree and then drank himself to death afterwards tryin' to forget it, suh. It's a curse, suh, that's what it is!"

"It ain't no curse that can't be lifted easy as raisin' your little finger, Sim Birdsong," said the colonel. "All in the world Tom Strickland's got to do is to leave whisky alone—he ain't a hard drinker now, and maybe he never will be, but he's got to leave it alone altogether. It don't agree with him. The Todhunters has got that same kind of a curse in their family, only it's cucumbers 'stead of whisky. Th' ain't none of us Todhunters can eat cucumbers without bein' doubled up with cramp colic. Well, suh, I lifted that curse by cuttin' cucumbers out o' my list of vittles same as if such a thing never growed, and Tom Strickland or any other man can do the same thing with whisky, suh."

Then the colonel tapped Sim on the shoulder. "And let me tell you one thing, my boy," he continued. "All this here talk about the turrible hard fight necessary to break off from a bad habit makes me tired, suh. A man don't never have to fight but one day's fight at a time, and there's always a night's rest comin' in between if he don't lay awake pitvin' himself, suh. I know what I'm a-talkin' about. It ain't but a twelve hours' fight no time, and a man who can't fight that long is a mighty measly specimen of a man, suh!"

"That's all very well, colonel," spoke Sim uneasily, "but Tom has egged Stam Tucker on till Stam's hurried out o' the barroom, white in the face, hollerin' over his shoulder that he'll be back in a minute—and you know just what that means, suh!"

Colonel Todhunter's face grew instantly grave. "He's gone to get his shootin' iron—the d——d little fool!" he exclaimed. "Tell me, Sim, is Tom Strickland armed?"

"I don't think he is, suh, but he's a-waitin' for Stam Tucker in that there barroom, and he's just feelin' reckless enough to give Stam every chance in the world for shootin' him after he himself picked the fuss and forced the personal difficulty, colonel."

"You come along with me, Sim," said the colonel. "Why the blazes and Sam Hill didn't you tell me all this at the start, suh?"

Swiftly they crossed the town square and entered the barroom of the Nineveh hotel. Tom Strickland, alone now but for the bartender, stood with one elbow resting on the bar.

"Howdy, colonel!" he cried. "You and Sim are just in time to join me in a drink, sir. What'll you have?"

"Tom," replied the colonel, "ordinarily I'd be glad to accept your invitation, but not today, my boy. I want you to go home, Tom."

Young Strickland smiled. "I'm sorry to disobilge you, colonel," he replied, "but I don't feel like going home right away."

"You've got to go, Tom," replied the colonel.

"Well, now, sir," suggested the other, "that's fairly open to argument in spite of your being so positive about it. I've got a special reason for staying, colonel."

"Yes, I know, Tom. You're waitin' to have a personal difficulty with Stam Tucker, suh."

Tom Strickland laughed. "You've called the turn, sir, and under the circumstances you'll have to agree yourself that I can't go now—not for a few minutes anyway."

"I don't agree to no such thing, you blamed young fool!" ejaculated Colonel Todhunter. "Do you 'reckon I'm a-goin' to let you and Stam Tucker shoot each other full o' holes or let you wait, unarmed, for him to get a crack at you just because you've seen fit to come into town and begin drinkin', suh?"

ONLY ONE "BEST"

Quincy People Give Credit Where Credit is Due.

People of Quincy who suffer with sick kidneys and bad backs want a kidney remedy that can be depended upon. The best is Doan's Kidney Pills, a medicine for the kidneys only, made from pure roots and herbs, and the only one that is backed by willing testimony of Quincy people. Here's a case:

Charles J. Somers, barber, 17 Newcomb street, Quincy, Mass., says: "It is a pleasure for me to tell of my experience with Doan's Kidney Pills, for the benefit of other kidney sufferers. This remedy worked wonders in my case. Lame back and weak kidneys bothered me for ten years and nothing helped me until I procured Doan's Kidney Pills. The promptness with which this remedy cured me was astonishing. My strength and energy was restored and my health improved one hundred per cent. I shall always endorse Doan's Kidney Pills when I have the opportunity." (Statement given September 2nd 1908.)

LATER ENDORSEMENT.

Several years later Mr. Somers was interviewed and he said: "I am only too pleased to verify my former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills. I still take this remedy occasionally and it keeps me in good health."

The Easy Laxative

In justice to yourself you should try Rexall Orderlies,—your money back if you don't like them. They are a candy confection that really do give easy relief from constipation.

Good health is largely dependent upon the bowels. When they become sluggish the waste material that is thrown off by the system accumulates. This condition generates poisons which circulate throughout the body, tending to create coated tongue, bad breath, headache, dull brain action, nervousness, biliousness and other annoyances.

Avoid harsh cathartics and physics. They give but temporary relief. They often aggravate the real trouble. They are particularly bad for children, delicate or aged persons.

Rexall Orderlies

Come in tablet form, taste just like candy and are noted for their easy, soothing action upon the bowels. They don't purge, gripe, cause nausea, looseness, nor the inconveniences attendant upon the use of purgatives. Their action is so pleasant that the taking of Rexall Orderlies almost becomes a desire instead of a duty.

Children like Rexall Orderlies. They are ideal for aged or delicate persons as well as for the most robust. They act toward relieving constipation, and also to overcome its cause and to make unnecessary the frequent use of laxatives. They serve to tone and strengthen the nerves and muscles of the bowels and associate organs or glands.

Make Us Prove It

We guarantee to refund every penny paid us for Rexall Orderlies if they do not give entire satisfaction. We ask no promises and we in no way obligate you. Your mere word is sufficient for us to promptly and cheerfully refund the money.

Doesn't that prove that Rexall Orderlies must be right? You must know we would not dare make such a promise unless we were positively certain that Rexall Orderlies will do all we claim for them. There is no money risk attached to a trial of Rexall Orderlies, and in justice to yourself, you should not hesitate to test them.

Rexall Orderlies come in convenient vest-pocket size tin boxes; 12 tablets, 10c; 36 tablets, 25c; 80 tablets, 50c.

CAUTION: Please bear in mind that Rexall Remedies are not sold by all druggists. You can buy Rexall Orderlies only at The Rexall Stores. You can buy Rexall Orderlies in this community only at our store:

COUNTY TAX JUMPS $50,000 WITH CURRENT LEVY OF $250,000

Marked Increases in Eleven of the Eighteen Departments Quite Noticeable

Reduction Noted in One Case May Not be Real

(Special to the Ledger)

According to the resolve, which gives the county commissioners of Norfolk County the right to levy a county tax, Quincy and the other towns in the county may this year be taxed for $50,000 more than they were in 1912. The resolve has just been signed by Governor Foss and gives the commissioners the right to levy on Norfolk county the sum of $250,000 for current expenses. This does not sound large when it is taken into consideration that the tax is distributed pro rata over all the county, but when one realizes that the sum is an increase of the amount allowed last year of 25 per cent it assumes larger proportions. In the estimate of expenses for this year, the commissioners have asked increases in eleven out of the eighteen items and in only one case is a decrease over last year provided for.

A comparison of the two years shows how some of the additional $50,000 is proposed to be used.

The items calling for $13,000 to pay the interest on the county debt is the same for both years.

For the reduction of the county debt the sums are alike, $32,000.

For salaries of county officers and assistants, fixed by law, there is an increase of $1000, this year $21,000 and last year $20,000.

For clerical assistance in county offices there is also an increase of $1000, $26,000 against $25,000.

An increase of $3000 is provided for to take care of salaries and expenses incident to district and police courts, $38,000 against $41,000.

There is no change in the sums asked for to cover the salaries of jailers, masters and assistants and support of prisoners in jails and houses of correction $32,000 or the $20,000 to defray criminal costs in the Superior courts, or of $22,000 for civil expenses in the Supreme Judicial court and in the Superior courts.

For transportation expenses of county and associate commissioners, an increase over last year is made, $800 to $1000.

Payments to medical examiners inquests and committments of the insane remains the same $6000.

For auditors, masters and referees a sum of $4000 is asked an increase of $1000.

Another $1000 increase comes on the amount for repairing furnishing and improving county buildings, $4000 against $5000. Last year the county paid $27,000 for fuel, lights and supplies, in county buildings, other than jails and houses of correction, and for the care of same, but this year $28,000 is asked.

A brand new item is the appropriation of $1000 asked for to cover pensions.

For highways, including State highways, bridges and land damages, the commissioners made their greatest increase $38,000 an increase of $8000.

For miscellaneous and contingent expenses $3765.42 last year $4410.87 decrease $645.45.

The sum of $4000, for training school is the same.

The resolve gives the commissioners authority to levy the $250,000 to expend the same as well as any unexpended balance they may have from last year, together with any receipts they may have from other resources.

The committee is John Melville, Lee Brooks, George Shirley, Theodore Chell, Robert Cranshaw. BASE BALL.

One of the snappiest base ball teams of the South Shore this season will be the Deweys of Weymouth. Many of the players are well known in this city where they have been conspicuous since they entered the game. Joseph Ford, a well known sport promoter and last season's manager of the South Quincy team of the city leage, is managing the Deweys.

The first game will be played at Winthrop on April 19. The lineup will probably be as follows: "Bootus" Chapman or Wall of Tufts College, catchers, Ray Condrick of Boston College, pitcher; "Della" Hall, first base; "Viv" McCarthy, second base; Gillis, third base; Earl Bates, short stop; Millard Chapman, "Buddy" Ryan and Arbie Dam is the outfield.

The season will open at Weymouth Memorial Day.

In the morning they wil play the strong Stetson Shoe team and in the afternoon the Makarias. Until May 30 they will meet the Mill League teams which are rated high in semi professional circles.

The executive committee of Paul J. Revere Woman's Relief Corps, No. 103 will meet with Mrs. Bary A. Fox, 126 Franklin street, Tuesday afternoon to talk over the anniversary which comes some time in May.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many yars doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. CONCERT FOR ORGAN FUND

Proved Pleasing Attraction by Wollaston Glee Club

A concert for the benefit of the organ fund of the Park and Downs church was given by the Wollaston Glee club Monday evening, in the church auditorium under the auspices of the Woman's Guild. The club with John A .Crowley as director was assisted by Miss Edyth Pratt as reader, Maurice Mathews violinist, Edward E. Bullock, tenor and William E. Weston, as accompanist.

A large audience was in attendance and the excellent program numbers were greeted with continued applause.

Miss Pratt charmed all with her pleasing personality and her contributions humorous and otherwise. One of the most interesting was entitled "Miss Day's dancing school."

The tenor solos by Mr. Bullock were greatly appreciated. Among his selections was "The image of the rose," by Reichardt.

Mr. Mathews treatment of the violin was one of the pleasures of the evening, and his versatility with this instrument received many encores.

His numbers included "Concerto, second and third movements" by De Berist, "Obertass" by Wieniawski and Chopin's "Nocturne in D Major." His accompanist was Miss Tenney.

The Glee club opened "March of the men of Harlick," by Brewer, and closed with "The Lost Chord" by Kinkel.

Other numbers were "Wotcher" by Ingle, and "My love" by Parker. "Now I lay me down to sleep," especially arranged for the club by Mr. Crowley was sung with solo by Arthur F. Capen.

COMMISSIONERS DECREE SMOTHERED BY OVERWHELMING VOTE AT MEETING

Depression Or No Depression Bring Out Same Old Arguments, But No One Came Forward With Any Well Defined Plan

Gus Bates Checked In His Fling at City Solicitor---Many Favored Lowering Grade Looking Forward to Future Needs

There was rather a slim attendance of citizens at City Hall, Monday evening at the meeting of the special committee of the City Council having in charge the grade crossing matter. While it was not intended that the meeting should be a public one, it virtually become so, as anyone present was allowed to address the Committee. After more or less talking on the subject a vote was taken to get the sentiment of the meeting for or against depression. The vote was about 50 for depression and 15 against.

Chairman Richards of the committee presided and in opening stated what action had been taken by City Council in the matter. The idea of the committee was to get the views of the public. In addition to the committee present there was City Solicitor McAnarney, ex-City Solicitors Paul R. Blackmur and William R. Thomas, Representative Leslie, John Q. A. Field, City Engineer Sargent, President Hamilton and Secretary Hall of the Board of Trade, Andrew Milne, James Joss and Thomas Bishop representing the Granite Manufacturers association, Peter T. Fallon, Gus B. Bates, Henry W. French, representing the Houghs Neck Improvement association, President Joseph L. Whiton and Councilmen Duffy, Farqharson and Ross of the City Council, ex-Councilman Walter F. Nichols, Arthur C. Gardner, James M. Nowland, Edward F. Parlee and Harry G. Studley.

Mr. Blackmur asked if the committee were to present any plan at the hearing next week as a substitute for the decree plan, or if anyone had a plan and was willing to stand back of it?

Ex-Representative Thomas asked if the committee had come to any conclusion to oppose the decree plan and if it had made up its mind for any plan as a substitute.

Chairman Richards said the committee was working under a concrete order, and under the order it was limited to its sphere of action. The meeting was called to assimilate the various ideas. It was fair to presume that the majority of citizens favored depression. The idea was to give the citizens an opportunity to be heard.

Councilman Cunningham said that he did not think there would be any revision of the vote of the council. That was his opinion. There was no doubt but if the committee is convinced otherways there may be a change.

Ex-representative Thomas responding said that if the committee is committed he did not see any use of discussion.

Ex-Representative Walter F. Nichols asked to be shown what the decree plan was.

City Solicitor McAnarney then explained in detail what the decree plan was. In 1908 he said several public hearings were held in this hall and the citizens of Quincy given every opportunity to present plans. Many plans were ably presented. There was not public spirit enough to get together on any one plan, but every plan was in the private interest of some person. One gentleman said that he was there with no private interest yet the so called depressed plan had its birth in his brain. We fought for a plan that was a modification of all these plans for depression but the commission reported a plan that was a modification of plans of the railroad as well as city and citizens.

The duty of the Railroad Commissioners is clear and simple. It is not in their province to devise plans or hear various schemes. It is simply to say if the plans as presented are in harmony with public interests. If they meet the requirements of the public. If they decide yes they go to the Superior court which approve them if they decide no, they will be sent back to the special commission. He then explained what the decree plans proposed.

Saville street was closed and a new street forty feet wide was extended from Upland road through to Granite street with sidewalks on both sides. It also provided for a walk fifteen feet wide leading to a subway under tracks.

At Water street it is proposed to raise the tracks. The School street bridge on the easterly side the approach will be at a grade of 7 1-10 per cent and 5 per cent on the westerly side. The tracks will pass over Water street and Liberty street will be taken over the tracks at an easy grade to the Crane yard. He also said that there would be a new street from Water street to Liberty street and Water street will be widened to a width of 60 feet. The expense of the whole scheme will be ten per cent to the city which will not be called upon to pay for any part of the work made necessary to the railroad. This will bring the city's share to $37,000 for both crossings. In reply to a question by President Hamilton of the Board of Trade Mr. McAnarney said that the difference in cost to the city if the tracks were depressed would be about $60,000 additional. Depression would not be less harmful. The City of Quincy will not be served by the adoption of a depressed plan which had its birth in private interests. Speaking as a citizens he further said that the city would not be well served by a depressed plan. It was not practicable. There has not ben an engineer who has said depression was practical. I asked the gentleman to produce one engineer who will say that it is. We hired an expert engineer who told us depression was not practical. Men competent to deal with these subjects have all said so, yet the gentleman says depression is the proper solution.

The thing for you to do is to get from the railroad some concessions for an overhead street from Saville street through the Richards property over the tracks to Upland road. He believed it possible to get from the railroad a concession of this kind. He had already talked with the railroad about it. At School street we should get a new street starting from near the McDonnell and Stetson property under the tracks to Marsh street. This would open up thousands of dollars worth of property. Yet when this was proposed at one of the meetings the man who proposed it was called a land grafter.

Ex-Representative Thomas agreed with the City Solicitor. If we are to discuss anything let us know what it is. He inquired if the scope of the petition of the railroad went back as far as Beale street.

City Solicitor McAnarney said no, and further said that the railroad was contemplating four tracks through Quincy. He had prepared for service on the railroad tomorrow, (Tuesday) a notice to the railroad that if the Beale, Adams and Dimmock street bridges were to be widened or lengthened to accommodate four tracks that the city should insist that the tracks be depressed so that the grades of the approaches of these streets should not be greater than at present. This notice wil prevent the widening or lengthening of these bridges so as to make prohibitive grades.

Ex-Representative Thomas believed this to be good law. Let us get down to busines and get at the scope of the plan.

Representative Leslie asked how far the present petition extended. In reply City Solicitor McAnarney said simply Saville street and Water street.

Representative Leslie said that if the tracks are to be depressed at Wollaston it should be considered now. It was part of the general scheme and we should plan ahead. The depression of the tracks at Wollaston comes under this proposition.

Ex-Councilman Walter F. Nichols said that the railroad side of this proposition had been ably presented. This caused the City Solicitor to interrupt to say that he did not represent the railroad but had simply presented the facts. Continuing Mr. Nichols said that he now understood the situation. He had hoped to find someone besides those who had a personal interest. Who had the public good at heart. The citizens at large want to know if we are to have elevated tracks through Quincy or not. If we are to have our streets dead ended. If the tracks at Beale street were lowered it was a question as to how to get across. Then here was the question of the crossing of the parkway. We should be further enlightened before we approve plans.

Ex-Representative Blackmur spoke briefly on the law of the question relative to bridges and the change of grades. The City Solicitor has already acted in this matter and the County Commissioners will not allow these bridges to be widened or lengthened until the street is properly taken care of. This question of the Beale, Adams and Dimmock street bridges had nothing to do with this proposition.

The City Engineer was asked about the crossing of the Parkway near the Adams street bridge. While he did not care to enter into a discussion of the matter as it was taken up by the Park Commissioners engineers, he would say that the street could cross and it would be possible to lower the brook two feet.

G. B. Bates had his innings at this point. He started in to make some insinuating remarks about the City Solicitor but was called to order by the chairman and told that insinuations were not in order. He said that it was not necessary for a man to hold public office to betray the city. We have simply heard about the rail-

VERDICT AGAINST BOYNTON IN $25,000 ALIENATION SUIT

Lawyers On Both Sides Score Both Principals in Their Summing Up

Attorney James Characterized Situation a Domestic Tragedy

Chester A. Boynton has lost his $25,000 suit for alienation of affections against the Rev. William B. Ayers, pastor of the Park and Downs Union Congregational Church of Wollaston.

The jury reported a verdict for the defendant to Judge Lawton after exactly 31 minutes of deliberation, Monday afternoon.

The jury began its deliberations at 2 o'clock, after listening to a 35-minute charge by Judge Lawton.

The charge was concluded at 12.45 o'clock and the jurors were then told that they would be allowed to get their lunch before retiring to the jury room. Before they were allowed to leave the court room the room and corridor were cleared of spectators and witnesses, Judge Lawton explaining that otherwise the jurors might be obliged to listen to outside talk about the case.

Before the case was given to the jury Attorney Harry James, counsel for Chester A. Boynton scored the conduct of the clergyman, in summing up for the defence.

Attorney James said:

"This is a domestic tragedy. Until Ayers entered the Boynton family there was no trouble there. It was the dominating influence, and the personality of this man, which has been demonstrated not only in the home but in this very courtroom, which was responsible for this trouble.

"Here is a man that began life at fifteen, because he can't tell you his history from the time of his birth until that age. He begins with an affair with a woman. He marries and is divorced in his minority; then he marries an actress, and after living with her for four months divorces her. He is divorced twice before he is twenty-one.

"He never was ordained in any church until he came to Wollaston. Until he went to a theological school he was a strolling actor. He came here without any credentials, but the church took him in as any woman who was weak would take him in on sight.

"He has nothing behind him but the congregation which has an interest in protecting the name of its pastor.

"Did Mr. Boynton try to hide anything of his relations with the Sass girl? Flora Sass was fifteen years old, and if there was an element of truth in what they accuse Boynton of he would not be here prosecuting this suit.

"Under all this culture of Ayers there is a coarse and vulgar streak.

"Now we come to the most phara saical position of all. After Boynton has brought this suit, Ayers tells us that he does what is contrary to the instincts of even an ordinary man, let alone a man of the cloth. He votes not to expel this man, whom he accuses from the church.

"He is either a hypocrite of else—I will not be unkind enough to tell you the other.

"I haven't said a word against Mrs. Boynton. I think she was merely a weak, susceptible woman.

Attorney Elbridge Anderson counsel for Rev. Mr. Ayers, said in his argument for the pastor:

"Boynton assumed an attitude hostile to his wife after the ministerial conference that vindicated the Rev. Mr. Ayers. In the financial affairs of the house when Boynton exacted more and more from the minister, the minister agreed on expenses and always with the husband.

"The evidence shows clearly that Mrs. Boynton went to the minister's old home in Minneapolis with his sister, Grace. Mr. Ayers was neither in Minneapolis at the time nor did he write to Mrs. Boynton there. There is not a scintilla of evidence connecting Mr. Ayers or Mrs. Boynton on any vacation trip.

"The man responsible all through in this case is Chester A. Boynton. He had his infatuation for Flora Sass, cared nothing for his own faithful wife and is now attempting to rake in money on the reputation of a good woman."

In his charge to the jury Judge Lawton said:

"If you are satisfied that the defendant has enticed the wife to leave her husband, the question of whether her affections were also alienated is of no consequence, although it might be in the question of damages.

"The plaintiff claims he has shown to you a degree of intimacy and language such as would tend to alienate her affections from her husband and give her a lowered opinion of her husband; that the effect was intended to be such that she separated from her husband; and the plaintiff says that it is of such a character that you ought to infer that this is so.

What the plaintiff has got to satisfy you of is that the act of intimacy and language called to your attention did exist. That the acts occurred and that the language was used. Then they would have the result he says that they did have.

"If he failed your verdict must be

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

"Direct primaries, is the hardest blow yet struck at machine rule," declared a new state official. It has not made much of an impression on the Boston machine to say nothing of machines in other cities where men are elected entirely by machine without regard to fitness or ability.

Miss Kellar is quoted as fearing for President Wilson. She believes in him all right but fears that no one man can accomplish what he has set out to do. She fears his party will not be loyal. His party will cut very little figure if the people of the United States prove loyal in their support of the President as long as he is on the right track.

PRICE GOING DOWN.

On and after June 1, the maximum price of gas in Quincy will be $1.20 per 1000 feet. This is the fourth voluntary reduction of the company since the present managers have been in control in the past eight years, and a total reduction of 80 cents as the price in 1906 was $2.00 per 1000.

In that period the profits have not been enormous, judging from the returns. For four years the company did not declare any dividends and the average for the eight years is 2 per cent and at no time have they gone higher than five per cent. The increase of the physical plant however has been marked and the number of subscribers has increased ten fold. The company is now in a position to serve the community properly.

Under the circumstances, the reduction is very gratifying to the customers. The four slips downs the ladder in prices has made considerable difference to consumers and has made a better feeling between the company and those who are served. That the good work go on is fondly hoped by all concerned and the business may in the near future warrant a further reduction which will bring the cost down to where a great many people think should be the maximum in all cities, namely $1. But taken all in all the Citizens' Gas Light Company has done very well. The people as a whole are satisfied with the conditions as they have come along and no doubt when the company sees its way clear, the public may be treated to further demonstrations of its fairness in dealing with consumers.

HARDLY A NECESSITY.

While not agreeing with "A Citizen," who has a communication in another column about cleaning City Hall, nevertheless he was not barred from expressing his views in the Ledger on the subject. As to the cleaning process if that which he claims has been known and good for a quarter of century, is the same as that used on the Court house there is chance for argument. That used on the Court house was supposed to be a brand new method not merely for cleaning granite but to obliterate certain stains which find their way from mortar and deface brick and stone buildings and unless this latest process in use at the court building is new then it has not been successfully used for 25 years in removing lime stains. Time and again have those been supposedly removed from buildings where they appeared only to blossom out again in the first cold snap.

Bronze in statuary exposed to the elements is not polished or cleaned every little while. Time and elements add lustre and richness to the metal's beauty. So it is with granite. Time and the elements give a richness of age and color and mellowness to granite which can never be duplicated by any artificial process. If it is the intention to clean up the exterior of City Hall every little while, trot out a barrel of whitewash and use it on the building so that there may be a uniform shade for a time at least until the engine smoke gets in its work and give it the same old shades.

LEARNING THEIR LESSON.

The rich men of Germany are finding out something about the cost of war. It is touching them in their tenderest spot their pocket books. The tremendous war plans of the country have made it necessary to tax the rich as well as the poor. Heretofore the poor have met all the military and naval expenditures and they were so dazzled by the immensity of the undertakings and the prestige given the country that they were as tickled as a child with a new toy, and had no chance to figure the cost or realize the burdens. But things have been changing. The eyes of the people are rapidly being opened. A change of policy is necessary. Money is needed but the poor have been taxed to the limit and the rich must come in for their share. The rich men of Germany are staggered by the immense amounts which they must pay into the national treasury in accordance with their tax to keep up the military spirit and equipment. It is well known what a famous general said war was like. Rich Germans can heartily endorse that sentiment now. In this and in other countries the cost of this militarism will gradually find its proper place on the shoulders of the rich. The trend of the times, as evidence by the income tax and tariff reduction incline that way. It is well that it should be. Then those men will have a better chance to make up their minds as to war. Money controls war. Without money nations would cut a sorry figure in a conflict. The rich men are not going to give money for war and they can become a factor in checking rapine and bloodshed. Germany in her headlong, costly military undertakings may have done better than she ever dreamed for humanity in lessening the prospects of war.

for the defendant. If you believe either the minister or wife's denial, that would dispose of the case. You are not there to iron out the matrimonial trouble of the defendant and his wife, although you have got to look into them. The case is a peculiar one in this way, that the plaintiff and his wife and the defendant were all living together, all belonged in the same house and all had a right to be there."

GOLD MEDAL FOR BOY OR GIRL

Who Writes Best Composition On Roads, Within 800 Words

A gold medal to the school boy or girl between the ages of 10 and 15 who writes the best composition, not to exceed 800 words, on the repair and maintenance of earth roads, is to be awarded by Logan Waller Page, Director, Office of Public Roads, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. All compositions must be submitted to Mr. Page before May 15, 1913 and the medal will be awarded as soon thereafter as the compositions can be graded. The composition may be based on knowledge gained from books or other sources, but no quotations should be made.

After many years experience in dealing with the public road situation of the country, it is Mr. Page's belief that ignorance on the subject of repair and maintenance of roads is as much the cause of their bad condition as any other one factor. It is expected that the competition will bring about a better understanding of the subject of repair and maintenance in the rural districts.

Many children living in the rural districts have experienced the disadvantages of roads made impassable through a lack of proper maintainance and it is expected that their interest in the competition will stimulate greater interest among the parents. Bad roads have prevented many children from obtaining a proper education and have even prevented doctors from reaching the side of rural patients in time to save their lives.

Any child between the ages mentioned, attending a country school, may compete. Only one side of the paper must be written on; each page should be numbered; the name, age, and address of the writer, and the name and location of the school which he or she is attending must be plainly written at the top of the first page. The announcement of the competition has been sent to the superintendents of schools in the rural districts. No further information can be obtained from the Office of Public Roads. This announcement should be plain to everyone, and all children will thus start on a basis of equality.

Victim for Each Building.

The belief, illustrated in the ballad of "The Bridge of Arta," that a human victim is required to insure the stability of a bridge or building survives in Greece today, J. A. Lawson says.

There is no murder now. It suffices to obtain, preferably from an enemy or an old person, a hair, nail paring, shred of clothing, old shoe or a thread or stick marked with the person's height or footprint measure, and bury these beneath the foundation stone. The victim dies within a year, but the building is safe.

Even a shadow will do. Mr. Lawson was himself dragged back by a friend in Santorini so that his shadow might not fall across such a fatal spot; and the mayor of Agrinian told him that his four predecessors had all died from lettering their shadows fall on foundation stones laid by them.

It is regretted that Allen Conner, Q. H. S. '15 the prospective distance runner of the school team has left school. He is with the Surveying department at City Hall.

NOTIFIED OF ANY DELAYS

New Haven Road Has Inaugurated New System Which Will Fit

The New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Co. made arrangements whereby travellers on its lines and friends awaiting their arrival will be promptly informed of the nature and cause of all delays to its trains. This information also will cover connections with other lines, so that the public may ascertain whether or not through cars from other roads have missed their regular connections, and if so upon what trains such cars will arrive.

The arrangements which have been made provide for a special bulletin service at the South Station, Boston at the Grand Central Terminal in New York, New Haven, Providence, Boston Hartford, Springfield and Worcester, information will be sent by the train despatchers and given out to the public.

In case of injuries to travellers on its lines the rules of the New York, New Haven and Hartford require that all information regarding them, together with their names, if possible, be sent at the earliest possible moment to the Passenger Trainmaster to be given out to the public in the room provided for this purpose.

These new rules have been made with a view of accommodating the public and eliminating as largely as possible the anxiety and uncertainty caused by delays, not only to travellers themselves but to friends awaiting them.

Should a through sleeper or chair car over some other road fail to make its regular connection, the chief telegraph despatcher of the division where the connection is made is instructed to wire the cause of the delay and state the train that such car or cars will be attached to. This is the first instance where provision has been made for such information reaching the public promptly and it should prove of great advantage to the travelling public.

TRACK TEAM

Captain Fred Kingsbury issued the first call for candidates for the track team Monday, nine men reported for practice on the old track in the lower field of the park. The prospects of having a good track team this year are very bright. The new track is of no use whatever as it is full of ruts four inches wide as left Monday by the city man commissioned to put it in order Two turns around with the steam roller would fix the track perfectly and would be fully appreciated by the boys

The boys hope the city authorities will get busy and have it done this week as Capt Kingsbury is planning a meet for next week

A PUBLIC NECESSITY.

Editor Daily Ledger:

That City Hall in its faded and filthy condition may look good enough to some, goes without question. But the average citizen looking at the building in its present condition will take issue on that point. That City Hall should have been cleaned years ago is a fact expressed by a majority of the business men in the granite industry of our city. It is a shame that as handsome a building as City Hall with its fine carving, traced work and texture should go to decay. A place where vermin hold rendezvous and deposit filth; a place that looks forgotten, it certainly does not look the place where our representatives should do the city business. The most conservative business man in our midst knows that if the same conditions prevailed around his home or place of business he would have had it attended to long ago. The cleaning of City Hall will give the average citizen a chance to see what the structure is built of; a treat that few in this generation have had a chance to see. That this cleaning process has been good for a quarter of a century has proved to be a fact. The cost will not exceed $5 per year which should not make any one sit up and take notice. Is the building worth that price to keep it looking respectably clean? Echo answer, yes. It will be seen when all is done, that the severest critic now, will acknowledge that the transformation has been marvelously good and wonder that it was not thought of before.

A Citizen.

ENJOYABLE RECITAL.

Miss Nancy Barbee's recital of Southern dialect stories Monday evening gave a most pleasurable evening's entertainment at the Quincy Mansion school and the applause which followed each number and at the close showed that the audience appreciated Mrs. Willard's hospitality in allowing friends of the school to share the pleasure.

Gowned in beautiful white lace with touches of black velvet, Miss Barbee looked the typical southern lady and with nothing to aid and create illusion she kept her listeners in the South throughout the evening. The sketch of her home in Kentucky on the ancestral farm typical southern life—the going to town and the family council held when it was necessary for her to earn a livelihood for her self and invalid sister, would have been pathetic except for the success Miss Barbee has achieved in her inimitablem anner in the telling of negro dialect stories.

The loyalty, philosophy superstitious and religious side of the colored people and their play of words was portrayed with an utter lack of artificiality. The personalities of her old black Mammy, Uncle Bob, Tilly, Aunt Martha, Auntie Catura, Mirandy, Miss Trimley of the hill people and the stories connected with them, with a little singing of several melodies with the sweetness and warm touch of nature of the south land left a longing for more. The reading of two of Paul Lawrence Dunbar's lyric poems and one by Dorothy Dix merited applause.

In introducing Miss Barbee, Mrs. Willard said that the many friends of Miss Monnie Tarkington Q. M. S. '10. Now Mrs. Colswell would be interested to know that they came from the same town Danville, Kentucky and that Mrs. Colswell had written her, that she must be sure and have Miss Barbee at the school this winter

A pleasing feature of the evening were songs by a group of pupils including "Old Kentucky home," "Away down in Dixie," "Old Black Joe" and "Dixie land."

GREAT SHOW GREAT ACTORS

The Universal Opinion on Suffragette Convention

POOR FERGIE SLAUGHTERED

"The Suffragettes Convention," a humorous presentation of the "whys" and "why nots" advanced on the Equal Suffrage question convulsed a packed house Monday evening in the Parochial School Hall, under the auspices of the St. John's Dramatic Club.

Mere man was mentioned in terms of scorn by the hankerers for the ballot and the solitary male of the cast, Walter Ferguson, after injecting fire into the proceedings by remarks from the wings fell a victim to woman's ire and was forcibly removed by women.

The convention hinged on the lines used in the show:

"Let the men stay home and do
The Work that we have done,
We can run the country
The way it should be run."

This didn't appeal to the keen sensibilities of the antis however who voiced their objection at each and every opportunity.

Throughout the show catchy hits in verse were distributed to the audience the butt being the retired school teachers and prominent men and women of the community.

The convention opened with a contest for chairman which was finally swung to Miss Frances Curtin after a vigorous defiance of parlimentary procedure by Miss Eleanor Moriarty. However, the troubles of Francih had had just begun since topics of the day, gossip, even scandal and the bargain sales in waists, proved to be more interesting to the women than the discussion of the halving of the privileges of man.

While an effort was being made to secure order the inner natures of women became apparent and they handed it right and left in knocks and verse and declared that City Hall must be purged of the male element and the female of the species substituted in their stead.

The climax came when the registration of voters was reached and Silas is discovered as the culprit who rubbed their fur the wrong way, during the convention. He just "gets his'n."

Miss Julia Duffy sang an original song which was received with a storm of applause and the chorus selections were directed by John Mahon.

The production was coached by John J. Phelan and Miss Nellie Desmond and Miss Jane Griffin were in charge.

During the convention Miss Ruth Packard gave several readings which were well received and Miss Catherine Brown rendered several selections which were given loud applause. Miss Bramshaw also gave readings which pleased those present, and all three assisted in adding quality to the quantity of fun provided.

The cast was as follows:

Mrs. John Yates, presiding officer, Frances Curtin
Mrs. Silas Curtis, suffragette Nellie Desmond
Mrs. Eben Altman, suffragette Annie Clinton
Mrs. Elden Keenan, anti Olive Costello
Mrs. Oscar Dayton, anti, Gilbert Bouchard
Mrs. Jonas Harding, anti Mary Ford
Miss Rosabelle Hyacinth, engaged Mary Driscoll
Miss Pricissla Prudence, would like to be engaged, Eleanor Moriarty.
Miss Anna Helder, great on style, Margaret Ford
Mrs. Bates, anti, Mary Gavin
Mrs. Russell Sager, suffragette, Margaret Manning.
Mrs. Frances Wood, suffragette, Helen Walsh
Silas Curtis, who homes an ardent advocate, Walter Ferguson

SUPERVISED PLAYGROUND

Committee Appointed to Raise Funds for the Project

FOR WOLLASTON SCHOOL

At the Wollaston Parent-Teachers' Association Monday evening, David H. Goodspeed gave a most interesting and enlightening address upon "Our school." As a result of certain recommendations contained in his remarks committees were appointed for school improvements.

Eugene H. Sprague, George Taylor and David H. Goodspeed were appointed a committee to solicit funds and prepare for a supervised playground during the months of July and August.

A school library for the children, open from 3.30 until 5 each afternoon will be started. Ten Wollaston men are pledged to provide magazines for it. Rev. Carl G. Horst and Dr. Chas. S. Adams were appointed a committee. mittee.

Mrs. Robert Park, Mrs. Arthur Favreau and John Morgan were oppointed a committee to look into the uses of school halls in other sections.

At the business meeting Willard E. Keyes, Eugene H. Sprague, Mrs. Charles L. Seavey, Albert N. Murray and Mrs. Carroll E. Bates were appointed a nominating committee.

Mrs. William E. Rowe spoke briefly on the convention of the National Congress of Mothers to be held at the Copley Plaza May 15, to 20, inclusive.

Mrs. William Rowe is chairman of the head committee in charge of the affair and told of the many interesting meetings in prospect.

David H. Goodspeed and Willard E. Keyes were appointed delegates to the Congress from the Wollaston association.

Those present were favored with bass solos by Charles Harvey Everett accompanied by Walter Clarence Rogers.

Mr. Everett's selections included "Go not happy day," by Whelpley, a set of three German songs, "Fraun durchd ie Dammerung," "Zueignung" and "Allerseeln" by Straus, and "Invictus."

Mr. Goodspeed in speaking of what the schools are doing and hope to do said that parents divided themselvss into three classes the helpful, the indifferent and the harmful. Wollaston people were in the first class.

"The school has changed much" said the speaker, "and is assuming different responsibilities." Greater changes are in embryo.

Among the studies taught are arithmetic, reading, geography, history spelling, language, grammar, writing, science, music, physical training, morals, etc.

The new methods of teaching arithmetic and the new Palmer system of writing were explained.

In the manual training classes the boys are building their own class room, and later will build benches and apparatus for the playground. Next year they will build a supply room, and a room for domestic science.

"In science" said the speaker, is an opportunity to teach a small amount of sex hygiene in connection with plant fertilization. The leading educators however still believe that sex hygiene should be taught in the home.

Physical training and the supervision of playgrounds were explained and the law relating to the teaching of morals was explained.

The law provides that truth, justice sacred regard for truth, love of country and humanity, universal benevolence, sobriety, industry and frugality shall be among the subjects taught in the public schools.

There has been a change in teaching and promotion. Already there is promotion by subject in arithmetic and in each room from 9.20 to 10.05 this subject is studied, so that it depends on the pupil which grade he studies it in.

Punishments should be regarded as steps in character building and should not consist of thrashings. Medical inspection in the schools was described, also tardy marks for which Wollaston is noted.

In the penny savings bank at the school $783.79 has been deposited this year by 173 children. In a little over 4 years $3291.93 has been deposited. Already 215 children have opened larger deposits with some Qrincy bank.

In the near future Mr. Goodspeed declared a reflectorscope would be needed in the school hall for teaching geography, history, etc.

"Education," said Mr. Goodspeed "is not a gift to be bestowed. It is a trophy to be won. It is not a jackknife to be presented. It is an intellectual pilgrimage in which the teachers and parents are not the childrens ponies but their experienced travelling companions."

GRADE CROSSINGS

road plan. One of our city officials stated at a meeting of the Board of Trade that one of the commission was not fit to hold the position because he was not square. This depression plan is perfectly level railroading to South Quincy. After that the grade to Braintree is less than 7 1-2 of 1 per cent. That is if we should raise city hall four inches on one end we would have the same grade. This decree plan takes thousands of dollars worth of property. Look at the trick that was played upon us. The Railroad Commissioners had a hearing before the decree had been presented to the council or it had an opportunity to consider the plan. The cost has been spoken of. The figures for depression of Saville street as given by the City Engineer Mr. Breed was $225,586 which means the city of Quincy would have to pay $22,558.60. This plan for depression gives a level railroad bed besides saving all of this property.

Ex-Councilman Gardner, asked of Mr. Bates, if he had not told a party that he did not care a rap how the proposition was settled if he only got his?

Mr. Bates replying said I have been told that I would be paid for my property but I have said that I would never stand for elevated plans.

City Solicitor McAnarney at this point said he desired to correct a statement. The estimate of Mr. Breed for depressing the tracks at Saville street was $305,437 and not $225,586 as stated by Mr. Bates.

President Whiton of the City Council said that he had the interest of the city at heart. If the only opposition to depressed tracks was the cost why he would favor paying the extra cost. We should consider this question for all time. Depression was better than a raised wall. He believed if put to a vote it would be overwhelmingly in favor of depression. If we can spend $100,000 for public dock we can well expend $200,000 for depressing the tracks.

Peter T. Fallon spoke at length in favor of depression, although the line of his argument was largely in relation to the freight yard at the Granite branch which had been promised but not obtained. He however believed in depression of the tracks, even if it did cost $200,000 more. Let the people who come after us pay for it.

A motion was adopted by the committee that no one should speak more than once until all who desired had an opportunity to speak.

John Q. A. Field argued in favor of the decree plan. He said that with the present grade between South Quincy and Braintree it was necessary for trains to stop that steam might be gotten up to enable the locomotives to pull the trains over the grade. He wanted the tracks raised at this point so that when he went to bed he could sleep and not be kept awake by the puffing of locomotives trying to get over that grade. He also had a word to say about the freight yards at South Quincy.

Councilman Farquharson believed in depressing the tracks.

William A. Kelley moved that a vote be taken to get the sentiment of the meeting for or against depression. Councilman Cunningham amended so that the vote should be taken at 10.30. The motion was voted.

Ex-Councilman Gardner started to speak when A. L. Whitman kept shouting that he had already spoken twice.

Mr. Gardner spoke briefly in which he appeared to favor the decree plan.

Andrew Milne believed in depressing the tracks.

Councilman Cunningham spoke at length on the question. He said if for 5 or 6 years they had been trying to get through as a scheme that was not feasible we should have known it. The difference in the grade between South Quincy and Braintree by the depressing of tracks would be so small that it would not be noticeable. He understood that the Railroad Commissioners could not change the plans and substitute something else. He believed if the railroad could not get what it wanted it would be willing to trade.

Dr. John H. Ash spoke briefly in favor of the depression of the tracks.

At this point a rising vote was taken on the question of depression or against depression and as noted above the vote was about 50 for depression and 15 against depression.

The meeting then adjourned.

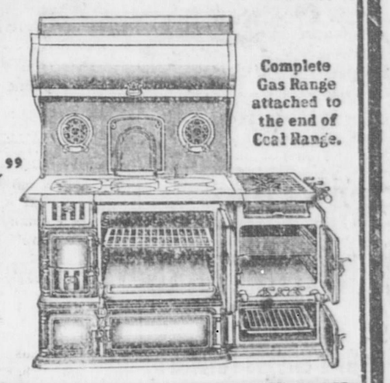

Gustaf Von Colln, Q. H. S. '14 of street, Atlantic, one of the best high and broad jumpers of the track team is ill at his home with typhoid fever. He has many friends hoping for a speedy recovery and to see him back on the team again.

BATTLE WITH A BRUTE

Little Woman Kills Six-Foot Man In Defense of Her Honor

New York, April 15.—Mrs. Ethel Clark, wife of the captain of a Standard Oil barge, is weeping in the Tombs, waiting for the coroner's inquest to free her from the charge of killing a six-foot man who assaulted her in the cabin of her floating home while her husband was away.

Mrs. Clark told the magistrate how the intruder, John Dunn, broke into the barge and attacked her and of their terrible battle, brute strength against the desperation of a woman fighting in defense of her honor. The battle brought the two on deck, where, with final desperate strength, the slender little woman drove Dunn back until he fell over the rail and was drowned.

The court told Mrs. Clark her story had the ring of truth, but that he was forced to separate her from her baby and hold her in jail until the coroner's jury could act.

MORGAN'S BODY LAID AWAY AT HARTFORD

City Pays Homage to Memory of Her Greatest Son

Hartford, April 15.—Attended by every outward mark of honor and respect, with schools and colleges closed, business generally suspended, flags at half-staff, church chimes pealing forth his favorite hymns and the fire bells tolling the years of his age, the body of John Pierpont Morgan came back to his native city yesterday afternoon on a special train.

Thousands of children assembled along the streets and paid tribute to Hartford's greatest son as the procession passed up Asylum street, past the small hotel where the financier was born seventy-six years ago next Thursday.

The committal services at the cemetery were conducted beneath a large tent erected over the grave, with Bishop Brewster of the Connecticut Episcopal diocese officiating and Bishop Lawrence of Massachusetts and Rev. Karl Reiland, rector of St. George's, New York, assisting.

CARL HAGENBECK DEAD

Noted Animal Collector Received Decorations From Many Sovereigns

Hamburg, April 15.—Carl Hagenbeck, the animal collector and senior partner of the Hendel's Menagerie and Tier park at Stellingen, near Hamburg, died last evening.

Carl Hagenbeck was born in 1844. His father, who had commenced the animal business in 1848 with a few seals and a polar bear brought to Hamburg by a whaler, transferred the business to him when he was 21 years of age.

In 1875 he began to exhibit a collection of the representative animals of many countries, accompanied by troops of natives, throughout Europe. The French government in 1891 awarded him the diploma of the academy. Several sovereigns bestowed decorations on him.

Houlton, Me., April 15.—Mrs. Susan Markee of Presque Isle, convicted of cruelty toward her two stepchildren, was sentenced in the supreme court to two years in state prison.

The evidence at the woman's trial showed that she had broken the arm of a 6-year-old girl, and that the exposure to which she had subjected a boy of 7 had necessitated the amputation of his frozen toes.

THE HUMAN SPINE.

Science Says It Is Imperfect Because Man Walks Upright.

According to the osteopathist, you do not have a perfectly formed spinal column, for he is firmly convinced that no person in the world has a back that is perfect. His ideal is a spine of a particular curve, whose twenty-four bones are at equal distances apart, of the same formation on both sides and equally distant from the sides of the body.

The child's spine is much nearer normal and far straighter than the adult's, and the society woman who does no work is more likely to have a back whose curve comes nearer the ideal than the college athlete. The spines of strong men, such as the laborer or pugilist, are most defective, for the reason that constant pull and strain on the spinal column accentuate its weaknesses. The Igorrotes, strong as they are, have weaker and more crooked spines than civilized men.

The spines of lower animals are stronger and more normal than ours and consequently are not so readily affected by disease. If man had decided to walk on all fours his spine might be just as good as his cat's or dog's. Spinal trouble started when our ancestors determined to walk upright, and even after untold centuries it seems that the human spine has not thoroughly adjusted itself to our method of going about. Spencer wrote: "That all important organ, the vertebral column, is as yet but incompletely adapted to the upright posture. Only while the vigor is considerable can there be maintained without appreciable effort those muscular contractions which produce the S like flexure and bring the lumbar portion into such a position that the line of direction falls within it."—New York Sun.

AGGRESSIVE REPTILES.

King Cobras and Mambas Are the Worst of the Snake Tribe.

The majority of snakes are not, as most people suppose, aggressive in their habits; but, like the British viper, far more anxious to get out of the way of the human intruder than into it.

But there are a few famous, or infamous, exceptions, and the mamba—one of the largest of the cobras and a native of Africa—is said to be the most dangerous reptile in the world. It will fly at anything and anybody; goes out of its way to pick a quarrel with every passerby and has even been known to come down from a tree where it was resting, apparently fast asleep, to try conclusions with a man armed with a gun. The only snake that at all approaches the mamba in ferocity is the great king cobra or hamadryad of the east, which is larger than the mamba and generally quite as ready to interfere with any living creature that comes within its ken. It has been known to chase a man on horseback, and so fast can it travel that it is said none but a swift footed animal has any chance of escape.

The poison of both these snakes is so powerful that, as some one once stated in an examination paper on reptiles, "even a scientist when bitten by either of these ferocious creatures ceases to be interested in the matter after the space of a few minutes." Among the Australian cobras, the pit vipers of America and the great west African vipers, there are certain species that prefer the offensive to the defensive method, and in most cases it is the aggressive varieties that carry the most poisonous fangs.—London Globe.

Lead and the Teeth.

A tendency of the teeth and gums to absorb lead has been observed by Viktor Hinze, a German dentist, among the workers in an accumulator factory. The teeth all had much tartar, and that scraped from the teeth of one man affected with anemia and other symptoms of poisoning was found by analysis to contain about one-half of 1 per cent of metallic lead. Extracting the seventeen teeth still retained by this man, the metallic lead in the crowns was shown to be 0.038 per cent and 0.033 per cent in the roots—sufficient to give continuous lead intoxication. The tartar was removed from the teeth of the other workers, and this was followed by marked improvement in the condition of gums and general health.

The Greater Attraction.

A correspondent of the Boston Transcript says that "in looking over some memoranda made by John Whittier of East Haverhill (father of the poet) I find this item, made under date of Feb. 13, 1819: 'First snowstorm of the year.' This is possibly the storm his son commemorates in 'Snowbound.' The lad was then in his twelfth year. The item immediately preceding the one I give above is dated May 9, 1816. 'An elephant came to town.' As President Monroe 'came to town' that same day, it is odd that his coming is not also chronicled as equally memorable."

He Knew.

"You say that a straight line is not the shortest distance between two points?" exclaimed the grouch. "Why, you must be an idiot."

"No, I'm not," replied the stranger. "I'm a taxi driver."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Sounds Plausible.

"Pop, why does the moon get full?"

"I don't know. Don't bother me."

"Pop, I guess if the moon would only stick to the Milky way it wouldn't get full, would it?"—Lippincott's.

Nothing of worth or weight can be achieved with half a mind, with a faint heart and with a lame endeavor. —Isaac Barrow.

THE PRESIDENT'S SECRETARY.

He Must Be a Diplomat, and His Position Is Not an Easy One.

The duties of a secretary to a president of the United States are not considered at all secondary in importance to those of a cabinet officer. He is the man who first meets the thousands of visitors to the president. He must know just whom the president desires to see or should see without bothering the president. These visitors come from all parts of the United States on all sorts of missions, some important, but mostly of a very trivial character, and they come bringing all sorts of letters of introduction from all sorts of people.

Were the president to see all these folks he would not have time for anything else, and the secretary must winnow the wheat from the chaff and send the chaff away actually delighted because they haven't seen the president. The president's secretary is a buffer between his chief and the United States senators and members of the house of representatives with myriad axes to grind. He must be a diplomat with the most famous diplomats of the world when they call at the White House to take up the time of the president. Indeed, it has been often said in Washington that the president's secretary must be as much of a diplomat as any member of the diplomatic corps if he is to be of substantial value to his chief.

Again, the secretary must have relations with the hundreds of correspondents who represent the great newspapers of the country. Public opinion is molded by these correspondents, and they are keenly affirmative in their characteristics. In their ambition to serve their newspapers they always know exactly why they visit the White House. Frequently matters are not exactly ripe, and it is one duty of the president's secretary to parry the incisive and probing questions of these alert correspondents. This must be done smilingly and in good form.

Then, too, invariably the president's secretary accompanies his chief on trips through the country. Hundreds of details come up on these tours of which the president is not expected to know, but it is the absolute duty of his secretary to be familiar with them.—New York Sun.

WEIGHT LIMIT OF MOTOR CARS

Passing Over Bridges Favored by Legislative Committee

There is a bill which has passed the legislative committee, on roads and bridges to limit the weights which may be carried thereon by motor vehicles.

It is the natural impression when you see a ponderous machine travelling over the road, that the tires are rapidly tearing it to pieces, an impression that is conveyed upon the public mind and repeated so often by the frequent passes of such vehicles that after a time this alleged destructive action is believed without reasoning or proof that it might be otherwise.

The major portion of our state highways are a macadam structure bound together with bituminous oil or tarry matter which forms a mat or carpet on the surface.

Logan Waller Page, Director of Public Roads in the U. S. Department of Agriculture, the highest authority in the United States on the subject of roads, in a paper read before the Society of Automobile Engineers in 1911 says "Horse drawn traffic is more destructive to these mats or carpets than automobiles, particularly in rainy weather.' "In such instances the passage of a large number of automobiles iron out the marks of hoofs and the grooves cut by steel-tired wheels almost as fast as they are formed," and further on in his paper, "surface application of the heavier bituminous binders has not proved satisfactory where teaming traffic is heavy, owing to the fact that the heavily leaded and comparatively narrow steel-tired wheels cut through the bituminous mat in wet weather and soon cause disintegration." "When I have been asked or consulted in regard to making a law for the taxation of automobiles, I have objected strongly to the attempt that is quite general in the country of laying the whole burden of the destruction of roads on automobiles, trying to make them pay for it all because roads were worn out befode automobile traffic came on them." "If you are going to do that, then make it apply to horses as well." "I think that is fair and reasonable, but it is a short-sighted policy because already the automobile has ceased to be exclusively rich man's car and is being used commercially; we need high horse-powered machines to carry produce."

"A large ten-ton automobile truck would necessarily go at a very low rate of speed. The rubber tires would probably benefit a properly constructed road fully as much as they would do it harm, whereas, a five-ton horse-drawn vehicle with narrow tires would do it infinitely more harm."

The rubber tire manufacturers rate their truck tires around 600 pounds per inch width, so you see they have no objection to the 800 pounds per inch of tire clause in the bill.

Now as to a twelve-ton limit, records and reports of vehicle operation throughout the country have shown that the ton mile cost of operation has been reduced by the increase of size of units; reports have shown that the transportation feature is a large element in the cost of living and as the larger unit of 10 to 15 ton capacity will lessen the cost of transportation from 200 to 1000 per cent, it will readily see the advantage of the larger unit.

Atlantic National Bank of Providence Has Suspended Payment

Providence, April 15.—The Atlantic National bank has suspended payment. It is capitalized at $300,000. The bank was taken in charge by National Bank Examiner Joseph Balch, at the request of the board of directors.

Two other banks volunteered to loan to the closed bank's depositors 60 percent of their net deposits. It was announced that a receiver would be appointed by the comptroller of the currency.

The suspension followed closely a change in the management. Edward P. Metcalf, who had been president for several years, resigned on April 1, because of ill health, and Percy W. Gardner was appointed to succeed him. Metcalf is now on his way to Europe.

RECOVERY OF POPE IS NOW EXPECTED

Pontiff Sees Vision of Dead Sister In Wonderful Dream

Rome, April 15.—The pope has rallied in a wonderful manner from the serious attack from which he suffered Sunday. He appeared to be on the point of death Sunday night. The physicians' reports now indicate that the danger point, for the present at least, has been passed.

Professors Marchiafava repeated his assurances that if prudence were exercised the pope would recover. He declared his examination of the chest showed that the inflammation had been checked and was actually diminishing, while the bronchial sounds were less noticeable.

After his afternoon sleep it was observed that the pontiff looked to be bright and happy. Although he was advised not to talk, he insisted on explaining how he had just awakened from a most wonderful dream.

He seemed, he said, to have returned to his beloved Venice; that he was in his patriarchal gondola on the Grand canal. Everything was blazing with sunlight, when suddenly, above St. Mark's, the sky opened and he saw a vision of his dead sister, Rosa, who, descending toward him, took his hand, saying:

"The moment has not yet come for you to join me. Your work is not yet finished."

HERTZ NOW CHIEF RABBI

Says Home Influence Is Waning With-in the Home of Israel

London, April 15.—Dr. Joseph H. Hertz of New York was inducted as chief rabbi of the British empire in the great synagogue here. His inaugural sermon dealt with the present period as "the age of doubt and disillusionment." He said the dreams of humanity which yesterday seemed easy to grasp of realization now were dissolving in thin air in the face of malicious race hatred and purposeless slaughter cynically practiced in the opening decades of the twentieth century.

"Within the house of Israel," the rabbi said, "the home influence is waning, and there is an alarming subsidence in the sense of worship. Hosts of our Jewish men and women are drifting to apostacy."

The New England district council of the Electrical Workers' union, with which the telephone girls are affiliated, has decided to send a communication to all the labor unions in the country "deploring the conditions that permitted the coming of invaders to this city during the recent telephone situation."

The labor unions in Boston are uniting to suppport the Haynes order in the legislature for an investigation of the New England Telephone and Telegraph company.

DESERTED BY HIS FATHER YEARS AGO

Poor and Obscure Youth Becomes Heir to Millions

Detroit, April 15.—From poverty and the obscurity of a little country town to the possession of a fortune of $2,000,000 is the story of 21-year-old Elvin Leschappelle of Grayling, this state. Within a few weeks he will receive his share of the estate left by his father, a millionaire lumberman of northern Wisconsin, whom he never has seen.

The young man's parents, Joseph Leschappelle and Mary Taylor, quarrelled within a month after their marriage. The husband left Grayling and never returned. After the birth of her son, the young mother secured a divorce and remarried, leaving the child with her father.

Joseph Leschappelle went to Wisconsin, where he engaged in the lumber business and became wealthy. He also remarried and one son was born from this union. The millionaire recently died. His estate will be divided between Elvin and his half-brother.

Slayer of Sister Declared Not Guilty by Reason of Insanity

Rockland, Me., April 15.—"Not guilty by reason of insanity" was the verdict of a jury in the supreme court in the case of Clarence Curtis, charged with the murder of his sister, Grace Curtis, in their home in the town of Washington.

Curtis took the stand in his own behalf, but talked so irrationally that the trial was quickly closed and the jury brought in its verdict.

Curtis was brought from the insane hospital in Augusta, after having been confined there since the assault on his sister in October, 1911. After the verdict was brought in Curtis was taken back to the hospital.

LABOR STRIKES FOR SUFFRAGE

350,000 Workers Participate In Walkout In Belgium

TROOPS READY FOR ACTION

Leaders In Movement Urge Peaceful Methods—To Abstain From Clashes and Respect Property of Mine Owners—Government May Soon Open Negotiations With Workers

Brussels, April 15.—Belgium's threatened industrial strike for universal suffrage on the principle of "one man, one vote," and as a protest against plural voting on the part of rich men, became a reality when about 350,000 Socialists and trades union men quit work, declaring they would remain idle until the government granted their demands.

The government had 46,000 troops ready for instant action. "Soldiers, do not fire on your brothers," was the motto on a huge banner displayed in front of headquarters of the strikers, and similar banners were displayed in all cities.

The district hardest hit is the mining region around Borinag, where over 100,000 miners are idle. The mining industry in the great mining basin around Mons is practically paralyzed.

"No violence" is the slogan of the Socialist leaders. M. Vandervelde, one of the chief Socialistic leaders, sent notices to all the Socialist unions to abstain from clashes with the civil and military authorities and to respect the property of the mine owners.

In spite of the indications of a peaceful strike, great bodies of soldiers were distributed through the manufacturing and mining districts. A general feeling of fear pervades the country because of the possibilities contained in the movement. The strike combines political as well as industrial agitation and there is anxiety over the fact that it may become actually revolutionary in character.

It is this view of the situation which is causing the greatest alarm to King Albert and his ministers.

It is likely that the government will soon open negotiations with the strike leaders on the basis of electoral reform, although the Clericals declare the radical demands of the labor element will never be granted in full. The Clericals control the cabinet.

There is a possibility that dissension may break out among the strikers and thus defeat the ends of the movement, as the Christian unions (non-Socialist organizations) are only lukewarm toward the struggle. Many members of the Christian unions were forced into a strike against their will.

CALLS GENERAL STRIKE

Action of I. W. W. Leader Conducting Strike Against Draper Company

Milford, Mass., April 15.—A general strike of Industrial Workers of the World was called here by Joseph M. Coldwell, who is conducting the fight against the Draper company at Milford. The leader said his action was due to the fact that the Draper company was bringing in strikebreakers. About 2000 persons, chiefly foreigners, are employed here, the principal industries being the manufacture of shoes and the quarrying and dressing of granite.

The strike call followed a stampede of 100 girls from the heeling factory of Green Bros. An effort to induce the employes of the Regal shoe factory to leave their benches failed.

CALLS CHILDREN IN FROM PLAY

PUTS BULLET IN HIS OWN HEAD

Fitchburg Baker Was Victim of White Plague and His Case Was Hopeless—Bodies Found by His Wife, Who Had Been Supporting Family During the Past Year

Fitchburg, Mass., April 15.—Calling his four children in from their play, Ernest Moschner, aged 35 years, lined them up against the wall of his bedroom on the second floor of his house, 250 Rollstone street, late yesterday afternoon. Then, with a 32-calibre, five-chambered revolver, he killed them, one by one.

When his wife returned from her work at 5:50 o'clock she found the bodies of her husband, who had committed suicide, and her eldest daughter in the bedroom. The bodies of the other three children were scattered over the house.

With their playmates, Elsie, 12; Myrtle, 11; Ernest, 6, and Norman, 8, were shouting and laughing in the yard in front of the house. Suddenly a window on the second floor flew open, and their father summoned them peremptorily within. Obediently they dropped their play and entered the front door, closing it behind them.

Calling them into their mother's bedroom, Moschner lined the children up against a blank wall. Drawing a revolver, he shot Elsie behind the left ear.

As the child fell dead across the foot of the bed, Ernest, the younger boy, made a dash for the next room. Running to the closet he pulled open the door, seeking a hiding place. Just as he stooped to dodge behind the clothes hanging on the pegs, his father, following swiftly, shot him behind the left ear.

The other children, screaming with terror, sped down the stairs in a wild flight for safety. Their little feet were not quick enough. Myrtle pulled open the door of the lower floor bedroom, just as the gun spat a third time. She sank to the floor, a bullet lodged behind her left ear.

Norman had gained the kitchen. Wrenching open the door leading to the cellar, he sped through it just ahead of his father. At the foot of the stairs he stooped to pick up a piece of wood to defend himself.

Turning he attacked the maniac, striking desperately at him with his little billet. Blow after blow he aimed at his father's hand, in the attempt to ward off the revolver. But the fourth shot rang out, and he dropped at his father's feet, a bullet behind his left ear.

Placing the revolver, one chamber still loaded, back in his pocket, Moschner calmly covered the body of his boy with planks and pieces of wood. Returning upstairs, he covered the other three bodies, one after the other, as they lay, with clothes torn from the beds.

He entered the bedroom where he had originally called the children. Placing the revolver to his own head, he sent the last shot into his brain.

None of the shots was heard outside the house. It was an hour later when Mrs. Moschner, who has been the sole support of the family for over a year, returned home. As she came up the front path, she noticed the key in the outside of the door.

Within the house all was deathly quiet. Pieces of her children's clothing, scattered over the floor, struck a chill to her heart. She received no response to her calls.

Walking around a heap of bedclothing at the entrance to the lower bedroom, near the foot of the stairs, she climbed to the upper story. Stepping over another heap of bedclothes, she entered her own room. The lifeless body of her husband, blood oozing from a dark hole in the side of his head, lay on the floor at her feet. Beneath the heap of clothes thrown clumsily up at the foot of the bed, she found the body of her elder daughter, Elsie.

Her screams aroused the attention of the neighbors. Tearing her by main force from the room, they carried her to a nearby house. Others found successively the bodies of the three other children. A doctor was summoned to attend Mrs. Moschner, who was raving with hysteria.

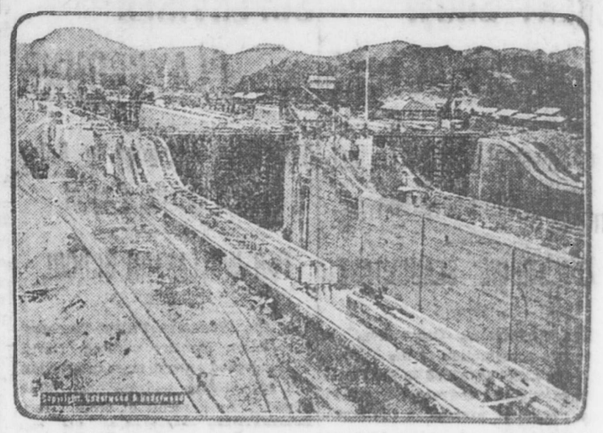

Moschner came to Fitchburg from Germany twenty-three years ago. He entered the employ of a Fitchburg baker, working steadily for nearly twenty years. Then he established a little bakery business of his own.

A year ago his health gave out entirely and he was sent to Rutland, suffering from tuberculosis. During his absence his wife drove the bakery cart, and when he returned home six weeks ago, his case pronounced hopeless, she continued to support the family.

VIEW OF THE MIRAFLORES LOCKS

President Wilson is expected to visit the Panama Canal in June, and this photograph shows one of the interesting points he will see. The system at Miraflores consists of two twin locks in flight, having a total lift of about fifty-five feet. The concrete work on the locks is now about ninety-eight per cent completed.

Colonel TODHUNTER of Missouri

By RIPLEY D. SAUNDERS

Copyright, 1911, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company.

SYNOPSIS

Colonel Todhunter booms his friend William J. Strickland for the nomination for governor. Tom Strickland, son of William, loves Mary Todhunter. Lottie-May Doggett loves Tom.

Stamford Tucker pays attention to Mary. He and Tom are rivals. They clash at the Todhunters'.

A political rally of Strickland's supporters is interrupted by the Yancey men, led by Stam. His father, Eph Tucker, is Yancey's main supporter in Nineveh.

"We're both free white and twenty-one, colonel," said Tom Strickland. "How are you goin' to prevent it?"

At this Colonel Todhunter lost his temper. "I'll prevent it by thrashin' you within an inch of your life, suh, if you don't turn right around and get out o' this here barroom, that's how!" he announced resolutely. "I ain't a-goin' to stand no foolishness, Tom!"

"That ain't fair, Colonel Todhunter," protested Tom Strickland. "You're Miss Mary's father, and you're my father's oldest and best friend, sir. I wouldn't lift my hand against you for the world—but I've got to wait here till Stam Tucker gets back!"

"Tom," said Colonel Todhunter, "you've either got to go home right now, suh, or thrash me, or take the best thrashin' from me you ever got in all your life, suh!"

Tom Strickland looked into Colonel Todhunter's eyes. They shone with the light of righteous battle. It was a preposterous situation. The humor of it suddenly struck the younger man, and he laughed outright. Then, suddenly, looking beyond Colonel Todhunter, his own eyes hardened into a dangerous anger.

"It's too late, colonel!" he exclaimed exultantly. "Here comes the very man we're talking about!"

As he spoke Stamford Tucker entered the barroom, advancing directly toward him.

"I reckon you still insist on a personal difficulty with me, Tom Strickland?" he asked. "You ain't changed your mind none since the last few minutes?"

"I don't change my mind that easy," replied Tom Strickland, smiling. "Especially when a little upstart like you gets to talking too freely about my father. You've got to stop it or else make up your mind to take the consequences."

"It ain't what I've said about your father that's rubbing you the wrong way," retorted Stam Tucker. "It's because you've found out that I'm standin' too good a chance with Miss Mary Todhunter to suit you"—

Tom Strickland sprang at the speaker. As he did so Stam whipped out a pistol. It was quickly done, but not quick enough to give an opportunity to fire before the other struck. Tom's fist smashed into his face and felled him to the floor. The pistol flew ten feet away.

There was a moment's silence.

"Get up," said Tom, "and come at me like a man. I'll thrash you within an inch of your life!"

Stam Tucker staggered to his feet, wiping the blood from his face. But he made no move toward the man who had struck him.

Tom Strickland stepped coolly to where the pistol lay, picked it up deliberately and put it into his own pocket.

"I'll get even with you for this, Strickland!" cried young Tucker. "I'll even up things before I'm done with you!"

"You'll never have a better time than right now," replied Tom. "But if you ain't in the humor I'll leave your pistol with the bartender here in a little while and you can get it later. But I give you fair warning, Stam Tucker.

Tom's Fist Smashed Into His Face and Felled Him to the Floor.

The next time you make a move for a weapon you're going to get badly hurt. I'll be ready for you since you insist on it."

Stam Tucker moved toward the door. His little eyes were venomous with hate.

"I'll get even with you!" he repeated. "You'll suffer for this yet!" And then he disappeared.

"You've played the wild on your watch, Tom," said Colonel Todhunter sternly. "This ain't no time for you to be pickin' fights with old Eph Tucker's son. It don't look right, and it won't help your father none in his political fight, either."

"I didn't bring it on, colonel," replied Tom Strickland. "Stamford Tucker's seen fit to say things about my father that no man can say and not get a licking from me, if I'm man enough to lick him. That's all there is to it, sir."

To save his life Colonel Todhunter could not continue his rebuke. But he managed to part from Tom Strickland with something like an expression of disapproval on his countenance.

"I reckon I ain't cut out to preach to other people what they should do and what they shouldn't," he confessed to himself later. "I ought to have given that blamed young fool a lecture as long as my arm, but it just wasn't in me to do it under the circumstances. And that's wrong, because the only good excuse an old man's got for livin' is to sorter act as a guidepost to keep young men from followin' the roads that lead to trouble. Bein' mighty little good in that line myself, I'm a-goin' to unload my responsibility on old Bill Strickland and let him straighten Tom out his own way, suh. And then I'll ask the Old Marster up above to make me better fitt'n for my duty than I seem to be at this precise moment, suh, judgin' from the way I weakened on Tom!"

* * * * * * *

Suddenly one day during the campaign the Hon. William J. Strickland returned from St. Louis. An expression of acute worriment so contrary to its customary cheerfulness rested on his face that Colonel Todhunter, entering the candidate's Nineveh law office, could not but remark the change.

"What on earth's the matter, Bill?" he asked. "You look like the last rose o' summer."

Colonel Strickland attempted a smile. "Oh, nothing particular, Thurs!" he replied. "I reckon I was just meditating on the vanity of human life."

"Well, it must have been 'Hark from the tombs a doleful sound,' all right," laughed Colonel Todhunter. Then he took a second look at his friend.

"You're lyin' to me, Bill Strickland," he said. "There's somethin' gone wrong, and it's on your mind. What is it?"

"Thurs," responded the other, "it ain't anything you can help. There's no good in my unloading my troubles on you just because you've got broad shoulders."

"Unload 'em anyhow," returned Colonel Todhunter. "You ought to know folks can shed other folks' troubles off'n their shoulders like water from a duck's back."

But Colonel Strickland shook his head. "There's been a backset somewhere along the line," announced Colonel Todhunter stubbornly. "And you've got to tell me what it is. Quit settin' there lookin' like a poor man at a cash sale, Bill Strickland, dumb, 'cause money's all that talks."

At this Colonel Strickland laughed drearily. "That's where you hit the nail on the head," he said. "Money, the mean and dirty thing that can whip the best man in the world—that's the trouble, Thurs."

"It's generally the other man's money that looks dirty, Bill," Colonel Todhunter commented, chuckling. "I got to acknowledge the corn myself. I never had a dollar of my own that didn't look mighty clean and good to me. But what's this particular money trouble?"

"Well, if you will have it, Thurs, it's this," replied Colonel Strickland. "I'm up a tree in the matter of campaign expenses. Old Governor Leslie was sure he could raise a Strickland campaign fund by asking the right men and telling them what he proposed to do with it, they knowing that Steve Yancey ain't fit to be governor of Missouri. But so far he's met with mighty poor success. He told me all about it in St. Louis yesterday. I ain't got a dollar in the world, and we've established headquarters in St. Louis and Kansas City that's got to be kept up. How we're going to do it is what I can't figure out."

The two old friends faced each other silently.

"That certainly is a serious situation, Bill," spoke Colonel Todhunter at last.

"It's so almighty serious, Thurs," returned the other, "that I can't see my way out of it."

But at this Colonel Todhunter snorted. "That's where you're wrong, Bill Strickland," he exclaimed. "I've been in tighter places 'n anybody on earth, 'ceptin' the fellow who come out of a spree with hot coppers in hades, but I'll be jim swizzled if I ever got into one I couldn't get out of. And we ain't in that kind of a one now. How much money do you need?"

Colonel Strickland shook his head. "There's no good you and me figuring along that line, old fellow. We need at least $3,000, and while it's pretty certain old Leslie will raise that amount eventually that doesn't cut any ice now. We need the money right here at the start."

"And you can't raise it?" asked Colonel Todhunter.

"No, I can't," answered Colonel Strickland. "And I get what a man deserves for thinking he knows how to save the country when he don't even know how to take care of himself."

"That ain't so, Bill," answered Colonel Todhunter sturdily. "And anybody that thinks they can keep you from bein' governor of Mizzoorah simply because you're a poor man has got another think comin', suh. You draw your personal note for $3,000 in my favor. I'll indorse it right here, and if I don't get that money it's because the Nineveh National bank don't know a good thing when it sees it."

"What do you mean, Todhunter?" asked Colonel Strickland, instant protest in his eyes.

"I mean this, Bill Strickland," replied Colonel Todhunter. "In the first place, old Governor Leslie is dead sure to raise that there campaign fund. In the second place, all heaven and hell hates a quitter, and you ain't a-goin' to be one. In the third place, the Todhunter farm is as pretty a piece of collateral for a $3,000 loan as old Shylock himself would have the heart to ask."

"That's exactly what I thought you were going to say," quietly commented Colonel Strickland. "But it don't go for a minute. I ain't going to tie you up on this proposition."

"Th' ain't nobody goin' to tie me up," said Colonel Todhunter. "And I ain't goin' to tie myself up, either. I'm goin' to tie the other fellow up. I'll tie up them there tricksters in St. Louis that's queerin' old Governor Leslie's game. They're the ones that's puttin' a frost on the Strickland campaign fund. If they can do that successfully they've got you whipped right here and now. But I'm a-goin' to fool 'em."

"No, Thurs, I don't do it," protested Colonel Strickland. "Putting up a good fight is one thing, but ruining your friends is something entirely different. I haven't fallen that low yet."

"You haven't fallen anywhere," said Colonel Todhunter, "but you've got my fightin' blood up, and by the Lord Harry, if you ain't man enough to fight alongside o' me, I'll fight by myself!"

"Todhunter," said Colonel Strickland, "it's all wrong. You haven't got any call to do a thing like that for me."

"The man that ain't got no call to help a friend that needs help," replied Colonel Todhunter, "ain't got no call to keep on livin'. You set down there and make out that there note."

Reluctantly Colonel Strickland obeyed. But he smiled cynically as he passed the paper to Colonel Todhunter.

"You forget, Thurs," he said, "that old Eph Tucker is president of the Nineveh National bank. Is he likely to finance our campaign against Steve Yancey?"

100 TONS OF GRANITE ON THE MOVE WHEN TIMBER SUPPORTS GAVE WAY

Over 50 Men Heard Warning Creak in Time to Run For Their Lives

Swingle Quarry Blockaded. Mannix Blacksmith Shop Buried

Full 100 ton of stone which was supporting a tressle at the Mannix quarry slid after timber supports gave away at about 4.10 o'clock Monday afternoon and nearly buried the Mannix blacksmith shop and closed the outlet from the Swingle quarry completely.

Hugo Johnson, the blacksmith at the quarry had left the building just as the stone commenced to slide and escaped uninjured. About 50 men who were going home from the Swingle upper and lower quarries, the Railway quarry and the Blue Hill quarry scampered away when they heard the timbers giving away.

It is estimated that a week will elapse until the grout is removed and the outlet cleared. In the meantime, the men who used the way will be obliged to crawl over the huge pile of stone.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

OTHER IMPROVEMENTS PLANNED

At the monthly meeting of the Wollaston Park Improvement Association at the Wollaston Yacht club on Monday evening, Dr. Philip Kelley one oft hem embers of the Association delivered a lecture on "Oral hygiene," and kindred subjects. His lecture included care of children's teeth, the adulteration of food and the extinction of the mosquito in the Canal zone. Dr. Kelley is a member of the National Oral Hygiene Asociation.

The Quincy grade crossing controversy was thoroughly discussed and voted unanimously to favor depression and oppose elevation.

President John L. Hamilton of the Quincy Board of Trade was one of the speakers. A committee of three, Charles L. Gilliatt, B. F. Chase and Dr. Phillip Kelly was appointed to appear at future hearings and oppose elevation.

The mosquito nuisance was taken up and it was voted to co-operate with other associations in their extermination. The sum of $20 was appropriated as a starter and William E. Hingston, Russel T. Anthony and A. J. Bartlett were appointed a committee to have the matter in charge.

The association includes members from Potrsmouth, Boston, Quincy, New London, New York, Philadelphia, Camden, Wilmington, Washington, Newport News, Norfolk and Cleveland with the bulk hailing from Quincy.

MEDICAL EXAMINERS SALES.

Medical Examiner, Dr. Fred E. Jones, secretary of the Board of Health, sails from New York early Saturday morning in company with John R. Graham, of Bangor, Me., formerly of Quincy for an extended trip. Going first to Bermuda, they then go to the Azores, thence to South America. The trip will probably extend over two months.

The Doctor is looking forward to the trip as it will afford him an excellent opportunity to study what is being done in these countries in the way of sanitary conditions. It is a well known fact that since the United States has accomplished so much in the way of improving the condition of the country about the Panama canal that South American countries are waking up to the fact of the possibilities to improve the health conditions of that country.

As Dr. Jones is a surgeon in the state militia, his commission will afford him an opportunity to study the sanitary conditions such as does not usually fall to the lot of a traveller and he is looking forward with pleasure at the opportunity to make his investigations.

OBJECTIONS TO SECRET DEBATES

Rumblings of Discontent Over Caucus on the Tariff

PRESIDENT IS WELL SATISFIED

Says He Believes New Measure Meets Approval—Wool Men's Fears Not Justified by Facts—Sugar Factories Will Not Suffer—Agricultural Schedule Under Discussion

Washington, April 15 —The week opened in congress with every prospect of daily caucus sessions on the house side with the tariff as the sole topic of discussion. There is a possibility that the bill will remain in caucus well into next week.

The Democrats will be between two fires when it comes to putting the final touches on the cotton schedule and they fully realize that after the caucus there will be no chance for change on the floor of the house.

The truth is that the caucus is dominating the tariff situation to such an extent that there are rumblings of discontent among several of the regular wheel horses of the house. It is expected that in addition to the anti-caucus fight which the Progressives and the Republicans will make, some of Mr. Underwood's own party will kick over the traces and register their objections to secret debates. This will certainly occur in the matter of sugar.

President Wilson believes the tariff bill meets the general approval of the country; that no healthy business will be interrupted, and that while in most cases the cost of living will not be immediately reduced, the consumer will feel at once the benefit of a reduction in the sugar duty. These views were expressed in an open talk with newspaper men at the White House.

Criticisms, he said, had been received from some entirely legitimate interests that the reductions in their cases were more than they could at present stand. Mr. Wilson said he did not see any ruinous cuts in the bill. He referred to the fact that members of the ways and means committee had heard every person in interest and that their judgments were based on those hearings.

It was suggested to the president that many Ohio Democrats in congress felt that free wool would be ruinous to the woolen industry. Wilson said he had been trying to inform himself as much as possible on the subject, but he did not feel their fears were justified by facts. He remarked that he had heard just the other day that the price of wool was the same on both sides of the water.

Respecting the sugar tariff the president was asked if he thought sugar factories, both beet and cane, could operate under a free sugar system. He said that he certainly thought they could, remarking that the factories might be shut down for effect for a time but that they would open for business later. The president said he hoped to open reciprocity negotiations with various countries as soon as the tariff bill was passed.

With Underwood and other administration leaders in control of the situation, house Democrats began the second week of consideration of the new tariff bill in caucus. The "market basket" attracted attention of the legislators, the agricultural schedule having been reached. Wheat and citrus fruits were particular targets for some of the members from milling and fruit bearing states. Flour has been placed on the free list in the administration bill, while a duty of 10 percent ad valorem is left on wheat. Representatives from milling states claim that is a discrimination against the millers and they propose to make a fight either to put wheat on the free list or to place a compensating duty on flour. Opposition developed also to the free listing of potatoes.

Sandusky, O., April 15.—A man asked for a search warrant for his wife, who had left home. When told it would cost him a dollar, he remarked: "Not for me. 'Tain't worth it."

A Wrong Decision

By ARTHUR W. BREWSTER

My uncle, Nathan Travers, was a rich man without children of his own, and I was to be his heir. He was a man who never forgave an injury. If any one tried to get an unwarranted advantage of him he would beat him, if possible, and in any event would never forgive him. He lived in a suburban town alone except for the servants, received no company and never went out socially. I went to see him at least once a week, often remaining all night.

One morning, after having dined with him the evening before and remained all night, intending to take an early train to the city, I went into his room to bid him goodby and was shocked to find him dead in his bed. He had been stabbed to the heart. I was about to call the servants when it occurred to me that, being my uncle's heir, I was in a position to be suspected of his murder.

Would it be better for me to be before the world the discoverer of my uncle's having been killed or to leave the house, pretending not to know anything about it? I had been asked the night before by a maid if I would have breakfast prepared for me and had said that I would breakfast in the city.

If I went out, as was to be expected, the servants would discover and announce the murder. I gave but a few seconds to deliberate whether I should leave the house thus or announce the murder, then decided on the former course.

On my way to the city I was much agitated and fearful that I had decided wrong. It turned out that I had. A maid had arisen and was descending from the story above when I was leaving my uncle's room. She saw me and later, when she went to awaken her master and found him dead, remembered having seen me leaving his chamber. The result was that when I was told of the tragedy and looked surprised and shocked I was at once arrested and brought to trial.

The explanation I have given here was without any effect on the jury. My attorney only relied on it so far as it could be corroborated by other evidence. He introduced the statements of those who knew my uncle and who swore that he was a man having many enemies. During his long life several persons had said to him, "You shall pay for this," or "I'll have your heart's blood," or "Just you wait." My defender took the ground that some one of these persons had done the deed. But my unwise action on discovering my uncle's dead body had fixed his death irrevocably on me unless the real murderer could be discovered.

I was convicted. My lawyer resorted to the usual methods to secure delay, and my execution was put off from time to time. Finally, all these subterfuges having failed, a day was set for my death.

Books and newspapers were allowed me, but I could read only the latter. One day I was trying to keep my mind off my horror by reading a morning journal when I saw that a burglary had been committed and the robber had been arrested with the plunder on him.

His portrait was in the rogues' gallery and identified him as Peter Ritterhof, with several aliases. He had but recently left state prison, having been sent there for a robbery committed five years before.

Ritterhof! Where had I heard that name? Some Ritterhof had crossed my path at some time, but I could not remember when, the circumstances or the person. The memory does not always act instantly. There are cases wherein it requires time. Presently I recalled that the name was connected with a scene in court. Then the fact came to me that my uncle had once sent a workman to the penitentiary who had been engaged in his house and whom he accused of purloining certain valuables. Lastly, Ritterhof and this workman became identical in my mind.

I sent for my attorney at once and told him what I have given here. Not wishing to excite in me a hope that might be dashed, he went away, simply saying that he would make a thorough investigation. In time he returned, saying that he had examined the records and found that this Peter Ritterhof had been "sent up" exactly ten years and ten days before the date of the murder for stealing articles from my uncle's house.

So affected was I by the announcement, which I considered tantamount to a reprieve, that I toppled over. When I came to myself again my attorney impressed upon me the importance of fixing the murder upon this man and told me he proposed to do it by the process called third degree.

I had another temporary breakdown when he came to my cell the next day and announced that he had secured the desired confession. He acquired it by assuring Ritterhof that he had three witnesses ready to swear that he had said he would kill the man who caused his imprisonment and had evidence of his having been seen leaving my uncle's house during the night of the murder.

Within a few days I walked out of jail into a fortune. But I never entirely recovered from the narrow escape I had had and never hear of the conviction of any one for a first crime without thinking he may be innocent.

EFFICIENT OFFICIAL HONORED BY WOMEN IN OTHER PUBLIC WORK

Secretary of Associated Charities Tendered Reception by Women's Club

Stamp of Approval Put Upon Good Work by Donation of $100

The "At Home" to meet Miss Purchase, General Secretary of the Associated Charities at the Women's clubhouse Tuesday afternoon was a most delightfully hospitable affair. Daffodils, jonquils and potted plants made the reception and tea rooms most attractive and the arrangements made by Mrs. Thomas Fenno and Mrs. Herbert Lawton were most happily carried out. The assistance of the Katharyn Crane club in serving and, as waiters was a charming feature.

Mr. Delcevare King presided over the program in the absence of Mr. Fenno. A group of songs by Miss Ernestine Litchfield accompanied by Miss Edith Randall, added to the enjoyment of the afternoon. Most important of all was the report of Miss Purchase who completed her first year of service as general secretary of the Associated Charities on April 1st.

Her report gave an idea of the variety and extent of the work done by the Society during the past year. The number of tubercular people was shown to be large and careful work has been done to ensure treatment and proper care. Wayward girls are a large group to which much thought has been given. Non-supporting and deserting husbands, widow, widowers, etc., were all considered and the excellent co-operation and spirit of good will between public and private agencies, churches and private individuals was especially mentioned.

The large amount of work done during the year is shown by the fact that 1775 calls were made on families, 728 persons called at the office, 1128 letters were written and 250 families were dealt with during the year. $182.73 was raised for relief purposes by the Secretary, outside of the generous aid given by other societies at the request of the Associated Charities.

The Secretary's report will be later given to the press for publication and it is expected that it will be included in the annual report to be published later in pamphlet form.

Following the applause which greeted her report Mrs. Armstrong said that Dr. Brackett had assured Mr. Armstrong that Miss Purchase was the best qualified to give just the kind of service that Quincy needed and Mr. King called for applause for that personal element which was given with enthusiasm.

Mrs. Sheppard expressing the appreciation and co-operation of the Women's club announced the gift of $100, which was also heartily applauded.

Opportunity was then given to meet Miss Purchase. Receiving with her were Thomas Fenno, Delcevare King president and vice president of the associated charities, Mrs. Frances Abele,and Mrs. Wilson Marsh of the Philanthropic committee of the Quincy Women's club.

Delightful music by Mrs. F. H. Corey, pianist and Theodore Corey, violinist added to the festivity of the reception.

Mrs. Henry M. Faxon and Mrs. George E. Pfaffmann presided at the tea urns and Mrs. Laurance H. Sturtevant over the bowl of Russian tea.

The ushers were Mrs. John O. Short Mrs. Frank Emery and Mrs. Walter E. Piper, assisted by the Katharyn Crane club.

At the regular meeting of the Board of Directors following a vote of thanks was passed to all those who had helped make the "At Home" so enjoyable an affair.

SMITH LEADS BURKE BY FIVE

Failure to Pick Up Spare in the Tenth String the Cause

The failure of Bernard Burke to pick up an easy spare and a strike in the ninth box of the tenth string gave Herbert Smith a five pin lead in the first leg if their special match for $100 at the Coliseum alleys Tuesday evening.

Smith's pinfall was 957 against 952 for Burke. The high strings of the evening were made by Burke who rolled 114 and 120. Smith's best string was 101. Burke held a steady lead from the third to the ninth string. It was his first individual match.

Fully 400 spectators watched the match. Many were in some way connected with the Fore River league which recently closed with Smith and Burke jockeying for high average.

Side bets have been made readily since the match was first arranged and aside from the $100 purse it is estimated that fully $500 rests on the results.

The final ten strings will be rolled at the Coliseum Thursday evening.

The score:

Smith—93 101 84 103 95 99 98 96 89 99. Total 957.

Burke—96 86 114 82 97 102 83 120 90 82. Total 952.

C. ENDEAVORERS CONGRATULATED

Organization of First Presbyterian Church Made Good

BANQUET AND INSTALLATION

The third annual banquet and installation of the Christian Endeavor Society of the First Presbyterian church was held Tuesday evening in the vestry of the church.

At eight o'clock the happy young people sat down at two long tables arranged in the center of the hall, under an arbor of red and white crepe paper. Directly over the guest table, which was extended across the front of the room, was a large monogran C. E. in the society colors, red and white. The tables were tastefully arranged and several bouquets of red and white carnations adorned them.

At each plate was placed a C. E. button with red and blue ribbons attached. These were favors given to each guest by Mrs. Matheson, wife of the pastor of the church. The menu cards were printed with red ink and displayed the following inviting repast:

Roast Spring Lamb
Dressing
Mashed Potatoes Green Peas
Jellies
Grape Currant
Salads
Tomato Lettuce
Rolls
Ice Cream Assorted Cake
Coffee Cocoa
After Dinner Mints.

After all had satisfied the inner nature with the many good things the president, A. Wendell Clark called the company to order. First on the program was the reading of reports by the secretary, treasurer and the chairmen of the various committees. All reports were interesting and showed that the society has just finished a most successful year and was prospering in every respect.

A short entertainment consisting of piano solos by Edna Milne, selections by the Heather Quartette, and reading by the president of the Junior Christian Endeavor, Beatrice Lamont.

Then came the installation of officers for the ensuing year. Rev. Mr. Matheson, the pastor, installed the following:

President—A. Wendell Clark.
Vice President—Margaret J. Michael Recording Secretary—Helen Kenn.
Corresponding Secretary — Mary Morrison.
Treasurer—Walter Morrison.

The chairmen of the various committees are:

Prayer Meeting—Ruth Kemp.
Lookout—Lillian McIntosh.
Social—Jessie Shirley.
Missionary—Mrs. Matheson.
Good Literature—Jean Crammon.
Music—Margaret Michael.
Flower—Edith Elrick.

Rev. Mr. Matheson acted as toastmaster and first called on president A. W. Clark, who made a few remarks on what the society had accomplished in the past, and urged all endeavorers to keep on with the good work so that the society would be second to none in the city. He thanked all for what they had accomplished in the past and anticipated as good if not better work in the future.

Alfred Bishop an honorary member also spoke of the good work of the society and said he always enjoyed being among the young people even if his name was on the honorary list.

Mrs. Matheson spoke of the persistency of the members in their excellent work and hoped that they would still move forward and be the leading C. E. society.

Rev. Mr. Matheson congratulated the members and said they were justly proud in the one great acomplishment of last year, that was the installing of the beautiful pipe organ. The society has worked hard for this and under the efficient and untiring efforts of Miss Margaret Shirley and A. W. Clark, the task had been completed. Both these faithful members were presented with bouquets expressing the sincere thanks of the society.

Mr. and Mrs. Matheson were also given bouquets expressing the love

COMPULSORY ARBITRATION OPPOSED BY PROGRESSIVE BIRD

Recent Candidate For Governor Gave Delightful Talk at First Parish Club

Expounded Original and Good Ideas of Treating Workmen

The last dinner of the season of the First Parish club was held Tuesday evening in the chapel of the First church. The meeting was unusually largely attended and a most interesting address was listened to from Chas. Sumner Bird, who was the Progressive candidate for Governor at the last state election.

As usual the members and guest gathered in the lower rooms soon after 6 o'clock and at 6.30 proceeded to the chapel where the dinner was served the evening opening with an invocation by Rev. Benjamin A. Willmott of the Bethany church. Those at the head table were Eben W. Sheppard, Rev. Benjamin A. Willmott, Brooks Adams, Charles Sumner Bird, Dr. Adelbert L. Budson, Luther S. Anderson, Col. Henry L. Kincaide and Robert E. Foy.

HON. CHARLES S. BIRD.
Speaker at First Parish Men's Club

The first business after dinner was the election of officers, and Messrs. Edward B. Marsh, H. Everett Crane and George W. Abele were appointed as tellers.

While the vote was being counted the annual reports of the various officers were read. The secretary reported six meetings during the past year with an average attendance of 150. The treasurer reported the receipts to have been $1,101 and the expenditures $1,009.55 leaving a balance of $91.45. These reports were accepted. A letter was read from the Board of Trade inviting the club to attend the special meeting Thursday evening and a rising vote of thanks was given to William B. Nichols who has so successfully looked after the gastronomic needs of the club during the year.

Dr. Hudson then spoke briefly of the debt of gratitude he owned to Brooks Adams for securing the speaker of the evening and who had been vitally interested in the club, and he would ask Mr. Adams to introduce the speaker.

Prolonged applause greeted Mr. Adams as he arose to speak. In opening said that he supposed they would not have this club if all were satisfied with the conditions as they prevailed. He would not discuss however what it was that made people uneasy. If we do not protect ourselves however we shall go down. Charles Sumner Bird he declared to be a man who was greatly interested in the country. He did not care so much what political party he represented, because he has been forced into politics as a part of his responsibility. He is one of the most successful business men of the Commonwealth, and who has come to realize that there are fundamental principles involved and that his responsibilities as such have increased correspondingly. Almost his first remembrance was of hearing, in his father's office, his father and Charles Sumner talking of Frank Bird, a Free Soiler. Mr. Bird he knew in after years pretty well. He was in a way a remarkable man. Extremely eccentric he had been interested in politics from his earlist days. He never asked for anything for himself, but he had done what he had done because he considered it his duty as a citizen. He sometimes changed his opinion and always changed to the right. He grew old and his son Charles Sumner Bird took his place. He deeply interested in his own affairs and for many years paid little interest to politics until the distress of circumstances became so great he had to give himself to these questions that are pressing for solution. What he wanted to hear was what a business man had to say of the problems that confront us. What concerns us most is that he is a man absolutely honest, who has left his business to serve his country. He then introduced Mr. Bird.

Many doubtless expected that Mr. Bird would make a political address but such was not his intention. His request when he accepted the invitation was that newspaper men should be excluded, as he did not care to be quoted. What he meant however was that he did not care to be quoted at this time in what he had to say about the state, for his remarks were very pertinent and would perhaps arouse some criticism. His views on state problems as he expressed them were very pronounced.

In opening he said that it was somewhat difficult for him not to make a strictly political speech as that was about all he had been making. Laws should be made for the good of the community. He then gave his views on some of the state matters. From this he touched upon the industrial problem. This he said was one of the greatest problems of the age. He was heartily opposed to child labor and it

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

The people who are loudest in their condemnation of the weather man because of the rain which interferes with base ball, will be glad to know that the great moisture the earth is drinking up now will mean better crops and greater ability to withstand the crushing drought and heat of the summer.

Henry M. Whitney has a few things to say to the Chamber of Commerce regarding its railroad policy which is worth noticing.

It is an ill wind that does not blow good for some one. The baseball magnates have lost money but the farmers look forward to big profits.

The telephone girls won a great victory and the best part of it was that good feeling prevailed upon all sides. The public is to be congratulated upon the outcome of the trouble which for a time looked so threatening.

The D. A. R. are holding their annual gathering in Washington. Just how it should be named is not quite clear as yet.

Belgians are giving the English suffragettes a lesson in seeking the right of suffrage.

With so many state and Boston police spared for Hopedale there arises a suspicion that both of those places are too heavily policed and a step in the way of economy could be made by reasonable reduction of both.

The man who says money is nothing has only to look to the Morgan funeral to show how little he knows about such things.

The pictures of the proposed new court house for New York, planned by a Boston architect are most pleasing to the eye. It's beauty will be unparralleled if it can be erected clean of that ever present graft situation in the metropolis.

Mr. Bryan is beginning to put that big "I" too much to the front. Mr. Bryan may have done a great deal for Bryan but history does not indicate any great things he has done for any one else.

Do the police really enforce the hatpin law? Well some would like to but they find more pleasure in warning the pretty wearers and as for the others they are given too wide a berth to do any harm.

The annual useless grind called a Marathon will be pulled off Saturday.

There is so much difficulty in establishing the strictly amateur standing that it would be as well to put them all in the pro ranks and commence a new slate. It is hardly likely much injustice would be done at that.

The latest Cunarder, the 50,000 tonner, is ready to be launched. May the matchless record of the company never be damaged.

New York has raised the salary of the mayor to $25,000. Wonder if there is anything in those high salaried positions offered a certain mayor which might influence a raise in his salary to retain him on the job?

If the germ of rheumatism has been discovered let it be passed around as rapidly as possible. There are many sufferers and few reliefs up to present writing.

HARDLY ADEQUATE EXPRESSION.

With all due respect to the public spirit of the gentlemen who attended the meeting at City Hall, Monday evening to discuss the grade crossing problem, the vote as recorded, 50 for depression and 15 opposed hardly gave a fair expression of opinion from the citizens in general. Out of a voting strength of over 6000 a total of 75 recording their opinion on an important measure such as that proposed can not be by the wildest stretch of the imagination be called an expression of opinion that could carry with it a great deal of weight. The attendance at the meeting was small. This shows one of many things, either indifference, a belief that any action would have no bearing upon the matter towards bringing about a change a silent approval of the plan prepared and presented or some other reasons.

Charges of interests and insinuations promptly met the fate they deserved. People should get over that point of view when they look upon every one disagreeing with them, as interested, having an axe to grind or to put it in the more forcible if inelegant language of the day, a grafter Other people are just as liable to have an honest difference of opinion as the one who is the loudest in crying fraud and in some cases, but a better case and cleaner. But that is not the point. The attendance at the meeting indicated that the citizens take very little interest and this will undoubtedly have some influence in the court deciding upon the decree as handed in.

PURE AMATEURS.

On the whole the really simon pure amateur in any sport department the present day is rather an uncertain quantity. That there are many real, live amateurs of course must be conceded, but on the other that there is an army of fakirs who are posing as amateurs, and making more money than they would in the porfessional ranks because of their ability and attraction as features at a big meet is equally true. And those violators of the laws of true sportsmanship are not wholly to blame. The promoter who provides the temptation is equally if not more to blame. The expense accounts of some of those styled amateurs who are sponging on the public, without the courage or fairness to come right out in the open and proclaim themselves would quickly remove any doubts as to their actual standing, were those accounts properly audited. These are matters which must be treated by the promoter and the performer. Possibly the appointment of a local commission in every city and town where amateur events are held to take charge of the financial arrangements, that is oversee them and know just where every dollar is spent would have a good effect and perhaps produce improved conditions.

Apropos of this amateur faking, it sometimes comes to pass that the amateur forgets and lets the cat out of the bag. At a recent athletic meet, a much tooted amateur champion who had defeated all aspirants for honors in his department in four states was willing to meet all comers.

His challenge was quickly accepted. The amateur wanted three months to train and insisted on a side bet of $100. A fair sample of much of the amateurism that is being handed out today.

WOMAN FOUND IN THE MEADOW

Hailed From Boston, Late Train Arrival, Recovered

A woman who gave the name of Mrs. Andrew Pirie was found lying in the meadow in the rear of the Old Colony laundry building off Hancock street early this morning. The woman was but partly conscious and a hurry call was sent for the police ambulance. She was taken to the police station where she was examined by City Physician Dr. John H. Ash. He found that the woman was not suffering to any great extent other than being chilled by being out all night. As near as the police could learn she came from Boston on the late train Monday night and wandered to the rear of the laundry building where she had remained until found. As the City Physician said that she was all right she was allowed to go to her home.

MR. SUTHERLAND'S VIEWS.

Editor Daily Ledger:—I see by the papers that another man has been killed by a railroad train at a crossing in Wollaston. These distressing accidents will continue until the grade crossings are abolished and the sooner we agree upon a plan the better. After careful and conscientious inquiry and consideration of all the facts, Ex. Gov. John L. Bates and his associates have reported in favor of a plan which, although not faultless offers the very best solution possible in view of all the conflicting rights and interests, and it is now up to the people of Quincy to approve this plan and let the work begin. The "depression" plan offered by G. B. Bates, although beautiful on paper, is out of the question in the mind of anyone who studies the entire situation. If the New Haven road were to carry on traffic only between Quincy street and Boston only, then the G. B. Bates plan would be ideal, but the trains must proceed to Braintree and beyond and it is conceded by all who have a proper understanding of the matter that there are no locomotives in this country powerful enough to force trains up the grade which would exist if the grade were lowered between Wollaston and Quincy street, as proposed.

It is too bad to have people go wild with enthusiasm over an impracticable and impossible project like this "depression" scheme, as the Board of Trade seems to be doing. Let us be reasonable and sensible and then the railroad commissioners will pay some attention to us.

H Hersey, Sidney Greenwood, James McCormack, Phill Savard Thomas Cotter M. Lyons, Thomas Lewis, Herbert Seldon, Thomas F. Flaherty, Chris Palli, J. J. Byron C. H. Finn, A. L. Dixon.

THEORY AND FACT

Once more a beautiful theory has collided with an ugly fact, with the usual result in such catastrophes. The eight-hour law was enacted for the navy on the theory that just as much work would be done in the shorter day. Now comes the report of the chief constructor of the navy and shows that the cost of three battleships built by contract was $177 per ton and that the cost of three under the eight-hour law is $215. Thus the law accomplishes what was intended although it fails to verify the theory. The law has made work, and has caused the payment of larger wages from tax money.

The results under the law will please those who procured the passage of the law. But what will the taxpayers think about it at a time when it is proposed so greatly to enlarge out naval construction? If we are to have a big navy, ought we to have bigger bills than are necessary? If that is a good thing, why not use the experience with the eight-hour law in favor of a six-hour law?—New York Times.

YOUNGSTERS MADE BIG HIT

'n Charming Operetta and Raisad Some Money

FOR DECORATIVE FUND

The foundation of the decorative fund for the new Adams School was established at Music Hall, Tuesday evening where a large number attended a mixed performance under the auspices of the Parent-Teachers Association.

The real feature of the evening was the presentation of the operetta, "Loyal Little Men and Women of the Revolution" by the children.

The "Mishaps of Minerva" also proved to be a source of genuine amusement to those present.

The operetta was due chiefly to the efforts of Miss Jennie F. Griffin who coached the children to perfection after she originated the idea.

The curtain arose on a circle of eight Virginians, four Rebels, four Puritan Maids and four Quakers. While rendering patriotic airs they formed circles, did simple steps and lanced a minuet.

Streamers of red, white and blue ribbon were caught up in the centre of the circle while they sang the Daughters of Liberty" song.

The hit of the evening was the Boston Tea Party, in which 22 girls and boys, dressed in Squaw and Brave costumes, marched onto the stage brandishing implements of warfare and seizing two chests of tea dragged them off to throw the contents into Boston Harbor. They received such an outburst of applause that they were obliged to give the scene again. One of the catchiest portions was the final song of each chorus, "The only tea that is good for me is good old liberty."

Then followed a tribute to Molly Pitcher and the operetta concluded with the origin of the flag. The girls stepped forward and in turn recited the details of its origin and closed by singing the national air while they waved silken flags in their right hands.

Evelyn Ellison of the seventh grade was the accompanist of the operetta and displayed remarkable skill for a 12 year old girl. She played without the score and was a big factor in the success of the operetta.

TRAVELING COOKING SCHOOLS

Club women are interested in the statement that the senate has passed a bill appropriating $20,000,000 for vocational schools, and it is intended to use a large part of this amount to encourage and educate young women to become competent housekeepers and housewives. Concerning this matter the New York Sun comments in this wise:

"The wife of the mechanic, and the factory worker, too, is entitled to receive the gospel of knowledge. The latter is too apt to want money in the purchase of canned food because she feels incompetent to prepare acceptable dishes for her husband. What a boon the vocational school would be to the toiling masses if the women could learn the nutritional value of different foods and their preparation to please the eye and the palate, and, if a man like Dr. Wiley directed the teachers.

The influence of proper selection and preparation of food on nutrition was demonstrated recently to the report of Sir George Newman, chief medical officers of the board of education of London, who stated that among 200,000 children he found malnutrition in 45 percent and that this malnutrition was due in the great majority of cases to ignorance of the relative value of foodstuffs and the means of using them economically. By all means let us have traveling cooking schools in town and country for the promotion of health and happiness among the toilers."

COMPULSORY ARBITRATION

was a horrible situation that existed in some of the southern cotton mills where young children were forced into the mills doing the work that should be done by men and women. What kind of a future generation may we expect from these children.

He also spoke of the great unrest of of the industrial classes which he believed was largely due to the want of a living wage. He cited a case in his own industry. He had entered this business of his father when a boy and had worked with the other employees in the twelve and thirteen hour shifts, that were then in force. In this way he had an opportunity to know the feelings of the working class, their likes and dislikes and had learned their views on the industrial problems.

Once on visiting one of his departments he had found the employees sad eyed and seeming to lack interest in their work. He had made a study and became convinced that it was because they were not receiving what is known as a living wage. He had been told by his superintendent that they were paying as high wages as other manufacturing companies in the same business. But that did not convince him that there was not something wrong. He had changed the condition. Later when again visiting this department he had found a wonderful change had taken place. The eyes of the workmen were bright and their faces bore a happy look.

This constant pulling apart of the employer and employee was working havic in the industrial world. He was not a believer in compulsory arbitration but a firm believer in compulsory investigation.

In this respect he believed in the Canadian system which had been found to work admirably for out of 95 cases only 15 had resulted in labor trouble. In this system an employer could not lock out his men and the men could not strike without thirty days previous notice. When this notice was given there was a board of arbitration wihch included one of the employers, one of the employees and a third to be appointed by these two. These men were familiar with the business and made a study, or investigation, of the conditions with the result as stated that out of 95 cases all but 15 had been settled without any trouble. He was a believer in a living wage for women and for men.

Compulsory arbitration he did not favor for he did not believe men in Boston were familiar with business conditions in some other part of the state so that they could arbitrate intelligently on the differences between the employer and employee.

Take for instance in a town not far distant there are two mills both doing the same line of business. In one of the mills the employer pays a living wage while in the other a living wage is not paid. The selling price of the product is the same for both. Now the only solution is that one man is willing to accept a small margin of profit or that by paying a living wage he is able to get more and better work from his employees.

There were many other important matters touched upon by the speaker in the half hour in which he talked and as he resumed his seat there were loud cries for more. Mr. Bird however said that half an hour was long enough for anyone to talk. He was given a rising vote of thanks for his interesting remarks.

Dr. Hudson then spoke briefly saying that every speaker that the club had listened to during the past winter had gone away with the impression that it had been one of their pleasantests evenings. Nearly every speaker in some part of his talk had referred to the need of co-operation, which was the fundamental work of the twentieth century. There had been a live fresh awakening spirit of co-operation. The club had resulted in a cohesion of the representative men of Quincy. A growing interest in the moral welfare of Quincy. No one could misjudge the club for there was no sect or creed lines but the club was on a religious basis. He believed that everything that is permanent is based on religion. There was need of the business and professional men to recognize and take an interest in the responsibilities of this fundamental idea of co-operation. As a result there has developed a spirit of cohesion, which has made those men who have addressed us go away with a feeling that it had been worth while coming here.

He did not desire the club to be looked upon as one to which it might be said that a man running for office must have its support to be elected. That would cheapen the club, but he would have it so that if a public official attempted to do wrong he would feel that behind the club was a moral power to right the wrong.

There should be a moral force that stands for good government that will make Quincy a good place to live in. We can so work that those who come after us will find a condition better than we found it. Dr. Hudson also spoke of the moral responsibility of the club for the men, women and children. A larger sense of responsibility, a larger realization, a moral responsibility that centres in awakening a religious interest in Quincy. It was important to know that the club has done much to make us know each other better. This has drawn out the best that there has been in the various speakers. He hoped that next year would not go by without each knowing the other still better.

Votes of thanks were then extended to the young men who had so faithfully served as waiters, and one more rising vote of thanks was extended to William B. Nichols who had prepared the dinners during the season.

At this time the tellers made their report on the election, with the result that the following officers were declared elected:

President—Adelbert L. Hudson.

Vice President—Clarence Burgin.

Secretary—Henry R. Holden.

Treasurer—C. Eaton Pierce.

Executive Committee—H. Everet Crane, Robert E. Foy, Samuel T. MacQuarrie, Walter E. Piper, Frederick H Smith, Jonathan S. Swingle.

The meeting then closed after which many stepped to the platform and personally greeted the speaker of the evening and the usual half hour social hour followed.

Second Assassination In Cienfuegos May Lead to New Revolt

Havana, April 16.—Jose Fernandez, a prominent Liberal politician, was shot and killed in the principal cafe at Cienfuegos. The shooting marks the first stage of the vendetta provoked by the assassination Saturday of Ceferino Mendez, who recently was elected Conservative mayor of Cienfuegos.

The Liberals are doing their utmost to make political capital out of the crime, declaring the administration is responsible for it and renewing their demands for the dismissal of Major General Monteagudo, commander-in-chief of the army, which they made during the last election, when he was accused of using the regular troops and rural guards to intimidate Liberal voters.

The Liberals intimate that if their demands are not acceded to their only resources is to start a revolution.

MITCHELL IS ELECTED

Beats Republican and Bull Moose In Congressional Fight

Boston, April 16.—John J. Mitchell, Democrat, was elected to congress in the Thirteenth district, receiving 12,991 votes. Albert L. Cutting, the Republican candidate, was second with 8843 votes, and Norman H. White, the Progressive candidate, was third with 5678 votes. The Democratic plurality was 4148.

The vote in the district last November was: John W. Weeks, Rep., 15,134; John J. Mitchell, Dem., 10,853; George Fiel, Prog., 5853.

The result of the election is considered to be an indorsement of the Democratic tariff bill and the administration of President Wilson. The tariff was made the issue by both the Republican and the Bull Moose candidates. Mitchell in his campaign asked support on the ground that his election would demonstrate confidence in the tariff plans of Wilson.

Don't Wait for the Wood to Show Before You Paint!

Postponing painting is like putting off payment of taxes. You are only piling up expense. The wise man paints often, so that there is always a protecting film of paint between his house and the elements. The more durable the paint, the less often this must be done.

The most durable paint in the world is

SPRING BRIDES OUTFITS.

The Wedding Veil and its Arrangement—Bridal Gowns and Trousseaux Fittings.

Spring weddings bring out all that is newest and prettiest in fashionable attire, for though at these functions one may don a tailored suit or fussy frock, it is safe to say that the costume will possess the smartest possible lines.

VEILS AND GOWNS.

Soft crepe finished silks in either plain or brocaded styles are first in favor for the wedding dress, though many other weaves are used. Family heir-looms in lace scarfs or shawls are used to advantage for the fashionable coats and draperies usually without need for cutting the dainty webs. The picture shows a smart design utilizing a lace shawl. The dress of plain charmeuse, the lace coat a separate garment, so that the dress is completely changed, when worn without this garment after the wedding. Nothing is prettier than a veil of tulle, and this is always worn with the edges unhemmed so that it melts into the folds of the dress. The cap arrangement is especially liked, and the little wreath of orange blossoms, or other flowers sets this off admirably. Bouquets of big bride roses combined with heather, or valley lilies with the regulation shower attachment as shown in the cut are generally carried, though tight, old style nosegays surrounded by lace frills, or long sheaf shaped arrangements are sometimes preferred. These latter are often used by bridesmaids when the bride carries the regulation bouquet. Baskets of flowers are particularly suited to the blossoms of this season, daffodils, narcissus, primroses and the like.

The above designs are by The McCall Company, New York, Designers and Makers of McCall Patterns.

HANDSOME SUITS.

Some of the prettiest suits made up for spring trousseaux are of faille silk or moire velours, both excellent wearing fabrics very rich in appearance. Even with the draped styles now used it takes a comparatively small amount of material for such suits, and as they can be worn almost anywhere they are not an extravagant choice for quite a modest outfit. Silk serges and Bedford whales are also in excellent vogue for suits or street frocks. Many women prefer the latter type of costume, though this necessitates a smart extra wrap, which this season can be had in an infinite variety of styles and materials, and at all sorts of prices.

SPRING COATS.

This year when odd coats and skirts are more the rule than the exception, the girl who prefers tailormade outlines to the dolman lines on which most of the new wraps are built, can utilize a regulation suit style of coat with ever her fussiest frocks, though the fancy coat with such dresses, seems to accord better. Broadcloth, serge, ratine and newest of all matlasse weaves of silk and wool in figured patterns, are all in the running for Spring coats and wraps. Linings while often in self color, are apt to be in gorgeous patterns in striking contrasting tints. Orange and other yellows, purples, corals, and flame colored satins, are especially popular with gray, black, or mastic cloth garments. Nothing is too gorgeous for these linings for which even the upholstery designs of parrots and other tropical printings are employed, but these would very soon grow tiresome, unless the wrap was worn only for a short time, and are not therefore to be recommended.

NEW JEWELRY.

The old time ring with an attachment for holding the lace handkerchief is one of the popular revivals, that makes an acceptable wedding present. Bracelet watches, while not so new, are still faddish and silver card cases hung on chains are used both for cards and change. Necklaces enameled in the Oriental colorings now called "Balkan" are very desirable, and everyone almost needs or desires a pair of stunning slipper buckles of cut steel or silver.

COTTON FROCKS.

No trousseau but has its complement of cotton frocks, and here the woman who must count her pennies, is able to compete successfully, with her more opulent sister. "Bontex" cotton dress fabrics represent the latest and most fashionable weaves, colorings, and designs and can be recognized by the fact that the name always appears on the selvage. If the name is not there the material is not a Bontex. Some of the cotton ratines with this imprint, selling for very moderate prices, make up into gowns that anyone would be proud to wear, and there are brocaded silk and cotton mixtures, zephyrs, poplins, voiles and bordered goods all in the smartest designs of the present season.

POPE PIUS' END DRAWING NEAR

May Not Live to See Dawn of Thursday, Says Doctor

SUFFERS ALARMING RELAPSE

Pontiff Realizes It Is His Last Illness and Does Not Complain—Bronchial Tubes Seriously Affected—Official Preparations For Administering Last Rites at the Vatican

Rome, April 16.—Pipe Pius is experiencing what one of his physicians, at least, believes to be his last struggle with disease. The pontiff is not expected to live until the dawn of tomorrow.

The encouraging symptoms of yesterday morning turned last evening to alarming signals. The cardinals have been notified to be in readiness for the final summons.

There have been several incidents which show that the optimistic officials of the Vatican can no longer resist the conviction that the end is near.

It is not thought the pope will die this morning, but Dr. Amici after leaving the bedside for a few moments to speak to a friend said gravely: "I fear his holiness will not see the dawn of Thursday."

Professor Marchiafava was expected to visit the pope at midnight but did not do so. He will not go to the Vatican again unless summoned. The pontiff realizes that this is his last illness. He is serene and does not complain of any suffering. He submits calmly to the inhalations and injections and shakes his head sadly when efforts are made to feed him. It is said the only danger of immediate death arises from suffocation.

It was learned that the original evening bulletin issued by the doctors contained the phrase "expectoration diminished" when delivered to Cardinal Merry Del Val, the papal secretary of state. This was cut out in the bulletin as printed in the Osservatore Romano, the official organ of the Vatican.

The pope's cough is dry and persistent and his weakness is increasing. At 10 o'clock last night his temperature was 102 Fahrenheit. Drs. Amici and Cagiati were administering inhalations and hypodermic injections. Oxygen tubes are keut in a room adjoining the pope's bedroom.

The doctors admit that a bacteriological examination of the sputum excretions confirms the report that the influenza is of an infectious character and has provoked inflammation, which is now spreading to the lungs.

Mgr. Dominic, the pope's private chamberlain, last night drove to the residence of Cardinal Vannutelli, the pope's confessor, to warn him of the possibility of his being summoned to the Vatican later if the pope's condition became worse.

Mgr. Parolin, the pope's nephew, urged Merry Del Val to hasten the administration of the last sacraments, but the doctors pointed out that the pope could not retain the viaticum in his present condition. He could not retain it even if her were able to swallow the wafer. Moreover, in his present state the administration of the sacrament would be bound to cause deep emotion and would be apt to hasten his death. On the other hand, in case of a sudden emergency the sacrament could be administered by any of the prelates in attendance on the pontiff.

NO TRACE OF MARTIN

But British Detectives Think Memphis Cotton Broker Is Alive

London, April 16.—The Scotland Yard officials and Burns, the American detective, appear to be no nearer a solution of the mystery of the disappearance of Joseph W. Martin, the Memphis cotton broker.

Even women crystal gazers, who offered supposed clues, were patiently examined, but out of the endless chain of alleged clues to Martin, both dead and alive, all proved worthless, and although the police view is stronger than ever that Martin still lives, no evidence of any kind is yet available.

SCALE OFFERED TO 'PHONE GIRLS

Far More Satisfactory to Them Than Bonus System

INCREASE IN EFFECT JUNE 1

Company Grants Operators Objectionable Anniversary Payments In Form of Weekly Payments—Raise In Pay Also Given Younger Employes—Some Criticism by Bugniazet

Boston, April 16.—International Vice President Bugniazet of the Electrical Workers' union, who has been leading the threatened strike of the telephone operators, believes a victory has been won by the union and that this will have its effect not only in Boston but all over New England.

Bugniazet is not satisfied wholly with the new agreement as proposed by the company. He desires to know whether the split trick, which was one of the things objected to by the operators, is compulsory or voluntary. The new agreement does not show this.

Another point with which Bugniazet finds fault is the lack of mention of the lunch hour. In the first agreement the company offered the girls an hour for lunch in place of the forty-five minutes in operation. This and the fact that the new agreement does not mention the clerks Bugniazet believes may be an oversight on the part of the telephone company that will be easily remedied.

Attorney Powers, counsel for the telephone company, visited the rooms of the state board of arbitration and conciliation. Bugniazet later visited the state board's offices and was given a copy of the agreement. Meetings of the union will be called to take action on the agreement.

Waiving all technicalities, the New England Telephone and Telegraph company voluntarily offered the 2200 girls in the metropolitan Boston district a higher wage scale in place of the bonus system which the girls recently rejected. Under the new plan of the company the girls will be paid more money weekly instead of receiving a lump sum at the end of the year.

The girls are more satisfied with this arrangement than the one previously offered by the company. The action of the company was unexpected, and came as a surprise to the telephone operators, some of whom saw visions of a strike looming before them.

Under the new arrangement girls will receive $8 a week at the end of the first year, $9 a week at the end of 1½ years, $10 at the end of 2½ years, $11 after four years and $12 after six years. This applies to ordinary operators. Other operators who have higher places in the service will receive from $10 to $25 a week. The increase goes into effect June 1.

For more than five hours the chamber of commerce committee worked on the matter of bringing a complete adjustment to the telephone situation. The committee had heard the objections of the operators toward the compromise agreement on the previous evening and with this in hand visited the telephone company officials.

The success of the arbitrators became known when bulletins were sent to all exchanges to be posted by the traffic department announcing the concession made.

The dispatch intimates that Guild is charged with having exceeded his instructions in an attempt to negotiate a new commercial treaty between Russia and the United States.

Guild has been granted two months' leave of absence upon his own application. This was requested because of illness, he having suffered severely from abscesses in the ears, and it is understood at the department that he will go to a German cure for treatment.

Colonel TODHUNTER of Missouri

By RIPLEY D. SAUNDERS

Copyright, 1911, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company.

SYNOPSIS

Colonel Todhunter booms his friend William J. Strickland for the nomination for governor. Tom Strickland, son of William, loves Mary Todhunter. Lottie-May Doggett loves Tom.

Stamford Tucker pays attention to Mary. He and Tom are rivals. They clash at the Todhunters'.

A political rally of Strickland's supporters is interrupted by the Yancey men, led by Stam. His father, Eph Tucker, is Yancey's main supporter in Nineveh.

Colonel Todhunter laughed. "I ain't forgettin' nothin'," he responded. "And don't you forget that old Eph Tucker was a note shaver long before he was a politician, and he's got note shavin' in his blood bigger'n a mule. He couldn't no more let a good piece of paper get away from his bank than he could fly, and angels'll have to be mighty scarce before old Eph Tucker does any flyin'."

Nevertheless when Colonel Todhunter presented the Strickland note, indorsed by him and with his unencumbered farm as collateral, for discount he found old Eph Tucker solicitously inquisitive.

"What's it all about, Colonel Todhunter?" the banker asked. "You and Bill Strickland going in together on some business deal? What's the consideration for the note?"

Colonel Todhunter looked old Tucker square in the eyes. "Eph," he replied, "I'm goin' to play my cards face up on the table. Bill Strickland needs money to pay his campaign expenses. That's why I'm indorsin' his note and askin' this bank to discount it."

Old Tucker's little eyes narrowed. "And you're gettin' no good out of it yourself?" he asked, studying Colonel Todhunter curiously. "You're lending

"We'll discount the note. It's your funeral, not ours."

your credit and risking your farm just to help Bill Strickland along in politics?"

"That's what I'm doin', Eph," replied Colonel Todhunter.

"Then," said the banker, "you're a bigger fool than I took you for. Bill Strickland ain't good for $100 with this bank."

"He's good for any amount with me, Eph," returned Colonel Todhunter, a sudden menace in his tone. "But that ain't the question. Is this note good as it stands now?"

"Bill Strickland don't stand no more show for the nomination than a rabbit," spoke old Tucker. "He'll never get his hands on the governor's salary, if that's what you're counting on, Colonel Todhunter."

"Eph," said Colonel Todhunter, "I'll look out for that end of the business. All I want you to do is to pass on this here note."

"Colonel Todhunter," replied the banker, "the indorsement and the collateral make this note good, and it's a banker's business to buy good paper. We'll discount the note. It's your funeral, not ours."

"That finishes the business then," said Colonel Todhunter. "I ain't worryin' about any funerals. But if you're a-countin' on either Bill Strickland or me furnishin' the corpse, Eph, you're goin' to see one of the liveliest corpses you ever seen in all your born days, suh."

The old banker made no reply.

Colonel Todhunter was chuckling when he reported to Colonel Strickland. "It's all right, Bill, and you can get back to St. Louis right away," he said. "I got the money from old Eph Tucker. But, great Scott and Maria, it was worse'n pullin' eyeteeth! All the same we got it, and now we'll proceed to lick old Eph with his own money."

But Colonel Todhunter would not have spoken so confidently if he had heard the gloating speech of President Tucker of the Nineveh National bank a moment or two after his own departure from that institution.

"The two helpless fools!" muttered old Eph Tucker to himself. "I've got 'em both where I want 'em now. We'll ruin Bill Strickland for good and all this time. We'll wipe him off the political map of Missouri. And as for old Thurston Todhunter, I'll make such a lame duck out of him yet that the only Todhunter who can ever live on that farm of his again will have to marry a Tucker to do it—like I'll make Mary Todhunter marry my son Stam before I'm through with her."

CHAPTER VII.

Colonel Todhunter Cuts a Wide Swath in Missouri's Metropolis.

TO Colonel Todhunter, a countryman born and bred and of an innate rusticity of soul that was an essential part of his being, contact with the throbbing life of a big city was so rare and foreign picturesque unlikeness to the urban that it never failed to emphasize his type. He stalked into the busy St. Louis headquarters of the Hon. William J. Strickland on the parlor floor of the Laclede hotel, the living embodiment of that political figure dear to the amused metropolitan imagination, "the delegate from the rural districts." It was a brave and honest face that showed itself in Colonel Bill Strickland's private office, but somewhat dismayed at thought of an impending ordeal.

"I'll just be eternally whipsawed if you ain't a-tryin' to make a round peg fit into a square hole, Bill!" he protested earnestly, something like awe of his surroundings stamped upon his sunburned features. "I'm willin' to do most anything in the world for you, and you know it. But when you turn me loose in a big town like this and expect me to behave like anything more'n a wall eyed plow horse with his tail full o' cockleburs I'll be everlastin'ly condemned if you ain't makin' a mighty serious mistake, suh!"

"Nonsense, Thurs!" laughed Colonel Strickland. "I'm counting on you for some St. Louis speeches that'll be worth their weight in gold, my friend. We need you here, sir—a man that talks old fashioned American Democracy straight from the shoulder. City politicians have forgotten what the real Democratic doctrine is, Thurs, and we've got to revive it in the people's hearts if we expect 'em to vote right. That's why I want you to help me open my St. Louis campaign. You've got to do it, Thurs!"

Colonel Todhunter gazed at his friend pensively. "Bill," he said, "I'm a-goin' to do it, as you well know. I'd strip the shirt off'n my back and head a percession wavin' it for a Strickland banner if you asked me to, whether I thought it was the best thing to do under the circumstances or not. But I bid you remember, Bill, that I warned you in time. It'll be your fault if you have occasion to regret havin' brought me in from the pasture and stacked me up against these here bang tailed city thoroughbreds, suh!"

"I'll take the chances, old fellow," said the candidate, his eyes twinkling. "You just oblige me now for old friendship's sake and I'll be responsible for everything that happens afterward. I ain't the least bit afraid."

"I'll eat my hat if I don't wish I could say the same, suh!" ejaculated Colonel Todhunter, a vehement panic in his tone. "I'm skeered to the marrow, suh, because I'm out o' my bailiwick and up against a proposition that I don't know any more about 'n a hog knows about a holiday, suh. And you're a-goin' to discover, suh, before we get through with this piece of foolishness that I had mighty good reasons for bein' skeered too."

"Shucks, you old warhorse!" laughed Colonel Bill Strickland. "Once you get into the fight you'll warm up like a two-year-old and show these St. Louis folks what a real Missouri Democrat is. You're going to make the hit of your life, sir!"

"Maybe I am and maybe I ain't, Bill Strickland," quoth Colonel Todhunter moodily. "But all I ask at the finish is that you'll remember it wa'n't me that made the prediction, suh. I'm a natural born optimist, suh, but that don't necessarily mean that I'm a natural born jackass at all times and under all circumstances and on all subjects, as some folks seem to think, suh!"

And in this frame of mind Colonel Todhunter returned into the general headquarters offices and was introduced to his Nineveh friend's St Louis backers and campaign staff.

A quiet young newspaper man who happened to be drifting through the rooms seemed instantly impressed by Colonel Todhunter's picturesque personality. He studied the colonel intently, a growing appreciation in his thoughtful and latently humorous eyes.

After exchanging a few words with this new addition to the Strickland forces the journalist went into one of the private telephone booths at the end of the reception room and called up his paper. Then he came back to Colonel Todhunter, engaging him in conversation. A few minutes later a second man casually appeared and unobtrusively stationed himself where he had a good front view of the colonel, who was being deftly led into political dissertation by his new acquaintance.

Colonel Bill Strickland, passing through the main room at one moment, saw the two with their heads together. Something like a gleam of laughter leaped into his eyes, and he nodded, almost imperceptibly, an approving signal to Colonel Todhunter's companion. Then, for an hour or more, the two were left undisturbed.

They chatted pleasantly on many topics. The colonel himself was led to talk discursively on the political situation in Missouri, the distinctive types of party leaders in the country districts, his own personal views and ample reminiscences of past campaigns in the state, his quaint valuation of Democracy's great historic figures. He was in reality being trapped into a self revelation. Behind his talk, animating it and shining though its unsuspecting frankness and utter naturalness, appeared the childlike and simple soul of the speaker, presented with absolute unreserve. The colonel's companion was the most appreciative of listeners, and as he listened a light of whimsical regard deepened in his eyes.

"But I'm a-takin' up a heap of your time, suh!" exclaimed the colonel finally. "I reckon you city newspaper men have to trot around after news till your tongue's a-haugin' out of your mouth a yard long. You mustn't let me keep you from other things, suh."

"Not at all, Colonel Todhunter," came the quick response. "It's been well worth while, sir. I intend using some of your talk, if you have no objection, so you're really helping me out, you know."

The colonel looked at his companion pityingly. "You're wastin' your powder, young man. I can talk by the hour, but what I say ain't got no more business bein' printed in a great city newspaper 'n a whiff o' wind a-rustlin' the dry leaves in the woods, suh. You better be mighty careful, tryin' to make somethin' worth while out o' them there observations of mine. Your folks at the paper 'll think you're worse'n a old huntin' dog that goes skyhootin' off licketysplit after a rabbit when it's pa'tridges they was a-countin' on him to p'int, suh."

The newspaper man leaned back and laughed zestfully. "Colonel, I'm willing to take the chances on that if you are. And I'll leave it to you tomorrow afternoon if I don't know what's worth while when I see it, sir. You've given me a crackerjack talk on Missouri politics, and I'm very much obliged to you colonel."

RAILROAD RATE MEASURE REJECTED

Boston and Maine Must Have More Liberal Terms

Concord, N. H., April 16.—The measure recommended by the special legislative committee which has been considering the railroad rate question in this state was rejected by the legislature and the committee was instructed to report a new measure, giving the Boston and Maine railroad more liberal terms and the railroad commission more discretion in fixing rates.

As reported by the committee, the bill would have required the Boston and Maine and the state to agree upon a new schedule of rates to be prepared by the public service commission, and to go into effect July 1 of the present year, none of the rates to be in excess of those now charged.

The resolution calling for a new bill was adopted, 179 to 138, after the legislature had debated the question all day.

CHAMPIONSHIP GAMES TONIGHT

Church and South Shore Basket Ball Teams in Finals

PLAYERS IN FINE FETTLE

Two leagues, (basket-ball) will settle their championship titles tonight at the local Y. M. C. A. gym. The South Shore League composed of Clapp Memorial of Weymouth, N. Abington, Brockton, Rockland, Franklin, Braintree Civic and Union A. C. of Weymouth had a most exciting finish, the result depending on the game last Saturday night at Abington when the Braintree Civic Club played against Abington: if Braintree had won the game the Championship would have gone to Clapp Memorial, but Abington won the game by a large margin and the title now rests between Clapp and Abington. The weight limit of these teams is 135 lbs and both teams are in fine condition: both teams have been accustomed to play on small floors where the passing game is best developed and some fine team work should be shown tonight.

Bethany Sunday School as represented by the K. O. K. A. team will line up against the First Presbyterian five in what undoubtedly will be the best game of the Sunday School League series. Each team has defeated the other once, both games being close, Bethany having won the first game by the score of 10 to 8 and the Presbyterians having won last Saturdays game by 8 to 7.

PARENTS AND TEACHERS.

Albert L. Barbour, superintendent of schools will address the Parents-Teachers' Association of the Coddington school in the school hall this evening. His topic will be "Public Education and Public Expenditure." The committee has arranged an entertainment program and among those taking part will be Miss Beatrice Griffin of Randolph, a violinist and Miss Gladys Flieger, soprano soloist. Refreshments will follow the meeting.

STAGE "LION" HAS A NARROW ESCAPE

Badly Injured by Coming In Contact With Real Beast

Kansas City, April 6.—Cleve Brown, an actor who has been donning the skin of a lion in a sketch founded on the "Beauty and the Beast" tale, narrowly escaped death at Kansas City, Kan.

Brown, in his animal make-up, replaces on the stage a real lion that is shown to the audience. The change is made by a trick shift in the scenery by a helper at a signal. The helper pulled a lever too soon and Brown was tumbled to the stage with the lion.

The real lion seized the intruder. Out of the skin backward to safety went Brown, but not until he was severely injured by the lion's claws. Brown will not be able to resume his role for some time.

DYNAMITE IN COAL

Thirty-Six Sticks of Explosive Found on Locomotive Tender

Concord, N. H., April 16.—A fireman on the yard shifter at the Boston and Maine shops found in the tender of his locomotive, under the coal, a bag which he withheld from the fire at the suggestion of Engineer Morey that its contents be disclosed before burning.

On opening the bag it was found to contain thirty-six sticks of dynamite, enough of the explosive to fill a large water pail.

It is thought the dynamite came through with the coal from the mines, and an effort to trace the shipment is now being made.

DOUBTS ITS USEFULNESS

Public Drinking Cup Bill Is Vetoed by Governor of Massachusetts

Boston, April 16.—That there was serious doubt as to whether the introduction of the patented individual drinking cup had served its purpose was the statement of Governor Foss in a veto message which he sent to the legislature on the bill prohibiting the use of common drinking cups in public places.

Governor Foss further declares the present statute has resulted in a great decrease in the consumption of water and that it favors the use of other beverages less desirable from the standpoint of public health.

A New Story About the Great Caliph

By RUTH GRAHAM

In the city of Bagdad many years ago, when the good old Caliph Haroun-al-Raschid was going about in disguise to see how his subjects were getting on, that he might supply their deficiencies, right their wrongs and be of general service to them, he one evening passed by the shop of a money changer who was looking very lugubrious.

"What troubles you?" asked the caliph, who was dressed in the garb of a vender of dates and had on his arm a basket containing the fruit.

"What need to tell you, a poor date seller?" replied the other. "You have an honest and sympathetic countenance, but you cannot help me."

"Not with money surely," replied the caliph, "but with advice."

"Ah," said the money changer, "there is a great deal more advice in the world than of money! Any one can give advice. I am overrun with it, especially about my children. There's not one of my neighbors who cannot tell me just how to train them, though, I confess, those who are most explicit in their instructions have never had any children of their own."

The caliph was much impressed with this information, which was new to him, for no one would dare give him advice as to the training of his children. "Tell me your trouble," he said to the money changer, "and if I do not help you I will give you all the dates I have in my basket." So he told the caliph what grieved him.

"I change money. I lend money," he said, "and I receive money to keep for others which I loan again at interest. This morning three men came in, each with a hundred pieces of gold they wished me to keep for them. I took the money and signed a receipt for it which they had drawn up, and by its terms I was obliged to pay the gold to them all together and not to any one of them separately.

"Soon after they had gone away one of them returned saying that he wished to count the money, for he feared there were not the 300 pieces I had receipted for, because, after leaving, one of his party had said: 'That man is a fool. I gave him for my share only eighty pieces of gold, and he will have to pay me a hundred pieces.'

"I took the gold from my strong box and laid it on the table before this honest man, and while we were counting it there came a knock at the door. There stood the two other depositors, who said to me: 'If our third man comes to you and asks you to let him count the money we left you do not permit him. He is a rogue.' I told them I would be very careful and tried to get away from them to go back to the man with the gold, but they insisted on telling me why they suspected their colleague. And by the time they had finished and I got back to the room where I had left him he had gone with the money, having stepped out through a window into the street.

"He had not been gone long before the other two men came back and said they had an opportunity to use their funds and demanded that I should return them their deposit. I have not so much on hand; besides I must eventually lose 300 pieces of gold. They have cited me to appear before the judge tomorrow, and since I cannot return their deposit I shall be sent to jail."

When the caliph had heard this story he frowned that there should be such rascals in Bagdad. But the matter was one of law, and the good man never interfered with legal processes except in wise judgments like Solomon of old. "I will not give you any advice," he said to the money changer, "and since I must keep my contract I will leave my dates with you. But you will see me at the court tomorrow, and I think I know a way to help you."

The money changer did not wish to keep the dates, but the caliph would not take them away with him.

The next day, when the money changer went to court, whom should he see on the judge's bench but the date vender to whom he had confided his story. The two men who had demanded their money entered, and the judge told them to make known to him their complaint against the money changer. They told the same story as the latter, whereupon the judge called for the receipt which had been given for the gold. Having read it, he asked of the complainants:

"Where is the third man to whom the money is to be paid?"

"We do not know. He has made off with it, but that is not our fault. It is the fault of the money changer, of whom we demand the return of our dues."

"This receipt," said the judge, "compels the money changer to return the funds left with him to all the depositors and not to any one or two of them separately. Bring the other man and he will repay you."

The two men hung their heads and made no reply.

"I believe," continued the caliph, "that you are as dishonest as he, but I cannot prove it or I would send you to prison." Then, turning to the money changer, he said, "If these men trouble you again appeal the case to the caliph, Haroun-al-Raschid."

The judge stepped down from the bench, and as he went out to the street a number of slaves who were waiting for him bowed down their heads before him. The money changer asked who he was and was told that he was the caliph himself.

HORSE BOLTED, KEITH THROWN RECEIVED SEVERE SKULL INJURY

John Steward in the Team Also Thrown But Escaped Unhurt

Now and Spirited Horse Then Dashed Up Hancock Street

Heverlock Keith of 156 Watterson avenue was seriously injured and John Stewart of Wollaston avenue his companion had a narrow escape from serious injury about 6.30 Tuesday night when the horse which Mr. Keith was driving became unmanageable and dashed the buggy into a telephone pole near the corner of Hancock and Walnut street.

Mr. Keith and Mr. Steward were driving out from Boston in a buggy with a spirted horse. When near the corner of the two streets mentioned the horse became unmanageable and dashed the buggy against the pole.

Both men were thrown out. Mr. Stewart escaped without injury but Mr. Keith was thrown in such a manner that he struck on his head and was rendered unconscious. He was attended by Dr. D. A. Bruce of Atlantic, who found that his skull had been injured. The police ambulance was called and the injured may taken to his home.

This morning at his home it was said that Mr. Keith was still unconscious but that he moved around somewhat which led the watchers at his bedside to believe that he will soon recover.

Freed from restraint the horse dashed up Hancock street and for quite a stretch had the road all to himself. After running quite a distance he was stopped. The wagon and harness were wrecks.

LARGEST GUARANTEED CIRCULATION IN THE CITY

Vol. 28 No. 91 QUINCY, MASS., THURSDAY EVENING, APRIL 17, 1913 PRICE TWO CENTS

PLAN TO SAVE SCHOOL STREET FROM GOING OUT OF BUSINESS

Street Starting Under Tracks From Mcdonnell and Stetson Property

Will Open Up A Lot of Land For Development Which Means More Taxes

One of the main arguments against the decree plans for abolishing the grade crossing at Water street is the School street bridge, which under the plans submitted by the special commissioners practically puts this part of School street out of commission.

One of the solutions for this problem is for a street starting from or near the McDonnell and Stetson property on School street thence under the tracks near what was formerly known as the slaughter house thence curving to the left so as to intersect Marsh street. In conection with this proposition is the building of a new street from this way across the vacant land to Granite street and a still further new way to connect with Hancock street near the Music hall property.

It is argued that these new ways will open up a lot of vacant property which can be put on the market and the increased value in taxes to the city will more than pay for the cost of building these streets.

There is still another solution to this problem about which but little has been said although it has been mentioned. That is where the tracks go under School street to have them raised still higher than contemplated under the decree plan so that School street may be lowered so as to pass under the tracks.

This would of course mean damages to some of the estates on each side of School street but as there are no very valuable buildings to be affected the expense for damages would not be exceptionally large. This proposition would give a level street from near the McDonnell property to near the property formerly owned by the St. John's society on the westerly side of the bridge. There are a few old houses on each side of the bridge that would be left up in the air as well as the present police station but the expense and damages as stated above would not be heavy.

SKIPPED WITH $16 IN MONEY

Little Claimed That Alley Owed it to Him for Wages

MONTH SENTENCE SUSPENDED

Charles H. Little was arrested in Boston Wednesday on a warrant issued in 1911 for the larceny of $16 from Nathaniel E. Alley, the Wollaston expressman. It is claimed that in October 1911. Mr. Alley sent Little to Boston with his team giving him $16 with which to make a payment on a horse which he had purchased on the installment plan. It is claimed that instead of paying the money to the party as directed, Little put the money in his pocket and leaving the horse and wagon on Kneeland street, skipped. The team was later picked up by the police and returned to the owner. A warrant for Little's arrest was issued at that time but it was not until a day or so ago that Capt. McKay located him in Boston and Wednesday he placed him under arrest. In court this morning Little claimed that Mr. Alley owed him the money wor wages and as he could not get his pay he had taken the $16.

His present employer came to Quincy and was ready to make restitution of the money and the court then imposed a sentence of one month in the house of correction with sentence was suspended until Dec. 19.

The United Order of the Golden Cross Instituted a New Commandery last evening in Electa hall. The Commandery was organized by H. L. Berry, D. G. The commandery was instituted by Walter Powers Grand Commander and Walter G. Crowthers Grand Keeper of Records, assisted by Visiting Knights and ladies from other commanderies. The name adapted for the New Commandery was Dorothy Quincy.

The following officers were elected

Past Noble Commander—George S. Williams.

Noble Commander—Charles H. Finn.

Noble Keeper of Records—Edward McCall.

Financial Keeper of Records—Lady Adalaid Bernier.

Worthy Treasurer—Albert Smith

Lady Frances Murray was appointed Pianist.

The election of the balance of the officers was then laid upon the table and the meeting was adjourned subject to the call of the Deputy and Noble Commander as soon as all applicants could be properly notified. The time and place of regular meetings will probably be the first and third Wednesday of eac h month in Electa hall.

GUARDIAN DEFENDS GIRL

Open Letter From Mr. Tobey About Flora V. Sass

Editor Daily Ledger:

Some months ago I was asked to act as guardian of a fatherless girl, and to protect her from the foul breath of slander. I had known her for several years, and as she was about the age of my only child, the call of duty was too strong to be refused. It was apparent that for some motive a mountain was being made of a mole-hill, and that a very few slight indiscretions had been used as the basis of remarks reflecting upon my ward's character.

In her defence, to make assurance double sure, I appealed to my old friend Dr. Julia Morton Plummer, for advice, and at the urgent request of judicious friends of mine publish her reply.

"To Whom it May Concern:

This is to certify that we have this day examined Miss Flora V. Sass, and find her to be beyond all possible doubt a virgin inviolate.

(Signed)

Caroline E. Hastings, M. D.
Julia Morton Plummer, M. D.
206 West Brookline Street, Boston, Mass., April 11, 1912."

The magistrates jurat is omitted.

Last week I asked Dr. Plummer if she would testify to the contents in the affidavit in court. She readily assented, and suggested that a second examination should be made. This was done, and her report of April 10th, 1913, simply reaffirms the affidavit.

With this clear, definite, positive fact, a halt must be called upon the comments reflecting on the character of my ward. Any further defamation of her character will be remedied in court.

It may be added that Miss Sass was summoned by the attorneys for the defence, who for some unknown reason failed to put her on the witness stand to give the testimony she was anxious to give. Dr. Plummer stood ready to testify to the contents of her affidavit. So I appealed to the presiding Judge through the plaintiff's attorneys for the testimony of both, but he advised against it, on the ground, as I understood it, that no evidence has been presented in his court to make this necessary.

Rufus B. Tobey,
Guardian of Flora V. Sass.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

The government officials are bound not to take Dr. Freidmann on trust. He must produce to be allowed to practice in this country.

The result of the election in the thirteenth district is quite significant when considered in connection with the interests at stake. It tells its own story of what the people want.

A CRUEL WEAPON.

Slander is the most cruel and deadly of weapons. It is the favorite mode of attack of the unscrupulous, treacherous and deceitful. There is no escape from its venomed fangs once it is started on its round. The slanderer is a person to be shunned. Such people are menaces to a community and to the good name of every one in it.

The man who assaults you on the street, the footpad who tries to rob you, any and all attacks leave certain means by which some defense may be offered, either successfully or otherwise. And even if unsuccessful the injury is only temporary. A bruise will heal with time. Your valuables may be recovered or replaced. You can have many ways of squaring accounts and the incidents are closed.

But with slander it is different. There is really no adequate or sufficient mode of defense. The slander may be denied and in good truth, but the slander will still circulate its foul flavor and there is no way of removing the obnoxious odor completely.

It is a pity and a shame, but such is the fact however much we may try to feel that there is some chance of recovery from the bitter and nasty sting that will rankle.

THE PENSION GAME.

The pension game is growing to such proportions in municipalities and not only in municipalities but in the national routine that there is felt a certain amount of concern among the thinking people as to where it will stop. That its advancement has been rapid and along gigantic lines is quite evident.

It has been pointed out that although the civil war is over 50 years behind us and the number of veterans daily lessening in number that the national pension appropriation is growing larger instead of smaller. That is not to be wondered at when the pension figures are taken into consideration. The pittance which a soldier of the civil war receives for the munificent pay of $13 per month which he received for the privilege of being shot at is probably small when averaged with the pensions paid retired officers and officials. Those latter have been receiving big pay and when retired are awarded amounts which make them quite independent and able to live in luxury for the balance of their lives. On their salaries they should have been able to lay up something. The pay of a soldier would hardly be sufficient to permit of a laying by much for a rainy day.

Again those officials who are retired usually engage in some lucrative employment which nets them a tidy sum. Their name and prestige is an asset which cannot be discounted. In many instances retired officers and officials, receiving their pension from the government figure as presidents of some big enterprise. Not that they know much of the workings of the enterprise but their name counts for a great deal in securing investors.

In the event of the retired official engaging in any other business which is quite certain to net him a reasonable income, there should be a provision to stop the pension. This is no more than fair to the tax payers of the country.

The pension system as applied to laborers would not be so unreasonable. The pay they receive is hardly enough to scramble along on in these days of high living cost. With the high salaried men it is different. But on the whole the pension system as operated in the past few years is getting to be enormous. The end is no where in sight. That a halt must be made some day is quite evident to even the casual observer.

It is better to check it now than to wait until a later day. It no doubt has figured largely in politics. It will figure more so as the years go on and become such a strong factor that there will be no checking it. The day is fast approaching when the evils of the system will be manifest and manifold. That is the day which must be avoided and it is just about time some little peep was taken into the future to see just where this will lead if carried along at the rate which it is travelling at the present time.

PROBE BEHIND CLOSED DOORS

Only Four of Fourteen Call Firemen at Hearing

NOTHING STARTLING

The first meeting of the special committee of the City Council to investigate the Fire Department was held at City Hall Wednesday evening. Chief Litchfield and four of the fourteen call members attached to apparatus at the central station were present. It was expected that all of the call members at the central station would be present but only four received the notice in time. The investigation was held behind closed doors, each witness being examined privately. A young lady stenographer was present to take the evidence. From what leaked out from behind the closed doors nothing of a startling nature developed.

The call firemen who were examined by the committee were Murdock McDonald, Malcolm McDonald, Arthur Pinel and Edmund G. Hayden. Another meeting of the committee will be held next Wednesday evening.

APPLICATIONS FOR LICENSES

Will Have Their Fate Settled By Committee Tonight

CANDIDATES WILL APPEAR

The Committee on Licenses of the City Council will meet tonight at which time several applicants for permits to transport liquor and other applicants for licenses to drive wagons for the collection of junk have been summoned to appear. Under the pony express law, as it now stands, permits to transport liquor may only be granted during the month of April, while under the rules of the Council all applications of these permits must be filed on or before the first Monday in April. This means that the time for filing applications has expired and any permits granted by the Council must be granted next Monday evening, the last regular meeting of the month, unless a special meeting should be called for that purpose, which is unlikely.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. A GIFTED TRAVELLER.

Editor of Quincy Ledger:—

Atlantic City and Washington will always be interesting to the young people as well as us old people, but the cost of seeing the places is so much yet many a young man or woman could see these places if they would not use soda and candy. Now this letter to you is not so much to describe the places as to show the cost. Please follow me and you will see what the cost may be. Leave Quincy any day so you can take the 6 o'clock train for New York. Before leaving lay in a stick of Bakers sweet chocolate. You may need it. A state room will cost by Fall River line $1. Fare to New York $3. When you arrive in New York you will have begun to see a little more of the world than you can see at home.

Now turn to the left and go to the Central New York railroad only a short distance from the Fall River line. Purchase a ticket for Atlantic city, cost $3.05. Go by way of Lakewood, a nice summer resort for people who don't mind the cost. So far you will see you have expended $7.05 to Atlantic City. When you arrive ask a man with a barge, at a cost of 15 cents or two persons for 25 cents and it is always best to go in couples, to take you to a house where you can get a good room at a fair price, say $1 a day for the two and be sure it is near the Plank walk. Now you are in the famous Atlantic City. Get your meals at an eating room on the Plank walk. Be sure and get some Saratoga water for five cents. Drinking five glasses, it may do you good.

When you have seen all you want to see take the cars for Washington. Cost of railroad ticket will be $5.85. When you arrive in Washington take the street car for Pennsylvania avenue and 7th street. Go to the Twentieth Century hotel and ask to see room 2. . It is 20 by 30. Has two good beds and is near the parlor. Price $1.50 per day. Other rooms for a single person 75 cents a day. It is owned by a man who was a former body guard for A. Lincoln. If you can not get room at this place, try some other place in the same block. Take your meals on the street floor at a cost of breakfast 25 cents, dinner same and supper 35 cents. By the way you will take your dinners at where ever you are at noon or go without.

When you visit the monuments you will see Mr. Spooner. He belongs in Weymouth. He will be very glad to see you. When you go to Mt. Vernon ask for Mr. J. E. Writting. Ask him how the roses are that I sent him from Rose Lawn and tell him that the willows that the manager gave me are doing well.

See the union residence erected by Democrats as well as Republicans. You may meet a convention of Woman's suffragettes on parade. If so you will notice a fine lot of women. If your money lasts stay in Washington six days or more. Then return home by railroad tracks to New York for $5.65, Fall River boat to Boston $3 and state room $1. Now if you have been careful of your money you may find the trip to been fine and not cost as much as you expected. One thing you miss is the New England baked beans. Hoping you may take the trip that I have mentioned I am yours truly,

C. W. Guy.

The coming fall I am for the Governors' Council.

P. S. Have you seen my fine elm trees in my lawn? Mr. Eugene O'Connor set out a year ago. The way I keep it so nice is I take a spoonful of paris green and put it in a half gallon of water and about 2 or 3 times a year I wash the trunks for a space of four feet from the ground. Use the same mixture when you set out tomatoes and cabbage. Put a little in the hole and grub and work well into lime.

WOLLASTON SCHOOL.

The Parents-Teachers' Association held a very enthusiastic meeting on Monday evening, over 350 parents and friends attending. David H. Goodspeed was the speaker and the subject "Our School," which was very much appreciated. Eugene Sprague, George Taylor and D. H. Goodspeed volunteered to raise funds to supervise the playground in the rear of the school, during July and August. A committee of three was appointed to ask permission of the school committee to start a school library and reading room and if granted to make the necessary arrangements, solicit books and encyclopaedias. Ten men have volunteer to each give a year's subscription for suitable magazines to be selected by the master of the school. A working bureau was suggested and promised the hearty support of the people. The building was open for inspection and drawings and school work were on exhibition.

Nearly $30 were raised by the philanthropic committee.

Parents were very much interested in the manual training done by the boys and are anxious to have it in grades VI and VII. They also hope the school committee may be able to introduce cooking in grade VIII in the near future.

The Band of Mercy met in the assembly hall on Tuesday morning. The exercises were in charge of Grade III.

MASS. FIELDS SCHOOL.

The Parent-Teachers' Association are to be entertained by the pupils of grade VIII Friday evening. The boys and girls are rehearsing daily and are planning a pleasant surprise. The boys in manual training are building a portable platform. Although there was no school Wednesday afternoon because of rain, the boys worked with hammers and saws until 5.30. The boys will hold a candy sale after the entertainment to raise money for base ball. The team is out for the Grammar League Championship and the boys hope to realize quite a sum of money.

The boys played an interesting game with the Atlantic Team on Tuesday afternoon. Up to the last inning the score stood 6-0 in favor of Atlantic. The Mass. Fields team made 7 runs in the last inning and by a triple play won the game.

QUINCY SCHOOL.

The parents and teachers of the Quincy school are anxiously watching for the furnishing of the hall. All is now in readiness except the curtains and seats and when these are in place the hall will be a very attractive one.

SCHOOL NOTES.

Nearly 200 people were present Wednesday evening, in the Coddington school at the last session of the Parents and Teachers Association. The speaker of the evening was A. L. Barbour, superintendent of schools who took for his topic "Public Education and public expenditure." Mr. Barbour called attention to the progressive democratic movement going on in the education parallel to that in other social and political lines. Education in the future will be vastly more inclusive than in the past. Opportunities will be greater; conditions will be more sanitary, neglected children will receive proper medical attention and the individual child will be given individual treatment peculiar to her needs. All this will cause an increased expense which in all probability will be taken care of through a centralized state agency rather than by local effort. Mr. Barbour also explained in detail the costs of school administration as at present conducted. Quincy according to the state figures stands near the bottom of the list of cities in the per capita expenditure for its public schools, only four other cities reporting so low a cost. In the cost of administration or overhead expense, for teachers salaries, for operation which includes fuel, care of buildings, and janitors salaries, Quincy has low costs which are reached by only one or two while its expenditures and appropriations for books and supplies are at present as low as to be detrimental to the interests of the children.

Besides Mr. Barbour's address there was a business meeting and other entertainment. Miss Gladys Flieger rendered vocal solos— a A Bond of Roses, Clarke , b, A China Tragedy, Thomas.

Little Miss Beatrice Griffin eight years old delighted all with her really fine playing of the violin. She appeared in two numbers, her selections being a. Il Troyatore, b, Serenade Sweete; a. Lenard op 4, b. Moto Perpetuo, Bohm.

Following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—Franklin P. Horton.

Vice President—Dr. George H. Ryder.

Secretary and Treasurer—Mrs. Joseph Prout.

Executive Committee—Mrs. William Walsh, Mrs. William Taylor, Nazzareus DiPanfilo.

HIGH SCHOOL.

Ernest L. Collins, head master of the High School has just received reports from the colleges on the pupils who entered from the Quincy High school last September. Every pupil entering in September has made a clean record without a failure in any subject. A large number from the present senior class will enter college in the fall more than the usual number going to Harvard and Technology.

LECTURE ON BIRDS.

Edward Avis, the celebrated Bird Mimic, of whom the eminent naturalist John Burroughs said, "the only bird he cannot imitate excellently is the bobolink who has so far defied reproducers," will be the leading feature of the Quincy Teachers Association meeting at the Coddington School hall Thursday evening.

The lecture is illustrated with over 100 views, taken by Mr. Avis during his close to nature periods and they are singularly interesting and varied.

Mr. Avis is a cultured musician and uses his violin with pleasing effect in connection with his remarkable whistling numbers.

His whistling, almost a lost art among people, is a natural gift possessed by no other known student of the art, and his bird songs are the result of constant study and close companionship with the litle feathered musicians.

The program consists of 12 numbers, all which have additional features and wherever Mr. Avis has appeared he has received a warm welcome.

LIBRARY NOTES.

Story Hour and Guessing Contest

A story hour will be held in the children's room, Thursday afternoon, April 24th at four o'clock. All children in the grammar schools are invited to be there at four promptly. This hour will be even more interesting than any former one because, directly after the stories are told, prizes are to be awarded the four winners of the guessing contest.

This contest has been running since Monday, March 3d and closes tomorrow, April 18th. Each week six pictures, two at time, every day except Saturday have been posted on the bulletin board. On Saturday all six pictures have been displayed together. These pictures represented scenes or characters in books in the Children's Room and on each picture was the author's name. The boy and girl guessing the most titles are to receive first prizes, and second prizes are to be awarded the boy and girl guessing the next largest number. There have ben 178 contestants.

OPERATIONS OF THE AIR SHIPS

Charles Chapin Entertained Men's Club at Braintree

WITH LECTURE ON SUBJECT

The regular meeting of the Men's club of the Congregational church, South Braintree for April was held in the chapel Wednesday evening with a good attendance of members and guests. At 6.45 o'clock was served an appetizing supper of hot roast beef with gravy, baked potatoes, macaroni, coffee and rolls, ice cream and cake. Afterwards under the soothing spell of the fragrant weed, a business meeting was held at which the report of the entertainment committee was read. The committee reported the net receipts of the recent minstrel show as $55.40. Of this sum it was voted that the sum of $25.00 be donated to the treasury of the parish. The committee was accorded a rising vote of thanks and it was also voted that the secretary send letters of appreciation to all outside the club who took part including Miss Hazel Lothrop who rendered such efficient and indispensable work as pianist for the show. The next meeting, which occurs, May 21, will be observed as ladies' night and will be in charge of the executive committee.

Following the business meeting, adjournment was made to the upper hall and president R. L. Wiggin introduced the speaker of the evening, Charles Chapin of the Boston Transcript who writes such entertaining and instructive articles on air craft and the navigation of the atmosphere.

Mr. Chapin's subject was "aeroplanes" and after explaining the different types of these and also the air ships or dirigible balloons he dwelt at length on the possibilities and problems of air navigation. According to his statement this nation is far behind all others in promoting and investigating this science especially as it applies to modern warfare and has lost some golden opportunities to purchase the rights and secrets of famous inventors of these crafts.

Mr. Chapin with the aid of blackboard diagrams gave a graphic and entertaining recital of the work of the Bulgarian aeroplanes in the Balkan war and of the very important part they played in the winning of victories over the Turks. At the close of his talk, Mr. Chapin was bombarded with questions by many of his auditors and his answers were both interesting and enlightening. He was accorded a rising vote of thanks for his able presentation of the subject.

The committee in charge was as follows: F. F. Tupper, J. M. Foster, J. H. Schraut, E. C. Hathaway, I. E. Pearson, C. A. Maddocks. This committee was ably assisted by Mrs. Tupper, Mrs. Schraut, Mrs. Mattocks, Miss Helen Hathaway, Miss Fannie Foster, Miss Josephine Foster. A pleasing feature of the evening was the singing by the assembly especially the impromptu choruses in the cloak room just before the boys departed for their homes.

"SILK" DRESSES MADE OF METAL

Scrap Tin, Iron, Lead or Zinc Solution Used In Mills

TRADE SECRETS ARE EXPOSED

Strikers Made Desperate by Long Struggle to Obtain Demands Tell How Silk Fibres Are Made to Absorb Many Times Their Own Weight by Metallic Compositions

Paterson, N. J., April 17.—Not from the cocoon of the silk worm, but from the rusty horseshoes, scrap iron and empty tomato cans on the city dumps comes the silk that makes milady's clinging gown and the bright-hued necktie of her escort, according to the men who labor in the silk mills of Paterson.

Rendered desperate by the two-months-old struggle to obtain their demands, the 27,000 silk strikers have begun a systematic "exposure" of the secrets of their trade. Led by William D. Haywood, a group of skilled silk mill operators made public the secret of the "tin dress."

"The silk dress that the average woman takes such pride in," declared Haywood, as spokesman for the group, "is not really a silk dress at all, but a tin dress. It is composed of about one part silk fibre to six parts tin, iron, lead or zinc. The metal is dumped into vats and treated chemically to make a solution. The raw silk is dipped in the solution, and when taken out and dried the ... have absorbed from four to six times their own weight in metal."

Turning to the silk workers behind him, Haywood continued:

"How much real, old-fashioned, good silk is made these days in this country under the famous protective tariff? You fellows know how much, or how little. The tariff has not benefited you in the least and its reduction will not hurt you, but it will force the manufacturers to make decent silk.

"You know what happens to the regular run of dress silks if you lay a piece away in a drawer or hang it up for a few months. It rots to pieces. You fellows know why. It is the effect of the solutions of old horseshoes, tin cans and scrapiron that the raw material has been dipped in to increase its weight six times."

Haywood's remarks were corroborated by a dozen striking dye house workers, who described the process by which they claimed the skeins of raw silk were more than quadrupled in weight by the absorption of metallic compositions so as to appear, when woven, to be heavy silk.

The silks most heavily weighted with metals, the strikers declared, are those used mainly for dress goods, linings, neckties and ribbons. Very light-weight and undyed silks, they said, cannot be so heavily adulterated.

PRISONER BOUND TO DIE

Finally Succeeds In Burning Himself, County Jail and Sheriff

Morrison, Ills., April 17.—The fifth attempt at suicide by Michael Sellers resulted in his death, the destruction of the Whiteside county jail by fire and the serious injury of Sheriff Wahl, who was burned while trying to rescue Sellers. The other prisoners were taken out in safety.

Sellers was to have appeared in court yesterday to answer to a criminal attack on a 16-year-old girl. Tuesday he attempted suicide four times, but was thwarted by the sheriff in each instance. Wahl then placed the prisoner in a padded cell, but Sellers obtained some matches and set fire to the padding.

The flames spread rapidly through the structure. Sellers was burned so badly that he died shortly after being taken from the burning jail. Wahl is expected to recover.

GUILD'S SUCCESSOR

Crane Said to Have Accepted the Russian Ambassadorship

Washington, April 17.—Charles R. Crane of Chicago in all likelihood will soon be nominated ambassador to Russia.

Developments indicate that the plan to have Curtis Guild continue as ambassador at St. Petersburg until such time as Crane could arrange his business affairs in this country has been somewhat disarranged by the application of Guild for leave of absence.

Guild notified Secretary Bryan that his health was poor and that it was imperative for him to have at least two months' leave. It was granted, but Bryan stated that he believed a successor would be chosen before the interval had elapsed.

MUSIC LOVERS MUSICAL TREAT

Boston Orchestral Club Pleased Large Assembly at Braintree

A musical treat rewarded the ladies and gentlemen who braved the inclement weather Tuesday evening to attend the concert given by the Strube Orchestral Club of Boston at the Cochato Club, Braintree. The program was varied and although many of the selections were familiar, they were favorites and seemed to take on new meaning under the superior playing of leader Gustav Strube and his men. The musicians were ably assisted by Miss Margaret Loudon Shepherd, contralto, who has a wonderful voice of great range and flexibility and sings most delightfully. The first selection was the overture, "La Dame Blanche," followed by MacDowell's "To a water lily" and a "Serenade," the latter being the composition of Mr. Strube. The next number comprised the three songs, "In the time of roses," "The leaves and the wind" and "A song of thanksgiving" all rendered by Miss Shepherd. They were well chosen to show her voice to advantage and she was effective and pleasing in the highest degree. The instrumental selection from "Il Trovatore" with the always popular "anvil chorus" and "miserere" was accorded loud and continued applause. This was followed by the dainty air de ballet, "Maila" and then the soul stirring "Entrance of the Bayards" rendered with an irresistible swing and dash.

Shuman's "Traumerei" and a "Minuet" by Baccherini, both for strings were played with exquisite harmony and grace. Miss Shepherd then sang the difficult operatic aria, "Nabil Signor" in a way that demonstrated the capabilities of her voice and its wonderful power. The lady was superb in this solo and was enthusiastically received. For a closing number the orchestra rendered "Carmen." The whole program was most pleasing, the artists were gracious in response to the many encores and the concert was thoroughly enjoyed.

The ushers were E. S. Grover, F. D. Lawley, W. J. Harrison and G. S. Young.

The committee in charge consisted of: Harold M. Gage, Walter J. Harrison, Mrs. G. M. Keating and Miss Helen L. Arnold.

DEMOCRATS DON PARTY HARNESS

Question of Mayoralty Candidates Topic of Discussion

BY CITY COMMITTEE

Penniman or Ash? Shall the Democrats renominate their standard bearer of last year for mayor, or the popular physician of Ward Four? This was the question prominent at the meeting of the Democratic Ward and City Committee, Tuesday evening in the Johnson building.

There was a fair attendance and William Kelly presided.

There was an informal discussion at which it was the consensus of opinion that only regular Democrats should be nominated for office at the municipal caucuses. Only out-and-out party men are wanted either for mayor or councilmen.

Last year James H. Penniman of Ward Five was the candidate for mayor, and it was an extremely close three cornered contest. The Republican candidate Eugene R. Stone, won by only 138 plurality. The Progressive candidate, John L. Miller, was only 96 behind Mr. Penniman. The vote was:

Stone	1790
Penniman	1652
Miller	1556

The only names considered at the meeting in connection with the mayoralty nomination were James H. Pennjman and Dr. John H. Ash.

The committee voted to hold a smoke talk May 20 and invite past and prospective candidates to be present. The following sub committee was appointed to make arrangements: William Kelly, James Doherty, George Caldwell, John Hart and Leo P. Noonan.

FAILING FUEL AIDS STRIKERS

Coal For Belgian Railroads Is Almost Exhausted

LIGHTING PLANTS FACE TIEUP

Many Thousands of Non-Strikers May Be Prevented From Working—Government Says 257,000 Men Are Out, While Socialists Say Number of Strikers Is Over 400,000

Brussels, April 17.—In a statement issued by the ministry of the interior it is said that 257,000 men have joined the national political strike of the Belgian workers, who have chosen this means of forcing the grant of manhood suffrage in Belgium and the abolition of the system by which wealth citizens are given plural voting power. The Socialist leaders, on the other hand, assert that the total number of strikers is over 400,000.

From various parts of the provinces reports show that in some places the movement has been undoubtedly successful, while in others, more especially the districts under the control of the Catholic workmen's unions, the men appear to be lukewarm in their sympathy.

Violence has been exceptional since the order to quit work was given on Monday, only a few cases of destruction of property or interference with non-strikers having occurred.

It is stated that the Belgian government finds itself with a considerably smaller supply of coal to run the state railroads than was supposed, and this is likely to be exhausted this week, thus crippling transportation facilities. Lack of fuel also, it is said, will cause the stoppage of many electric light and gas plants and prevent many thousands of non-strikers from working.

Emile Vendervelde, the Socialist leader, after an automobile tour of the provinces of Hainaut and Namur, said: "Our comrades are making splendid sacrifices for a just cause. All business is stagnated throughout the industrial district. Of the 208,000 workmen in the two provinces, 163,000 are striking. These figures are from capitalistic compilations."

The mayor of Ghent said:

"I have grave fears of the strike injuring the international exhibition, which is to be opened by the King of the Belgians April 26. Sixty percent of the British exhibitors have decided to retire from participation, and 30 percent of the French exhibitors have followed their example. I hear, also, that the American exhibitors are hesitating."

Cooley, former associate justice of the New Mexico supreme court and a former assistant United States attorney general, arrived here last night and at once received the first administration of the vaccine.

Cooley, who has been under treatment at the government sanitarium at Silver City, N. M., came with his wife in the private car of Larz Anderson, recently United States ambassador to Japan.

Anderson and his wife, on their way home from Japan, stopped for a time in New Mexico and offered Cooley and his wife the hospitality of their car for their journey to the east. Mrs. Cooley is an old friend of Mrs. Anderson.

Snow's Offer Results In His Expulsion From House

Party Lines Eliminated In Ballot Which Upholds Charges Preferred Against Representative From Manchester—Vote Is 177 to 119—No Taint In Election of Senators

Concord, N. H., April 17.—Charges of offering to sell his vote, preferred against Representative Clifford L. Snow of Manchester, were upheld by the house of representatives, and he was ordered expelled. The vote was 177 to 119. Party lines were eliminated in the balloting.

The expulsion is the first in the history of the New Hampshire legislature. It followed several hours of acrimonious debate, in which the general attitude of each of the political parties in the state toward vote buying came in for harsh comment by opposition speakers.

Snow was found guilty by a special investigating committee of having offered to sell his vote and influence to Gordon Woodbury, a Democratic candidate for United States senator; to Franklin Worcester, Republican candidate for governor, and to Elmer S. Tilton, Republican candidate for governor's council. He had offered also, it was claimed, to deliver the votes of other legislators; but the committee found that he had no authority for such delivery.

In an unanimous decision, the committee found that the election of a United States senator by the New Hampshire legislature was without evidence of any actual sale of votes.

Friends of the accused member made an unsuccessful attempt to prevent expulsion by raising the point that expulsion required a two-thirds vote. It was contended this is the rule in the United States senate, and that this rule should obtain in New Hampshire in the absence of a state law. But Speaker Brittain ruled that the vote of 177 to 119 was a clear majority and that a majority vote should rule.

Snow was elected to the legislature from Manchester as a Republican. After taking his seat he enrolled with the Progressives, but for the last several months he has voted with the Democrats. Democratic leaders directed the fight to prevent expulsion.

$5000 FINE IMPOSED

New Haven Road Shipped Milk on Its Passenger Trains

Boston, April 17.—For shipping milk into Boston on passenger trains, and delivering it free, the New Haven railroad was fined $5000 and costs of $350.

This is one of the largest fines ever imposed in a federal court in this city and is said to establish a precedent in government prosecution of railroads.

The act of the New Haven was held by Judge Morton of the United States district court to constitute granting concessions to a shipper in violation of the interstate commerce law.

The case against the New Haven has become famous as the "Elm Farm Milk Case," having been in litigation ever since 1910. It was finally settled yesterday when the road was fined on two counts which it did not contest. Forty other counts were nol prossed.

A QUINTUPLE FUNERAL

Suicide and His Four Slain Children Buried In Two Graves

Fitchburg, Mass., April 17.—A crowd of 2000 persons was at Forest Hills cemetery when Ernest Moschner and his four children, whom he murdered, were buried.

Mrs. Moschner, the widow and mother of the four children, was unable to attend the funeral, her condition being so bad that the attending physician would not allow her to leave the house of her sister, where she has been since the tragedy.

Two graves were dug, one to contain the body of the father and the other for the four little children. Peter Caefer, representing the German Teutonia society, of which the father was a member, read at the services.

DRAPER COMPANY REFUSES TO YIELD

Will Treat With Employes, but Won't Recognize I. W. W.

Hopedale, Mass., April 17.—A demand for higher wages and the abolition of piece work was refused by the directors of the Draper company at the conclusion of a conference between the directors and a committee representing the striking foundrymen. The demands were identical with those rejected by the company two weeks ago.

In their answer to the strikers the directors said they would refuse absolutely to have anything to do with the Industrial Workers of the World, but would treat with the company's employes.

In refusing the demands the directors declared the company was paying wages higher than were paid for similar work in other shops, and that this policy would be continued. Employes were urged to return to work before their places should be filled.

An attempt to enforce the order of I. W. W. leaders for a general strike in Milford resulted in serious rioting, in which State Officer Murray and F. H. Lewis, a Worcester policeman, were badly cut about the face and head by stones. A physician was summoned to attend two Italians who had been clubbed by the police.

Colonel TODHUNTER of Missouri

By RIPLEY D. SAUNDERS

Copyright, 1911, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company.

SYNOPSIS

Colonel Todhunter booms his friend William J. Strickland for the nomination for governor. Tom Strickland, son of William, loves Mary Todhunter. Lottie-May Doggett loves Tom.

Stamford Tucker pays attention to Mary. He and Tom are rivals. They clash at the Todhunters'.

A political rally of Strickland's supporters is interrupted by the Yancey men, led by Stam. His father, Eph Tucker, is Yancey's main supporter in Nineveh.

Tom and Stam quarrel about Lottie-May, to whom Stam is attentive. Colonel Todhunter and Eph Tucker meet in the office of the Nineveh Blade.

Dick Cantrill, editor of the Blade, defeats one of Tucker's "low down" tricks. Old Mirandy, one of Colonel Todhunter's negro dependents, living near the Doggetts, tells the colonel of Stam's visits to Lottie-May.

In a wrangle Tom knocks Stam down. Colonel Todhunter is to indorse Strickland's note for $3,000 to meet campaign expenses.

Eph Tucker accepts the note. In St. Louis the newspaper men "write up" Colonel Todhunter, who is campaigning, and make much of his picturesque personality.

"You're mighty welcome," replied Colonel Todhunter, genial but doubtful. "I'll be shot full o' holes if I see how you're a-goin' to write a piece from what I've been sayin', suh."

Then suddenly he nodded to his front. "What in blue blazes and Sam Hill is that man a-doin' there?" he asked. "The one with that placard in his hand, squintin' at me every two seconds and then jabbin' down somethin' with his pencil? That's the confoundedest most singular proceedin' I ever laid my two eyes on, suh!"

The young newspaper man shook with laughter. "Colonel," he said, his humorous lips twitching, "don't worry about that man. He's perfectly harmless. I know him. He's got a bug on political celebrities, sir. It's a case of bats in his belfry on that one subject. He goes around recording his impressions at close range during every campaign just the way you see him now. Most remarkable character, colonel. I've known him for a long time."

"Well, suh," replied Colonel Todhunter, "I'll be eternally condemned if he mustn't ha' wrote a whole book about me, then. He's been jabbin' that there pencil o' his'n up and down for the last twenty minutes or so worse'n a little girl playin' tit-tat-too behind her jography durin' schooltime, suh!"

The newspaper man wiped tears of laughter from his eyes. "I'll take him away now, colonel," he said at last, rising. "I've got to go back to the office, and it always tickles him to talk to somebody about his impressions. I expect he'll have a lot to say about you, sir."

"Well, you keep it dark, suh, if he does," replied Colonel Todhunter. "I got enough to stand up under here in St. Louis without no comments from such an almighty curious specimen o' humanity as that, suh!"

And at this the newspaper man fairly exploded. He was still shaking with laughter when he joined the mysterious stranger. The latter promptly pocketed his pencil, stuck his bit of cardboard under his arm, and then together the two departed.

"It's this here crazy-like city life that makes such wrecks as that poor simple Simon," mused the colonel. "I-gad, it beats me why any human bein' is willin' to live it, let alone pay such a price as that for it! But it takes all sorts o' people to make a world, no just be jim swizzled if it don't, suh!"

The next afternoon when Colonel Todhunter's eyes fell on the front page of the leading independent Democratic paper of St. Louis he fairly gasped with horror. Then followed an almost tragic pause as he absorbed the full meaning of what had so suddenly stricken him with dismay. The next moment he handed the newspaper to Colonel Strickland.

"What did I tell you, Bill?" he groaned. "I'm a-goin' back to Nineveh just as fast as the good Lord'll let me, suh!"

Colonel Strickland's gaze rested upon the newspaper page. He saw Colonel Todhunter's name boldly typed in the flaring headline that extended across three columns. A full length "character cartoon" of the colonel surrounded by "thumb nail" impressions of his face and bodily pose at various interesting moments of his talk of the preceding day surrounded the larger portrait.

Colonel Strickland began a reading of the article. A smile crept upon his face. Slowly his eyes went down the printed page. The smile broadened. Soon it became a chuckle. Later, absorbed in the reading, the candidate's shoulders shook as he read. Finally with one big fist pinning the newspaper to the table in front of him, Colonel Bill Strickland leaned back in his chair and roared with laughter.

"Lord have mercy on us, Thurs!" he gasped. "It's the best and truest thing I ever saw in my life. They've got you finished off to the queen's taste."

"I don't know nothin' about the queen's taste, suh," spoke Colonel Todhunter grimly, "but I know one thing almighty well. I'm agoin' to dust that newspaper man's jacket for him the next time he comes in reach o' me. Great name above, suh, th' ain't no man can handle Colonel Thurs T. Todhunter like that and not get it well taken out of his hide, suh."

Again Colonel Strickland shouted with laughter. "You old fool!" he sputtered. "That newspaper man knows you better than you know yourself. It's wonderful, Thurs! He's made a character study of you that's nothing more or less than a miracle, my friend."

It was the truth. Colonel Todhunter had come under the vision of a masterfully gifted newspaper expert in "character values." The young fellow with whom he had chatted so freely and at such ease on the preceding afternoon had temperamentally "absorbed" him body and soul. Then he had gone to his newspaper desk and written a descriptive interview that was sheerly the colonel himself in the flesh. It was a feat of psychological wizardry. The man achieving it seemed to have put aside his own being for the moment and taken on that of Colonel Todhunter instead. As a result of this exercise of the strangest of literary powers Colonel Todhunter himself, the typical figure of a Missouri Democrat of the old school, talked in his proper person, a living, breathing, almost palpable entity, from the printed page.

And the keenly humorous, appreciative and well nigh loving quality that signalized the writer's performance of his task was finely re-enforced by the work of the cartoonist. The sketches themselves were lifelike, bringing out the colonel's every salient characteristic in facial expression, bodily pose and gesture.

But this amazing projection of himself in printer's ink on the publicity "screen" of a newspaper's front page appalled Colonel Todhunter. He shrank from it, shocked, with all a countryman's dismay at sudden prominence before the world.

"It's all right for you, Bill; you can afford to laugh!" he said indignantly. "But I'm the one that's holdin' the bag, suh! It's me that's put on that there infernal circus poster like the wild man o' Borneo, not you. And I'll be shot full o' holes if it ain't me that's agoin' to hold them there two young rascals to an accountin' for it, you mark my words, suh!"

Colonel Strickland wiped the tears from his eyes.

"You're all wrong, Thurs—honest, you are!" he protested. "There ain't a line in that story that don't speak good of you, and what you say there is as sound as a dollar. It's you talking, to the life, old fellow, and you're talking for me, and every word you say helps us more than a column of ordinary newspaper stuff. I wouldn't take $1,000 for it, right now!"

"I'd sell it for a blamed sight less'n that, suh!" hotly replied Colonel Todhunter. "And didn't I warn you—didn't I tell you beforehand that they'd shorely size me up as a country jake from the very beginnin' and that I'd bungle you all up here in St. Louis, suh? Didn't I say that as sure as I came to these here city headquarters o' your'n I'd play the very old blue blazes and Sam Hill 'fore I got through, suh? Yes, suh—and I'm a-headin' straight back for Nineveh this very day, suh!"

"No, you ain't—not by a jugful!" retorted Colonel Strickland, manfully striving to straighten his face into gravity. "No, sir. You'll speak at the coliseum this very night, just as we've planned, Thurs, and I'll tell you another thing. You'll speak to the biggest and most enthusiastic audience the coliseum ever held, or else I don't know the signs of a man's popularity when I see 'em, sir!"

Colonel Bill Strickland prophesied truly. The coliseum was packed to the doors.

"Great Scott and Maria, suh," said Colonel Todhunter, describing the scene to Dick Cantrill upon his return home, "you couldn't ha' wedged a knife blade in between any two men in that there crowd, suh. And the way they cheered and hollered when I was interduced by the chairman of the meetin', suh! Blamed if you wouldn't ha' thought I was the original roarin' ring tailed guyasticutus of Calaveras county, suh, and the only one in captivity, suh. I never saw grown men behave that way before in all my life, Dick Cantrill, and it made me hotter'n blazes. But I kept my shirt on, suh, sayin' to myself that I was there to help old Bill Strickland all I knew how. So I just took it out in talkin' to 'em like a Dutch uncle, suh, givin' 'em the straight Democratic doctrine and tellin' 'em they needed it blamed bad, too, suh. And I laid the law down to 'em, suh, that it wa'n't me, but old Bill Strickland, they ought to be a-hollerin' for by rights, if they was the good Democrats they pertended to be, suh. Yes, suh, and then they hollered louder'n ever. But let me tell you one thing, Dick Cantrill, I'll be shot full o' holes if I didn't have 'em every one up on their hind legs a-whoopin' themselves black in the face for old Bill Strickland 'fore I got through with 'em, suh. I tell you, Dick, that there Satan straddled newspaper done its durndest to ruin me, but I got even with it right then and there, suh!"

"Bully for you, colonel!" vociferated Dick Cantrill, his humorous lips tremulous with mirth. "I'd gladly give the last dollar I had in the world if I could have been there and heard you!"

But the colonel's face fell. "Dick," he said, "would you believe it? Them there infernal cartoonists came back at me the next day worse'n ever, suh. They'd been there at that banquet and got me in action. I'll be eternally condemned if I ever saw such pictures of a livin' human bein' as they drew of me then, suh. It was a sin and a shame. What's a man goin' to do these days, Dick Cantrill? I tell you, suh, the present frivolity of the American press is utterly destroyin' the dignity of public life, suh!"

"It is, colonel—it is!" agreed the editor of the Nineveh Weekly Blade contritely. And it is to Dick Cantrill's everlasting credit that he held himself in until Colonel Todhunter had stalked away. Then he laughed as he had not laughed in many a day.

"God bless him!" he said to himself chokingly. "He and his speeches have gained five thousand votes for Colonel Strickland in St. Louis just as sure as the sun rises and sets! And they're worth it, too!"

CHAPTER VIII.

Tom Strickland Faces Colonel Todhunter in a Sentimental Crisis.

"HONESTLY, Mary," protested Tom Strickland, "it isn't safe for you to drive home alone. It's all very well to make believe that you're not afraid of a horse, but I know better. Won't you let me see you home?"

The two had met in the lazy quiet of Nineveh's town square, and Tom was quick to see his opportunity. Mary Todhunter laughed at his apprehensive manner.

"How can you keep a straight face when you say that, Tom?" she asked. "You know as well as I do that I've driven old Solomon a million times, more or less, and that nothing on earth would make him run away."

"You can never tell about these old reliables," said Tom. "Solomon might take it into his head to get frisky any minute. I can see devilment in his eye right now."

He placed an entreating hand on the buggy's side.

"Well, get in, then," conceded Mary, tossing her pretty head. "I reckon I won't have any peace until I let you have your own way."

Tom swung himself into the buggy instantly. "That's a mighty wise conclusion, Mary," he remarked, taking the reins and heading old Solomon toward the shady road that led to Mary's home. "I wish to goodness you'd make up your mind to it as a permanent thing."

Men have lame and aching backs.
If you have any form of kidney ills
You must reach the cause—the kidneys.

He suffered from lameness through his back and the least exertion tired him. Finally he began using Doan's Kidney Pills and they improved his condition in every way."

If your back aches—if your kidneys bother you, don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—ask distinctly for Doan's Kidney Pills, the same that Mrs. Lowe had—the remedy backed by home testimony. 50c all stores. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

WILLIS L. MOORE

WILSON "FIRES" MOORE

Weather Bureau Chief Accused of "Serious Irregularities" In Office

Washington, April 17.—Willis L. Moore, chief of the weather bureau, was summarily removed from office by the direct order of President Wilson. It was announced at the executive offices that the reason for this action was "serious irregularities in office."

Professor Moore had tendered his resignation, to take effect July 24, but the president refused to permit him to continue longer in office.

Moore, in a statement, declares that "the same influences that attempted to disgrace and remove Dr. Harvey W. Wiley" were responsible for his removal, and brands the intimation that he had coerced employes or used public moneys in his efforts to be appointed to a cabinet position as "infamously false."

SALOONS SELECTED BY POPULAR VOTE

Ballot Method Adopted by Town In South Dakota

Sioux Falls, S. D., April 17.—Selection of saloon keepers by popular vote became a reality in Elk Point, a town in Union county. It is believed to be the first time in the country that the ballot has been utilized to determine who shall operate saloons.

Under a new law which goes into effect July 1 the number of saloons is limited to one for every 600 inhabitants. The saloons in Elk Point thus were reduced from five to two. It was decided to select the two saloon keepers by popular vote. Out of six candidates, B. O. Kelly and W. W. Gillaume received the most votes in yesterday's election and were declared "elected."

CHOKED CULVERTS CAUSE TROUBLE

Land Along Town Brook Flooded Because of Them

People living along the banks of Town brook between Bigelow street and the canal are complaining because something is not done to clear away the obstruction of the culverts. The water below Washington street has gone down but as the water further up the brook still remains high and has overflowed the adjoining land it is believed that the culverts must be clogged up.

LOCAL PLAYERS MADE RECORD

Quincy A. A. Basket Ball Team Two Year Champs

FIGHT FOR NATIONAL

Continuing his fight because he believes the National Basket Ball Commission of the A. A. U., has hardly treated the local teams in a sportsmanship manner, William H. Flynn for two years manager of the Quincy A. A. teams is forcibly presenting reasons to show why the National Championships should be held.

The season for 1911 and 1912 continued on the promise of the N. E. A. A. A. U., commission that the winners would represent New England at the championships. Their authority came from the national head, George Hepbron, who dashed the hopes of the local fans when he decided to call off the national meet after awarding it to the Central A. A. of Chicago.

The sentiment locally favors the stand taken by Manager Flynn and although the real basket ball season has now closed the withdrawing of the promise to hold the national event has been the source of frequent discussion in sporting circles.

With the close of the basketball season locally, the laurels of a double championship go to Quincy, where the senior and junior teams of the Quincy A. A. have finished a remarkably successful schedule.

The junior team is practically the same as that of a year ago, which also won the championship. The only exceptions to the 1911-12 lineup were the new members, Scollard and Bennett. Manning, a member of last year's team, was prevented from playing, owing to illness, but was in the lineup this year and was the highest scorer in either league.

Harold Chapman, captain and right forward, was the record-holder last season, and was admitted to be about the fastest little fellow playing in the league, scoring 95 goals from the floor and 45 points on free tries, making a total of 235 points. For three years he was a member of the champion Quincy High School team.

His brother Millard, who plays at right back, has many times proven his worth by preventing his opponent from scoring during many contests. He is rated as one of the best backs in the league and plays a clean aggressive game. Scollard at centre has proven to be a valuable man and usually gets the jump on an opponent. His playing improved each game and he closed the season near the top in the number of baskets scored. He is tall and rangy and a very accurate basket shooter.

Bennett, the latest addition to the team, has been a consistent worker and has developed into a fine player. Although not in all of the contests, his record is an excellent one and he proved a valuable player to the team. He is a powerful young fellow and proved himself fully capable of handling himself in any emergency.

Manning, the crack left forward, has long been prominent in athletics, having played on the Quincy High school baseball and basket ball teams for four years and two years on the football team. He was chosen as the all-inter-scholastic left end in 1910. He leads the league in both divisions this year and in one game scored 21 baskets. Harmon at left back was also a member of the Quincy High team and considered one of the best backs in the league.

MAKE YOUR PURCHASES FROM LEDGER ADVERTISERS

BROKERS DODGE FOUR PER CENTS

Bonds at That Rate Not Very Popular At Present

QUINCY'S LOANS HELD

Although the City Council has passed several loan orders amounting to over $100,000, none of the money has been borrowed as yet. The reason is that at the present time there is no demand for four per cent. bonds, and no brokers want them at that rate. All of the city bonds carry interest at 4 per cent and the Treasuerr has been unable to place them. It is believed howevr that there will be a demand for this class of bonds in a short time when they will be sold. Otherwise it will be necessary for the Council to increase the rate of interest to four and one-half per cent.

Among the loans affected are those for $50,000 for water extensions; $40,000 for sewer extensions and $20,000 for a stand pipe on Great Hill, Houghs Neck.

The Boston English High school has its annual prize drill, this afternoon from one until six o'clock at Mechanics hall. Quincy and Braintree are represented among the spectators, as guests of Mrs. Henry Wright of Goffe street and of Albert S. Parker of Presidents hill, a participant.

NORWICH BANKS CLOSE

First National and Thames Loan and Trust Company Suspend

Norwich, Conn., April 17.—According to one of the directors of the First National bank of this city, which was closed yesterday, the order was brought about by the recent demanding of their money by some of the largest depositors. National Bank Examiner Dean has been placed in charge.

The president of the bank, Franklin S. Jerome, recently resigned as treasurer of the United States Finishing company, which has been in financial difficulties for some time. It is understood that the president's connection with the concern also had something to do with the directors' action.

The Thames Loan and Trust company, of which Jerome, president of the First National bank, is also president, closed its doors yesterday afternoon.

PEACE PLAN DROPPED

Decision Reached by Turkey as Bulgaria Renews Her Attack

Paris, April 17.—A telegram from Constantinople states that there is little hope now of the war with the Balkan states being terminated by Turkey on her own volition. This is due to the Bulgarians renewing their attack on Tchatalja.

When the news of the attack reached Constantinople, there was a meeting of the cabinet. It was then urged that the war be continued.

A significant movement, the telegram continues, is that of stopping the disbanding of the volunteer regiments.

Big Fleet of Dirigibles

London, April 17.—Latest official figures show that the triple alliance owns thirty-nine dirigibles, of 11,086,000 cubic feet gas capacity, and the triple entente owns thirty-five, with 6,001,000 capacity.

GOOD WORK OF BASKET BALLERS

High School Boys Will Be Given Their Letters

RECORDS OF BOTH TEAMS

The recognition of the prowess of the basket ball players of the Quincy High School will be made at the Junior Senior reception at the high school Friday evening when the Q's will be awarded.

The showing of the team the past season justifies favorable comment since the material was in the rough when the schedule was prepared. Frank Mansur a teacher of the school took the reins, but pressure of school work obliged him to relinquish his post as coach. After considerable effort Lawrence F. LaRose of the Y. M. C. A. was secured as coach.

When the last game had been played Mr. Mansur and Mr. LaRose could look back at the seasons records and feel proud of their work.

Most of the development fell on the shoulders of Mr. LaRose however and the boys willingly put themselves to the task. Prout, Larkin and Brown were the only ones that had slight experience on the 1911 five and the other players hardly knew the rules.

The first team played 21 games, 14 at home and seven away. They won 10 and lost 11 games, totaling 466 points against 485 for their opponents.

The following table shows their individual showing:

The first column shows the games played in, the second the baskets scored, the third the fouls thrown and the last column the number of fouls called on the players.

R. Larkin	21	27	7	23
S. Prout	20	42	18	7
E. Brown	21	21	1	38
H. Safford	17	36	3	8
J. Jenkins	21	11		13
L. White	12	12		1
L. Andrews	20	59	22	16
G. Hamlin	6
R. Prout	1	1
R. Crane	7
W. Brown	2
J. Betts	1
E. Bates

The second team, consisting of Ralph Prout, Leon White, Gilbert Hamlin, Joseph Betts, Earl Bates. J. Lawrence Martin played six scheduled games during the season, winning five and losing one. They challenged Winthrop 2nd for the junior championship of the state, and won two out of the three games, thus bringing the title to the Quincy High School.

The second team was composed of players that were not developed up to the standard of the first team, but the prospects for a snappy first and second team next fall are so promising that James Jenkins, one of the most persistent backs of this years five has been chosen to captain the team.

The second team played six scheduled games and lost but one. This closed the season by wrestling the junior state championship from Winthrop High in the local gym in a game that was replete with sensations and real basket ball.

TIMOTHY AHEARN BURIED.

The funeral of Timothy Ahearn who died Monday took place this morning from the residence of his cousin, Mrs. Michael Lynch, 324 Farrington street, Wollaston. A high mass of requiem was celebrated at the Church of the Sacred Heart, Atlantic, by Rev. Fr. John P. Cuffe, the pastor.

The muscial portion of the mass was by the regular choir under the direction of Miss Louise Costello. The soloists were Miss Mary Dolan who sang the Pie Jesu and Miss Clara Duggan who rendered the De Profundis. The funeral was well attended by relatives and friends among whom was a delegation from the Neponset Court, M. C. O. F., of which the deceased was a member.

There was a large number of floral tributes including a large standing cross from Neponset Court, M. C. O. F. The bearers were John Mullane, Florence Lynch, Thomas Regan, Timothy Regan, John J. Avery, Morris Regan. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

BURIED IN WAREHAM.

The funeral of Amos P. Kinney, inventor of the Kinney detent universally used on steam indicators, was held Wednesday morning from his home, 107 Elm street, where he had lived during his four years residence in this city. Services were conducted by Rev. T. C. Martin, pastor of the Hall Place M. E. Church of West Quincy.

The body was taken to Wareham for burial where Mr. Kinney lived while he learned the machinist trade. He was superintendent of the Sturtevant Blower works for many years and also had charge of the plant of the American Steam Gauge Co.

He was the originator of the machine that is used in tipping shoe lacings. He was in his 61st year and leaves a son, Judson Kinney.

JOSEPH W. CROPPER.

Joseph W. Cropper, a night watchman at the State House died suddenly at his home, 21 North Central avenue, last evening in his 45th year. He sustained a shock Sunday.

Mr. Cropper was a familiar person at the State House. For about 18 years he had charge of an elevator and was promoted to a night watchman about a year ago. He was well liked by his fellow employees and enjoyed the friendship of men of state wide and national prominence. He leaves a widow.

The funeral will take place from his home Saturday afternoon where services will be conducted by Rev. Wesly Wiggin and Rev. Joseph Walther. Interment will be in Mt. Wollaston cemetery. He was a member of the Quinopequm Lodge I. O. O. F. of Roxbury.

WALTER G. THORNE.

Walter G. Thorne, who came here from St. John, New Brunswick, but a short time ago, died at the residence of John Muirhead, 53 Scammell street, Wednesday evening, in his 17th year. The body will be sent to St. John today for burial.

OPPOSE WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

It is claimed the majority of English men and women whose thoughts are largely occupied with foreign affairs, and with the affairs of the British Dominions and dependencies, are confirmed anti-suffragists. Lord Curzon, for instance, whose foreign explorations comprise Afghanistan, Siam and Indo-China, Korea and Persia, to say nothing of his long residence in India, is a strong anti-suffragist, and one of the founders of the great National League for opposing Woman's Suffrage. The president of this society, by the way, is Lord Cromer, that distinguished Englishman who was for so many years the governor-general of Egypt, and who is called the father of modern Egypt, Rudyard Kipling, Sir Conan Doyle, Frederic Harrison, Lord Northcote, and others as well known, are members of this society.

UNDERWOOD IS OPTIMISTIC

Sees Nothing to Obstruct Passage of New Tariff Measure

Washington, April 17.—Following a conference with President Wilson at the White House, Representative Underwood declared he saw no obstacle in the way of the passage of the tariff bill introduced ten days ago.

"It appears to me there is nothing in sight for the bill but clear sailing from this time on," said Underwood. "I went over a few minor provisions of the bill with President Wilson and we are in perfect accord concerning even the last of the schedules. I have canvassed the house and I don't think that any widespread opposition will occur, certainly not enough to endanger the passage of the bill."

The Democratic caucus voted late yesterday to support the wool schedule of the Underwood tariff bill, placing raw wool on the free list, after Underwood had made a stirring appeal for the support of the caucus. By a vote of 190 to 42 an amendment offered by Dies of Texas, to place raw wool on the dutiable list, was rejected.

Mr. McNary Lamented A Policy Which Forced Boston to Go To Maine For Grout

Capt. Eldredge Told of Simple Scheme for Safety of Vessels In Fog.

An audience that more than filled the two rooms of the Granite Manufacturers association in the Adams building was present Thursday evening at the public meeting held under the auspices of the Board of Trade. The speakers of the evening were Hon. William S. McNary, Chairman of the Board of Harbor and Land Commissioners and one of the Directors of the Port of Boston and Capt. Geo. W. Eldredge the world's famous maker of charts, for which he holds medals from many countries of the world.

President John L. Hamilton of the Board of Trade presided and introduced the speakers, speaking very briefly in his introduction. The first speaker was Capt. Eldredge, whom President Hamilton said was the greatest hydrographer in the country.

Capt. Eldredge spoke of his invention for which he has recently received a patent and which the United States government will probably adopt for its harbors. The scheme of Capt. Eldredge is for the guilding of vessels in a fog, so that they may keep their course. His scheme is one which he said he had been studying for twenty years, yet is so simple that it is a wonder that it had not been thought of before. It was illustrated by a large chart which the Captain explained. In brief the scheme consists of a series of buoys placed one mile apart starting from the Lightship and running fifty miles out to sea.

These buoys stand twelve feet out of water and on each is a large number, which will denote the number of miles that buoy is from the Lightship. Every fifth buoy however is different. That is the fifth buoy might be a whistle, the tenth buoy a bell, the fifteenth buoy a chime and so on for the fifty miles. Each vessel of course would carry a chart upon which these buoys would be marked.

LESLIE'S BILL MEETS FAVOR

At the Hands of Committee Who Submit Agreeable Report

SHORTENS INSPECTION TIME

(Special to the Ledger)

Representative William J. Leslie, carried on the fight for his Compressed Air Tank Inspection bill into the committee on Ways and Means, Thursday and after hearing the bill's merits discussed for half an hour, the committee, in executive session, voted to report favorably upon it. The committee suggested one amendment however, and that makes the inspection of tanks compulsory every two years instead of every three years.

With Rep. Leslie were Chief of the State Police Jophanus Whitney and one of his inspectors George Ludden both of whom favored the bill strongly and assured the committee that no extra men would have to be added to the force of the State Police in order to carry out the regulations of the Leslie bill. Rep. Carbary, of Milford who has charge of the bill for the committee on Mercantile Affairs also urged its recommendation by the Ways and Means committee.

In his arguments for the bill, Representive Leslie produced some photographs of the remains of the tank which exploded in Reed and Vendret's yard and killed two men.

The tank which was used in the local yard and which caused the dire results was an old made-over steam boiler, Rep. Leslie told the committee, and the operators of the yards were in danger all the time.

AN EXPLANATION BY MR. RICHARDS

With Regard to That Hearing on the Grade Crossing

The appended communication is self explanatory. It does not require any comment really. Yet it might do in passing to note if the organizations whose presidents were consulted had been instructed by their respective bodies. Some of the speakers were evidently not presidents of organizations. It is not a question of the City Solicitor, or any citizen or individual wanting a mass meeting. That is up to the committee. If they in their judgment think a public meeting is necessary, to get at public sentiment, that is all that is needed. Those who favor the plan will then have a better opportunity to present in an intelligent and understandable manner the plans as proposed and why they were chosen.

The communication above referred to follows:

Editor Quincy Daily Ledger:

As a member of the grade crossing committee, may I be allowed space in your columns to explain the object of the meeting at City Hall on Monday evening last, as many, reading your editorial in the issue of the 16th under the caption "Hardly Adequate Expression" may labor under a wrong impression and possibly you may have been not fully informed when writing it. The facts briefly stated are as follows. A committee of seven was appointed at the City Council on Monday evening, April 7th, to carry out the provisions of the order adopted by the City Council at that session in opposition to the decree of the special committee. The committee went into session after the council meeting and voted to invite the presidents of the various public organizations interested in the grade crossing problem to a conference for suggestions to the committee, and the clerk was requested to notify them. It was not advertised as a public meeting. I was approached however by several gentlemen before the meeting, particularly those in favor of the special commission decree, with a request to be heard. They were informed that unless objection was made by the committee their request would be granted, and the results show that while few in number, their side was conserved in an able and lengthy manner, and under these conditions it would seem only fair that such opponents of the decree as desired to express their opinions in the limited time left at their disposal be heard, and if my memory serves me correctly, all the instinuations and charges of interest did not meet the fate they deserved as the one rebuked did not at that meeting at least, take the initiative. May I add that if the city solicitor and the proponents of the Commissioners decree desire a mass-meeting called to express the sentiments of the people on the subject, the committee will no doubt be pleased to cooperate with them and have it.

John R. Richards.

ORGAN RECITAL.

The congregation of the First U. P. church of Quincy have just had a very neat and rich-toned pipe organ placed in their little church at Fort Square, Quincy. This instrument was purchased from the Estey Organ Co., and was built at Brattleboro, Vt. The congregation deserve great praise for their persevering effort in raising their half of the money as they are few in number and practically all of them belong to the working class. The Carnegie Corporation of New York furnished half the funds. The recital will take place Thursday evening April 24, 1913. There will be no admission fee but a silver collection will be taken during the intermission. We hope to see a well-filled house on that occasion and those who come will be well repaid. Mr. Meheffey organist of the Estey Organ Co. will play and other special talent will accompany. A treat will be in store for all who come.

Rev. Charles P. Marshall of Plymouth, former pastor of the Washington Street Congregational church will preach at the Sunday morning service

MR. BATES REPLIES

Tells of Outs in Decree for Abolishing Crossings

Editor Daily Ledger:

I noticed in your issue of April 16 that John B. Sutherland in his communication on grade crossings in Quincy frankly admits that the "depression plan" from Atlantic to South Quincy is "ideal" because it saves every street now crossing the railroad, because it does not require the taking of another foot of land to do it nor does it make any dead end streets nor demand building of new streets.

But Mr. Sutherland has become alarmed and worried about the grade of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. if the tracks are depressed at Water street eight feet. Now, Mr. Sutherland, let me say to you in all fairness and truthfulness that you are laboring under a delusion or misapprehension of the facts relating to the grade from Water street to Braintree, after the tracks are depressed eight feet at Water street. There, they will be only three feet lower than they are today at School Street bridge.

Allow me to ask you to be kind enough to investigate at City Hall and inquire of the city engineer what the grade of the railroad tracks will be after they are depressed eight feet at Water street from Water street to Braintree, and you will be told seven-tenths of one per cent.

I will illustrate for you what a grade of seven-tenths of one per cent is, namely: The Quincy station is one hundred feet long. Assuming the station is perfectly level, I raise one end of the station eight inches. That would be exactly what the grade of the railroad would be from Water street to Braintree after the tracks are depressed eight feet at Water street. Such a grade would be a slighter one than the chief engineer of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. stated before the Special Commission at the public hearings at City Hall five years ago, when he said that railroads were willing at any and all times to take a grade of eight-tenths of one per cent.

Let me inform Mr. Sutherland that on the Boston and Albany railroad, between Worcester and Springfield, there is a steeper grade for nine miles than this short grade from Water street to Braintree.

Now, if Mr. Sutherland will investigate this grade, and is fairminded, I believe he will publicly apologize for making the statement that "there are no locomotives in this country powerful enough to force trains up the garde which would exist if the grade was lowered as proposed." No railroad civil engineer with a reputation would dare make such an unfair statement knowing the facts.

I do not believe any reasonable man wants to see Saville street closed up forever; Irving Place, a public highway to be taken for railroad purposes forever; School street raised twelve feet higher than it is now forever; Marsh street raised seven feet higher than it is now forever; nor Water street sunk ten feet lower than it is now making this street a cesspool forever.

No one wants to see the unnecessarily taking of many, many thousands of dollars worth of valuable taxable property for new streets which will deprive the city of the taxes forever, and which will thus involve the city of Quincy in paying for the takings and defending the many law suits, nor finally, the building of this Chinese wall through the centre of our city dividing it for all time.

I cannot conceive of a worse plan for the best interests of the city of Quincy than the plan agreed to by our city officials and the railroad and filed by the Special Commission. Will the city of Quincy be assassinated and its people "crucified on a cross of gold" in the house of its friends for greed and profit?

Yours for justice.
G. B. Bates.

NEW BRIDGE BILL QUITE LIKELY

Boston May Be Requested to Widen Draw at Neponset

COMMITTEE FAVORABLE

(Special to the Ledger.)

The committee on Roads and Bridges of the legislature has taken a new tack on the Neponset Bridge bill. Not being able to see their way clear to either reject or recommend the bill in its entirety and finding both proponents and opponents in an uprising against any decided amendments, the committee hit on a plan that may suit all parties, the dropping of the whole bill as it originally stood and drawing a substitute draft of the bill to read so that the city of Boston would be obliged to repair its end of the bridge to the extent of putting a brand new draw bridge which would be uniform in width to the remainder of the present structure.

This would let Quincy out of any expense except the necessary upkeep of the old bridge which the city already has to pay. It would cost the city of Boston about $40,000 it is estimated, and would encompass all opposition to the present bridge of the Dorchester members of the legislature, who have been unitedly opposed to the city's engineering departments on all its recommendations. If the committee does not report favorably on this matter in this form however, the chances are more than probable that the whole thing will get "Leave to withdraw."

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

The weather man has been ousted which certainly should bring about the desired atmospheric changes as well as political changes.

If the Boston retail dealers carry out their plans for co-operative delivery system, the express men will receive another body blow.

The folding airship is said to be a success. Much of the trouble with the flying machines heretofore has been their collapsibility.

The East Boston minister looking for a job did not meet with marked success. In five days he landed a place of 10 hours at $1.65 per day. At that rate the average laborer would have to beat the record of the Cornell student to exist at all.

It will be "hard a right" or "hard a left" in the navy now, any way it will be hard enough to get into the new order of things.

How deep rooted are those reported differences between President Wilson and his secretary of State? It is pretty certain that both have a mind of their own and with a determination to use it.

Chicago servant girls have formed a union and demand the use of the parlor carrying with it of course the piano and the family on those specified evenings can cool their heels on the back porch and bear the agony of sound as well as their temperaments will permit.

It is now claimed that the arrest of Mr. Mellen for alleged manslaughter is nothing more or less than blackmail. Certainly people in some quarters have been working over time recently stirring up sentiment against Mr. Mellen.

Only 16 members of the house stood by the governor in his opposition to the bill to abolish East Boston tunnel tolls and he was given some hard raps by members of his own party. He has got pretty well used to that by this time.

There may be some reason in exempting money set aside to care for graves from taxation, but like every other good intentioned law it it liable to be a means of another form of tax dodging.

A bad egg is a bad egg any way, and the sellers have found that it is quite as bad for them as for the consumers.

The wits are having their usual jibes at Norman White, but he is not liable to suffer much from their effects.

If reports are true Gov. Foss will be satisfied with the three pieces of pie, but the Governor has a way of saying things and changing his mind upon political situations that one never can tell much about it.

The Washington suffragettes will have their own brass band. "Strike up the band," here comes a voter, to paraphrase the old song.

An old fashioned pork pie travelled all the way from England to Los Angeles by parcels post. It was undoubtedly pretty well seasoned.

PENNY POSTAGE.

The activity all along the line for one cent postage is assuming proportions which will exert quite an influence within a short time and it may not be long before the hopes of the advocates of the scheme may be realized.

Mailing letters costs about 84 cents a pound as it takes about 42 average sized letters to weigh that much. This looks small but when gone into further it will be learned that the cost of a ton of letters is $1680 a ton. Some magazines pay about one cent a pound, or $20 per ton. Some difference in those figures. Yet the letter postage pays about 75 per cent of the revenue received from all sources by the post office department. An investigation into postal conditions has been inaugurated by Secretary Burleson which may mean one cent postage even sooner than its warmest advocates had expected.

EVERY ONE GUESSING.

Every one is saving a fling at the guessing contest inaugurated over the results of the special congressional election in the Thirteenth district. One assigns one cause, another a different one and so on down the line. Neither the tariff or commercial interests figured in the result judging from the returns. Mr. Mitchell retained his normal strength, polling about the same as he did on a former occasion. The Republican vote was split by the same process as that which operated last fall. The Progressives and Republicans are all recruited from the same ranks, those of the latter. When they divide the vote the result is not difficult to figure out. It means victory for the other side. The combined vote of Cutting and White, cast for any candidate would have defeated Mitchell. The division did the trick and that seems to be about all there is to it.

When the Republicans and Progressives get together and settle their differences and unite as one party under one name or the other the Democratic brethern will not have such an easy time picking the plums off the political tree.

PATRIOTS' DAY.

Tomorrow will be Patriots' Day observed in only two states of the union, Massachusetts and Maine. Originally it was known in this state as Fast Day. Not because of any inclination to abstain from food or anything like that, but there evidently appealed to the legislature to do something religious and the name for this holiday was hit upon as an outlet for that Puritanical desire. Neither in the dining or amusements was any manifestation of living religiously up to the name noticeable. So about 1895 it was changed to Patriots' Day and has remained so ever since. Undoubtedly the idea is to foster patriotism among the people. In many churches special services appropriate to the day and its significance are held, but on the whole the people go along about the same old gait, getting as much enjoyment as possible out of the day. While there may be no harm in this, it would be just as easy for them to devote a small part of the day to patriotic musings, and by doing so they may feel better, become better citizens and aid in maintaining the American standard for love of flag and country.

SAVINGS BANK LIFE INSURANCE

Shows Rapid and Healthy Growth In This State

There has recently been issued a booklet of 24 pages showing the organization which has been built up around Savings Bank Life Insurance in Massachusetts. A glance at the booklet shows that there are four Savings Banks with Insurance Departments; eighteen other Savings Banks and trust companies have become public agencies for benefit of the people; nearly two hundred agencies have been established in factories, mills and shops for the benefit of the employees. It is an impressive comment upon the skepticism of those who thought this movement would die stillborn.

Savings Bank Life Insurance has succeeded in its purpose in furnishing the best insurance at lowest cost to residents of Massachusetts and the splendid co-operation of business men has made the advantages of this plan easily available to their employees. There are now 7400 policies in force and the amount of insurance is nearly $3,000,000.

In Quincy the following firms have become agencies for the benefit of their employees:

Boston Gear Works.
Fore River Shipbuilding Co.
Tubular Rivet & Stud Co.

WATERWAYS DEVELOPMENT

Various Bodies to Co-operate For Betterment of Whole State

The Committee on Maritime Affairs of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, with the assistance of such other committees as the Directors may select and in co-operation with other representative commercial bodies, will make a careful study of the subject of the development of the waterways of the State.

The Committee on Maritime Affairs, whose report has been accepted and adopted by the Directors of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, states that from the interest manifested in the Conference on Harbors and Inland Waterways held under the auspices of the Chamber on February 15 last, the Committee "concludes that the various communities of the State are aroused to the possibilities of their waterways and demand a development in that respect along with Boston and it is the opinion of the committee that the Chamber, in assisting and encouraging this in the other cities, will best serve itself and its constituency."

Therefore, the report recommends that the committee be instructed to study this waterways development subject with the assistance of such other committees of the Chamber as the Directors may select and in co-operation with other representative commercial organizations interested in the harbors, bays, rivers and cities affected, for the purpose of mutually agreeing upon

The present or yearly extent of the study and development of all the commercial waterways of the Commonwealth.

The body or bodies who should have control of the work, and how composed.

Legislation desirable to make the foregoing effective.

The best methods of co-operation to secure the same.

What part of this work our Chamber should properly do. Report on this matter will be made to the Chamber not later than November 1, 1913.

BUSY SESSION FOR COUNCIL

Many Matters Which Will Come Up For Consideration

NCLUDING PONY EXPRESS

A regular meeting of the City Council will be held Monday night and as there is much business to come before the meeting it will probably be a busy session. There are no public hearings advertised for this meeting but since the last regular meeting several committees have been at work and they will be heard from. One committee whose reports will be anxiously awaited is that on Licenses. It is well known that all licenses and permits for the transportation of liquor expire on the last day of April and in order for an expressman to transport liquor after that date he must have a permit. Furthermore under the pony express law as it now stands, permits for the transportation of liquor must be granted during the month of April. Quite a few applications for these permits have been received by the Council and have been passed upon by the License committee who will make its report at Monday night's meeting. The committee will also report upon a number of applications for other kinds of minor licenses.

Dancing School Classes Participants In Merry Event

The closing event of the dancing classes of Miss E. J. Corlew at Wollaston and East Milton took place, Thursday evening at Alpha hall, Quincy, and was a memorable date for the 80 young people who participated, and enjoyed also by fond parents and friends. Palms were the principal decorations.

Miss Corlew prettily gowned was ably assisted by Miss Juliet Corlew. There were five matrons seated near the stage, Mrs. Russell Anthony, Mrs. Frederick Cheever, Mrs. Lewis Gosling, Mrs. Franklin Streeter and Mrs. Sherman Ellsworth. Mrs. Rogers, the pianist was assisted by Albert Richardson on drums and other instruments.

Two pretty Germans were features of the evening; a wand German where the children matched colored wands and a favor German with paper chrysanthemums for the girls and whips for the boys which were retained as souvenirs. Miss Corlew was given a gold piece by the pupils.

At intermission a prettily decorated table was brought on the floor by Hendrie, who served ices and fancy cakes. Miss Corlew will continue her classes at Wollaston next October.

ART EXHIBIT AT WOMEN'S CLUB

Rare Paintings to be Shown for Benefit of the Public

Next week the people of Quincy as well as club members will have an opportunity of seeing a fine Loan Art Exhibit at the Quincy Women's club. The pictures which are to be on exhibition have come from New York Philadelphia and Boston. They are the work of some of our most eminent painters. Among those contributing are Melbourne Hardwick, Abbot Graves, Edmund H. Garrett, Charles Copeland, J. A. S. Monks, Jean Oliver Laura Lee, Louis Gronberg, Ernest Major, Sally Cross, Margaret Pierce, Charles Pepper, Mary Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. Kaula. There are a great many promised which have not yet arrived.

Some Quincy people will lend their pictures. Mrs. Arthur Homer of Wollaston and Mrs. Herbert W. Pinkham of Wollaston are lending two valuable paintings. Other residents have promised pictures. To handle these pictures is expensive, because in the first place they have to be heavily insured and experts only may handle them. To meet this expense a small admission will be charged to non-members of the club. It is hoped that the men and women of Quincy will enjoy the pictures.

The committee is planning to have the clubhouse open April 21, 22, 23rd and 24th. If patronage warrants the exhibit will be open evenings.

RUBBISH BOXES BEING SET UP

An Appeal to Citizens to Keep the City Looking Spotless

CIV.C PRIDE SLOGAN

Work was commenced this morning erecting a number of iron boxes on telephone poles between City Square and South Quincy for the reception of waste paper and rubbish, which ordinarily is thrown into street by careless minded persons. On the face of the boxes are words erading "Civic Pride, Rubbish Box." These boxes are a grand good thing and wherever in use have proved a great addition to the cleanliness of the streets. It is a very common practice for people to throw banana skins and pieces of waste paper into the street, not thinking that the accumulation of this rubbish gives the city a bad appearance to strangers passing through. If however rubbish boxes are handy many will use them instead of casting their rubbish into the travelled way.

CENT POSTAGE LOOKS GOOD

Action on the part of Postmaster General Albert S. Burleson, involving the appointment of a commission to investigate the "actual financial, physical and working conditions of the postal service" is regarded by business men all over the country as the initial step towards one cent letter postage.

Postmaster General Burleson indicates that there have been so many conflicting reports as to general conditions of the department that he has decided to have a full and complete investigation made with a view to determining the exact status of affairs.

The commission is composed of Daniel C. Roper, Joseph Stewart, A. M. Dockery and James I. Blackslee, first, second, third and fourth assistant postmasters general respectively, and Merrit O. Chance, chief clerk of the department. These are the new officials just appointed under the Wilson administration to conduct the affairs of the post office department.

Now that the parcels post is in actual operation and bids fair to be extended during the next few years, it is claimed by business men generally that their demand for a one cent letter rate should be heeded. They point to the fact that the post office department is now realizing an enormous surplus, something like $65,000,000 per year from the letter mail. Although letter mail constitutes but fourteen per cent of the revenue of the department, it pays about 75 per cent of revenue received from all classes and it is evident that this is a decided discrimination against users of first class or letter mail.

One of the interesting features of the post office department which will be investigated is the so-called "blue tag" system. In September, 1911, the plan was inaugurated. It covers that section of the United States lying between Pittsburg, Buffalo, Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City and provides that witin this section, second class mail, particularly heavy magazine mail, shall be hauled in freight cars. A report from Postmaster Childs of Kansas City indicates that the system has been a great success so far as it has been worked out. Reports furnished by Postmaster Childs indicate that the saving on the small part of the whole mail that this portion covered for a term of seventeen months was $364,995.50.

Former Postmaster General Hitchcock, who recently retired from office, was firm in the belief that an immense saving could be effected throughout the country if this plan were followed, and all large eastern magazine publishers required to distribute their product in this manner.

The Curtis Publishing Co., of Philadelphia probably the largest periodical publishers in the world, ship out of Philadelphia by regular mail service every day from 5 to 10 fully loaded cars stacked to the roof with magazines. These are carried at the rate of one cent per pound or $20 per ton. When shipped in this way they may be carried for that ridiculous sum, all the way from Philadelphia to California.

Letter mail, on the other hand costs its originators an average rate of over 84 cents per pound, because there are in the neighborhood of 45 pieces, including some postal cards, to the pound. This means a cost of $1680 per ton to the originator of letter mail, as against $20 per ton for the big magazines published in the East, some of which charge as high as $5,000 a page for advertisements.

It is claimed that the loss to the government through this lack of business method is over $60,000,000 per year, sufficient to entirely eat up the surplus furnished by first class mail.

It is to investigate this entire problem with a view to making recommendations for a suitable readjustment that the commission will deal. Sentiment in favor of a one cent letter rate is now strong throughout the country, according to officers of the National One Cent Letter Postage Association, which has its headquarters in Cleveland, and which is conducting a vigorous campaign for the lower rate.

WATERFRONT DEVELOPMENT

into the harbor in a fog would pick up one of the buoys and by the sound of the buoy the skipper would immediately know where he was and how many miles he was from the Lightship and could lay his course accordingly. The plan is an extremely simple one and as the Captain said while it had taken him twenty years to think the plan out the only wonder is that its simplicity has not suggested itself to some one before. Capt. Eldredge told a number of his experiences during his talk which was exceedingly interesting.

Ex-Congressman McNary the next and last speaker held the closest attention of his hearers for two hours. He showed himself to be thoroughly conversant with his subject and that he must have given it much careful thought and study. The audience itself was also intensely interesting and Mr. McNary said after the talk that he had been giving the same talk throughout the state but he had never found an audience that had been as quiet and as interested as this gathering.

In opening he spoke of the Port of Boston as having formerly been the first port of the United States. He then called attention to the ports of New York, New Orleans and Baltimore and stated that the state of New York owed its supremacy to being the first port of the United States to the fact that DeWitt Clinton thought of a line of canals and had it constructed making an inland water way from the great lakes to the sea, with New York as its export point.

He described in detail many of the water fronts of foreign countries, and told of the enormous sums that some of these foreign national governments and municipalities were expending for the improvements of their waterways and harbors.

He also described in detail, and showed by maps and charts all of the improvements proposed by the Port of Boston, for Boston for harbors and piers and spoke of the great steamship lines that had been enduced to make Boston one of their sailing points and predicted a great future for the Port of Boston and asked the cooperation of every thinking man in the audience.

He stated in the closing of his talk that while he did not propose to dictate the policy of water front development to the City of Quincy as there were people who had made a study of this locality and the best way of meeting such needs, he would say, it seemed a great pity that Quincy with its mountains of grout containing millions of tons of granite should lie here unused when the Directors of the Port of Boston and other water fronts were using material that came from Maine simply because City of Quincy did not have railroad facilities for quick transportation to the water front or water front facilities for quick shipment of granite to Boston and other places.

As stated above his address was a masterly presentation of the subject and showed that he had given it much thought and that he was thoroughly familiar with his subject from A to Z.

HUNGER STRIKE A FAILURE

I. W. W. Men Decide That Prison Fare Is Better Than Starvation

Denver, April 18.—Sixty Industrial Workers of the World who on Wednesday began a "hunger strike" in the city jail here gave it up yesterday and decided jail fare was better than starvation.

The sixty "militants" refused to eat breakfast. When a trusty was sent to their cells with a supply of bread and water, the menu furnished by the city to the hundred or more uninvited guests from the Pacific coast, the militants steadfastly refused to touch the fare.

The hunger strike came to an end at noon. There was no necessity to resort to forcible feeding; the strikers were ready to eat luncheon ravenously and ask for more.

Chief of Police O'Neill explained the system upon which he is feeding the industrial workers. "When they obey the rules of the jail," he said, "they get the regular jail fare. When they persist in breaking the rules by shouting and using improper language, they are given—well, a lighter diet."

BIRD HAUNTS AND HABITS

Told by Mr. Avis Who Also Imitated the Many Species

At a meeting of the Quincy Teachers Association Thursday evening in Coddington school hall, a large audience listened to Edward Avis of New York the well known bird Mimic who lectured on the favorite haunts, discovery of hidden nests, as well as the numerous varieties of his bird friends.

His whistling is a natural gift, while his bird songs are the result of constant study and close companionship with the little feathered musicians.

Stereopticon views were shown of the many varieties of birds, nest building and Woodland haunts.

Mr. Avis was interrupted many times with prolonged applause, being a cultured musician as well as a naturalist and used his violin with pleasing effect.

Mrs. James H. Slade sang most acceptably, four selections which added to the evenings enjoyment.

The following program was given:

AMUSEMENTS

DOINGS ON THE STAGE IN

BOSTON AND VICINITY

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE.

Sam and Kitty Morton, of the famous Four Mortons, who have not appeared in Boston in two years, come to B. F. Keith's Theatre next week as one of the big comedy features of a splendid bill. This season Sam and Kitty Morton are appearing as a double act, without the son and daughter who formerly made up the quartette bearing the name of Morton. There is no funnier comedian in vaudeville than Sammy Morton, and in their latest skit, "Back Where They Started," he has abundant opportunity for fun-making. The big spectacular event of the week will be B. A. Rolfe's latest musical production, "Arcadia," with a troupe of fifteen musicians, singers and dancers. This organization introduces all kinds of musical numbers, and among the players are several very pretty girls who wear beautiful gowns. George Felix and the Barry Girls will present that most amusing of farces, "The Boy Next Door," and other big features will be Caesar Nesi, the wonderful Italian tenor, who makes his first Boston appearance at B. F. Keith's Theatre, Phil Staats, late of H. W. Savages' "Excuse Me" company, better known as "300 pounds of Harmony," Marco Belli, in a startling European novelty never before seen in this country; Hanlon and Clifton, the strong men and muscular marvels; Two Alfreds, in a novel clowning speciality; Handers and Meliss; two boys and a piano; and the wonderful Thomas A. Edison Talking Motion Pictures, with all new subjects.

BOSTON THEATRE.

There is a large element in the playgoing population which takes an intense delight in a good melodrama, as is shown at the Boston Theatre, by the success of Maclyn Arbuckle, in "The Round Up" and it is very evident that the opening of the fourth week of the engagement on Monday evening, will see a continuation of the same prosperity that has prevailed since the attraction came back.

In this picture of life and war in the far west, one finds a succession of thrilling pictures of unusual vividness, and after once witnessing the battle scene in this play one has an entirely different idea about the methods of warfare which prevail between the Apaches and the regular troops of the United States. The fight in the canyon continues to be the feature which creates the most talk. Maclyn Arbuckle would be hard to surpass as the fat sheriff of the plains, "Slim" Hoover, and when he finishes his interpretation not a person in the audience agrees with his plaint "Nobody loves a fat man." Others winning a full share are Graoe Benham, Mattie Edwards, Ethel von Waldron, Robert Vaughn, Gus Christie, Elmer Grandin, Vernon Wallace, William Conklin, George Harcourt, James Ashburn, Jacques Martin, Ogden Crane, "Texas" Cooper, and Edward F. Settle, all of whom portray types of prairie life with good effect. Matinees are on Wednesday and Saturday.

MADAM NORDICA.

Madam Lillion Nordica, the greatest singer that America has yet produced and undoubtedly the most popular singer of her time will give her only recital of the season in Symphony hall next Sunday afternoon, April 20th, at half past three. She has arranged a most delightful program. There will be three groups of songs, one in English, one in French and one in German. In addition to these she will sing Schubert's "An die Musik," the great air from Handel's "Samson." "Let the bright Seraphim" with trumpet obligato and an air from Puccini's "Madam Butterfly," and the program will be ended with "La Ballade du Desespere," the words of which are by Henri Murger and the music by Bemberg. This is for voice and recitation accompanied by violin, 'cello and piano.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

The humors of life among a party of American and English who are stopping in an Italian city provide the merriment in "The Man from Home," which John Craig will present at the Castle Square next week. This play written by Booth Tarkington and Harry Leon Wilson has had an astonishing series of successes all over the country, and it has run for a half year or more in several large cities. It comes to the Castle Square for its first stock production, and it is sure to prove a welcome diversion with its picturesque scenes and its contrasts of character. Among the people in the play is a Russian Duke, and he adds an especially romantic touch to the plot.

The title character of "The Man from Home" is a genial American who lives in Indiana, Daniel Voorhese Pike is his name, and by his sterling nature and strong common sense he saves his niece from marriage with the son of an English lord. This role will be played at the Castle Square by John Craig, who will be sure to bring out all the striking characteristics of the man, and in the hands of William P. Carlson, the Grand Duke will prove a dramatic and an attractive figure. Other important roles will be acted by Donald Meek, Walter Walker, Frederick Ormonde, Mabel Colcord, and Laurett Browne, and the cast as a whole will include the entire membership of the Castle Square company.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.

Klaw & Erlanger and Harrison Grey Fiske's superb production of Edward Knoblauch's "Arabian Nights" drama, "Kismet" with Otis Skinner in the stellar role, is now in the fifth week of its very successful run at the Hollis Street Theatre, Boston. The play and the production have won the same high favor here as in New York, Chicago and other American cities. The drama itself, which is Mr. Knoblauch's masterpiece, has been presented during the past two years in nearly every country in which the legitimate theatre is established, and it is recognized as one of the finest pieces of dramatic literature that has come from the pen of a contemporary playwright.

Beyond its literary worth, "Kismet" is a play that provides almost every sort of theatrical entertainment. The plot is intensely dramatic, concerning the many and various adventures of Hajj the beggar of Bagdad, who lived in that gorgeous Oriental capital one thousand years and one year ago. Mr. Skinner's portrayal of this character is his greatest achievement so far in his long and successful career. In the character of Hajj every element of his splendid art is revealed. The large company surrounding Mr. Skinner is quite worthy of the star and the performances are notable for the exquisite artistic balance maintained, and for the attention paid to minute detail. Among the prominent players in the organization of nearly one hundred are Fred Eric, George Gaul, Owen Meech, Daniel Jerrett, Charles Darrah, Harrison Carter, Rita Jolivet, Eleanor Gordon, Georgia Woodthorpe, Ivy Payne and Merle Maddern.

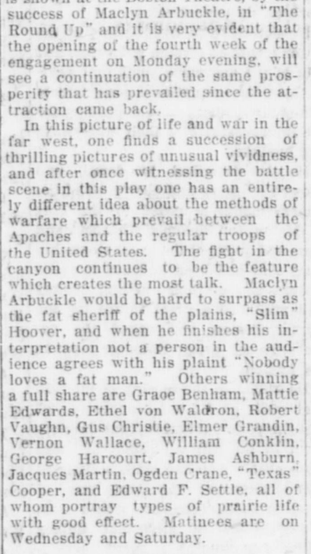

Scenically the production of "Kismet" is one of the most magnificent ever seen on the American stage. In staging the play, Mr. Fiske called into service seven of the most prominent scenic artists in America, each of whom designed and executed a setting, and he personally supervised the production to the smallest detail. Owing to the length of the performance, the curtain rises promptly at 7.45 o'clock in the evening's, and at 1.45 o'clock at the Wednesday and Saturday matinees.

PILGRIM'S PROGRESS.

At Tremont Temple commencing April 28, and for the following two weeks, the citizens of Boston will for the first time have the opportunity of seeing the Life of John Bunyan and his classic allegory, Pilgrim's Progress, made by the Hochstetter-Pierson Company. This picture contains the celebrated findings of F. W. Hochstetter, the greatest since the days of Deguerre. In presenting Pilgrim's Progress to the public, the Hochstetter Company have borne in mind in the treating of this great subject, the remark of the celebrated and probably the greatest premier England ever had, W. E. Gladstone. "I have long thought that the battle of Christianity will have to be fought around the sacredness of marriage—only Christianity can save society." In the treatment of this great theme, the Hochstetter Company have folowed the dominent note in Mr. Gladstones quotation and the picture will be shown in all its glorious radiance of color for the first time at the matinee on April 28. The interpretation of the pictures is in the hands of Miss Katherine Eggleston whose success as a reader has placed her in the very first rank of lyceum artists.

TREMONT TEMPLE.

On Monday will begin the final week of the Kinemacolor pictures at Tremont Temple. The added scenes of the Inaugural and Suffragette Parades at Washington are giving diversity to the entertainment, while there is also no little enthusiasm over the actual scenes pictured of the Balkan War and of the making of the Panama Canal. A week from next Monday colored motion pictures by the Hochstetter process will be given a limited engagement in Tremont Temple. The subjects will be the Life of John Bunyan and scenes from the Pilgram's Progress.

Works Objects to Details of Crimes, Accidents and Tragedies

Washington, April 18.—Senator Works made a vigorous attack on present-day journalism and the newspapers of the United States in a speech in support of his bill to make it unlawful for District of Columbia newspapers to publish details of crimes, accidents and tragedies. The senator introduced a similar bill during the last session, but it was not acted upon.

Works admitted that his bill was not likely to become law, and that it has been his purpose "to call the attention of the country to one of the greatest, most powerful and most corrupt evils and influences of the present age."

EIGHT BRIDESMAIDS AND SEVEN PAGES

Nobles at Brilliant Wedding of Popular Young Couple

London, April 18.—In the presence of many of the nobility, besides Premier Asquith and large representations from the house of commons and the house of lords, Diana Lister, daughter of Lord Ribblesdale, was married in St. Catherine's chapel, Westminster Abbey, to Percy Wyndham, half-brother of the Duke of Westminster.

The wedding was one of the most brilliant that has ever taken place in England. The bride was attended by eight bridesmaids and seven pages, a retinue never before equalled in size in a wedding in London.

A military touch was added by the presence of the Coldstream Guards, of which the groom is a member. The bride was driven from her home to the church in the Ribblesdale coach, which has been in the family service for over 100 years.

Wyndham, who is 26, is extremely popular, while his bride, aged 20, is one of the favorites in London society.

Biddeford, Me., April 18.—Notices were posted at the Saco-Lowell machine shops that beginning next week the running time will be reduced to a weekly schedule of forty-four hours. Two hundred employes were also notified that their services would not be required after tonight.

The concern has other factories at Lowell and Newton, Mass., and is the largest manufacturer of cotton and wool machinery in the United States.

SEVEN DIE IN FIRE

Flames Make Speedy Headway In Destroying Old Hotel

Malone, N. Y., April 18.—Seven persons were burned to death, and several women sustained injuries from which they may die in a fire which destroyed the De Wilson hotel, an old three-story wooden structure on Catherine street.

The building burned rapidly and the firemen had no time to effect rescues. An explosion caused the fire. Most of the injured were hurt by jumping from the third story.

OFFICE MAY BE GIVEN DABNEY

Wilson Considering Him For Weather Bureau Chief

MOORE'S CONDUCT IN OFFICE

Department of Justice Called Upon to Look Into It—Said to Have Greatly Increased Subordinates' Salaries In Return For Political Work For the Former Forecaster

Washington, April 18.—It is said at the executive offices that the name of Charles W. Dabney, president of the University of Cincinnati, is under consideration by President Wilson to be chief of the weather bureau in place of Willis L. Moore, removed.

Dabney, it is said, has qualifications for the position which the president considers necessary. Whether he would consent to accept is not known here. He was one of those considered by the president for secretary of agriculture.

A general housecleaning of the weather bureau is impending. Any political machine that Moore may have constructed in that department is to be sent to the scrap heap. It is regarded as significant here that the department of justice was called on to make the investigation of Moore's conduct in office, and that the preliminary findings which resulted in the bureau chief's dismissal and that of one of his subordinates have not been made public in detail. In the ordinary course of events, it was pointed out, an investigation would have been made by agricultural department heads, without calling on the department of justice.

Moore refuses to add to his statement that the charges of alleged coercion of weather bureau employes and alleged misuse of the traveling fund were "infamously false."

Representative Fowler of Illinois, who has a resolution before the house for the investigation of the weather bureau, says it was founded largely on charges made by James D. Berry, a former employe of the bureau, who declared he has furnished President Wilson a list of forty employes of the weather bureau who, he alleges, have been advanced in salary an aggregate of $22,800 in the last five years in return for political work for the former forecaster.

The Berry charges refer principally to the alleged efforts to promote Moore's candidacy for secretary of agriculture.

THE JAPANESE PROTEST

Other States Have Land Laws as Proposed In California

Washington, April 18.—Comparison of the proposed alien land holding legislation in California with the District of Columbia and several states revealed to White House officials increased difficulty in handling the protest entered by Japan.

It was pointed out at the White House that no foreign nation had ever entered protest against these existing laws.

The federal government is not sanguine of appeasing popular opinion in Japan, though it does hope to satisfy the Tokio government of its helplessness to effect changes that would entirely remove the Japanese objections.

STILWELL STANDS PAT

Declares He Will Not Resign Despite Warning From Sulzer's Advisers

Albany, April 18.—Unless Senator Stilwell resigns early next week the evidence taken by the senate judiciary committee concerning the charges of attempted extortion preferred by George H. Kendall of New York will be turned over to District Attorney Whitman for presentation to the grand jury.

This warning was served upon friends of Stilwell by close advisers of Governor Sulzer, with the request that they present it to Stilwell. Before leaving for New York Stilwell reiterated his declaration that, having been vindicated by the senate, he did not propose to resign.

New Hampshire Legislature Pays a Compliment to President

An appropriation of $12,000 for the improvement of the road, which leads from the village of Cornish to the estate to be occupied by the president, was passed unanimously in response to a special message from Governor Felker.

BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

Ten American Painters Take Their Turn in the Hub's Busy Art Season—"Spare the Brush and Spoil the Teeth" is Slogan in Training of School Children—Ideal Football Here is Too Stout for College Girls' Ideal Young Man—Just What a Paragon the Young Ladies Expect this Person to Be.

Boston and New England connoisseurs of painting are enjoying the current exhibition of pictures by Ten American Painters, among whose ranks are numbered some of the most popular and best known artists of the day. The Copley Galleries are well filled with partisam and critics of the school of American painting which is representative of the best work being done in this country and equal to much of the best being done abroad. Works by such painters as Joseph DeCamp, Frank W. Benson, and Edmund C. Tarbell give the exhibition a local interest and the presence of canvasses by the New York and other members of "The Ten" give a welcome opportunity to compare progress of the various men. In contrast to this exhibition comes the Cubists' Show on April 28 at Copley Hall. This show will include the canvasses which caused so much curiosity and sensation in New York and are now repeating the performance in Chicago. Post impressionism will here be exemplified in all its weirdness. The Chicago attendance bids fair to exceed 200,000 and it is safe to assume that Copley and Allston Halls will be crowded to their capacity every day of the three weeks exhibition.

The Annual Marathon under the auspices of the Boston Athletic Association has become a classic in the United States running events, and preparations for the twenty-five mile grind on April 19 have long been underway. Bermuda and Canada are represented this year, and while the number was greater last year, owing to the incentive of the European trip, there is plenty of excitement promised. Several of the runners on the 19th are men who ran the course in the Olympic marathon, one of them, Andrew Sockalexis, having finished fourth. The day being a holiday in the Hub, dedicated to observance of our ancestors' exploits at Concord and Lexington, opening of the canoeing season, beach resorts, et cetra, will afford thousands the opportunity of lining the road from Ashland to Exeter Street, and waiting in the chill wind to watch for the first white suited runner and cheer him on.

"Spare the brush and spoil the teeth" is the latest slogan in New York schools, and will probably be taken up actively in the Hub schools in the near future, especially as the new Forsyth dental infirmary for children has ambitious plans for public usefulness. The motto is accompanied by illuminating and interesting lectures given before the school children with little dramas of home life portrayed by motion pictures, in which the illnesses and irritabilities attendant upon diseased teeth are set forth graphically but entertainingly. Tooth-brush drills are given at regular intervals in some school rooms in the big city, and the essential features of mouth hygiene are made clear to the youthful mind, with the result that many a school child reforms his or her family and eradicates many evils due to this long overlooked cause of innumerable troubles. The motion picture films are made more striking by interspersing pictures of the old time tortures of the tooth pulling operation and the modern method of caring for the teeth. The effect of these lecture pictures should be extremely gratifying to the school authorities.

"The Plays for Children Company" will give its first performance in Boston on April 29, as the first step in the movement for a permanent childen's company. Many of Boston's leading educational and society men and women are backing this project, with the intention of providing a means whereby children may become familiar with the best in drama, music and artistic stage presentations. "The Magic Rose" is to be the initial performance, a dainty fairy play mingling fairies, inspired animals, animated vegetables and other possibilities of Wonderland in a picturesque, entertaining and well acted matinee. If the idea proves successful permanent arrangements will be concluded.

The ideal football here is too "beefy" to meet the college girls' ideal of a man. So at least it is argued from comparison of a symposium by Kansas collegiates on this all absorbing topic and of the figures of development of Huntington Hardwick, one of last autumns gridiron stars and now proclaimed by Dr. Dudley Sargent as the best proportioned young man ever studied at the Harvard gymnasium. Hardwick may be all right from the physical trainer's viewpoint but he is several pounds too heavy and his waist and chest measure are too big to meet the college girls' composite ideal. The extra physical requirements of the ideal young man are also worth noting. They are that he Must make a good appearance, but need not be handsome.

Must be careful of personal appearance, but not a dandy.
Must be jolly, accommodating, considerate and a true sportsman.
Must be a good conversationalist, but not a flatterer.
Must revere and respect the aged.
Must show courtesy to men and women.
Must not smoke, drink or be guilty of attendant evils.
Must not sneer at religion or joke lightly of it.
Must not recognize a different standard for men and women.

Colonel TODHUNTER of Missouri

By RIPLEY D. SAUNDERS

Copyright, 1911, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company.

SYNOPSIS

Colonel Todhunter booms his friend William J. Strickland for the nomination for governor. Tom Strickland, son of William, loves Mary Todhunter. Lottie-May Doggett loves Tom.

Stamford Tucker pays attention to Mary. He and Tom are rivals. They clash at the Todhunters'.

A political rally of Strickland's supporters is interrupted by the Yancey men, led by Stam. His father, Eph Tucker, is Yancey's main supporter in Nineveh.

Tom and Stam quarrel about Lottie-May, to whom Stam is attentive. Colonel Todhunter and Eph Tucker meet in the office of the Nineveh Blade.

Dick Cantrill, editor of the Blade, defeats one of Tucker's "low down" tricks. Old Mirandy, one of Colonel Todhunter's negro dependents, living near the Doggetts, tells the colonel of Stam's visits to Lottie-May.

In a wrangle Tom knocks Stam down. Colonel Todhunter is to indorse Strickland's note for $3,000 to meet campaign expenses.

Eph Tucker accepts the note. In St Louis the newspaper men "write up" Colonel Todhunter, who is campaigning, and make much of his picturesque personality.

Mary hashed mockery at him. "I reckon you do," she exclaimed. "It's just like you. But there's no danger of it's coming to pass, Mr. Tom Strickland."

They were now well out of the drowsy town. Old Solomon trotted contentedly along under the leafy foliage that arched his always welcome homeward way.

"That's one reason I'd like to see your father elected governor," continued Mary. "Those Jefferson City girls will soon teach you your proper place Tom Strickland, even though you are the governor's son."

"I'm not the governor's son yet, Mary," responded Tom, an intentional meekness in his tone. "And even if the time ever comes that I am, Jefferson City will see mighty little of me."

"What do you mean?" asked Mary. "You'll certainly have to go to the state capital when Colonel and Mrs. Strickland go, won't you?"

Tom's face took on an injured expression. "I declare, Mary," he spoke, "you never seem to realize that I'm no longer a boy. Please remember that I'm a grown man now and that I've studied law and been admitted to practice at the Missouri bar!"

Laughter gleamed in Mary's eyes. "Well, Mr. Thomas Strickland, great lawyer that you are," she mocked, "what then?"

"Why, just this, that I intend to stay right here in Nineveh," announced Tom loftily. It's all settled too. I'm going to be taken into partnership with my father and old Judge Bolling, and then I can hold my father's practice if he's elected. Anyway, I'm to be a partner. 'Strickland, Bolling & Strickland,' that's how the new sign will read!"

Mary laughed outright. "Goodness me!" she cried. "Won't we be a big man then? Oh, Tom, it'll be such fun to hear you make a speech in court! Ahem—Gentlemen of the jury"—

"Shame on you, Mary Todhunter!" cried Tom, reddening boyishly. "It's just like you, though. You've poked fun at me all your life."

"I haven't either!" denied Mary instantly. "I've only laughed at your high and mighty ways now and then, and you know it!"

Tom's angry eyes looked straight to the front.

"You had no right to say that about me," continued Mary. "I've been mighty good to you."

"Up to a certain point, yes," agreed Tom. "But just the minute I get serious about anything you begin laughing at me."

"Why, Tom, I don't do anything of the sort!" protested Mary. "I never dreamed of such a thing! You can try me this very minute and see!"

"All right, I will!" spoke Tom quickly. "Mary, I love you. I want you to promise to be my wife. Won't you? I've loved you all my life!"

"Tom Strickland!" cried Mary, blushing hotly. "You ought to be ashamed of yourself! You've got no right to say that just because—just because I—I was trying to be good to you!"

"Mary," said Tom sturdily, "if you don't know I've been in love with you all this time you must be blind. And now I've told you, why—well, you've got to give me an answer—and I love you so that I'm afraid to hear it! If it's no—well, it'll break my heart, that's all!"

There was no answer to his pleading. Mary had given him one startled look. Then her eyes had softened and turned away from his. It seemed to Tom that she was crying.

"Mary," he said humbly, "I didn't mean to say anything to trouble you, but I had to tell you some time or other. I've loved you a long, long time. Is there any chance for me at all?"

Still there was no answer.

"I reckon I've been the blind one," said Tom sadly. "I reckon you can't care for me the way I care for you. Yes, Mary, I reckon it's me that's been blind!"

"Yes, Tom," replied Mary Todhunter, "it's you that have been blind."

Tom bowed his head. "I ought to have seen that you didn't love me," he said. "I ought to have seen it. Then I wouldn't have given you the pain of having to tell me so."

"I'm not going to tell you," said Mary.

"All right, Mary," replied Tom. "I'll take my answer without hurting you

"Is there any chance for me at all?"

by making you put it into words. I'm no hog, anyway; I know when I've had enough."

To his amazement Mary burst out laughing. "Of all the funny things to say at such a time!" she cried. Her eyes were full of mischief, yet beautifully tender. "Oh, Tom, indeed you are the blindest of the blind!"

A sudden hope stirred in Tom's soul. "Mary!" he exclaimed. "You don't mean"—

"I do, Tom," softly replied Mary. "How could you believe I didn't love you? You ought to be ashamed of yourself."

And Tom Strickland took Mary Todhunter in his arms, leaving old Solomon to go his own way unguided.

"I'll tell Mrs. Todhunter and the colonel this very day," he announced a few moments later. "Lord, they'd see it anyway in my face, I'm so proud and happy. I want to know if they think I'm good enough for you."

Mary tossed her head. "They'd better think so!" she retorted indignantly. "Not good enough, indeed!"

But Tom was near to being panic stricken when they had gained the wide gallery of Mary's home and were confronting her parents.

"Howdy, Tom!" spoke Colonel Todhunter. His glance passed from young Strickland to his daughter with just the faintest twinkle of amusement in his gray blue eyes.

Tom Strickland had taken Mrs. Todhunter's hand. "Howdy, Mrs. Todhunter—Howdy, colonel," he said, his face an open book of confession. "I—I—well, I—Mary was good enough to say I could come home with her!"

"We're glad you did, Tom," replied Mrs. Todhunter. "And you've got to stay to supper."

Colonel Todhunter's lips were twitching. "I don't know about that, honey," he spoke. "Tom don't look to me like he's very hungry."

Mary flashed swift indignation at her father. Mrs. Todhunter looked at the colonel in surprise. Then in sudden understanding, she shot a quick glance at the young people. Tom Strickland blushed redder than ever. Mary fired at her mother one soft volley of entreaty from dewy eyes and then fled precipitately into the house. Her face filled with comprehending tenderness, Mrs. Todhunter followed Mary, making no excuses.

"Tom," said Colonel Todhunter, "you seem to have been kicking up a mighty funny rumpus this load o' poles, young man!"

Tom stood like a condemned felon in the dock. "I reckon I have, colonel," he made answer. Then, after a dismay filled pause, "I—I—I've been asking Mary to marry me, sir."

Colonel Todhunter's face was impassive.

Tom Strickland stood very erect. Pride shone in his eyes. "I don't know, sir, whether you've noticed it or not," he resumed, "but I've been in love with Mary for a long time."

A relishful twinkle was in Colonel Todhunter's eyes.

"And, sir—and—well, Colonel Todhunter, it's just this," exultantly but blushingly exclaimed Tom. "I know I don't deserve it—I can't hardly believe it—but Mary says she loves me, too—and—well, sir, I want to ask Mrs. Todhunter's and your consent to our marriage, sir."

Colonel Todhunter was contemplating the young man with eyes brimful of kindly amusement.

"Tom," he said, "as long as you live you'll never forget how skeered you are this minute, suh. But you got through with it like a hero, a blamed sight better than I did when I asked for Mrs. Todhunter. That sure was a terrible experience."

But the next moment his face was grave. He laid his hand on young Strickland's shoulder.

"Tom, my boy," he said, "I'd rather give Mary to you than to any other man in the world, and you ought to ha' known it without my tellin' you. I've known you and liked you all the time you've been growin' up, and I love your father like he was my own brother. I am glad you and Mary have got it all settled, and I'm sure Mrs. Todhunter thinks as much of you as I do. God bless you and Mary both, my boy."

There was a sudden break in the colonel's voice. "It's up to you and Mary to arrange all the rest of it, young man," he spoke again after a little pause. Then, with a whimsical smile: "And all of your troubles are ahead of you both. May the good Lord have mercy on your souls."

A splendid gratitude shone in Tom's eyes. "All I've got to say is this, Colonel Todhunter," he said, "God helping me, I'll make Mary the best husband in the world."

"You'll need the Good Marster's help considerable, too, my boy," responded Colonel Todhunter quizzically. "And don't bank on bein' too blamed successful in that there undertakin', suh. Bein' a good husband ain't no sinecure, not by a long shot. It's the biggest contract you ever undertook, and you've got to keep hammerin' away at it ev'ry minute, suh. It's enough to skeer a man to death, Tom, if it wan't for one thing—bein' a good husband means havin' a happy wife, and that's the finest thing on God's green footstool. You just live up to that great truth, Tom, and it's all I'll ask of you."

"You won't have to ask more than once, Colonel Todhunter," replied Tom fervently. "I'll think of nothing but Mary's happiness all my life, sir. And that'll mean mine, too; we're going to be the happiest couple in all the world, colonel."

"Now that's where you slip up again, Tom," said Colonel Todhunter. "Married life ain't just one long dream of unalloyed bliss, not by a jugful, suh

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

For Hair Health

If Rexall "93" Hair Tonic does not improve the health of your scalp and hair, we will pay for what you use during the trial.

We could not so strongly endorse Rexall "93" Hair Tonic and continue to sell it to the same people if it did not do all we claim. Should it not prove entirely satisfactory our customers would lose faith in us, we would lose their patronage, and our business would suffer.

If your hair is falling out or you suffer any scalp trouble, we believe Rexall "93" Hair Tonic will do more to eradicate the dandruff, give health to the scalp, stimulate new hair growth and prevent premature baldness than any other human agency.

We want you to make us prove this. We ask you to risk no money whatever. Buy a bottle of Rexall "93" Hair Tonic, use it according to directions for thirty days; then if you are not entirely satisfied, come and tell us and we will promptly hand back the money you paid us for it.

BERNIE BURKE WON HIS MATCH

Overcome Smith's Lead of Five Pins and Landed Victory

PICKUPS WERE IMMENSE

With nearly 600 fans crowding the Coliseum and amid cheers which resounded throughout the entire Irving place section, Bernard Burke, one of Quincy's best known bowlers won the second leg of the special 20 string match from Herbert Smith by 44 pins. The final total was 1939 to 1895. Smith won the first leg 957 to 952 Tuesday evening, his victory being due to a strike in the eighth box and Burke's failure to buy up two easy spares.

There was no such thing as failure to buy spares Thursday evening in Burke's part since he had a number to his credit. Strikes came his way also and nearly all of his breaks came right since his first ball crashed the one and three pins with marked effect.

The prettiest showing of the evening was Burke's buying up a 4-10 spare. His deadwood lay on a difficult angle and his control simply demonstrated his bowling ability.

As for Smith he made 116 for high single, against his opponents 111. He lost 20 pins on the first string and continued loosing. Although he did not appear to be nervous and rolled as though he possessed the confidence of experience gained from many matches he did not demonstrate the class usually shown.

Over 100 came from Weymouth to see Smith bowl but the stakeholders passed none of the money to them.

Burke collected $100 for his performance. The matching of the men both leaders in the Fore River league was brought about through Simmons of Foundry team who has also managed the Quincy Girls team.

The score:

Burke 106, 101, 98, 111, 93, 987, 94, 85, 107, 89 103—Total 987; First 952; Grand total 1939.

Smith 86, 102, 87,, 88, 79, 92, 95, 92, 101, 116 Total 938; First string 957; Grand total 1895.

TWELVE TYPHOID CASES REPORTED

Board of Health Using Every Effort to Stamp It Out

Another case of typhoid fever has been reported to the Board of Health from the infected Norfolk Downs section. This makes a total of 12 cases that have developed in a comparatively short time. The first few were reported within a very few hours and the others have been slowly but surely coming to the surface. All effort possible is being made by the Board of Health to check further spreading the disease. Its origin was placed after an investigation as being due to infected milk distributed through an Atlantic dealer who was supplied from a Connecticut dealer.

LOCAL MANSION MAY BE MODEL

For the Massachusetts Building at Panama Exposition

TO COST $200,000

(Special to the Ledger)

The Dorothy Q. house in Quincy may be the model for the Massachusetts building at the Panama-Pacific Exposition. At a hearing at the State House, the committee on Federal Relations heard the report of the Board of Managers fort he Massachusetts exhibit. Contained in the report is the estimates of the architects employed by the managers to submit figures and plans for the building which will contain Massachusetts exhibitions and offices of the Board.

It was suggested to the architects that a replica of the State House Bulfinch Front be made the basis for the plans of the building but the architects said that a desirable building along those lines would cost $350,000, so that plan was abandoned at once. Then came the suggestion that a model of some of the typical old-time Massachusetts buildings be figured on, and after looking over all that they thought suitable the architects reported that a building designed along the lines of the Dorothy Quincy House or the old Royal House in Medford would be suggestive of historical Massachusetts and still provide an adequate structure for the housing of the immense exhibit which this State proposes to have at the Exposition.

These latter plans call for a maximum expenditure of $200,000.

There is considerable comment however over the amount of theappropriation asked, which is $500,000. To spend even two hundred thousand dollars on the building, which at best is only good for a year, does not hit the unsentimental members of the elgislature. They argue that cities spend $100,000 for buildin which are considered permanent buildings and which thet ax-payer pays because he knows there is something coming back to him or the comunity. But they think the expenditure of such a large amount on a "show" buliding is extravagent, especially in view if the large State tax which is anticipated to reach the eight million mark.

If the architects have their way, though, the Dorothy Q. house may be duplicated in all its simplicity at what promises to be the greatest World's Fair ever held.

Mrs. Stephen Penniman who has been pasing the winter with her son Charles H. Penniman left today for New York with her daughter Mrs. James B. Pollock where she will remain during the coming summer.

POPE WELL ENOUGH TO LEAVE HIS BED

His Handwriting Firm as He Signs State Papers

Rome, April 18.—Medical skill and strong vitality have combined to bring about a more hopeful change in the condition of Pope Pius. The official bulletins relieve present anxiety, but there are some who are skeptical and fear a third relapse, owing to the general weakness of the pontiff, and because he is inclined to disobey the orders of the attending physicians.

The sun pouring into the chamber impelled him to leave his bed yesterday, which he did without assistance. On such occasions it is the pope's custom to order his attendants out of the room, and they reluctantly obey him, but watch, unobserved, through the half open door, fearing an accident.

Cardinal Merry del Val visited the pope last evening and submitted for his signature several decrees on important questions of an urgent character. Pope Pius signed them, and his handwriting was firm and clear and showed no change from his writing before his illness.

GRANITE SHAFT DEDICATED TO MEMORY OF DEAD BROTHERS

Clan McGregor Pays Tribute to Those Who Have Passed On

Impressive Service With James Duncan as Orator

"Stones upon their cairn
From out of the fields of love."

Such is the inscription on the beautiful granite memorial dedicated Patriots Day in Mt. Wollaston cemetery to the Scottish dead by Clan McGregor, Order of Scottish Clans. Fully 500 attended the ceremonies which were simple but impressive. Over 200 clansmen marched from their hall in South Quincy to the cemetery. All wore the McGregor plaid which waved blithely as the puffs of a sharp southeast breeze caught its fullness.

The pipe band of the Highland Dress Association, in full regalia, with Pipe Major Daniel MacQuarrie directing, sent the martial music of the Highlands broadcast along the line of march as they escorted the McGregors to the spot where their monument sets.

Two clansmen of McGregor are memorialized on the reverse of the handsome die: Alexander Ironsides and David Law, both of whom died in 1888. Other names and the year of their death are Alexander Bevin 1889, James F. Mann 1891, George McBeath 1911 and Matthew Coyle 1911.

Chief Angus Martin in opening the services spoke of the sincere intention of the clan in erecting the memorial and Rev. James Todd, D. D., pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian church of South Boston, secretary of the Scottish Charitable Society and formerly pastor of the First Presbyterian church of this city, invoked the divine blessing.

A choir of clansmen sang "Blessed be the tie that binds" and the orator of the day Clansmen James Duncan, secretary-treasurer of the Granite Cutters International Association was presented by Chief Martin. At the conclusion of his eloquent tribute the choir sang "Shall we meet beyond the river," and Dr. Todd pronounced the benediction.

After the exercises all returned to Clan McGregor hall where they gathered informally in honor of the event.

Clansman Duncan spoke as follows:

"It is not entirely a new thing to see Scotchmen, citizens and friends meet to dedicate a monument to civilian life. The historian in recent years gives to the Scottish people the title of having dedicated more monuments to people in civil life than any other nation now or at any other time.

"Our adopted country whose flag we love, and in loving it do not lessen the love of the old flag, is but young in historic literature. But, in traveling through the older countries scarcely indeed is a monument found dedicated to anyone except some great warrior, whose title to the same lies in the amount of the shedding of human blood he instituted and directed in the business of his avocation.

"It is true that there are military and naval heroes connected with our people, and they are not forgotten in the dedication of monuments, in the painting of pictures, but to those who have reason to note because of great

ALSO SOME CANDY

The store of Joseph Hayden, 750 Washington street was entered on the morning of Patriots' Day and a quantity of cigarettes, cigars, tobacco and candy stolen. The break was discovered by John Hayden, a brother of the proprietor who opened the store at about 5.30 A. M. and saw a pane of glass removed from a side window. He investigated and immediately went to the Quincy Point fire house where Officer Thorne was waiting for the first car to Quincy. Both returned to the store. It is estimated that the loss is about $12. The break was evidently made after Officer Thorne made his last round.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Will the helmsman unship the wheel and throw it up in the air, when ordered to "throw the wheel up?"

One cent postage is the slogan of the business interests of the country. To the person of limited correspondence the change will be hardly noticeable but the concern or individual with a heavy mailing list it will mean a great saving.

Elk Point, S. D. certainly deserves the palm for solving the matter of granting liquor licenses. Only two saloons could have a license and the voters selected the candidates by popular vote.

Attorney General McReynolds is receiving scores of letters asking if certain lines of procedure by big concerns would be in violation of the Sherman law but he declines to act as counsel for the trusts.

Councillor McGregor is not the only citizen of the state who objects to going outside the state for officials. Taken on the whole there has been too much of that in Massachusetts the past few years and it is not complimentary to the many Bay State men of ability who could adequately frame up to the pobs filled by outsiders.

Home rule and home talent should at least have a speaking acquaintance.

Pike county, Penn., is going backward. Not a single marriage license was issued there during the month of March. Can the same record be claimed for March of 1912?

THE TAYLOR SYSTEM.

Is Uncle Sam to be right up in the front ranks of style and have a genuine strike on his hands? That seems to be the sentiment in labor circles around Boston unless a certain objectionable system which is proposed to but into operation in the Charlestown navy yard is permitted to go into effect. The system referred to is the so-called Taylor system, a new card job system, which purports to take the place of the stopwatch and other features of the old plan which proved so objectionable, to the men. It was introduced at the Watertown arsenal and the labor men claim with disastrous results. Protests stopped a similar inauguration under the Taft administration and the labor men are surprised that the present administration should endorse such a policy.

The Metal Trades Department connected with the Charlestown navy yard, and affiliated with the A. F. of L. is strongly opposed to the system. They plan to have their National officers look into the matter and take such action as they deem necessary. The men claim that under this plan they will have considerable broken time. The men in the Norfolk navy yard voiced their objections to the plan some months ago and were successful in having it side tracked at the time. The men are evidently in earnest in their objections and protest and even talk of striking rather than submit. That will be an interesting situation indeed if through the operation of a poor system, men working for the government of which they are presumably a part are to strike to gain their desires. It will be a novel situation to say the least. In the meantime no doubt trades unions all over the country will watch with interest the outcome of this difficulty between the department and the men working in the navy yards.

A NEEDLESS CHANGE.

According to the orders recently issued by the Navy department, the nautical terms starboard and port, are to be shelved and the figurative speech, right and left will be used hereafter in directing the helmsman to steer the ship. It is hardly within hailing distance yet as to the cause or demand for a change which of necessity for some time must create some confusion and may lead to accident.

Starboard and larboard were the nautical terms for many years. After a while it was deemed wise to drop the larboard and substitute port, which seemed reasonable because there was much possibility of mistakes occurring owing to the similarity of the two so long in vogue. But the right and left business is getting on the nerves of old sailors. It is causing them no end of sleepless nights. It has afforded the nautical wits, the humorous writers and others with material for poking fun at the navy department. It is suggested that every nautical term now in vogue be shifted to conform to the land vernacular. Then we might expect to hear that some one was ordered up to the first, second or third floor of the ship, the cellar, parlor, dining room, kitchen or the like. The smoke stacks will no doubt be changed to chimneys. The masts may be changed to flag poles, front and rear, and the ends of the ship characterized in the same manner. O nthe whole there does not appear to be much need of any such change. If any men of the navy should get into the merchant marine later they would be handicapped by having to learn the working terms all over again. The navy department might inaugurate reforms and improvements which would be more pregnant to utility than changing the terms of starboard and port so long used to advantage.

HOW ABOUT MR. GILMORE?

Congressman Phelan of Lynn, is evidently in bad with his constituents on the tariff subject. The papers and people of his district and particularly Lynn, which is a shoe centre, are pounding him because of his alleged inactivity when the tariff measure was before the congressional committee. It might be well for the voters of his district to remember that Mr. Phelan is only one of several hundred members of the body and that the Democratic party is in power.

President Wilson is on record as favoring a cut in the tariff on the necessaries of life. Food stuffs, cloth, leather and shoes come under that head. There was no secret about Mr. Wilson's attitude or position. He was the candidate of his party, and the party platform stood for many things which do not meet with unanimous favor on the part of the citizens at large. But at any rate knowing Mr. Wilson's views, realizing the party he represented and the Platform on which he stood the electoral vote of the country was largely in his favor.

The people evidently wanted a change. They got it and they must accept the situation for better or worse. If it should prove worse there is only one thing to do and that is wait until the time arrives when a change can be affected, which will produce a change for the better.

Apropos of the attitude of Mr. Phelan's supporters it might not be too impertinent to ask how Congressman Gilmore of this district, who comes from the shoe city of Brockton stands on the tariff and in what direction his official activities have been directed.

E. church, and Rev. Joseph Walther of the Wollaston Baptist church. A delegation from Quinopequin lodge, I. O. O. F., of which the deceased was a member. Burial was in Mt. Wollaston cemetery. Mr. Cropper was an elevator man at the State House for 18 years and was recently promoted to night watchman. He had a shock Sunday and from which he never recovered. He leaves a widow.

PLENTY CHANGES IN THE WEATHER

Abundant Variety and None of It Is Spring-like

The weather Saturday and Sunday was anything but spring like, if anything being more like the late fall product. Saturday there was a variety of weather. At times the sun would be out bright and warm and almost the next instant its rays would be hidden behind a cloud and it looked as though rain would fall at any minute. There was an occasional sprinkle during the day not enough to amount to anything. With all this variety the wind, which had been strong during the morning freshened to almost a gale during the afternoon and with the increasing wind the thermohmeter fell. Taking it all in all the afternoon was rather disagreeable to be out in. Many improved the day in cleaning up their back yards while hundreds of others paid a visit to some of the summer resorts looking over their beach property or looking for a cottage for the coming season. As for automobiles, thousands were out and there was a constant stream of cars going through City Square in both directions, all day and in the evening. Early in the morning before daylight there was a short but sharp thunder and lightning storm. The flashes of lightning were vivid and the roll of thunder heavy. Nothing in this vicinity as far as known was struck however.

Sunday was also a disagreeable day. The wind blew hard all day and the air was extremely cold for this season of the year. Many people were about however and the street car lines were well patronized.

QUINCY HIGH BEAT STETSON

Crocker Made Good in the Box for Six Innings

Quincy High won its first game at Merrymount Park, Friday afternoon, beating Stetson High of Randolph, 7 to 2. Coach Mansur tried out 11 local men. The fielding of the team was surprising, the boys showing real base ball ability. The stiff wind cramped their muscles and the game was not as fast as it might have been.

The star of the game was Crocker who pitched six innings, securing four strikeouts, passing one man and allowing no runs.

Quincy received a bad scare when "Les" Andrews passed a man with the bases full and gave the visitors the first tally. While Crocker exhibited well it can hardly be said that he will do better than Andrews since the team from Stetson really demanded no exceptional display. The score:

ENDEAVORERS HAVE BIG DAY

Quincy Members Carried off Silk Banner at Franklin Gathering

Patriots' day was Christian Endeavor day for hundreds of young people of Massachusetts, for several county conventions were held. That for Norfolk county was in the Congregational church at Franklin, and the East Norfolk union, composed of Quincy, Braintree and Milton was conspicuous. So numerous were the Quincy Endeavorers that they brought home the new silk banner awarded for the best attendance plus distance travelled.

The theme was "Christian Endeavor Neighborliness" and the principal address on this subject was by Rev. B. A. Willmott, pastor of Bethany Congregational church, Quincy. The consecration service of the evening service was led by Rev. I. W. Sneath, Ph.D., of the Wollaston Congregational church, a former pastor at Franklin.

Every member of the Franklin society served on the reception and information committee and extended a hearty welcome, making the visit an enjoyable one.

During the intermission between the afternoon and evening services a banquet was served.

Both the sessions were of interest with addresses, music, and devotional exercises. Melville P. Hayward of Quincy served as chairman of the committee on resolutions, and Carle Hayward of Quincy was chairman of the nominating committee.

Among the societies represented were the Water Street Presbyterian, United Presbyterian, Atlantic Memorial, Wollaston Baptist, Wollaston Congregational, Park and Downs Congregational, and Braintree Baptist.

PRESENTED A PURSE OF GOLD

Mr. and Mrs. Carlson Given a Complete Surprise by Friends

Little did Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Carlson of Granite street realize that they were to attend a surprise party on themselves, when friends invited them to accompany them to Electa hall, Saturday evening, and the genuine display of amazement that came over their faces when Oscar Anderson presented them with a purse of gold, struck a responsive chord in the hearts of their many friends who were happy because of their successful surprise.

Mr. and Mrs. Carlson and their family of seven children were the centre of attraction during the evening. Dancing was enjoyed by the large number present, music being furnished by the Colonial orchestra. Speeches were made by Andrew Anderson, Charles Hullickson of Quincy, and John Anderson of Dorchester. Refreshments were served and the committee in charge was Andrew Olsen, Oscar Anderson and Thorwaid Johnson.

SUNDAY IN OUR CHURCHES

Topics and Announcements For Coming Week

SUNDAY SCHOOLS

FINNISH CHURCH.

Thursday night there was a very delightful entertainment in the Finnish church. The affair began shortly after 7.30 with congregational singing. M. Leppanen read the scripture and the pastor Rev. Mr. Lillback led in prayer and extended a welcome to all. There was singing by Mr. Likander's little girls, Eddie Likander at the piano. Then followed a three minute story by Miss Hulda Niemi and Miss Rachel Heinonen recited a poem. The "Sparrows" sang and John "Vainionpaa Sr. read a prose selection. The church choir sang "Siinin Kannel" and Rev. Andrew Ojala from Brush Prairie, Wash. delivered a sermon on "Spiritual Unity." Mr. A. Ojala is a former member of Quincy church and a classmate of Rev. Mr. Lillback pastor of the church. The "Sparrows" sang and Miss Lamnie Myrsky sang a solo. After the program was completed the pastor invited the people down in the vestry where refreshments were served and a free sacrifice took place. Rev. Mr. Raketti closed the service with benediction.

A jolly social at Electa hall, Friday evening was well attended by Scottish residents. Songs were rendered by James Mitchell and Duncan McKimmock. How to Get A Husband

By LOUISE B. CUMMINGS

"Marthy, my dear," said Mrs. Griggs, "you'd ought to git married. Your father is liable to be taken from you at any time, and he ain't got a red cent to leave you."

"It's very easy to say 'git married,'" Aunt Jane, "but how's a girl to git married onless some one axes her?"

"Management, my dear; management. I had to manage to git my husband, but I done it."

"How?"

"Well, I'll tell you, seein' it's you, though I never tole any one before in my life. I wanted a husband, and I wanted John. I couldn't tell him I wanted him, so I told him the next best thing. He wasn't thinkin' o' gittin' married, so far as I knew. He was a hardworkin' young man, attendin' to his duties and tryin' to git his farm in good payin' condition.

"One spring mornin' I went by where he was plowin'. 'Mornin', Mr. Griggs,' says I. 'Mornin', Miss Haskell,' says he. 'Beginnin' the season's work?' says I. 'Yes,' says he, 'I'm startin'.' 'I don't see,' says I, 'how you git on with your housekeepin' when you're at work on your farm. What d'ye do when you go in after a hard day's work and don't find no supper ready?' 'I get the supper myself,' says he."

"I see, Aunt Jane. Then you told him he needed a wife, and he asked you to marry him."

"Laws a-massy, child, you don't suppose I blunder like that? I didn't do nothin' of the kind. I jist looked at him as though my heart was breakin' for sympathy for him. Then he said he'd been thinkin' that if he had a wife to do the inside work and the milkin' and the rest o' the dairy work it would be easier on him. I told him I reckoned he'd have to go into the next county for one, since, so far as I knew, all the girls wo'th havin' near by was spoken for. He looked kind o' sorro'ful at that. He was leanin' on his plow handle and lookin' off over the field and didn't say nothin'.

"'There's a widder woman over to Berksville that might suit you,' I said. 'She's a little older 'n you and has a couple o' children, but mebbe you wouldn't want a widder.' He didn't say nothin' to this, only jist looked on over the fields. The mornin' was kind o' springlike, and the country was lookin' fresh, but I knowed he wasn't takin' it in. He was thinkin' about the wife I'd put into his head.

"'If you wouldn't want a widder—and I reckon the children might bother you; they're always kickin' up a racket in a house—I know a young woman that might suit you over to Hilton crossroads. She ain't purty, havin' red hair and freckles, besides bein' kind o' loose jointed, but she's mighty strong and kin do a heap o' work.'

"'Reckon,' he said, kind o' mournful, 'I'll have to take what I kin git.'

"'Oh, no, you won't!' says I. 'There's nice girls that would be glad to git you, only you'd have to go somewheres else for 'em, seein' those about here are taken up.'

"'I ain't heerd o' your takin' up with no young man, Miss Haskell,' says he.

"'Oh, I! I don't count. None o' the young men would want me.'

"'Is that so?' he says, lookin' kind o' surprised.

"'No,' says I, 'I'm not the kind of a girl most young men would fancy. I've noticed that men natu'lly take to a different kind of a girl from me. Besides, I'm needed at home. Dad couldn't get on without me.'

"'Seein' he's a widderer he might get a wife to supply your place.'

"'Oh, dad, he couldn't get on with no one else except me. I've tuk care of his house ever since maw died and a long time before that, and any one else comin' in to do the work would jist set him crazy. You see, dad can't bear a spot on a pillowcase or a sheet or a cobweb anywhere or dust accumulatin' under the furniture. And he's awful particular what he eats, bein' inclined to indigestion. I know jist how to make the kind o' bread he likes and muffins and griddlecakes, and, as to cookin' his meat, I never dry it up like some persons, but always leave the juice in it. Then when it comes to apple or huckleberry pies dad says I'm the only one can make 'em to suit him. Suit him, mind you. I don't say I could suit anybody else.'

"Well, I could see that his mouth was waterin' for some o' them things I'd told him about, so I asks him how he'd like to come over for dinner the next Sunday and try some of 'em. He said he'd like to mighty well.

"That's as far as I wanted to go right then. So I passed on with a 'Mornin', Mr. Griggs. We eat dinner half an hour after church is out Sunday. Goodby.'

"There's no use tellin' you the rest o' this story. I made a beginnin' that would work shore, 'cause I attacked him through his stomach. Some girls would 'a' talked soft; some would 'a' cried. Cryin' is the best way to bring a man down next to feedin' him well, but I'd rather rely on the stomach than on sympathy myself, but each girl must decide for herself. Now you go and experiment on Ben Hathaway. I know you want him, and if no other girl has got ahead of you you can get him—if you work it right."

Marthy experimented on Mr. Hathaway with success. She didn't follow the advice exactly as it was given her, but near enough to produce the desired result. At any rate, she got him.

WOODWARD REUNION.

A reunion of the class of 1910, Woodward Institute was held Friday evening in the music room of the school. A fairly good number attended, sixteen out of a class of 27, several coming from out of town. A social hour was spent renewing acquaintances and talking of the pleasant times spent during the four years at the Institute. Dancing and games were indulged in, and refreshments of ices, fancy crackers and candy were served. Principal Horace L. Rice, Mrs. Rice, Miss Mary Dinegan of the school, and Miss Stoddard of Newton were invited guests.

This was the first reunion of the class and it is planned to hold them oftener in the future and with the same committee of arrangements serving, the future reunions are sure to be most delightful ones.

POPE IS GRADUALLY GAINING STRENGTH

His Physicians Expect to Hold Fever In Check

Rome, April 21.—So much improvement was found in the condition of the pope by Drs. Marchiafava and Amici on their visit to the sick room last evening that they did not consider it necessary to issue a bulletin. The morning bulletin was as follows:

"For four days his holiness has had no fever. As a result of the amelioration of the bronchial affection the pope is gradually recovering his strength."

The physicians are now convinced that they will be able to hold his fever in check and that with no complications the area of the bronchitis will soon be cleared up.

PFANSCHMIDT CONVICTED

Death Penalty For Man Who Killed Members of His Family

Quincy, Ills., April 21.—Roy Pfanschmidt, charged with the murder of his father, mother, sister and another woman, was found guilty of slaying his sister. The jury fixed the sentence of death.

The home of Charles Pfanschmidt was burned last September and in the ruins were found the bodies of Pfanschmidt, his wife and daughter, Blanche, and of Emma Koempen, a visitor. Examination showed that they had been slain with an axe before the house had been set on fire.

He was tried on the specific charge of killing his sister.

GOING BEFORE GRAND JURY

Evidence to Show Jennings Was the Slayer of Mildred Donovan

Cambridge, Mass., April 21.—Evidence to show that James B. Jennings (Kid Carter) was the murderer of Mildred Donovan, as he declared in his sensational court confession, will be submitted to the Middlesex county grand jury in June, it is understood.

District Attorney Higgins is now planning to take this step to try for first degree murder the man who begun a life sentence in state prison for the shooting of William H. MacPherson within a few hours after he says he strangled Mrs. Donovan.

Witnesses to both Jennings' confession, his brief, blasting statement in court, made when he heard his sentence, and his detailed account of a career of crime, given as he waited to be taken to prison, will be summoned before the grand jury, according to present plans.

DEDICATION

duties in civil life our monuments abound.

"It is not strange therefore that this clan and its friends meet today to dedicate this monument, not exactly to the unknown dead, but to the unfortunate dead, and in seeking a method in doing it they have maintained that inborn character which is also a historic fact, that when the Scottish people propose to do something for a stranger they enquire not first of his rank. Not only in this note around every hearth stone in rock-ribbed Scotland, but it is written in the stories, novel and historic, of the great Walter Scott.

"The hospitality extended by the Scotch people has a great moral in it. It is not because of rank. Hospitality was shown first and later or if it came their way they might know their guest.

"This lot has been purchased and arranged so that the dead who are practically unknown, and perhaps have no immediate family associates, may be properly intered here, so that being placed upon this lot arranged and being dedicated to that purpose, it cannot be said of the Scotch people in this and other parts that they allow their dead to go to the paupers field.

"For what is dying? It is not merely getting old and halt and lame, although appearances point in that direction, but when we find one by one the loved and the associates whom we choose to associate with dropping off, after the music of their voice is gone, to die and follow them to the great beyond is not such a terrible thing as appears when we look at it in health and strength.

"I don't know if in any connection with the word death and all that it means from an earthly standpoint, I will say nothing from a religious standpoint because the Doctor is here and if I treaded upon his jurisdiction they might ask me to show my card, but dealing from the material standpoint I do not know of a higher tribute paid to the necropolis of any city than that passage of the great Ingalls who said in substance that in the democracy of the dead all men at least are equal.

"In this spot now dedicated to the poor of our dead it should be borne in mind that the lap of earth which will encompass them in its time forms at least two very important depots in the life of any adult and the same spot of ground can be quoted as the carpet for the children's play and a blanket for aged when its time to pass away.

"I am sure that each that participated did so in the fullness of their soul, knowing they were doing a charitable act toward their unfortunate brethren.

"They have been placed upon the spot in God's acre, where the sun draws out the emerald sheen and where the mantle of night hangs from the horizon to the stars."

EDDYSTONE LIGHTHOUSE.

Tragic History of a Famous Old World Beacon.

The romance of lighthouse construction undoubtedly centers around Eddystone. As long ago as 1696 Winstanley commenced building. Two years later the weak beams of light from the tallow candles first pierced the darkness. The engineer had an unshakable belief in his tower and often expressed a wish to be in it during a severe gale.

This chance came on Nov. 26, 1705, when on a storm appearing imminent he set out from Plymouth. The hurricane was one of the most terrible recorded in history, and among other damage it swept away every vestige of the lighthouse, those in it, of course, being lost. Within three years another was built, known as Rudyard's, and, like Winstanley's, of wood.

The obvious occurred after an existence of forty-seven years, it being utterly destroyed by conflagration. The next—Smeaton's—was of stone and lasted until 1881, a period of 120 years, when it was found that it was being undermined and a new structure, the present and fourth, was erected on an adjacent rock. Smeaton's tower was rebuilt on Plymouth Hoe, where can be seen the original candle chandelier and the gongs operated by clockwork to keep awake the drowsy keepers, so that they should snuff the candles at proper intervals.

In medieval times the usual illuminant was a coal or wood fire in an open grate, which gave a fairly good light on a breezy night. For beacons on rocks at sea candles were used. In 1729 oil was first employed, and in 1790 the Argand circular wick lamp with silvered reflectors was introduced. Gas was first experimented with in 1817.

The lights not only warn the mariner of the proximity of the shore, but also give him a clew as to where he is. This is chiefly done by dimming or "shuttering" of the light for a few seconds. Thus should a seaman observe a light which consists of a long, followed by two short flashes, a glance at the chart would give him his position.—London Globe.

ORIGIN OF THE LIFEBOAT.

A Broken Wooden Bowl Gave William Wouldhave the Idea.

Writers are always fond of dilating upon the commonplace origin of remarkable inventions. Still another instance of their accidental nature—and a most interesting one—is given by Noel T. Methley in "The Lifeboat and Its Story."

In the course of a country stroll William Wouldhave, the inventor of the self righting lifeboat, came across a woman who asked his help in lifting a heavy vessel of water just drawn from the well. On the surface of the water there floated the broken half of a wooden bowl. Wouldhave was drawn into conversation, and, like many another who cannot keep his hands quiet while he talks, he idly toyed with the floating piece of wood. Naturally he turned it over and found to his surprise that it immediately righted itself. He inverted it again with the same result, and since he was at the time actually at work on the problem of an unsinkable boat he immediately realized the importance of his chance discovery.

It is an experiment that any one can readily make for himself. All you require is the fourth part of a hollow "prolate spheroid," or, to put it in more homely language, the quarter of a cocoanut shell split from end to end. Put the shell in a bowl of water and you will find that it will not remain capsized, but will return at once to an even keel. In scientific language it will float with only the convex surface downward.

Any child knows that if you cut up a broken rubber ball you get five or six nice little round bottomed, high ended boats. It remained for William Wouldhave to discover that these are all little self righting lifeboats.

American Gardens.

Speaking one day at a color conference, in which pictures of the beautiful gardens and statuary at Versailles were shown, Carroll Beckwith, the artist, made a comparison between the methods of French and American landscape architects.

"The French are better gardeners," he said. "They have a lighter touch. The trouble with Americans is that when they make gardens they often call in graveyard sculptors and architects. The result is that our formal gardens sometimes look like cemeteries."—New York Post.

Statement Time.

When the mail man passed Johnny Jones said to Willie Green:

"Look; I think he is going into your house."

"Yes," said Willie; "we get lots of letters. Sometimes we get as many as three at one time."

"Huh!" ejaculated Willie. "You ought to see the letters my papa gets at the first of every month."—Youngstown Telegram.

Naturally.

"He flushed when I perused his countenance."

"Naturally, when he felt his face was getting read."—Baltimore American.

Well Taken.

"The points in Binks' speech were well taken, I thought."

"Yes; most of them from other men."—Buffalo Express.

Light refreshments were served and the evening was thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

COOKED BANANAS.

We eat bananas freely, yet very few people cook them. They are delicious when fried.

Peel as many as you require and cut them in two lengthwise. Fry them in a small quantity of butter and serve hot.

Banana tarts are also very nice. Cut the bananas into round slices and put in a custard. Place pastry round the pie dish in the same way as you would make a baked custard pudding.

Banana Puddings.

When making banana pudding peel the bananas and rub them through a colander. Mix with milk and an egg and bake as you would an ordinary milk pudding.

Another way of making a banana tart is to cut up the banana as you would apples and flavor them with a little lemon and sugar, adding a small quantity of water. Put a light puff paste over and bake in a quick oven.

Three oranges and four bananas make a large dish of fruit salad. Peel and slice both fruits and sprinkle sugar over them. Some people like to add a little ginger flavor. The addition of a nice, juicy apple might also be made.

Flavored With Lemon.

Banana Fritters.—Make a batter of one and a half cupfuls of flour with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder sifted in it, one egg, a fourth of a teaspoonful of salt, two-thirds of a cupful of milk and a little sugar. Pare and cut in slices four bananas, squeeze over them the juice of half a lemon, add to the batter and fry in deep fat.

Combined With Nuts.

Baked Bananas.—Skin the bananas, cut in half lengths and then in half again. Brush a pie plate or earthenware dish with butter or bacon or ham drippings, place the bananas on the dish cut side down, sprinkle with a little salt and bake until light brown.

Banana Sponge.—Cover the bottom of a flat baking dish with small sponge cakes or lady fingers. Upon these place a layer of whole bananas. Sprinkle well with sugar and the juice of one whole orange or lemon, cover with chopped nuts or shredded cocoanut and bake in a medium oven about fifteen minutes. Serve with custard sauce or thick cream.

Daintily Browned.

Fried Bananas.—Skin, scrape and cut the bananas the long way, then across, cutting each banana into four pieces. Have the iron frying pan or griddle very hot, grease with bacon drippings or butter, put in the bananas and fry a nice brown. Dust with a little salt, take from the griddle with spatula or cake turner and place around the steak. Garnish with sprigs of parsley.

CRIMES RIVAL SPENCER CASE

Burglar Kills Attleboro Woman In Midnight Raid

TWO OTHER PERSONS SHOT

Yegg Enters Second House After Committing Murder and Shoots Man and Woman — Dastardly Work Yields Him but $1.75—Police Have One Suspect Under Arrest

Attleboro, Mass., April 21.—Mrs. Eugene Cobert is dead, Miss Mary Powers is dying and the latter's brother, James Powers, is suffering from a shattered bone in the arm, as a result of the utter disregard for human life exhibited by a burglar in this city. He escaped without leaving the slightest clue to his identity.

As quick to use his revolver and in all respects as murderous an individual as the notorious Bertram G. Spencer of Springfield, who expiated his crime in the electric chair, the midnight marauder struck terror to the hearts of the occupants of the two houses which he entered.

Shortly after 1 o'clock Sunday morning the bandit entered the home of Eugene Cobert at Sibleyville. Mrs. Cobert thought she heard a noise on the floor below and went down to see what the trouble was. The next thing her daughter and husband heard was a scream and a few moments later found Mrs. Cobert lying on the floor with a bullet in her body, just above the heart. She was able to gasp the words "I am dying" before the blood poured into her lungs and she died.

Leaving the house, the man crossed Cranberry pond by a bridge, went through the strip of woods on the other side, and within a few minutes was standing before the house of Joseph Powers on Washington street.

Though he knew that a warning cry had been raised behind him just across the little pond, and he could see the lights flashing in the houses adjoining the Cobert home, the man was not deterred. He found an open window on the street floor of the house and, entering, went through the dining room, then up stairs into the chamber occupied by Helen Powers, the 18-year-old daughter of the owner.

The girl was awakened the moment the man entered the room, but when she saw the revolver in his hand she realized that to scream might cost her life, so she pretended to be asleep. The man remained in her room but a few minutes, then went into the hall and up the stairs to the third floor, where her father was sleeping. The girl lay quiet for a time, then started to cross the hall to the chamber of her aunt, Miss Mary Powers. She had just reached the door when she saw the burglar descend the stairs. He fired a shot at Powers, hitting him in the left arm.

Mary Powers came running out of her room, aroused at the sound of the shot, and the man ran by her just as she threw open the door. Helen was cowering back in the darkness of her own room. As soon as he saw the woman before him the man raised his revolver and shot her in the left shoulder.

At the cost of one life surely, with the chance of another and serious injury to a third, the burglar had obtained exactly $1.75, taken from the pockets of Powers' trousers.

Yesterday afternoon Chief of Police Wilbur held as a suspect a Frenchman named Alrich Paro, who gave his address as Montreal. The man could give no satisfactory account of his movements Saturday night or early Sunday morning. He was taken on Red Rock hill, where it is said he had been hiding during the day. He had no weapons.

The local police also went to the home of Jean LeBonne, son-in-law of Mrs. Cubert, but they were unable to locate the man. He has been visiting the Cobert home lately, and they said there that he had demanded money. It is said that when Mrs. Cobert refused him money after the sale of their little store, a short time ago, he made threats against the family. He has not been living with his wife for some months.

ATONEMENT OF JESUS CHRIST

Heritage of the Belief Morgan's Most Important Bequest

HIS SON MADE CHIEF HEIR

Great Art Collection to Become Available For Education of Americans—$500,000 to Church and $100,000 a Year to Hospital—Every Possible Contingency Provided For

New York, April 21.—The late John Pierpont Morgan's Christian piety, as expressed in the first article of his will, made public yesterday, was the subject of comment by clergymen in pulpits of all denominations. In scores of sermons it was remarked that although giving the most intimate details for the bequests to those near and dear to him, the great financial leader considered a heritage of the belief in the atonement of Jesus Christ the most important thing which he could leave to his children.

John Pierpont Morgan, the younger, became under the terms of his father's will, which makes him residuary legatee, one of the most wealthy men in the United States, and the possessor of the world's greatest art collection. For lack of time to dispose of them, the testator left all his magnificent works of art to his son and namesake in the full assurance that the son would carry out his intention to make them available for the cultural education of the American people.

The will is dated Jan. 4, with a codicil, dated two days later. It is thought that during his illness, which culminated in his death on March 31, Morgan gave his son specific directions concerning the works loaned to the Metropolitan museum of art, and those in a private library and in the London and Paris homes.

It is considered out of the question, those close to Morgan said, that Morgan's policy of letting the public enjoy his collection will be discontinued.

As to the amount of the estate, which is one of the first questions the public naturally is asking, there is nothing in the will to give any accurate idea, and the executors declare that no announcement will be made on this point until the appraisal has been made for determining the state inheritance tax.

The long will seems to provide for every possible contingency. It provides for family, friends, employes, servants and dependents. If his son dies, the testator directs, the grandson, Junius S. Morgan, Jr., now a student at Harvard, is to take the place as head of the firm and estate.

The widow is to receive $1,000,000 and an annuity of $100,000. The son, John P. Morgan, receives $3,000,000, the art collections and the residuary estate. To each of the three daughters is to be given the income of $3,000,000, and to each of the two sons-in-law $1,000,000 outright. The widow is to have the use of the New York and Highland Falls homes during her life. Mrs. Jennie B. Tracy, widow of his brother-in-law, and his two sisters-in-law, Mrs. Clara T. Hoppin and Mrs. Julia N. Brown, are to have the income of $100,000 each.

The son is directed to continue the contribution of $100,000 a year to the Lying-In hospital so long as deemed necessary. Dr. Markos, who has devoted most of his life to this institution, which the late financier's wealth made possible, is to receive $25,000 a year, and his wife the same amount after his death. The House of Rest for Consumptives receives $100,000.

Morgan gave for the support of St. George's Protestant Episcopal church, of which he was senior warden, $500,000, which brings the church's endowment up to $1,000,000 and makes it one of the wealthiest in the country. Another $100,000 goes to home missionary work in this state.

Each member of the Corsair club, composed of persons who had been entertained aboard the yacht Corsair, receives a piece of silver valued at $1000. The designer of the Corsair, J. B. Webb, receives $250,000, and the sailing master, Captain W. B. Porter, $15,000.

The employes and servants are liberally remembered. Every employe of his New York and London banking houses receives a year's salary.

"INELIGIBLE TO CITIZENSHIP"

Wilson Wants Words Dropped From Alien Land Bill

A WARNING TO CALIFORNIA

Urges Measure Phrased to Soothe Japan and Recognition of International Character of Such Legislation—Message Read In Both Branches of California Assembly

Washington, April 21.—Official Washington is awaiting with interest the reply of California to the president's message to the state asking that the California legislators bear in mind the treaty obligations of this government to Japan in the proposed alien land law.

While President Wilson and Secretary Bryan cannot officially interfere in the progress of state legislation, it is declared here they will not leave anything undone, without direct interference, to induce the California legislature to keep the proposed law in full accordance with the provisions of the Japanese treaty.

The presidet has abandoned the policy of declining to interfere indirectly with California in the regulation of its land laws because of the anti-American demonstrations in Japan and popular clamor there at the alleged failure of treaty rights of the Japanese.

To make known the president's attitude, Bryan sent the following telegram to Governor Johnson:

"The president directs me to say, that, while he fully recognizes the right of the people of California to legislate according to their judgment on the subject of land tenure, he feels it his duty to urge a recognition of the international character of such legislation.

"Being anxious to preserve and strengthen the long standing friendly relations existing between this country and the nations of the Orient, he very respectfully but most earnestly advises against the use of the words 'ineligible to citizenship.' He asks that you bring this view to the attention of the legislators. He believes the senate bill, as telegraphed to the department of state, is greatly to be preferred. That bill limited ownership to citizens and to those who had declared their intention to become citizens."

Message Sent to Houses

Sacramento, Cal., April 21.—A telegram to Governor Johnson from Secretary of State Bryan, giving the views of the federal administration on the pending alien land laws in the California legislature, was received here. Governor Johnson made the telegram public, but without comment.

The message was read in both houses and ordered printed in the journals without discussion.

Two other telegrams, one from the Portland, Ore., Chamber of Commerce, and the other from the Young Barristers' association of Tokio, both protesting against the enactment of an anti-alien land law, were read in the senate.

Japanese More Optimistic

Tokio, April 21.—Announcement that President Wilson and Secretary Bryan are making efforts to bring about a compromise in the proposed Californian legislation with respect to the alien land ownership bill, and that Governor Johnson is opposed to the bill, has softened Japanese ire, and public opinion has now become more optimistic.

The alleged unwillingness of the American missionaries to assist in resisting the bill is the subject of harsh criticism in the Japanese papers, but after a conference which Count Okuma had with the missionaries, the latter dispatched telegrams to California, the exact nature of which is not known.

AVIATOR BRODIE KILLED

Head of Chicago Aviation School Was Testing a New Machine

Chicago, April 21.—Otto W. Brodie, a professional aviator, was killed by a fall of his machine from a height of forty-five feet at the aviation grounds here. Brodie, who was head of a school of aviation, was testing a new machine.

Brodie was guiding the machine over some trees when a branch snapped a guy wire, preventing control of the aeroplane. The aviator was caught under the engine.

Ex-State Official Accused of Fraud

Columbus, O., April 21.—Frank E. Baxter, former state superintendent of banks, surrendered upon an indictment which charged him with converting to his own use $27,000 belonging to the Columbus Savings and Trust company. He entered a plea of not guilty.

Two $10,000 Bills In Tin Can

Hanava, April 21.—Two of the $10,000 bank bills stolen from the National Bank of Cuba were found buried in a tin can in a vacant lot in a suburb, after excavations continuing since the confession of the thief a week ago.

MILITANTS BOMBARDED

British Public Has Become Tired of Tactics Adopted by Suffragettes

London, April 21.—The suffragettes had plenty of evidence yesterday that the public has tired of militancy and only the protection afforded by large bodies of police saved the women from the hands of angry mobs.

At Brighton the suffragettes were chased off the esplanade and took refuge in a neighboring house. This was surrounded by howling thousands, who bombarded the place with stones and smashed every window.

In defiance of the ban on meetings in Hyde Park the Women's Social and Political league attempted to carry on its propaganda there. Londoners had anticipated that such attempts would be made, and 20,000 persons assembled at the customary meeting place.

Turf and stones were thrown and threatening rushes were made toward the women, but a large force of police surrounded them and kept the mob in check. It took the police three hours to finally restore order.

Similar scenes were witnessed at Wimbledon and Hampstead Heath.

THE BOSTON MARATHON

Carlson of Minneapolis Is First Man to Cross the Tape

Boston, April 21.—Fritz Carlson of Minneapolis won the seventeenth annual marathon road race conducted under the auspices of the Boston Athlete association.

Carlson won after running in the van for over three-quarters of the distance. His win was due entirely to good judgment in the early part of the race, when the other competitors were out in front setting the pace.

Harry Smith, who led all the way for the first twenty miles, finished third, having run himself off his feet.

He was passed by Andrew Sockalexis, the Old Town Indian, about three miles from the finish. This athlete ran a good-judged race, but undoubtedly could have won the event if he had gone out sooner.

The time was 2h. 25m. 14 4-5s. This was 4m. 3 2-5s. behind the record of Ryan, who won last year's race. Sixty starters faced the pistol at Ashland.

THEFTS PLACED AT $2,000,000 A YEAR

Silk Jobber's Confession Clears Mystery of Truck Robberies

New York, April 21.—On the story told on the witness stand by Louis J. Sherman, indicted on a charge of receiving stolen good, trusted employes of many well known firms in this city have been implicated in the wholesale thefts of silks and other goods which have cost the merchants many thousands of dollars recently. The Merchants' association has given figures to Assistant District Attorney Brothers to substantiate its conclusion that these thefts exceed $2,000,000 a year.

Sherman is a silk jobber. He testified he had bought stolen silks and other goods from scores of local truckmen. He did such a thriving business, he said, that he took a partner, M. D. Leviussove, established a Broadway office, clearing nearly $50,000 in thirteen weeks.

His confession to Brothers was a complete surprise. At the time of his arrest his partner, who, according to Sherman, appears to have been the master mind in the handling of the truck drivers' loot, disappeared.

TORTURED TO DEATH

Women Look on and Laugh at Black Hand Crime In New York

New York, April 21.—With two women laughing at him as he vainly pleaded for life, an unidentified Italian was slowly tortured to death in a dark alleyway leading to the cellar of No. 194 Chrystie street, in the centre of a block whose history of murders and bomb explosions is of the blackest.

When the police examined the man's body it was found he had been stabbed thirteen times.

Death came through the thirteenth stiletto blow. His murderers fled, leaving the stiletto buried in his heart. On one cheek was a semi-circular wound—the mark of the enmity of a Black Hand band.

The victim was a good looking and well dressed Italian, about 25 years old. His pockets held the picture of a pretty girl, about 14 years old.

EIGHTY CENTS A DAY

Average French Girl Finds It Sufficient to Support Her

New York, April 21.—Eighty cents a day will support the average French working girl, because she does not desire to emulate the dress and mode of living of her more fortunate sisters.

Mme. Alice de Larelle, special agent of the French department of justice, made this statement upon her arrival here. She is scheduled to investigate industrial conditions surrounding working women.

Mme. de Larelle remarked that if man feared the competition of working women he could easily solve the problem by marrying the competitor.

Colonel TODHUNTER of Missouri

By RIPLEY D. SAUNDERS

Copyright, 1911, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company.

SYNOPSIS

Colonel Todhunter booms his friend William J. Strickland for the nomination for governor. Tom Strickland, son of William, loves Mary Todhunter. Lottie-May Doggett loves Tom.

Stamford Tucker pays attention to Mary. He and Tom are rivals. They clash at the Todhunters'.

A political rally of Strickland's supporters is interrupted by the Yancey men, led by Stam. His father, Eph Tucker, is Yancey's main supporter in Nineveh.

Tom and Stam quarrel about Lottie-May, to whom Stam is attentive. Colonel Todhunter and Eph Tucker meet in the office of the Nineveh Blade.

Dick Cantrill, editor of the Blade, defeats one of Tucker's "low down" tricks. Old Mirandy, one of Colonel Todhunter's negro dependents, living near the Doggetts, tells the colonel of Stam's visits to Lottie-May.

In a wrangle Tom knocks Stam down. Colonel Todhunter is to indorse Strickland's note for $3,000 to meet campaign expenses.

Eph Tucker accepts the note. In St Louis the newspaper men "write up" Colonel Todhunter, who is campaigning, and make much of his picturesque personality.

The colonel's speech takes the city partisans by storm. Tom proposes to Mary and is accepted.

You got to take it as it comes, the bad with the good, and sometimes it may look like the good ain't as plentiful as it might be, but that's percisely when you got to sit tight and watch and pray for a change o' luck. And a man's wife ain't no chronic angel; young man, no moren't a woman's husband is. You'll be powerful lucky if Mary makes you as good a wife as her mother's made me, but, all the same, I've seen days when Mrs. Todhunter looked more like a destroyin' cyclone to me than anything else. And she can tell a hundred shortcomin's on me where I can tell you one on her, so there you are, suh. It's give and take, that's what it is, and you just got to do your best, keep on whistlin' for cheerfulness' sake and stand ready to make a quick duck if things get too stormy, suh!"

Tom Strickland could not help but laugh. "Well, colonel," he responded, "if Mary and I are as happy as you and Mrs. Todhunter I'll be more than satisfied. And I'll try to make her a good husband, I promise you that."

"I know you will, Tom," replied Colonel Todhunter. "And I know Mary'll try to fill her part o' the contract the same way too."

The young man's gaze went nervously past the door through which Mary and her mother had vanished.

"I wonder where they are, colonel?" he ventured apprehensively. "I hope there's nothing serious happening."

Colonel Todhunter tugged at his grizzled mustache to keep from smiling openly in Tom's face.

"Don't you worry none about Mary and her mother, suh," he spoke. "They're just havin' a heart to heart talk on the all absorbin' subject of marriage, Tom, and they got to have a good cry while it's goin' on. I bet they've already shed enough briny tears to float a battleship, suh. That's a woman's way at such a time as this. All mothers has got to wail over their daughters then like they was goin' to lie 'stead o' gettin' married. But they're all right after that, suh. When Mary and Mrs. Todhunter get through and wipe each other's weepin' eyes they'll show up out here as serene as a summer's day. I reckon it's the Good Marster's will—they got to do it that way, suh."

At this moment Mrs. Todhunter appeared in the doorway. She went straight to Tom and put both hands on his shoulders and kissed him on the forehead.

"God bless you and make both of you happy, Tom," she said, her voice trembling. "Mary loves you very dearly. You've got to be a good man, Tom, for her sake. You will, too, won't you?"

Mary's sweet face was now in Tom's view from where she stood in the shadowy old hall behind her mother. The young man bowed his head at Mrs. Todhunter's tremulous speech.

"God helping me, I will, Mrs. Todhunter," he replied.

Something very like the dimming of tears came into Colonel Todhunter's eyes at the picture thus presented. But he strove manfully to conceal the fact of such emotion.

"Come out here, Mary," he cried indignantly. "You've been leavin' Tom to face the music alone long enough."

But when Mary Todhunter obeyed the summons her father took her into his arms and pressed his suspiciously quivering lips to her brown hair.

"Ain't you ashamed of yourself, honey," he asked, "for bein' so willin' to leave your mother and me just because that snip of a Tom Strickland wants you? We're goin' to be mighty lonesome without you, daughter."

And then because Mary cried, her face hidden on his breast, Colonel Todhunter scowled ferociously at Tom.

"It's all your fault, you young rascal," he ejaculated, patting Mary soothingly on the shoulder at the same time. "You had no business wantin' her, and you know it."

At which not one of his three hearers could refrain from laughing, and this was precisely what the colonel desired.

CHAPTER IX.

Colonel Todhunter Takes the Stump In Rural Missouri.

As a result of Colonel Todhunter's picturesque prosecution of the Strickland campaign in St. Louis he was unanimously chosen by the Hon. William J. Strickland's managers to invade the Yancey strongholds throughout the state.

"Todhunter's a champion vote getter, Strickland," said old Governor Leslie, "and that's a mighty rare gift. Any ordinary spellbinder can keep a candidate's own friends in line during a campaign and get 'em to the polls on election day. But it takes a man of uncommon qualities to steal friends away from the other fellow. Todhunter's that sort of man. He's a natural born campaigner, and the sooner we put him right on the firing line the better."

This fitted in admirably with the colonel's own wishes. It was at the big barbecue in Dunklin county, where he met the redoubtable Bedford Giles on the stump, that Colonel Todhunter made himself famous throughout the length and breadth of Missouri.

Bedford Giles was probably the finest living master of the old school of perfervid political oratory that once so powerfully swayed the minds of men in the south and middle west. It may be true that he lacked the sense of humor; but, offsetting this delinquency, he possessed a sort of leonine earnestness that had never failed to score tremendously in the campaigns of which he was a conspicuous figure. The announcement of a speech by Bedford Giles was in itself sufficient to concentrate Missourians at one given point from a radius of twenty miles around. And they were never disappointed, because this renowned spellbinder, in his temperament a ranting tragedian of the old Edwin Forrest type, invariably tore their emotional beings to tatters and left them convinced for all time that they had assuredly been listening to the most irresistible orator of their day.

Against this man was Colonel Todhunter pitted on the day of the barbecue, and the certainty of witnessing a great encounter attracted to the scene of their meeting the biggest crowd ever assembled at a political gathering in that county. Enthusiasm was at fever heat. The fact that it was largely Yancey enthusiasm placed the colonel at a decided disadvantage, but instead of depressing his dauntless soul this seemed rather to key him up to his best fighting mood.

During the forenoon, as was not uncommon, there had been a generous flow of good liquor. The orators of the day were naturally expected to give a satisfying account of themselves in disposing of this democratic output. Both were seasoned veterans at the task.

It was a peculiarity of Bedford Giles, however, that when he reached a certain stage of exhilaration his mental horizon so widened and his imagination took such wings to itself that his spellbinding eloquence soared more in the realm of fancy than of fact. His figures of speech became overwhelming in bold poesy of conception and application, and, for the time being, the sonorous rounding out of his excited thought into splendid sentences was of far more importance in his estimation than the structure of truth upon which they were supposed to be based. His Missouri hearers enjoyed this phase of his oratory keenly. By the time he was primed to such gorgeous flights they, too, were similarly primed to accompany him, so that the conclusion of one of Bedford Giles' speeches never failed to witness a scene of magnificent emotional proportions.

Upon this occasion, mellow as a peach, Bedford Giles fairly outdid himself in his barbecue tribute to the virtues of the Hon. Stephen K. Yancey. Now, in reality, Yancey was not a candidate of the "magnetic" class. He had many friends, he was known as a steadfast party man, and it was conceded that he possessed a particularly shrewd knack of always "lining up" with the stronger faction in party divisions. It requires more than these things, however, to make of a candidate one of those formidable political figures for whom the party rank and file delight to cheer for sheer "love and affection's sake," as the old phrase has it.

But Bedford Giles, the cockles of his heart warmed by liberal potations, idealized the Hon. Stephen K. Yancey, and the peroration of his speech was one of the finest and most typical examples of Gilesian eloquence.

"I am not asking you, my fellow citizens," he declared sonorously, "to nominate Stephen K. Yancey to the proud office of chief executive of the imperial commonwealth of Missouri at the sacrifice of others equally deserving. No, my friends, if this were the case I should not feel the supreme confidence that I do now feel in your entire willingness thus to honor him, nor in the wisdom of your decision in his favor.

"But, fellow Democrats, I speak no more than the simple truth when I solemnly declare, here and now, that the gentlemen competing with Stephen K. Yancey for your suffrages are no more to be compared with that peerless leader than the tallow candle of our forefathers is to be compared with the Almighty's own handiwork of universal illumination, the glorious orb of day that now shines so benignly down upon this representative assemblage of the sovereign American people.

TESTED AND PROVEN

There is a Heap of Solace in Being Able to Depend Upon a Well-Earned Reputation.

For months Ledger readers have seen the constant expression of praise for Doan's Kidney Pills, and read about the good work they have done in this locality. What other remedy ever produced such convincing proof of merit?

J. Fortin, 512 N. Montello St., Brockton, Mass., says: "I was troubled for over two years by attacks of backache. If I arose from a sitting position or stood any length of time, I was caused great pain. There was a feeling of weariness and if I did a hard day's work, I was bothered by lameness and soreness across my back. I finally saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised for such complaints and I got a box and began to use them according to directions. They went directly to the seat of my complaint, relieving me of severe backaches and restoring me to good health. It has given me pleasure to recommend this remedy on several occasions." (Statement given June 13, 1905.)

A SECOND STATEMENT.

Several years later Mr. Fortin was interviewed and he said: "I willingly verify my former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills. You may continue to use my reference, as the relief this remedy brought me has been permanent."

Although the Goddard School of Brockton beat the Washington school in soccer at the Ward Two playground Saturday morning 1 to 0. their victory by no means demonstrated thier superiority since the local team kept them on the defensive most of the game. ART EXHIBITION IS APPRECIATED

Last year the Art Committee of the Women's Club held an exhibit of paintings which were the work of representative Boston artists. This was a venture, but it was so cordially received by the people of Quincy, that it was concluded that there is a desire for what is best in art among the citizens. Men and Women dropped in at the exhibit for a half hour or so and went away refreshed and rested from the minutes spent in the realms of beauty and imagination.

This year the Art Committee, under the direction of the chairman, Mrs. Theodore Ruggles Kitson, has organized another exhibit. Again there will be on exhibition from Monday until Thursday at the Clubhouse, the work of some of Boston's most eminent artists Tuesday is the regular club day, but any day is open to non-members by paying a small admission fee. This fee is to cover the expense of insurance and the assistance of expert packers and transporters. Mrs. Arthur Homer of Wollaston in lending a valuable painting of the late Winslow Homer. JAIL DENTISTRY AT HUB

Sheriff Believes It Will Have a Tendency to Check Crime

Boston, April 21.—Sheriff Quinn of Suffolk county has installed a dentist's chair in the Charles street jail, and is giving dental treatment to all prisoners as one of the first aids in the prevention of crime. He says:

"A bad tooth often lands a man in jail. A large number of crimes are committeed by people who are badly nourished. Malnutrition leads to morbid mental thought which results in crime. A dentist's chair and a good dentist in every correctional institution will prevent hundreds of inmates from returning again once they are free."

Quinn believes that a good percentage of his prisoners land in Charles street because of improper care of their teeth. His idea of a dental department in the jail is the first of this kind by a sheriff.

ALLEGED MURDERER IS FREED BY COURT

No Move by Authorities Since Deslovers Was Indicted

Providence, April 21.—Because of inactivity of the authorities, Henry Deslovers, who was charged with one of the foulest murders ever committed in Rhode Island, is free. He was charged with murdering Mrs. Angele Parmentier-Delmar, whose headless body was found in the Blackstone river at Woonsocket last June. He was freed when the supreme court granted a writ of habeas corpus.

Under the law a man cannot be kept locked up for more than six months without being brought to trial, unless some reason is furnished by the prosecuting attorney. Apparently not a move has been made in the case by the authorities since Deslovers was indicted last October.

The judges expressed regret that Deslovers was not brought to trial during the time allowed.

Belgian Government Believed Ready to Make Concessions

Brussels, April 21.—The opinion is now general in political circles that at the session of the chamber of deputies on Tuesday the government will be prepared to accept the conciliatory motion of the Liberal leader, M. Masson.

The adoption of this motion by the chamber would mean the end of the strike which is paralyzing Belgium's industries and which has not yet reached anything like high-water mark.

Already the strike has caused great losses to Belgium's industries, about 75 percent of which have to do with export. The collieries are losing more than $200,000 daily.

GOOD WORD OF NEW PASTOR

Rev. A. E. Hillman Comes to Swedish Methodist Church

WITH GOOD LYNN RECORD

Rev. Axel Eman Hillman, the new pastor of the Swedish Methodist church has entered upon his duties. A Lynn paper has the following to say of the clergyman who was transferred from that city:

"Rev. Axel Eman Hillman, pastor of the Swedish Methodist church, Hanover street, is one of the forceful younger clergymen of Lynn. He is proving an able successor to Rev. Samuel L. Carlander, whose efforts did so much for the building up of this religious society. Mr. Hillman was called here from Chicago when Mrs. Carlander's health forced her husband to relinquish his pastorate and take her to the family farm on Cape Cod.

"Mr. Hillman is a graduate of the Swedish Theological Seminary at Evanston, Ill., class of 1908, and he has charge of the Rockport Swedish Methodist mission in addition to his Lynn parish. He is a native of Sweden, but he was brought to the United States in early childhood by his parents and is practically a Kansan by adoption. His home is in Wayne, Kansas.

"Before the Chicago pastorate, from which he came to Lynn, Mr. Hillman had a church in Sioux City, Ia. He spent a year in graduate study at the Garrett Bibical Institute in Evanston, Ill., an institution connected with the Northwestern university before coming East. He resides in Lynn at the Hanover street parsonage."

MILTON MAN WEDS COUNTESS

Alice Copley Thaw Becomes the Bride of G. G. Whitney

WILL LIVE IN MILTON

Alice Copley Thaw, former Countess of Yarmouth, and Geoffrey G. Whitney, widely known broker and athlete of Boston and Milton were married today on the island of Cumberland, off the coast of Georgia, where Mrs. Thaw's sister, Mrs. George L. Carnegie has a summer home.

Plans for the wedding have attracted international attention, owing to the notoriety attached to the first marriage of Miss Thaw. The daughter of Mrs. William Thaw of Pittsburgh, she was wooed and won by the Earl of Yarmouth. After two years of married infelicity the countess had her marriage annulled. Since that time she has lived quietly, spending most of her time in Washington.

Mrs. Thaw visited the Whitneys last winter, shortly after the engagement was announced. The wedding party left Boston last Wednesday night and traveled to Georgia in a private car.

Mrs. Edward Cary Williams of Milton will be the matron of honor and Harold W. Pierce of Milton will be the best man.

Upon their return from the wedding trip the couple will make Milton their home.

HIGH SCHOOL DIFFERENT

Work In This Department Vary Much From That In Grades

PARENTS DUTIES

Fully 300 people were present at the Willard school last evening to a meeting of the parents and teachers. The capacity of the lower corridor, which was used as an assembly hall, was taxed to the utmost, besides the eighth grade room being well filled with pupils who took part in the exercises. The portable stage at one end of the corridor was tastily decorated with bunting and potted plants, giving the appearance of an arbor.

Thep upils of grades four and five rendered effectively three selections, "The Jolly Woodcutter," "I Will Praise My God" and "Primroses," while the children of grade two delighted those present with the dramatization of "The Rats in Council."

Mr. Ernest L. Collins, Head Master of the Quincy High school, gave a sensible and enlightening talk on "How to Send a Pupil to the High School." In the course of his remarks the speaker brought out the point that the work and the methods of the high school are quite different from those of the grades. In the grades the pupils have done their studying under the direction of a classroom teacher, who teaches them every period of the session, but in the high school, they must do their studying out of school and recite to different teachers. Being dismissed from school at quarter past one they and their parents are inclined to think that there is no more school work to be done until the next day, when the fact is that every child in high school has from one to three hours studying to do at home every afternoon.

He spoke of the need of parents becoming more familiar with the doings of the school, and keeping a closer watch over their children's standing and attendance as well as knowing how they pass their time while out of school. He cited several concrete cases in which the parents supposed their boy or girl to be in school, but instead, he or she was on the street. Notices and reports sent to the home through the mail are occasionally intercepted by the pupils, the parents never receiving them.

Mr. Collins made his strongest plea for parents to keep up a lively interest in their pupil's work, and at no time, to give the child the idea that he is his own boss, but, at all times, to show him that he must put honest hard work into his school duties.

At the close of Mr. Collins' remarks, ice cream and cookies were served, after which the pre-vocational work was inspected, the girls of the cooking class giving out cake that they had made in the afternoon and the boys showing the work done in painting, printing and carpenter work.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

The gentle spring-time seems rather shy of making its appearance.

During the cleaning process City Hall presents rather a startling appearance.

The tariff fight is now in good earnest. The debate promises to be most enlivening.

The automobile provides its daily victim as can be seen by reading the daily papers. Much ofthe death roll is due to the speed craze.

Municipal markets, supplying the necessaries of life at reasonable prices should be hustled right along.

Bryan and Clark have made up, but way down deep there is still lurking some little bitterness in the speaker's breast.

Schenectady, N. Y. Congregationalists are at war and the two factions held services in different parts of the church, Sunday, with both sides holding out strong. The attendance it is needless to say has increased owing to the desire to see the affair to a finish.

The cheers, applause, laughter and the like with much other useless material could be eliminated from the Congressional Record without lessening the value of the publication.

The cold had no terrors for the seaside lovers, Sunday, but many of them have been taking hot drinks and doing a good deal of snuffling since.

MANY DIFFER FROM HIM.

A food expert has just announced that all gastronomic delights come to people from their sense of smell, rather than the sense of taste. He has conducted experiments which he claims satisfy him that his idea is correct. He may be all right in his own particular case, but in the main the majority of the people will go on making use of their palate and enjoying the good things to eat in the same old way. If we depended entirely or even in part to satisfy our appetites by the mere sense of smell a good many people would go hungry.

Another thing the noted expert says, to which many will hasten to record a difference, is that the cooks in this country are the worst in the world.

He boldly says there is no cultivation of the art of cooking and that domestics can only do plain cooking.

He further says, "In America women are not interested in their work, they throw off responsibility to go gadding about to clubs."

Now that is rather a sweeping assertion and one that few people will take seriously. In fact it is a statement so wide of the truth, that it should have been blue pencilled before it found its way into print. It is such irrational statements by people who are in many ways accepted as experts and authorities, which make people sceptical of almost everything they read these days, when exaggeration seems more the rule than the exception.

SAW LINCOLN SHOT.

One of the souvenirs brought home from Washington, by C. W. Guy on his recent trip was a printed statement of Daniel Ballauf, one of the witnesses to the assassination of President Lincoln at Ford's theatre. Mr. Ballauf was present that fatal night, occupying a seat facing the President's box and was therefore a witness to every detail of the tragedy. He says "I am sure there is no one now living or dead, that saw more of this sad affair than I did, sitting in the last seat opposite the box occupied by President Abraham Lincoln, and his wife, another lady and Mr. Rathbone. I saw Booth enter the box, holding in his right hand a dagger, with which he made a stab at Mr. Rathbone, while with his left hand he fired the fatal shot. He then stepped over the prostrate body of the President, vaulted over the rail, or front of the box, let himself down, supporting on his elbow, dagger in hand. He dropped to the stage, stumbled backward two or three steps, regained an upright position and quickly walked off to the back of the stage. My whole attention was on Booth from the moment he entered the box until he was out of sight. He never uttered a word, not even 'Sic semper tyrannis,' which it has been stated he uttered. It was as still as a graveyard in the theatre at the time. Mrs. Lincoln broke the silence by calling for water, which was brought by Miss Laura Keene. People began jumping onto the stage, and some one behind me cried out! 'Put out the gas' I left the theatre, not needing more warning, thinking there would be more murder."

Mr. Ballauf is still conducting a manufacturing business in Washington which he established in 1855. The circular published by Mr. Balleauf is in contradiction to the generally accepted statement that Booth cried out "Sic Semper Tyrannis."

A REMARKABLE DOCUMENT.

The will of John Pierpont Morgan has been made public and it reveals only another instance of the great power of this remarkable man. It is not yet known just how much the estate will figure up, but that the son will be one of the wealthiest men in the world appears to be conclusive. The will is a remarkable one in many ways. It provides for every possible contingency and the bequests of a public nature are large and numerous. Mr. Morgan remembered every one whom he employed, every one who had been on friendly terms with him and the amounts which he left to churches and hospitals displayed the deep interest he felt in those institutions. He considered that belief in the atonement of Christ was the most important thing he could leave to his children. Mr. Morgan was noted for his interest and labors in the field of the Episcopal church.

VETS REUNION AT GETTYSBURG

Program For the Big Gathering Almost Completed

CAMP FOR 40,000

Col. J. M. Schoonmaker, chairman of the Battle of Gettysburg Commission of Pennsylvania, has prepared certain official detailed information concerning the reunion to be held at Gettysburg, when veterans of the Civil War from all over the United States will gather to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the battle, July 1, 2, 3, and 4.

The host will be the State of Pennsylvania, which is to provide entertainment for 40,000 honorably discharged veterans of the Civil war.

The camp comprises about 280 acres. There will be 5000 tents, regularly holding 12, but this time to hold eight veterans, each man to be supplied with a separate cot, blanket and mess kit (the latter to become his property); each tent to contain two hand basins, water buckets, lanterns for candles and two candles for each. Meals will be served at tables adjoining the kitchen at the end of each company street.

The camp will be opened, in complete readiness for the reception of veterans, Sunday, June 29, the first meal to be served being supper that evening.

While the program is not complete, tentative suggestions for the order of the four days' exercises are as follows: July1, Veteran's Day; appropriate exercises under the joint direction of the Pennsylvania Commission and the Commanders-in-Chief of the G. A. R. and the United Confederate Veterans.

July 2—Military Day, under the direction of the Chief of Staff of the United States Army, with special detachments of each arm of the regular service to participate as directed.

July 3—Civic Day, under the direction of the Governor of Pennsylvania and participated in by the Governors of the several States.

July 4—National Day, the chief justices of the United States presiding. Morning, oration by President Wilson; noon, President Wilson to lay corner stone of a great Peace Memorial; evening, fireworks.

Each State has appointed representatives to the Pennsylvania Commission to arrange all matters pertaining to the participation of their veterans. From these representatives all information may be obtained. Col. Edward O. Skelton, room 27, State House, is chairman of the Massachusetts Representatives to the Commission.

POPE PIUS X.

New Picture of the Pontiff on Papal Throne Giving Blessing

POPE IS CONVALESCENT

No Further Bulletins to Be Issued by Pontiff's Physicians

Rome, April 22.—Pope Pius X. is now convalescent. This announcement was made at the Vatican by Dr. Marchiafava and Dr. Amici, the two physicians who pulled the pontiff through his long and dangerous illness.

At the same time they announce that because of the steady improvement in the pope's condition no further bulletins will be issued.

THREE GUILLOTINED IN THREE MINUTES

Paris Auto Bandits Executed Day Ahead of Schedule

Paris, April 22.—In a dazzling rain that made even more than unusually dismal a Paris "Blue Monday," Zoudy, Callemin and Monier, three of Bonnot's notorious automobile bandits, were guillotined in exactly three minutes.

The executions, carried out prematurely to forestall a demonstration, occurred in the Boulevard Drago, outside the prison de la Sante. A cordon of police and soldiers entirely surrounded the guillotine and prevented the small mob that gathered from seeing the men die.

The executions were sent for today, but because of the renewed popular protest against public executions, the authorities deemed it expedient to put the men to death unexpectedly, thus forestalling and contemplated demonstrations.

M. I. T. WILL GET $750,000

Motion For New Trial to Set Aside Pratt Will Is Denied

Boston, April 22.—Judge de Courcy of the supreme court denied the motion for a new trial in the Charles H. Pratt will contest, and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology will receive the $750,000 to found the Pratt school of naval architecture and marine engineering, as provided for in the will.

Pratt directed that his property should be held by trustees until it amounted to $750,000 and then devised to the institute to found the school. Ten first cousins contested the will and claimed, aside from alleged improper execution, that the testator was of unsound mind at the time he signed his last testament. The fund now has accumulated to nearly the full amount.

MUST PAY $7 WEEKLY

Clergyman Convicted of Failing to Support His Wife

Waltham, Mass., April 22.—Rev. T. A. Whittaker, a retired clergyman, was found guilty of failing to support his wife and was ordered to pay her $7 weekly by Judge Luce in the local court.

The verdict followed charges and counter charges between husband and wife, the only two persons who took the witness stand.

The minister's wife charged undue friendship between her husband and Mrs. Mary Weeks, who keeps a lodging house where Whittaker boards. When Whittaker took the stand he vigorously defended Mrs. Weeks.

Coal Schooner Wrecked

Port Clyde, Me., April 22.—The lives of the six members of the crew of the schooner Helena were imperilled when their craft piled up on Old Woman's ledge, a total wreck. The schooner was bound from New York for Swan's island with a cargo of coal.

TO INSPECT FORE RIVER

Under Forty Division of Chamber of Commerce

PLAN A NICE TRIP

While the committee in charge of the South American tour of the Chamber of Commerce is rounding out the last details of the trip, the committee on the pilgrimage of the Under Forty Division of the chamber are busy also planning their trip down the harbor and up to the Fore River works at Quincy. The trip will be made May 10 on the ferryboat Newtowne and promises to be "some party." It is expected that 300 men will join the pilgrimage and various kinds of entertainment features are being arranged to pass the time on the boat. The boat will leave an Atlantic avenue dock at 12.25 P. M. sharp.

At the Fore River works the pilgrims will be welcomed by President Francis T. Bowles, a member of the port directors, at whose invitation the party has been planned. Guides will show the members of the party the interesting points in the big shipyard and explain the numerous workings of the plant. Boats of all sizes are under construction at the yard, but the chief attraction will be the battleship Rividavia, built for the Argentine Republic and now nearing completion. Other vessels under way are the battleship Nevada and two torpedo boat destroyers for the United States navy, nine submarines, a submarine tender, and oil tank steamer, three otter trawlers and four car floats.

GOOD ADVICE

The general public throughout New England seem to have gotten the idea that anything the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad wants is objectionable and should immediately be strenuously opposed and that any action of theirs is, as a matter of course, a subject for unreasoning, adverse criticism. Now, that railroad is not all of New England of course, but it occupies a very important position in relation to New England's welfare, and it is high time that criticism of its management should be confined to some degree of intelligent knowledge of what the railroad is doing, or trying to accomplish. The welfare of New England cannot be separated from the welfare of its railroads.

Who do you think is going to be the gainer by unfounded attacks—the public? Don't you believe it for one minute. A few men may make money that way and politicians may serve some end—but the general public should encourage in every possible way the very best management possible. Help the company to remedy the things that are the proper subject of criticism. The railroads are immense factors for good, absolutely indispensable; there is really very little, comparatively, to criticise. Why should not the public commend the good and help the railroad to overcome the objectionable? New England is necessary to the very existence of the New England railroads, and such railroads are vitally necessary to the prosperity of New England—Thomaston Maine Express.

There was a good attendance of horsemen and women and some good races were run off. The winners in the several events were as follows:—Class B. G. H. Williamson's Boxer; class C. R. D. Stetson's Fancy P; class D, Loy Lohnes' Choto; class E. D. F. Bates' Fayne Jennings; class F. B. C. Wilder's Lawson Gift; class G. C. E. McKenzie's Kathleen; class I. C. T. SUNDAY IN OUR CHURCHES

Topics and Announcements For Coming Week

SUNDAY SCHOOLS

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN CHURCH.

At the morning service Rev. Carl G. Horst read a scripture lesson selections from Ecclesiasticus, chapters 6 and 37, and took for his text Proverbs 18, 24. He that maketh many friends doeth it to his own destruction, but there is a friend that sticketh closer than a brother. He said: "I fear our text does not sound very familiar to you. The reason for this is that it is taken from the Revised Version of our Scriptures. Let me read the rendering in the King James version and at once you will recognize it as one of the passages in the Bible that you have always known—"A man that hath friends most show himself friendly; and there is a friend that sticketh closer than a brother." So that familiar epigramatic suggestion: "He that hath friends must show himself friendly," has wholly disappeared from our revised version however much we may regret this disappearance we must let the Bible speak to us not the things we like to hear, but the things it has to say. And what it says in this particular instance is that "A man of many associates brings upon himself ruin; yet there is a friend who sticketh closer than a brother." The writer of the text contrasts the disappointment resulting from haphazard associations with the satisfaction of a genuine attachment. Noble friendships have been valued by men in all ages. We never tire of hearing of the friendship between Jonathan and David and Damon and Pythias. Among our finest treasures we must always count our friendships. Human nature is so constituted that it cannot be happy alone. We must share what we have. 'There is no man that imparteth his joys to his friend, but he joyeth the more; and no man that imparteth his griefs to his friend, but he grieveth the less.' Friendship is needed for the development of our personality. It is a refining and enrichment of mind and heart and soul.

The Bible class under the leadership of the minister is making a study of "Fundamentals of Faith."

MYSTERY BELL KEPT RINGING

Officers Thought Burglars in Department Store

PROVED FALSE ALARM

About 2 o'clock this morning Officer Farrell thought he heard a bell alarm in the Quincy Department store ringing, and an investigation was immediately started. The front and back doors were found closed and locked. Officer Farrell then got upon the roof of the building from the upper floor of the Greenleaf block. The bell continued to ring faintly for fifteen minutes or more and then stopped. Officers Sweeney and Ford soon arrived on the scene and assisted in the investigation, but found no burglars or intruders, and the cause of the alarm is a mystery.

Mr. Fitzpatrick, the proprietor, was surprised at the report today, and says there is nothing in it. He has an electric bell on the back door which may have been the cause of the alarm. Certainly no one broke and entered the premises. Since burglars secured the haul of $800 a few years ago, he has been more caerful and says they would not have got paid for their trouble last night.

GIVEN HIS CAR FARE.

A man who gave his name as Fred Warburton and his home as Pawtucket, R. I., was picked up in Randolph early Sunday morning and arraigned in court for being a tramp. The fellow said that he was walking to Boston to find employment. He gave the names of several Boston parties who were communicated with by telephone and his story found to be correct. He was then allowed to go and was given his car fare to Boston.

THREE BAD BOYS.

They were called upon to pay the cost, amounting to $5 each.

RECEIVED WITH GRAVE CONCERN

Washington Greatly Surprised at News From California

MEASURE AIMED AT JAPANESE

President to Continue Harmony Effort to Ameliorate Harsh Terms of Alien Land Bill—Failing In This, the Government May Appeal to Highest Court In the Land

Washington, April 22.—News of the determination of the legislative leaders in Sacramento to frame and pass an alien land-owning bill, directly discriminating against the Japanese, unofficially conveyed to the White House and state department, was received with grave concern and disappointment.

Such a development had not been expected in view of the first favorable comments in California upon the president's suggestion that regard be had for the preservation of the friendly relations between this country and the oriental nations.

Without exact knowledge of the form discrimination will take in the new bill, officials here assume that it will resemble the so-called assembly measure, which proposed to bar from land holding persons ineligible to citizenship, which covers only the Chinese and Japanese.

The administration will continue its efforts to ameliorate the harsh features of the projected legislation until the measure is beyond reach of amendment in that direction.

While the president has recognized the right of the people of California to legislate according to their judgment on the subject of land tenure, he is also under the obligation of guarding against encroachment by state legislation upon that part of the field of international relations reserved by the constitution to the national government.

Therefore, in the event of California legislation taking the form of direct discrimination against the Japanese in violation of what the administration itself regards as their treaty rights, the national government itself might enter the lists against the state of California before the judicial tribunals of the land.

If the state courts should uphold such a statute the case would be appealed to the United States circuit court, and almost certainly, by one party or the other, taken to the United States supreme court, which tribunal has never yet passed upon the claim of the Japanese to the right of naturalization in the United States.

DISREGARD BRYAN'S PLEA

Californians Frame a Law Directed Solely Against Japanese

Sacramento, Cal., April 22.—It is said by administration leaders in the legislature that a definite agreement to enact an anti-alien land law directed solely against the Japanese and exempting all foreigners "eligible to citizenship in the United States" has been reached.

It is added that it will be carried out this week.

MORGAN WILL FILED

No One Knows Exact Amount of the Financier's Estate

New York, April 22.—J. Pierpont Morgan's will was filed for probate yesterday. Waivers of citation accompanied the will, by which all persons interested in the estate waived all notice required by law, thus paving the way for the immediate probate of the testament. This will probably be done today.

Some estimates place the total estate as high as $125,000,000, but according to a member of the firm of J. J. Morgan & Co., not even the son himself can tell within many millions the actual value of the fortune. Until appraised by the state for the purpose of collecting the inheritance tax, the question probably will remain open.

RESERVATION BY ALLIES

London, April 22.—The reply of the Balkan allies, presented to the European powers, is a general acceptance of the offer of mediation between Turkey and the allies.

The reservation is made, however, that the questions of the disposal of the islands in the Ægean sea and of the delimitation of the frontiers of the province of Thrace and of the future state of Albania shall be left open for debate between the allies and the powers during the negotiations.

ORDINANCES AND RULES CONFLICT

Board of Health Will Adopt State Laws for Brooks

It is alleged that the buildings of Albert Keating at the corner of Washington and Canal streets caused an obstruction, which was responsible for some of the flood last week. Some of the near buildings set very low and are in a bad condition. Then again the canal has filled up obstructing the free flow of water. The Board of Health proposes to adopt the State law relative to brooks, but finds that the city advances and the present rules of the board are in conflict.

Letter Carrier Carey met with a mishap on Bigelow street this morning. While descending the steps at house he fell, wrenching his ankle. First aid was given by a kind lady and after awhile he was able to proceed.

PASSOVER SERVICES

Annual Festival of the Jewish People Entered Upon

HOW IT IS OBSERVED

Passover services, which will be continued a week, began last evening with services at Jewish temples, synagogues and homes. While the first and last days are observed by those of the reformed faith, the orthodox observe the first two and last two days.

The most important services were held last evening and will be repeated this evening at the homes of the orthodox, this being the Sedar service. Passover commemorates the deliverance of the Israelties from Egypt, after 430 years of bitter servitude.

The first night Sedar observed last evening at the homes of the large majority of Jews was the most interesting of all the services. The members of the family and guests sat around the supper table which was spread with festive elegance, while offering the bitter herbs, the roasted shank bone, the egg, the parsley, the bowl of salt water, the unleavened bread used during the holiday and other minor symbols.

The services were chanted from the "Haggadah," which tells of the deliverance from Egypt, giving thanks for the great act of divine mercy, in many a psalm and hymn.

In late years the "Haggadah" has been translated into English, but it is doubtful whether the quaint charm of the original remains intact.

On Passover, above all other festivals, the Jew finds traditions of his religion in striking accord with the ideals of American life, and as a rule the topic for the pulpit disquisition on Passover, particularly in the reform synagogues, where preaching is a regular feature of the services, is some thought relating to the theme of "Liberty."

SOUND THEIR OWN PRAISES

Members of Congress Supply Material For Directory

LINDBERGH'S IS MOST BRIEF

Vardaman's Biography Praises Bryan —Underwood Uses but Five Lines, While Lafferty Finds Enough to Fill Fifty-Seven—Clark Will Not Let Public Forget Baltimore Convention

Washington, April 22.—What members of the Sixty-third congress think of themselves became public when the new congressional directory was issued. The new directory contains biographies of representatives and senators, prepared by themselves. Lawyers, as usual, form the bulk of the legislators.

Sixty-nine are in the senate and 270 in the house. In the senate there are 8 editors, 6 farmers, 5 business men, 5 bankers, 2 doctors, and 1 soldier. The house contains 79 business men, 33 editors, 10 teachers, 18 farmers, 9 mechanics and workmen, 6 bankers, 6 doctors, 1 author, 1 soldier, 1 preacher and 1 lecturer. The directory lists in the senate 51 Democrats, 44 Republicans and 1 Progressive.

In the house there are 290 Democrats, 127 Republicans, 7 Progressives and 1 Independent, with a vacant seat caused by the death of Representative Legare of South Carolina. The house rollcall, which for several congresses has been led by Representative Adair of Indiana, will be led in this congress by a new representative, John W. Abercrombie of Alabama.

Generally the biographies in the new directory are remarkable for their brevity, as compared to former publications. Many of the members confine themselves to simple statements of their political records. The shortest biography is that of Representative Lindbergh of Minnesota, who describes himself simply as "Republican, of Little Falls."

The new senator from Kansas, William H. Thompson, in discussing his future says: "It is acknowledged by all who know him that as senator he will not only bring credit and honor to himself but to the state and nation as well."

Mr. Kindel of Colorado discusses his activities against "discriminative railroad rates" and says the vote of his district that elected him "proves conclusively that the people of Colorado are wide awake to the needs of fair and equitable transportation."

Representative L'Engle of Florida says he "studied in the public schools of the state and is still trying to get an education," while Representative Hinebaugh of Illinois "was educated in the school of 'hard knocks.'"

Mr. Bremner of New Jersey declares he never "ran for office until, against his will, he was practically unanimously nominated for the Sixty-third congress."

William H. Murray of Oklahoma indicates his pride in his pseudonym of "Alfalfa Bill" by inserting it in brackets after his name.

Senator Vardaman of Mississippi gives himself about two-thirds of a page in which he tells that he was "one of the first men in the country to take up the cause of W. J. Bryan and has been an ardent, earnest supporter of the distinguished Nebraskan from that time to the present."

Speaking of his achievements Senator Lewis of Illinois bunches the most of them under this unassuming sentence: "Held incidental offices in general forms of trust ordinarily reposed from time to time in the ordinary citizen."

Oscar W. Underwood, framer of the tariff bill and Democratic leader in the house, takes just five lines to give an account of his life.

It takes Walter Lafferty, progressive Republican of Portland, Ore., fifty-seven closely printed lines to give his colleagues an idea of his antecedents and what he has done.

Stanley E. Bowdie of Cincinnati, the Democrat who succeeds Nick Longworth, has "lectured on revealed religion and philosophy generally."

Champ Clark does not intend the public shall forget he led Woodrow Wilson on successive ballots at Baltimore and that by the majority rule of the game he believes he should have been nominated. The speaker in his life history account says: "Led in the Baltimore national convention of 1912 for the presidential nomination on twenty-nine ballots, receiving a clear majority on nine."

TITANIC CLAIMS $16,604,731

Large Batch Filed In Federal District Court at New York

New York, April 22.—Six hundred claims for damages, aggregating $16,604,731, have been filed in the federal district court against the Oceanic Steam Navigation company for loss of life, injuries and loss of property in the Titanic disaster a year ago, according to a report of United States Commissioner Gilchrist.

The court recently extended for thirty days the time limit during which certain persons residing abroad may file claims. The time limit for all other claims has expired.

Higby's Last Cure

It Was the Successful One

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Mr. Higby threw aside the evening newspaper and folded his arms across his breast. "Anastasia," he said resolutely, "I've struck the very thing at last!"

His wife looked up from her needlework. "What is it now, Henry?"

"A cure for my rheumatism," he announced triumphantly.

"I didn't know you had rheumatism, Henry."

"I have had it lately; a stiffening of the joints and a general disinclination to move around much."

"Humph!" ejaculated his wife skeptically. "You've been jumping up and down all the evening, Henry, and this is the first grunt I've heard out of you. Maybe it's growing pains."

Mr. Higby arose painfully from his chair and with bent back proceeded to limp slowly from the room. Anastasia's kind eyes followed his progress with mingled tears and laughter in their depths. At last pity and love triumphed, and she arose and went to him.

"Forgive me, Henry, for being so cross! Do come back and tell me what I can do to relieve you," she said with her cheek against his.

Sunny hearted Henry Higby turned a beaming face to hers and forgivingly kissed her on the brow. He permitted her to lead him back to his comfortable morris chair and to pile several pillows at his back.

"Now, tell me what new cure you have found, dear?" she said, sitting down to her embroidery once more.

"I've just read about it in this paper," explained Mr. Higby enthusiastically, forgetting to groan as he crossed his legs comfortably. "It's a simple cure, and that is what appeals to me. It costs absolutely nothing save a few pine boards and half a day's work. Living in the suburbs as we do, the trees are already provided for the purpose."

"What trees?" asked Anastasia curiously.

"The trees for the cure. You see it is this way: Some scientist has figured that the outer air is the natural atmosphere for man to breathe. He says if animals can sleep in the open—that is, if some can make their homes in damp and oozy spots without contracting rheumatism and kindred diseases, if others can sleep in cold caves on rocky floors without dire results; if birds can nest in the trees without catching cold from the rains that beat in, why should not man who was made to live and breathe the pure air of out of doors, why should not rheumatic man sleep out in the open and cure his ills? Great idea, isn't it?"

"Grand!" agreed Anastasia without enthusiasm.

"I'm going to try it."

"What are you going to be, an animal in an oozy swamp or a bird in a tree?" she asked.

"I suppose you've heard of the German mud baths for rheumatism?"

"Yes."

"Then the idea of the oozy swamp is not farfetched. I expect to try the tree cure."

"You're going to build a nest?" she asked, incredulity struggling with amusement.

"Of course not. One has to exercise common sense in such matters. I shall modify the idea, of course. I shall build a platform between those four tall chestnuts—say about forty feet above ground. I shall have a strong wire fence all about it and place a cot there."

"You will not only lose your rheumatism, but all your other ills, Henry, and you will sleep thereafter in the cemetery on the hillside," asserted his wife dryly.

"Fiddlesticks!" laughed Mr. Higby, with great good humor. "You said the same thing when I tried the fish diet for nervousness. You thought I would develop fins and get to swimming in the bay until somebody caught me with a mummy club and made me into a chowder. Why, you had the table all set for a chowder dinner, with me as the chief ingredient. Eh, Anastasia?" He tweaked his wife's ear playfully and made for the door. "I guess I'll telephone down to Flake's house and ask him to send up some lumber from the mill in the morning."

Quite forgetful of his rheumatism, Mr. Higby went into the hall and shut himself into the telephone booth.

Anastasia laid aside her needlework and closed her eyes. She was tired of her husband's many fancied illnesses, and she was startled at the rapidity with which one disease followed another. And yet, and yet, as an actual fact Henry Higby had never had a day's real sickness in the twelve years they had been married.

As for his imaginary ailments—well, there had always been for a standby the grip, then neuralgia of head and heart, asthma, bronchitis, tuberculosis, insomnia, pains and sprains, symptoms of whatever disease was the fad of the moment, and he had had more attacks of appendicitis than all the other citizens of his suburban town put together.

He had just recovered from an attack of appendicitis and had only spent two days at his often neglected business when rheumatism stared him in the face.

Anastasia sighed as she thought of the fuss and bother that must attend Henry's adoption of a new sleeping place. He had slept all over the house in the past. From attic to cellar every room had known his restless slumbers, and last summer he had slept on the front piazza until he was startled one night by awakening to discover a tall, gaunt framed woman standing over him with a small lantern held close to his face.

"It's only you, is it?" she had said contemptuously and passed into the house. The next morning Mr. Higby discharged Bridget for impertinence and the following day found a new domestic installed in the kitchen, one who was not given to nocturnal wanderings.

The next few days witnessed a busy period in Mr. Higby's existence. Assisted by a carpenter he constructed a square platform between the four chestnuts in the large back yard. When it was all completed and a comfortable cot bed within the wire inclosure, Mr. Higby invited his neighbors to inspect the innovation.

Of course it wasn't right. Captain Fletcher said that the platform should have been lashed to the trees, not nailed. "First strong breeze we have will wrench your timbers apart," he warned.

"Nonsense," said Mr. Higby jovially. "Fiddlesticks," he said to somebody else, and "Piffle," he remarked to a third critic. Then he went into the house and made preparations for his ascent to his nest.

Mrs. Higby tearfully prepared a basket of extra bedclothing. "You will catch your death of cold, Henry," she murmured. "And suppose you should fall out, why, you'd be killed. At any rate, you'd break every bone in your body."

"Fiddlesticks," was Mr. Higby's backneyed response.

"You're tempting Providence," flashed Anastasia at last. "There isn't a thing the matter with you, Henry, but there will be before you get through with this business. I wish you wouldn't go."

"Never mind, my dear," assured Mr. Higby with the gentle patience of one who knows he is right. "You will understand some day how it is with me."

Behind closed blinds many curious eyes watched Mr. Higby's lantern as it slowly ascended the long ladder that led up to his lofty perch. The lantern swung in his hand as he steadied himself on the ladder. A strong wind was rising and the trees were swaying with a low musical creak of boughs. Up on the dizzy height of the platform he pulled manfully on the rope to which the basket of extra bedding was fastened and presently the basket loomed over the railing and was deposited on the floor.

Before long Henry Higby had taken the second step in his projected cure for rheumatism. He had slipped out of his bathrobe and slippers and jumped into the little cot, which was clamped down to the platform. For a long time he lay awake looking up at the stars, which shone down through the young foliage of the trees, for it was early spring. He saw the white clouds go drifting across the face of the moon. He felt the rhythmical swing of the trees as they bent to the freshening wind, and finally he fell asleep.

He slumbered, only to awaken to a moment of supreme terror when it seemed that the bottom had dropped out of the universe and he was being propelled through nothingness to oblivion. He was conscious that he struck the soft branches of trees in his downward passage, and then something hard arose to meet him and blot out his sense of pain.

When he awoke from this second sleep he was not swinging in his nest among the treetops, with the stars roofed over his head. He was in his own stationary bed on the second floor of his home. Two physicians regarded him speculatively, while Anastasia hung, pale and anxious eyed, close to his pillow.

"What happened?" he asked feebly.

"The wind was so strong that the trees pulled the platform apart, and you fell to the ground," said Dr. Brown cheerily. "We'll have you up and around in a few months."

"A few months!" gasped Higby. "Why, what's the matter with me? I can't move."

"Of course you can't," said Dr. Jones bluffly. "You've only broken three ribs, fractured your left leg, broken your right wrist and wrenched your back. What in thunderation were you doing up there, eh?"

"It was a cure for rheumatism," said Mr. Higby, with diffidence.

"Well, you cured the rheumatism, all right," assured the doctor; "but, man alive, you've got enough now to take care of for awhile! No need to warn you to keep quiet."

When they were alone Higby exchanged a look with his wife, and his own eyes were repentant.

"I'm an idiot, Anastasia!" he blurted out. "It's too bad I didn't break my fool neck as well as the other bones!"

But Anastasia assured him that the enforced rest would benefit him and that when his broken parts had been knit together he would probably enjoy perfect health. "I hope you will, dear," said Anastasia slowly. "Life is too short to fuss over imaginary ills"—

"I know, I know," put in Henry Higby hastily. "I had to break every bone in my body to cure myself. But I'm cured now, Anastasia. Where's that 'Family Doctor?'"

"It is burning in the kitchen stove this very moment," said Anastasia firmly.

"Good!" said Higby, turning his face to the wall.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

OYSTER SOUPS.

OYSTERS are easily digested and hence make a good food for invalids. Oysters are composed of about the same elements as milk, but they are more highly flavored and hence give even to milk a more tempting taste.

Oysters should be well cleaned before cooking. Drain off the liquor that comes with them and before using it run it through a fine wire strainer.

Lay the oysters in a colander and rinse, using about a half pint of water to a quart of oysters. If too much water is used the flavor will be washed out.

Always examine the gills of oysters with the fingers to see that no bits of shell are there.

Nourishing Preparations.

Oyster Soup.—Take two quarts of oysters and drain and wash them. Take two thin slices of lean ham cut in small pieces, some parsley, thyme and onion and tie in a bunch as thick as your thumb. Strain the oyster liquor. Put all together, with pepper and salt. When almost done add a lump of butter as big as an egg rolled in flour, with a gill of good cream.

Oyster Bouillon.—Take two dozen large oysters and after washing and draining chop fine. Put in a double boiler and heat slowly to draw out as much juice as possible. Turn into fine sieve and press out every particle of the liquor. Return the liquor to the fire in a saucepan, beating into it the white of one egg. Bring to the boiling point, boil one minute, then strain through double cheesecloth. Season, add an equal quantity of hot milk and serve.

A Southern Soup.

Gumbo of Oysters.—Take a young chicken, cut it up and roll in flour and brown well in a saucepan with a spoonful of lard, two slices of ham, one chopped onion and a red pepper. When browned cover with water and steam until the chicken is tender. Then add the liquor off four dozen oysters, with water enough to make four quarts of soup. When it has again come to a boil add the oysters and stir while sifting in one large spoonful of gumbo. Pepper and salt to taste. Serve immediately, placing a large spoonful of boiled rice in each soup plate.

Bisque of Oysters.—Take a quart of oysters, a quart of rich milk or cream, eight rolled soda crackers, a teaspoonful of beef extract, a saucerful of finely minced celery, two tablespoonfuls of butter, worked into an equal quantity of flour; the yolks of three eggs, a teaspoonful of salt and one-half teaspoonful of pepper, with a sprinkle of cayenne. Chop the oysters, put into a saucepan with their own liquor and a pint of water, the celery beef extract, crackers, salt, pepper and a little parsley. Boil for twenty minutes. Rub through a sieve until all moisture has been pressed through. Return the liquor to the stove, add milk and simmer again for ten minutes. Set back and carefully stir in the beaten yolks of the eggs. Serve at once.

Everything necessary to make the affairs enjoyable for those who attend has been done. The concert will be a musical treat, lovers of good music will pass a pleasant evening there and the devotees of the Two step and Waltz will be enabled to trip the light fantastic to the strain of the latest compositions.

The Mt. Wollaston Club will hold a social dance at Alpha Hall, Thursday evening.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Examiner So Reports Regarding the New Haven's Books

WONDERFUL FEATS OF FINANCE

Mellen Made Big Profits on Huge Stock Deals—Loose Bookkeeping Methods In Intricate Transactions Between the New Haven and Its Subsidiary Companies

Boston, April 22.—Profits amounting to more than $170,000 were made by President Mellen of the New York, New Haven and Hartford by purchasing New Haven stock and selling it at a profit, some of it to concerns of which he was himself president, according to the testimony of David E. Brown, expert examiner of accounts of the interstate commerce commission, at the hearing before Commissioner Prouty in the federal building yesterday.

When the dealings came to light Prouty declared it was his belief that the transactions were authorized by the directors, but he would like to have Mellen appear before the commission and explain them in their true light.

He has not been summoned to appear, it developed during the hearing, because such summons might give him immunity from the prosecution under the Sherman law, in the New York suit in connection with the Grand Trunk deal.

Examiner Brown characterized the road's system of accounting as so confusing that he could not trace many important items. One piece of bookkeeping he frankly owned was "a new one on" him.

He revealed a system of juggling the value of the stocks and property of the road's subsidiary steamship companies in million dollar amounts. Some of the feats of finance performed he spoke of with awe.

Expenses in connection with the anti-merger bill, vouchers paid before the orders for the money were drawn and a general expense account of unclassified expenditures enormous in comparison with those of other roads were laid bare at the investigation.

The testimony came during the course of a day's hearing in which the intricate financial transactions between the New Haven and its subsidiary companies were revealed at length, by an expert who has had from six to ten men working under him in poring through the books of the New Haven for the past six months.

Testimony was elicited by Prouty and by Louis D. Brandeis, who cross examined the witness, showing large losses sustained by the New Haven in its steamship purchases, and large inflation of the book values of these same properties through transferals from one subsidiary company to another, and by the sudden addition of more than $3,000,000 of "good will" with no apparent justification, and of over $1,000,000 alleged fictitious value in connection with the New York pier leases.

Loose bookkeeping methods, contrary, according to Brown, to all accepted railroad accounting practice, were revealed, testimony showing that an account of $514,000 was maintained under the heading "general expenses," this amount being eight times as large as the usual general account in railroad companies.

Of this amount sums ranging from $1000 to $2000 had been paid to a large number of Boston men who were, according to Brandeis, "well known at the state house," for "services on matters affecting the interests of the company" in 1912.

These further points were brought out at the hearing:

John L. Billard made $2,700,000 by selling Boston and Maine stock back to the New Haven interests at an advance.

If the New Haven had used the same depreciation ratios as three leading railroads, deficits would have been $2,333,000 greater in 1911, and $1,900,000 greater in 1912.

Steamship properties bought by the New Haven for $20,000,000 were sold to the New England Steamship company for $11,252,387.

The New Haven paid $24,350,000 for stock of the Rhode Island company, worth $9,685,500 at par.

Of $370,000,000 raised by the New Haven from 1903 to 1912, only $104,000,000 was spent in actual railroad properties.

Sporting Writer Kills Self

New Haven, April 22.—Frank L. Newton, an aged man, at one time a writer on a sporting paper of New York city, committed suicide at his home here by inhaling illuminating gas.

Boston Has 215,388 Male Adults

Boston, April 22.—The annual police listing of Boston of April 1 shows 215,388 male adults of 20 years and over, against 214,172 for last year, an increase of 1216.

Bar and Bottle Bill Stands

Boston, April 22.—An attempt to repeal the bar and bottle bill, made in the house, was defeated by a vote of 105 to 120.

DINNER PAILS STOLEN

Negro Boy Alleged to Have Been Murdered In Revenge

Bolton, Vt., April 22.—Henry McCabe, a foreman, and three laborers, comprising a section crew of the Central Vermont railroad, were arrested here charged with the murder of a negro boy. The authorities claim that the lad, whose identity has not been established, was thrown into the Wincoski river after the men found that some one had stolen their dinner pails.

The names of the men arrested with McCabe are James Sweeney, John Kennison and Lief Pense.

The police state that the arrests were made on information furnished by Kennison, who claims he had no part in disposing of the boy. Kennison told his story to the selectmen voluntarily and his statement was the first knowledge the authorities had of the affair.

WANTS "PRACTICAL" MEN

Wilson Bars Scientists Unless They Show Executive Ability

Washington, April 22.—Merely because a man is a scientist will not insure his job under the Wilson administration. He must be a practical man of affairs if his position requires administrative duties.

The president made this plain when he was asked at his weekly audiences with the Washington correspondents whether it was to be the rule that scientists were to be dealt with separately in considering their claims to positions.

The president believes where scientists are needed the country must have the best, but in positions such as the director of the census bureau he believes the individual named must have executive as well as scientific attainments.

TRUCE AT HOPEDALE

Strike Leader Asks Governor to Call Off State Police Officers

Milford, Mass., April 22.—Following a day of hide and seek between the strikers and the state police, the armistice in the strike of the Draper Manufacturing company's employes was resumed last night. Though the streets of the towns of Milford and Hopedale were heavily guarded by state and Boston police there was not the slightest sign of trouble.

Strike Leader Coldwell went to Boston to confer with Governor Foss. He requested him to remove the state police from Hopedale, but received little satisfaction. Then he declared that trouble would surely ensue if the no-procession rule passed by the town meeting of Friday night were enforced.

NO DANCING AFTER ONE IN THE MORNING

Ban Includes Balls at Smart Boston Hotels

Boston, April 22.—Mayor Fitzgerald is out for a 1 o'clock closing of the dance halls, and also of the smart debutante balls at the fashionable hotels. This is the substance of the dictum made by him to the committee of the Public Recreation league which called on him to urge several reforms in the conducting of dances in the city.

The committee desired a 12 o'clock closing of the dance halls, more matrons and more inspectors. The mayor thought at a 1 o'clock closing was fairer to all concerned, but surprised the committee when he declared this rule would be applied to the hotels. They pleaded for an exemption, but the mayor stoutly declared against it.

The idea of dance hall matrons and additional inspectors suggested by the committee, the mayor declared he would adopt.

VERDICT AFFIRMED

Spectator Gets $22,500 For Leg Torn Off at Automobile Race

New York, April 22.—A spectator who stands near an automobile race course knowing that cars are to be raced at high speed is taking a risk, but, if injured, is not necessarily guilty of contributary negligence.

Such was the gist of a unanimous decision handed down by the appellate division of the supreme court in affirming a judgment of $22,500 awarded to Thomas Muller against the Pope-Hartford Auto company.

Muller had a leg torn off during the Vanderbilt cup race in Long Island in 1910 by the Pope-Hartford car driven by Jack Fleming.

BAN ON SUNDAY BALL

Sheff Men at Yale Warned Not to Play Planned Games

New Haven, April 22.—Any student of the Sheffield scientific school, Yale, who takes part in a Sunday baseball game will render himself liable to suspension. This is the dictum issued by the acting director of the school.

The stand against Sunday baseball, which is the first to have been taken by the faculty, came as a result of the announcement of a game which was to have been played Sunday between a local team and some of the students.

Colonel TODHUNTER of Missouri

By RIPLEY D. SAUNDERS

Copyright, 1911, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company.

SYNOPSIS

Colonel Todhunter booms his friend William J. Strickland for the nomination for governor. Tom Strickland, son of William, loves Mary Todhunter. Lottie-May Doggett loves Tom.

Stamford Tucker pays attention to Mary. He and Tom are rivals. They clash at the Todhunters'.

A political rally of Strickland's supporters is interrupted by the Yancey men, led by Stam. His father, Eph Tucker, is Yancey's main supporter in Nineveh.

Tom and Stam quarrel about Lottie-May, to whom Stam is attentive. Colonel Todhunter and Eph Tucker meet in the office of the Nineveh Blade.

Dick Cantrill, editor of the Blade, defeats one of Tucker's "low down" tricks. Old Mirandy, one of Colonel Todhunter's negro dependents, living near the Doggetts, tells the colonel of Stam's visits to Lottie-May.

In a wrangle Tom knocks Stam down. Colonel Todhunter is to indorse Strickland's note for $3,000 to meet campaign expenses.

Eph Tucker accepts the note. In St. Louis the newspaper men "write up" Colonel Todhunter, who is campaigning, and make much of his picturesque personality.

The colonel's speech takes the city partisans by storm. Tom proposes to Mary and is accepted.

"I have no hesitancy, my friends, in placing the Hon. Stephen K. Yancey before you today as the unrivaled product of a civilization, of a nation and of a people that have in their splendid conjunction produced the most godlike development of the race of man known in the world's history, my hearers. Stephen K. Yancey, my fellow Missourians, is more than a mere Democrat, high though that title may justly place him in the scale of human progress. He is the spotless archangel of American democracy. His garments are as pure as the driven snow, and his flaming sword of battle is the weapon of righteousness. His mind is the abiding place of political chastity, and his soul cherishes the untainted thoughts of the sweet minded child, or of those celestial cherubims who are the heavenly parallels of earthly infancy. And I say to you now, my fellow citizens, that when the mighty Gabriel, with his awakening trumpet, sounds that awful blast that shall summon us all to the judgment bar for a final accounting, supreme among the elect who shall arise on that great day and make answer to their records on the open scrolls of the recording angel, the man without one mark to his discredit made by that angelic pen, the man not one jot or tittle afraid of the unfolding of those august registers, the man against whom may be pointed neither the accusing fingers of men nor seraphim in condemnation for the deeds of his doing, will be the Hon. Stephen K. Yancey of Jackson county, in whose behalf I now ask your vote at the approaching primaries. I thank you for your kind attention."

It was a titanic effort. Bedford Giles had puffed and perspired freely in its deliverance. His arms had cut wide swaths out of Missouri's atmosphere. His hands had bludgeoned emphasis into his words with mighty blows. More than once he had crouched as if to spring upon the presumptuous rivals of the Hon. Stephen K. Yancey, only to rise again to his full height and hurl forth, with all the effectiveness gained by such bodily exercises, the crushing conclusion of some tremendous sentence. The speaker's Missouri audience could not but respond to such an appeal. Thunderous cheers greeted Bedford Giles as he bowed and seated himself. He received them modestly, swabbing his heated countenance with a big handkerchief already dripping with the honest sweat of oratorical toil.

Colonel Todhunter rose to reply. Dismay was in his face.

"My friends of Dunklin county," he began hesitatingly, "I hardly know what to say in reply to Mr. Bedford Giles' magnificent tribute to the virtues of the Hon. Stephen K. Yancey, his candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor of Mizzoorah."

Here the speaker paused, almost gropingly.

Then he resumed. "Fellow citizens, you all know old Bill Strickland of Nineveh as well as I do."

One derisive hoot sounded from the outskirts of the crowd. The speaker seemed hurt, but not surprised.

"And, knowin' him," he continued, "you know as well as I do that he ain't fitten to run for office against no spotless archangel."

A profound silence fell upon the assemblage. Sadness rested on Colonel Todhunter's visage.

"My hearers," he said, "I reckon I got to face the music and take my

"My friends of Dunklin county," he began hesitatingly.

medicine like a man. Old Bill Strickland of Nineveh somehow don't seem to stack up the right way against the Hon. Stephen K. Yancey of Jackson county."

From somewhere in the heart of the crowd there came just one snort of appreciative laughter. It was quickly strangled.

"I hate to confess it," continued Colonel Todhunter, "but old Bill Strickland ain't no celestial cherub, neither. Like Bedford Giles describes the Hon Stephen K. Yancey."

An apprehensive uneasiness crept into the faces of the local Yancey managers on the speakers' platform.

"Fellow citizens," spoke Colonel Todhunter, "old Bill Strickland ain't got no business settin' himself up in opposition to a man who meets all the moral requirements of the heavenly seraphim, like Bedford Giles says the Hon Stephen K. Yancey meets 'em."

In the very front rows of the crowd facing the speaker broad smiles of humorous comprehension began to be visible.

"And old Bill Strickland ain't got no business," conceded Colonel Todhunter, "askin' you to give him your votes 'stead of givin' 'em to a man that'll shine at the judgment bar on the last day at the blowin' of Gabriel's horn, like Bedford Giles says the Hon. Stephen K. Yancey's agoin' to shine."

"E-yow-wow-wow!" came a rapturous American whoop of tickled approval from somewhere in the crowd.

"A man," said Colonel Todhunter, "who'll face the recordin' angel hisself without the flicker of an eyelash secure in his consciousness of his own immaculate perfection."

A great underwave of laughter, held in leash, swung to and fro through the confronting assemblage.

And then Colonel Todhunter rose to his full height of six feet, thrusting his right hand into the bosom of his ample skirted coat.

"My friends," he announced, "all I can say in excuse for old Bill Strickland is that he thought he was runnin' against just a plain human bein' for the Democratic nomination for governor of Mizzoorah."

Suddenly he bowed his head, threw out his hands deprecatingly and then lifted his eyes mournfully as he stood once more erect.

"Fellow Democrats," he cried, "I hereby announce the withdrawal of the Hon. William J. Strickland from this race, and I wish to state that the withdrawal is made in favor of the Hon. Stephen K. Yancey on the strength of the description of Mr. Yancey just given by Bedford Giles."

There was a moment of astonished silence.

Colonel Todhunter remained standing. Again he lifted his hand. "Provided," he said, "that Bedford Giles can furnish proof of the truth of the claims he has just made for the Hon. Stephen K. Yancey, coverin' the spotless archangel business, the sword of righteousness, the celestial cherub, the heavenly seraphim, the unfolded scrolls of the recordin' angel, and so forth and so forth, straight down to the garments pure as the driven snow and the mind of political chastity, and includin' the whole blamed outfit, my hearers!"

A mighty roar of pent up laughter burst forth.

It was like an explosion. Men rock ed to and fro on their feet in uncontrollable mirth. They smote one another on the back, shouting in gargantuan chorus. In the midst of the demonstration Bedford Giles, stricken by the thunderbolt of ridicule, sprang from his seat and actually fled the scene.

Colonel Todhunter gazed after his disappearing figure in such apparent astonishment that the cyclone of laughter increased in its overwhelming volume. But the colonel stood unmoved, his face absolutely impassive.

And when the sun set on that memorable day a new record had been made in the colorful history of Missouri political campaigning. Colonel Todhunter in a five minutes speech had battered down the walls of the Yancey stronghold, until then thought to be the most impregnable in all Missouri.

CHAPTER X.

The Shame of Lottie-May Doggett—and One Other.

COLONEL TODHUNTER and Mrs. Todhunter were two of the great throng that attended the grand reception and ball given by the Sons of Confederate Veterans at the Nineveh hotel.

The hotel dining room, festooned in bunting for the occasion, was doing duty as a ballroom, the Nineveh brass band was stationed upon a temporary platform at one end, and the members of the Nineveh Light infantry, all Sons of Veterans, were there in full uniform.

Half an hour after the ball began Tom Strickland came to the colonel with a troubled face.

"Colonel," he said, "that little Lottie-May Doggett is booked for a mighty unpleasant experience in a few minutes if somebody don't give her a friendly warning."

"What's the matter with Lottie-May now, Tom?"

"Well, sir, it's pretty serious. There's an ugly story about her that's got to the ears of the ladies tonight, something scandalous, in which the name of the man doesn't seem to be known, and I've just had a tip that she's going to be asked to leave the ballroom. It'll shamé her beyond redemption, sir."

"Do you know the story?"

"Only as it's being whispered around, colonel, about some man being seen to leave her house at hours of the night or early morning that can't mean but one thing, folks are claiming. I'm afraid Lottie-May's in a bad fix the way things look."

"You ain't mixed up in this trouble, are you, Tom?"

Tom Strickland flushed. "If I was, colonel," he replied, "I reckon I'd be man enough to try and get Lottie-May out of it myself without bothering anybody else. No, sir, I ain't mixed up in it. But, good Lord, colonel, I went to school with Lottie-May when she wasn't knee high to a duck, and I swear I'd hate to see her publicly disgraced. And you know—and I know—it would hurt old Rafe Doggett so. It would break his heart, sir."

Colonel Todhunter made no reply.

"I thought, maybe, if you could get the chance, colonel," resumed Tom anxiously, "that you might tell her and so make it possible for her to slip away before the ladies can do what they're threatening to do, sir. She'll take it from you, knowing that her grandfather was in your old regiment and that you're telling her for her own good, where she might flare up and kick over the traces if anybody else hinted at such a thing. Don't you think you could work it, colonel?"

"If I do, Tom," replied Colonel Todhunter, "it'll be for old Rafe Doggett's sake. He's too good a man to be brought face to face with shame in his old age. Yes, I'll try to do it, Tom. But I'd like to wring the neck of the young rascal that's got old Rafe's granddaughter in such a mess, eh."

FOSS VETOES BUTTER BILL

Says New Law Would Create Rise In Price of Product

Boston, April 22.—Governor Foss sent to the senate his veto of the bill providing for the punishment of dealers who sell butter containing more than 16 percent moisture and also establishing a standard for butter and oleomargarine.

In his message the governor declared that although the bill was a pure food measure, nevertheless its passage would result only in the imposition of a fine upon a dealer guiltless of unlawful intentions, and an inevitable rise in the price of butter.

That the enforcement of the so-called pure food laws should be left to the federal government was the contention of Foss.

UNEXPECTED MOVE BY CHAMBERLAIN

New Element Is Brought Into the Canal Controversy

Washington, April 22.—A demand for abrogation of two treaties with Great Britain bearing upon isthmian canal rights, presented to the senate in a resolution by Senator Chamberlain, brought a new element into the canal controversy, now in progress between this country and Great Britain over the right of the United States to exempt American coastwise ships from the payment of tolls.

The Chamberlain resolution would require the president to proceed at once to terminate the Hay-Pauncefote treaty of 1901 and the Clayton-Bulwer treaty of 1852, which it superseded. In a statement, Chamberlain said that the United States never planned to give Great Britain such treaty rights as would justify the protests that country has made.

The debate indicated clearly the embarrassment caused the senate by the unexpected move of Chamberlain in seeking to set aside a treaty with a friendly mation for the purpose of securing exemption for American shipping.

MARKING TIME IN BELGIUM

Upwards of Half a Million Men Are Now on Strike

Brussels, April 22.—While upwards of 500,000 men are on strike throughout the country, according to the estimates of the Socialists, both sides seem to be marking time in anticipation of the debate in the chamber of deputies on the motion of the Liberal leader, M. Masson, looking to a compromise on the suffrage question.

The cabinet met yesterday afternoon to consider this subject, but nothing as to the result of the deliberations was vouchsafed to the public.

French Army Aviator Killed

Paris, April 22.—Another officer of the French military aviation corps, Lieutenant de Blamont, was killed at the flying grounds at Villacoublay. His monoplane turned turtle and he fell about 350 feet to the earth.

Bank Cashier Sentenced

San Francisco, April 22.—Charles F. Baker, defaulting assistant cashier of the Crocker National bank, was sentenced to serve ten years in San Quentin penitentiary.

Drug Clerk Hangs Self

Pawtucket, R. I., April 22.—The body of Robert McClellan, 27, a drug clerk, was found by his wife hanging by the neck, tied with his belt, to the bedpost in his room.

THE GERMAN SOFA.

It Is the Seat of Honor For the Visitor With the Biggest Title.

The stranger in Germany is always impressed by the importance of the sofa in marking social distinctions. Indeed, among Germans of the more comfortable class, those who live from generation to generation in the same house, every piece of furniture has its own history and makes its own associations, but it is always the sofa that is given the prominent place in a room. Before it usually stands a round or oval table.

Should there be callers at the average German house there ensues a certain dignified commotion. Should a caller, a woman of lower social standing than the mistress of the house, arrive she must take a chair, while the hostess sits alone on the sofa. Should the visitor be of higher degree, however, the matter will be otherwise decided.

This method of distinction reaches its highest point when there is a tea party, or kaffeeklatsch (coffee gossip), for then the oldest woman with the biggest title must sit on the sofa, and the next in rank occupies the place nearest her.

As the proudest usually arrives latest, a general stir is likely to take place, for if the Frau Doktorin, the wife of a physician or scholar, is sitting on the sofa she must vacate her position should a Frau Professorin appear. The Frau Majorin, or wife of a major, may be thoroughly enjoying the seat of honor, but she must yield it without hesitation when the Frau Generalin comes in. The whole company rise in such an event to do honor to the distinguished guest, and there must necessarily follow a general readjustment of places.

Neither unmarried men nor very young women can expect to enjoy the privilege of sitting on a German sofa.

The piece of furniture that stands next in honor to the sofa is the easy chair, which is sometimes called sorgenstuhl, or chair of cares. Should a German sit down to worry he must have a comfortable seat, that so important a mood may be endured with dignity. A common chair would not serve his purpose in the least. But the sorgenstuhl is, so to speak, for domestic and personal use only. The sofa is the part of the entire social framework never to be carelessly regarded. —New York Tribune.

BRAVERY IN BATTLE.

And the Terrors of War, Modern and of Other Times.

Much is written of the terrors of modern war. Little is written of the terrors of the wars of old. Yet it is doubtful if war today makes greater demands on human courage than war in the time of Grant, of Washington, of Turenne, of Caesar, of Alexander.

Consider a standup infantry fight in the days of the Revolution. After the preliminary cannonade and long distance musketry practice the two regiments marched toward each other in close ranks. At a given distance, frequently at thirty yards, there was a halt, a smashing volley and then a bayonet charge through the smoke.

Bullets those days were large and of soft lead, and the man who was hit went down. Over him tramped his comrades or the enemy, shooting and stabbing.

That was the type of infantry battles for 150 years. To minimize the courage needed to make a good soldier under such circumstances is to fly in the face of common sense.

Modern war requires a different type of courage from that needed of old The old touch of elbows is lacking The old feeling of companionship is gone. The modern soldier must be more alert, better taught, keener witted, than the olden soldier of equal value. But it does not follow that the modern soldier is the braver man.

The men who fought at the "bloody angles" of Chickamauga and Spottsylvania, at Bunker Hill and Oriskany, at Rivoli, Zorndorf and Malplaquet, had no need to learn heroism in any modern school. It was theirs already —Chicago Journal.

An Actor's Emergency Shirt.

As for paper fasteners a touring actor writes to point out another of their utilities: "There is, at times, in a small company especially, a scarcity of starched linen. And shirts, like King John's treasure, get lost or mislaid in the wash. You are playing a dude part, say, with naught but a flannel shirt to go with your dress coat. Take a sheet of note paper or foolscap, prod it under your vest, and where the central stud should be insert a round headed brass paper fastener!" Necessity mothers invention.—London Standard.

No Chance.

"And what is your occupation?" asked the accident insurance agent.

"I'm a woodman. During the hunting season I act as a guide."

"Oh, I'm sorry, but my company won't write a policy on your class."

"Why not? Surely I'm a good risk."

"Excuse me, sir, but will you repeat that part of your terms? I lost myself for a second."

"Old enough to know better."

LUXURIOUS KITCHENS.

They Used Silver Lined Saucepans In the Old Days In Rome.

While the housewife today prides herself, and with reason, on the equipment and conveniences of her establishment, she need not think that centuries ago other women in other lands were not equally well provided. Indeed, the kitchens of Roman women were much more luxuriously fitted out than are most kitchens of today.

Now, in the days when the Roman empire was at its height, if you went into the culinary department of an elegant establishment you would find saucepans lined with silver and pails of various description richly inlaid with arabesques in silver and shovels that were handsomely and intricately carved. Egg frames, too, that would cook twenty eggs at once and pastry molds shaped like shells and an infinite assortment of gridirons, frying pans, cheese graters and tart dishes.

The toilet tables of the Roman women were well supplied in the same lavish fashion. Ivory combs, perfumes, cosmetics, hairpins, even an elaborate hair net of gold, have been recently unearthed. Safety pins, too, which have for a long time been considered a strictly modern invention, could be found on their tables. But they had no brushes nor any glass mirror, the kind they used being of silver or other white metals.—Chicago Tribune.

NEW LIGHT ON OLD PROVERB

Showing That the Early Bird Ic Not Always the One That Gets the Most Worms.

Once there were two birds. One was an early bird, and the other was a lazy sort of bird which never got out much before eight o'clock in the morning.

The early bird caught a worm. The early proverb-maker happened to be there at the time, and made a note of it.

Now, this worm that had been caught by this early bird had a wife and ten children. When the worm left home that morning his ten children were just getting up and his wife was preparing breakfast.

No doubt this worm had gone out for his morning walk to work up an appetite for breakfast, but such are the uncertainties of life—he never returned. The family of worms waited until about eight o'clock, and then, highly alarmed, started out to look for Papa Worm.

At this time the bird that was a lazy sort of bird was just getting out to look for a bite of something to eat. He saw the family of worms—and had a fine breakfast.

Moral: It's not always the bird that gets into the proverb that gets the most worms.—Lippincott's.

McKAY BILL PASSED THE HOUSE OVER GOVERNOR'S VETO

Representative Sullivan's Efforts Rewarded By Approval of Colleagues

Lawyers Argued the Bill Was in Interest of "Square Deal"

(Special to the Ledger)

State House, April 23. Representative Michael T. Sullivan of Quincy, had the pleasure of seeing his efforts in the House rewarded this afternoon when that body passed the McKay bill dealing with information about a defendant's court record which may not be communicated to a judge until after the defendant has been found guilty. This bill, drafted by John D. MacKay of Quincy, received a favorable report from the committee on judiciary and went through both branches of the legislature with flying colors only to be vetoed by Governor Foss, who said that while the bill had considerable merit, still he thought the judges would be unfavorable toward it, and quoted Chief Justice Aiken of the Superior court as one high authority opposed to it. This seemed a staggering blow, especially as the Governor suggested a substitute bill, but when the matter came up today on the question as to whether the House should sustain the Governor's veto, the House by a vote on roll call of 191 to 33, passed the bill for the second time, the veto notwithstanding.

Rep. Sullivan has put in some hard work on this bill, having introduced it early in the session and upholding its merits in the face of seeming defeat. He did not take part in discussing the bill on the floor of the House.

Several members strongly urged the House to override the veto, their arguments being that the principle in law that a man is presumed to be innocent until he is proven guilty, was at stake and that this bill is in the interest of "the square deal."

TWO PERFORMANCES.

The Junior Auxiliary of Christ church plan a sale and entertainment Monday afternoon and evening, from 3 to 9 o'clock. Two performances of the play "The Courting of Mother Goose" will be given, one at 3.45 in the afternoon and the other at 7.45 in the evening. A musical program is also being arranged. This play is tremendously amusing; mush attention is being given to the costumes; and under the coaching of Mrs. George E. Rundlett the little actresses are fast becoming proficient.

GOOD RECORD OF COUNCIL CLERK

Eight Years in the Place and Never Missed a Meeting

George T. Magee, of the Ledger staff and clerk of the City Council has been confined to his home the past two days by a severe cold, which he has been trying to fight off without remaining at home. He attended the meeting of the City Council, Monday evening. It was rather a long session, and when it was over Mr. Magee discovered that he had taxed his strength and endurance to the limit and he was unable to get out yesterday and today the doctor has ordered him to remain at home.

There is a meeting of a committee this evening. While it is uncertain if Mr. Magee will attend, he may do so against the advice of his physician, but there are strong possibilities that he will not take the risk.

He has been eight years clerk of the Council and if he is forced to remain home tonight, this will be the first Council or committee meeting he has missed in that period, although there have been many times when he was hardly well enough to attend.

This is a pretty good record.

ENTERTAINED AT LUNCHEON.

Mrs. James E. Neary entertained at luncheon at her home, 70 Chestnut street, Tuesday afternoon in honor of her guest Mrs. James M. Tiernan of New York. Covers were laid for eight and the luncheon proved most delightful and Mrs. Neary proved a charming hostess. Whist followed the luncheon which was also very much enjoyed. Beside the Quincy people there were guests from Dorchester.

SOCIAL WORK NOT A PANACEA

Many Evils Causing Poverty, Crime and Squalor

RELIGION POWER TO REFORM

Report of the General Secretary of the Quincy Associated Charities 1912-1913.

Social Work is not a Panacea—it will not cure every disease. There are evils which cause poverty and crime, squalor and degeneracy. Social Work is necessary and is often the best way at hand of dealing with conditions as they exist, but neither preventive measures nor alms giving go deep enough. Mr. Edward P. Devine says that neither law, education nor revolution can cure these root evils, and he turns to religion, which he says goes to the root of character and has the power to transform. Most of our Social Workers get their inspiration for service from religion; the churches send us our best volunteer workers and friendly visitors, clergymen are among our most valued advisors, so while the Associated Charities is non-Sectarian, it is not non-religious.

This society is always at the service of the church, and churches making use of us will find their usefulness increased thereby. We believe in men walking apart, if they will, but in their striking together and uniting in all things that go to promote Social welfare. This society will always be ready to assist in any movement tending to improve social conditions in this city.

During the past year we have established our office here and equipped it with everything necessary to carry on the work. We met with success from the very beginning and this success is our guarantee for the future. We feel that there is a future for the society in this City, because we feel that we have demonstarted the need of such an agency and our ability to meet the need. We have dealt with 250 families this year, 203 entirely new and these have come to us from many different sources. For convenience I have divided these families into groups and we will consider a few of the largest of these in this report.

The first and largest group is the Tuberculous:—

Two hundred and three cases were referred to us this year and there was tuberculosis in 51 of these. Seven of 51 were persuaded to take Sanatarium treatment and were assisted by us when necessary. All seven are now away from their homes, 14 have been in Sanatariums sent by other agencies and they also are away from home.

Four were sent to their homes in other places, and 19 are now being cared for in their own homes in other places. 18 of the 51 were in the early stages of the disease when they came to us, and the balance were either second stage or advanced, and incurable. Several things are interesting to note in connection with this group of Tubercular people: 12 of the number were granite cutters, which occupation appears to be a particularly dangerous one.

In 1908 Dr. Gordon of Quincy made a study of granite cutters consumption in this city and we have had a copy of this put in the public library. There were 11 women among the 51, the majority homemakers. 17 were Americans, the other 34 were foreigners. It was necessary to aid in 16 cases. Families or persons having tuberculosis are sometimes referred to us when they need Sanitarium care, we can assist them in getting it and often persuade them to take it. Sometimes we help in providing necessary things to make them comfortable and we often interest people to provide nourishment, clothing, etc., for the people sick at home. Our visitors see that patients, as far as possible, follow the doctors' instructions in regard to food bathing, clothing, out door sleeping, etc., thus insuring every possible chance of recovery and lessening the danger of contagion. It must be remembered that the number of the Tubercular known to us is only a small proportion of those in the city. Our Society is new as yet and not very well known. Many Consumptives are taken care of entirely by friends and are known, by name only, to the Board of Health: That so large a proportion of our families are afflicted in this way is probably due to two causes unhealthy occupations and poverty. This disease thrives in poverty and poor home conditions.

WIDOWS.

I have been asked to mention the Widows especially in this report. This group has been comparatively small, only 18, 5 of these probably would not be eligible for pensions, as they are immoral women. Of the balance 2 are widows with only one child, 2 have 2 children only and are receiving aid, 4 have resource, i. e. property, relatives, insurance, etc., which has kept them from applying for aid. One family who applied for assistance was found on investigation to have a sufficient income earned by members of the family, and aid was refused. Two with 4 and 5 children are receiving very generous aid from the City and from private sources combined. Only one is a family where we think conditions might have been improved by additional aid, but if this had been given, members of the family, now working and contributing would certainly not have continued to do so. Only one widow's family, has been left to this Society to plan for in the year. It may be interesting to know that we secured, for a family of four and the mother, $18 per month, cash, and occasional outside help, when necessary, beside. The mother earns $3 per week in her own home, and rents an unfurnished room for 50 cents per week. A position was found for the oldest boy where he earns enough to give his mother $4 clear each week, and to continue studying. There is an income here of $12 per week clear. In this instance relatives were unable to contribute but are keeping in touch with the family. No suggestion is ever made by this Associated Charities to separate a mother permanently from her children if the family can by any possibility be kept together. Poverty is never considered a sufficient excuse for breaking up a family, contagious disease, incurable disease, immorality, shiftlessness, sometimes does make it seem best to do so. No widow, during the last year in Quincy, as far as we know has had her children taken from her on account of poverty or for any other cause, and no relatives are unduly burdened, so far as we know. One widow with five children who enjoyed a very doubtful reputation was returned to another city, largely through the efforts of this Society.

Widowers' families have been needing more attention from us than the widows'. One family of nine motherless children, with a poor heridity, are in care of a sixteen year old daughter who is a child in years, a woman in responsibilities. A friendly visitor has been constant in her visiting for months past, giving the girl lessons in cooking, showing her how to clean house, playing with her sometimes.

MEASLES STRUCK TWO SCHOOLS AFFECTING NEARLY 100 PUPILS

Four Rooms in Lower Grades of Massachusetts Field School Closed

Board of Health Not Alarmed by Condition Existing

Four rooms in the Massachusetts Field school are closed because of measles, and the Montclair school is under the observation of the Board of Health. During the past few weeks nearly 80 cases have been reported by physicians and it is thought that others have not been reported by parents whose children did not have medical attention.

In the Montclair school there are 23 cases, distributed throughout the different rooms, the only one not affected being the fifth grade. The infection exists in the grades attended by the younger pupils, and at the present time 13 first grade pupils are confined to their homes with measles.

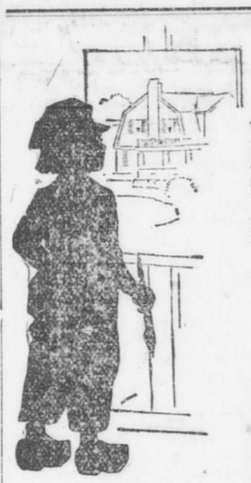

The Board of Health say that more than the normal number of cases have been prevalent but they hold out no fears that the epidemic will assume dangerous proportions. They say that the percentage of children ill with measles is very small when the number of school children in the city is considered.

It is reported that 65 cases of measles were found at the Massachusetts Fields school in the four lower grades and those rooms were closed as a precautionary measure.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

California still cherishes its bitterness towards the Japs. Is it possible that the prediction of Mr. Hobson is to be verified.

Pittsburg school children are on strike. They object to attend a school where the janitor of which was acquitted of a serious charge. Here is youthful defiance of the law in earnest.

The president has shattered precedent by appearing at the Capitol and now the senate urges him to go further and attend the tariff hearings.

Gov. Sulzer is maintaining his original role. He has appointed one man to a public place who is under sentence by one of the high courts for alleged contempt.

On an average, aviation is killing more military men than actual war.

The tale unfolded at the New Haven hearing is quite near the marvelous.

The situation at Hopedale is believed to have reached the acute stage but it is hoped that law and order will prevail over rowdyism and anarchy.

The every day cry of the Boston fans, "When, oh when, will the Red Sox strike that championship gait."

Camels and lions once existed in California according to a scientist. Later ages will read with interest of the prolificness of the Bull Moose in that region.

While that mystery bell proved a false alarm, it showed that the police were onto their job all right.

The D. A. R. war is over for some months, but no doubt the parties interested will laying out plan of campaign all the time. The strategy boards will be pretty busy.

The Belgian strikers know how to behave themselves, a sure sign that their demands are not extravagant.

The boys and girls of Greater Boston are happy in the knowledge that two circuses have already been booked for bean town.

Paris it is claimed has seen and heard an opera without words. Many people who attend Grand opera in this country lack both knowledge of the language and appreciation of the music. They attend because it is style.

Boston society people who have their dances commence anywhere between 11 and 12 o'clock will not have much time to step it out if the mayor's order for one o'clock closing is enforced.

The retirement of Capt. Costa on a pension was simply recognition of a faithful city official.

It is hardly to be expected that the proposed regulation for the express men who handle liquor will meet with favor from those who have an express man carry in their wet goods. Enforcement of the rule will undoubtedly increase traffic between Bostton and Quincy and cut a hole in the receipts to the expressmen.

A SERIOUS SITUATION.

The expressed determination of California to maintain its right to pass a law against foreigners owning land in that state, may well cause grave concern to the administration at Washington. The question naturally arises has the state the power to practically annul treaties which this country may abrogate with a friendly nation and thus cause a serious break in the peace, harmony and diplomatic relations existing. It is a serious situation, one that will require tact and patience and good judgment in finally adjusting so that there may be no friction between this country or any other foreign country.

It is assumed that the proposed law is aimed at the Japanese, and that country has speedily protested against the enforcement of such a measure. Of course that protest had to go to the National government as Japan could not treat with a single state or even a group of states.

The final settlement of the question will probably be left with the supreme court, but if the court should decide that the state has the right under the constitution to pass and enforce such a measure it will open up a field in diplomacy and national affairs heretofore unexplored.

President Wilson is having things coming his way in the form of delicate matters, although less than two months in office. His solution of those problems, will stamp him, either the right man in the right place or otherwise. If he fails in the crisis a mistake has been made in electing him. If otherwise then the people may feel that the ship of state is safe under his directing power.

SAD DAY INDEED.

Mr. Justice Holmes is quoted as saying it makes him sad to read letters, some of them anonymous, which cry out loudly against the courts and claim that the great supreme court of this country is corrupt. It would be a sad day for this country indeed when that great tribunal upon which so much depends and to which the people of this country, great and small must look to for justice and protection, assumed any such qualities as those heedless writers suggest.

That people may differ with the justices of the supreme court, is quite within reason, when it is a matter of fact that the judges are not always unanimous in the opinions handed down. In fact it is not strange at times to hear of decisions from which one or more of the judges dissent, but the majority rules the opinion holds. There are some people who take all their enjoyment out of life in finding fault and accusing people of dishonesty and irregularity.

It is a mania with such people. They cannot help it. Very little weight is attached to the opinion of the perennial kicker and the justices of the supreme court should draw comfort from the fact that the majority of the people of this country, have an abiding faith in their integrity and honesty of purpose.

AN ACCOMMODATING CAT.

It isn't often that Capt. George W. Eldredge, the worldwide authority on ocean charts, has a real live illustration to help him explain his address but he was provided with one quite unexpectedly last week while talking before the Quincy Board of Trade in the rooms of the Granite Manufacturers' Association.

Capt. Eldredge was reciting some questions asked him in a trial before the United States Court on high and low tides and their causes. "I told the lawyer," said Capt. Eldredge, "that my grandmother used to say when the cat's eyes were wide open it was flood tide and when they were half closed so that the pupils looked like slits it was low tide. I told the lawyer I was not certain, though, whether the tides were responsible for the cat's eyes or whether the cat's eyes were responsible for the tides."

Just at this moment the cat which is the mascot of the Adams Building wandered in through the open door of the Manufacturers' rooms and walked proudly down the middle aisle and stopped in front of the platform from which Capt. Eldredge was speaking. Capt. Eldredge had a pointer and was waving it gently as he accentuated the different questions and answers. The cat was intently watching the stick as it rose and fell and as Capt. Eldredge concluded his sentence about the cat's eyes, he spied the cat on the floor in front of the platform.

"Why, bless my soul," said Capt. Eldredge, "there's the cat now."

"Well, captain," said Peter Fallon. "What's the tide by that cat' eyes?"

"Why," said Capt. Eldredge, "I should say it was about half tide. It isn't every cat that is so accommodating when I am speaking in public.

MRS. EUNICE W. WHITE.

Mrs. Eunice W. White, widow of Levi L. White passed away this morning at Everett in 86th year. She was one of Quincy Point's long time residents, and for many years was active in all good work, an excellent neighbor and a devoted mother.

She was the oldest member of the Washington Street Congregational church, with an untiring interest in church, society and Sunday School, never failing in attendance until her health became poor.

She leaves three daughters Miss Alice G. White, the efficient librarian of the Thomas Crane Public Library; Mrs. Joseph E. White of Quincy and Mrs. Harrington of Malden.

Services will be held on Friday at 2 P. M. from the residence of Capt. Joseph E. White, 51 Edison street, Quincy. The burial will be private.

CELEBRATION OF THE PASSOVER

Rev. Julius Sandolovitz Talked on Jews Past and Present

EXERCISES AT SYNAGOGUE

The feast of Passover was fittingly observed Tuesday afternoon with a celebration, which took place under the direction of the educational committee of the Young Men's Hebrew Association.

Rev. Julius Sandolovitz, of the Congregation Avath Achin gave an interesting talk on Passover, giving comparisons between the state of the Jews in ancient Egypt and their present condition. Rev. Sandolovitz was very well received by a large audience. Sarah Grossman, a pupil of the Y. M. H. A. Sunday school recited a poem, "The Passage of the Red Sea." Remarks were made by Edward Berman and Joseph B. Grossman.

The second Sedar service was observed in the evening by Jews of Quincy. The services of the second day of the Passover were this morning directed by Rev. Sandolovitz in the synagogue of the Congregation Avath Achim, on School street.

CO-OPERATIVE BANK GROWING

Marked Increase in Shareholders in Two Years

The Quincy Co-operative bank is growing rapidly. Marked increase in the number of shareholders has been shown in the last two years. May 1, 1911, the number was 1314; May 1, 1912, the number was 1444, and May 1, of the present year the number will be 1627. The gain is almost 25 per cent in the two years from May 1, 1911 to the present time.

The bank is in a good healthy condition. The annual meeting will be held next month, when the officers nominated at the last session will be elected.

LANDLORD AND BOARDER MIX

In a Dispute Over Alleged Unpaid Board Bill

CHARGED WITH ASSAULT

Louis Rossi was arraigned before Judge Avery this morning for assault on Camelia Palmer, of 42 Cross street with whom he boarded. The assault was committed in the home of Palmer as he tried to stop Rossi from removing his personal effects because of unpaid board. Rossi objected when Palmer insisted on retaining custody of his trunk and said that the week previous he missed $10 from his clothing and that Palmer had taken it and since the board amounted to $9, Palmer owed him $1. In the argument which ensued both became violent and Rossi is alleged to have secured a strangle hold on Palmer's throat, threw him back on a bed and throttled him for a little while. Rossi was placed on probation for a year.

MAY FESTIVAL.

The Education committee of the Quincy Women's Club is to hold its annual May Festival on Saturday, April 26. This is one of the days to which the children look forward with pleasure. Delcevare King is the children's friend that day, as he is all days. But he does make them happy at the festival. It is his custom to take charge of the entertainment, and his delight to treat them and keep the fun going. The May Festival without Delcevare King would be like "Hamlet" with the Prince of Denmark left out. Music hall then for the children Saturday afternoon! May baskets ice cream and a jolly good time.

There are May day entertainments held in the different sections of the city, but the big festival at Music hall, is the one for which the children have learned to watch. Here is hoping the day will be fine and the crowd large; for the festival not only gives a good time, but it earns the money for carrying on the children's garden work and summer schools.

CHILDREN'S GARDENS.

The work of childrens' gardens has taken a new impetus. All over the city, in the various schools the children are ordering seeds. There are at present orders in from fifteen hundred school children for vegetable and flower seeds. If the children who buy the seeds mean business, the city should be dotted with pretty flower beds and vegetable gardens. It will make for character of our future citizens if the parents see to it that their children carry out what they have undertaken to do. Good intentions are helpful, but success in life depends upon the carrying out of these good intentions. The child who buys these seeds, plants them, and cares for them, and when the time comes for exhibition has something to show for his summer's work, has his face set in the right direction, but the child who carries home the seeds and throws them down somewhere, and forgets to plant them looses an opportunity for growth, and the parent who allows this lazyness neglects his opportunity to lay the foundation of thoroughness, earnestness of purpose and thrift in his child's character. Let the parents co-operate with the women who are back of this movement, so that when they go to inspect the gardens, they will find well-cared for, thrifty gardens blooming throughout our city.

ART EXHIBIT.

The loan art exhibit organized by the Art committee of the Quincy Women's club was as usual a delight to those who love to look at good paintings. A large oil painting of white peonies by Abbot Graves is very striking as is a beautiful portrait by Miss Richardson. Among those which attracted attention is an oil painting by Charles Copeland entitled "The Surf." Ernest L. Major has an exquisite portrait of a young woman sitting in the glow of the firelight. "The Bereaved Mother" by Miss Richardson, is a very strong painting. "Sheep, drinking," by J. S. Monk is fascinating. A painting entitled "Autumn" by Laura Lee is wonderful in the richness of its tones. "Over the Trees" by Edmund H. Garrett, is a study which pleases and satifies. "A Clear Day," by Woodbury, attracted the attention of many of the visitors. "The Lilacs," by Jean Oliver and "Clouds" by Kauba are very remarkable in their naturalness. Melbourne Hardwick has a Dutch painting entitled "Vollendam Flirtation," which shows the peasant life. An Arabian Horse and a Persian Cat by Margery Blanchard interested many of the ladies. There is some excellent work by Carroll Bill of Braintree, and two paintings of merit from Miss Lillian Newman. Winlow Homer's work was greatly appreciated.

The exhibit will be open to the public Wednesday and Thursday and evenings if the patronage warrants lighting up the rooms. There will be a small admission fee on Wednesday and Thursday. It is not possible in this space to give a description of the exhibit. They should be seen to be appreciated. It takes time to get all that there is in the picture.

In Brockton when a similar art exhibit was held the people became so enthusiastic about the pictures that many of them were bought by citizens.

CHILD-WELFARE CONFERENCE.

The parents and teachers associations of the Quincy school, mothers and fathers clubs, and club women generally are interested in the child-welfare conference to be held in Boston next month.

The seventeenth Child-Welfare Conference of the National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Association, May 15-21, will be one of the greatest conventions ever held by the Congress. This is the first time the National Congress has held its convention in the New England States, although these conventions have been in progress for seventeen years. It will be many years before this Congress will again meet in Boston. A cordial welcome to attend these meetings is extended to all fathers, mothers, guardians of children and everyone interested in child-welfare. The Copley Plaza will be headquarters for the officers and delegates. Mrs. Milton P. Higgins, 228 West street, Worcester, Mass., president of the Massachusetts Branch, is national chairman of arrangements; Mrs. William Everett Rowe, 132 Winthrop avenue, Wollaston, is chairman of local arrangements. An event will be the Play Festival on the Common by the kindergartens and public schools of the city of Boston. Dr. Thomas F. Harrington, Nathaniel J. Young, Miss Donovan, Miss Caroline D. Aborn and Mrs. Ellor Carlisle Ripley have this in charge. Several hundred children, dressed in pretty colored caps and badges will come from Beacon Hill to the playground where they will form four big circles. To the music of the Municipal Band, they will dance around a Maypole. Folk dancing and merry games will follow.

Some of the subjects for discussion at the meetings are: "Baby-Saving"; "Character Building by Parents"; "Vital Relations of Home and School"; "Recreation of Children"; "Spiritual Nurture of Children"; "Mothers' Pensions"; "Protection of Working Children"; "The Country Child"; "Rural Schools"; "Trade Education for Girls"; "A Challenge to Mothers"; "The Profession of Fatherhood"; "The Wayward Child in School"; "Recent Lines of Progress in Child Study and Child Nurture." Among the speakers during this convention are: Mrs. Frederic Schoff, president of National Congress of Mothers, Philadelphia; Miss Julia Lathrop, chief of Children's Bureau, Washington, D. C.; Professor E. P. St. John, Hartford, Conn.; P. P. Claxton, United States Commissioner of Education, Washington, D. C.; Joseph Lee, president of the Playground Association of America; Rev. Henry I. Cope, D. D., secretary of Religious Educational Association, Chicago; Logan Waller Page, chairman of Country Life Department, Washington, D. C.; E. T. SOCIAL WORK giving her an occasional outing, above all winning her confidence and advising with her, confering with her father sometimes and helping them all to keep in touch with their church. Another family has five children and a girl of seventeen in charge. Much care and attention is necessary to prevent disaster in these homes. One man earning fair pay was obliged to break up his home and we assisted in placing his children, because he could not get no good woman for housekeeper for what he could afford to pay. Another man earning good pay with 3 children to care for, was addicted to drink, and was obliged to break up his home for the same reason.

Non supporting husbands are one of our problems. In a group of twenty families from our collection, where the men are inefficient and are not capable of providing entire support for their families:—4 are drinking men and money is spent for drink which should go to their families, 4 are lazy, preferring not to work, 3 are in poor health while the remaining 15 are simply inefficient, having no trade and no way of earning enough to support their families, which as a rule are large. This should be a good argument to use in favor of preventive work. It seems to show the importance of vocational training, trade schools, continuation schools, etc. Children, in hundreds of such families as they grow, will also be inefficient and more or less a burden to the community, or trained, efficient and self-supporting. It will pay us to interest ourselves in these families.

Deserting husbands also we have with us, and it is easy for a man to desert when conditions are hard; there is an alarming lack of responsibility all along the line in families. When a city takes good care of its deserted families, provides for their needs and welcomes the wandering husband on his return, desertions are bound to increase. In two instances we were successful in locating deserters and getting money from them for the support of their families. One sporadic deserter of many years received a needed lesson. Having returned from his travels of several months to spend a vacation in carousing at home, he was arrested, sent to jail for six months at hard labor for non-support and his wife is receiving $3 per week. The oldest daughter said recently that the family are spending their happiest winter for many years and wish that he could be kept away indefinitely.

19 Wayward girls, the majority from the Quincy Court on probation have been dealt with during the year and in several instances the results have been very satisfactory. Many young people are led astray in their search for "a good time." It is very simple. There is little to interest them outside of the Dance Hall and the "Movies," and these are meeting places for young people, and young girls do not make the most desirable acquaintances in this way. Many are led astray. Very soon even amusement to be found in Quincy, is not enough, and we know of very young girls travelling to Charlestown, South Boston, Boston and East Boston, to the Dance Halls and other resorts, in the search for pleasure. Plenty of clean amusement and recreation must be provided for young people or they drift. The lack of home training and discipline is responsible for much of the wrong doing among the young people and so we come back to the great value of preventive work.

FRIENDLY VISITING.

One thing that stands out clearly and attracts attention as we consider the records of the past year, is the large amount of volunteer service we have had and its high quality. Six young women have given one to four days each week. The value of this help is inestimable to us and to the community. They have worked hard, taken a vital interest in building up this Society, and devoted themselves to the families under their care. Friendly visiting requires among other things tact and consecration. Sometimes long and patient observation is needed to secure the co-operation of the family in plans for their benefit in order to secure results. One of our visitors has been interested in a family where the woman is weak in character and shiftless. The man is also weak with many bad traits, inefficient and lazy. This man since his marriage has never supported his family changing from place to place, in debt, depending on friends, relatives, anyone for assistance in every hard place. The visitor found work for him and for seven months that man has been working and supporting his family. The home has also improved, cleanliness and order has taken the place largely of disorder and dirt. The visitor is recognized as a friend in this family and has won the eternal gratitude of the woman because she was successful in her efforts to interest her relatives, long estranged. Very recently when trouble came to the family by the death of a child, these relatives came and took the mother away and the remaining child to their home for a visit. Other relatives, not so wise, gave generous financial assistance, taking the responsibility from the father's shoulders: in consequence he left his work and reverted to his old habit of depending on somebody. The visitor by exerting all her influence did succeed in inducing him to work for several weeks after the child's death. While we are disappointed in the man we are not discouraged and shall continue our interest in the family knowing that what we have once done we can do again and hoping for better and continuing success.

CO-OPERATION.

Our Co-operation with public and private agencies has been excellent The Kings' Daughters, and the Quincy Charitable Society have aided generously when asked to do so by this Conference. The Katharyn Crane Club has given valuable assistance in solving several puzzling problems. The Lend-a-Hand Clubs, The Fragment Society, The Needlewoman's Guild, The Catholic Ladies Clubs have all been ready to work with us. Also the Quincy Womens' Club through their Philanthropic Committee. At Thanksgiving and Christmas, many churches, The Elks and other Societies The Salvation Army and private individuals co-operated with us giving us their lists for comparison and allowing us to suggest names of families for aid, so that duplication was practically elminated and so far as we have heard all families in need were provided for. We have had also good co-operation with the Overseers of the Poor, Board of Health, the Quincy Court and the Police, Physicians, Schools and especially the local Newspapers.

We are mutually interested with the Quincy Day nursery in the families under their care and they and the District Nurses often refer families to us, while we value the advice and assistance of the nurses when sickness comes to our families. Private individuals have given valuable assistance, especially the clerk of this Society who has been untiring in her efforts and always ready to give advice and encouragement.

We always try to put families in touch with the churches of their own denomination and where there is a church connection to consult with the pastor of the church before taking any action affecting the family.

We co-operate with the Medical Social Service, gladly and a large number of families were brought to our attention by the Social Service Workers, in the different Boston Hospitals and Dispensaries. Quincy people who feel that they cannot afford to pay for medical service often go to Boston to the free clinics for treatment, or for examination. Sometimes these people have serious or even fatal disease which needs Hospital treatment or Sanitarium care. If they are not followed by a social worker to their homes they may neglect treatment. Sometimes they are found to have contagious disease, which needs especial care for the protection of the community. Very often poor home conditions are the cause of the illness or if not the cause, will prevent recovery, if they are not improved, so we are asked to help. Often poverty will not allow the patient to get well. Nourishment is often needed: glasses or surgical appliances prescribed by the physician. Very often ignorance and mismanagement hinders recovery. So the Social Worker steps in and follows up the work begun in Hospital or Dispensary; and so we all work together.

During the year we made in connection with our work 1775 calls on families and seven hundred and twenty eight persons called at the office. There were 1128 letters written. We had referred to us 203 families and there were 47 on the lists when the year began, making a total of 250 families April 11, 1913.

Our Conference committee meets weekly, Wednesday afternoons at 3.30. These meetings have been interesting and well attended. Our volunteer Visitors are invited to attend as well as persons especially interested in the families to be considered.

Our investigations have been made as carefully as possible, and whenever necessary we have been able to obtain aid for the needy families. Although the Associated Charities is not a Relief Society we have spent $10.65 in emergency aid and the General Secretary has raised beside $182.73 for relief in especial cases: $67 being contributed by relatives. (This is money actually expended by us and does not include aid given by societies or individuals where the bills have been paid by them.) Our visitors never discover real need of food or fuel that it is not immediately supplied, relieving at once pending investigation and the making of plans for the future. Jacob Riis has said "Organized Charity is organized love: it does not by mischance hinder where it sought to help. May it be so in Quincy!"

HEAVY LOSSES OF NEW HAVEN

Shown by Inside History of Road's Transactions

MILLIONS OF DOLLARS SUNK

Accounts Declared to Have Been Juggled to Conceal Actual Conditions—Mellen Calls Insinuations Against Him "Dastardly"—Prouty Refuses to Permit Sub Rosa Proceedings

Boston, April 23.—That the accounts of the New Haven railroad and its subsidiaries have been juggled in an effort to conceal the nature of its stock-purchasing transactions; that millions have been lost in the purchase of trolleys and steamship lines; that there have been overvaluations to conceal losses, and that the New Haven road has paid dividends out of its capital stock instead of out of its earnings, were among the facts brought to light by Commissioner Prouty of the interstate commerce commission and Louis D. Brandeis yesterday during the commissioner's investigation of the affairs of the New Haven road.

The events of the day were also enlivened by the appearance of a statement from President Mellen of the New Haven road in which he denied any improper actions and termed "dastardly" the attempts to insinuate that his actions had been improper.

Further sensation was caused by the refusal of Prouty to permit any sub-rosa proceedings, and his declaration that "It is the first time the inside history of the New Haven's transactions have been known."

"I do not think that anybody can ever know whether the assets of your company exceed the liabilities until the assets have been appraised properly by some disinterested board," he added, addressing Vice President Buckland of the New Haven road. His tone indicated that he was amazed at the financial methods of the road.

"Previous examination has been rendered almost impossible by the extremely complicated, and I think unnecessary, methods you have pursued in creating subsidiary companies almost without number and passing transactions from company to company in a way that seems to be utterly unnecessary."

During the day's proceedings the following facts were brought out:

That the assets of the Properties Securing company were turned over to the New England Navigation company.

That its liabilities were turned over to the New Haven Railroad company.

That J. L. Billard made a profit of $2,700,000 out of the purchase of the Boston and Maine stock, without spending a dollar of his own money.

That by the recent contract with the Pullman company for the use of its parlor and sleeping cars, the New Haven road will lose this year $572,941.

That the New England Navigation company lost $10 on each share of the Boston and Maine stock it turned over to the Boston Holding company.

That this stock had been "adjusted" to a value of $125 by the navigation company without any reason being shown.

That there are records that the New England Navigation company has paid to Mr. Billard over $2,000,000 without any record to show what it was for.

That the New Haven road paid nearly $1,000,000 for two steamers which three years afterward were sold for $44,000 as old junk.

That the New Haven lost $490,000 in dividends through a purchase of Merchant and Miners stock.

That this stock bought at $1,000,000 in 1907 is now worth but $2,000,000.

That the New Haven was forced to pay over a million dollars for the Joy line, when it was valued at hundreds of thousands less.

That properties in steamship lines were listed at values totalling hundreds of thousands to conceal losses when they were really worth less than half.

That anyone who has a competing proposition could sell it to the New Haven practically at his own price.

That the New Haven has paid dividends out of its capital stock—not out of its earnings.

That the New Haven has, through its system of bookkeeping, as charged by Attorney Brandeis, made a surplus of $12,000,000 out of an actual deficit.

GEORGE F. CHAMBERLAIN

Oregon Senator Who Would Abrogate the Canal Treaty

Senator George F. Chamberlain introduced a resolution to abrogate the Hay-Pauncefote and the Clayton-Bulwer treaties under which Great Britain claims the right to a voice in the administration and management of the Panama canal. They furnish the only basis upon which the protest is justified against the clause exempting American coastwise ships from the payment of tolls.

CONSENT OF GREAT BRITAIN

Necessary to Abrogate Treaties With the United States

Washington, April 23.—Senator Chamberlain's resolution for the abrogation of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty will, in the opinion of the state department officials, be confronted with the contention that neither that treaty nor the Clayton-Bulwer treaty can be abrogated by the action of the United States without the consent of Great Britain.

These treaties, the officials point out, are in the nature of civil contracts and whether one party has acquired a valuable consideration under their terms it cannot escape the liability without the full consent of the second party.

FIFTH ARREST IN NEGRO'S DROWNING

River Being Dragged In Hope of Finding Body of Youth

Burlington, Vt., April 23.—While the Winooski river at Bolton was being dragged in the hope of finding the body of the negro youth who was drowned after he had been accused of stealing the dinners of three section hands, John Collins was taken into custody as a witness.

Collins is the fifth man to be held in the case. James Sweeney and Henry Goodrich are in jail, charged with responsibility for the death of the negro.

CHARGED WITH MURDER

Confession of Indicted Man Frees Four Others Under Arrest

New York, April 23.—With the indictment of Henry Wagner, a buttonhole maker, on a charge of murder, it was learned that Wagner had repudiated a confession that involved four other men, buttonhole contractors, whom he had accused of hiring him to commit the crime.

Abraham Steinburg, a walking delegate for a union, was shot Jan. 7 and died six weeks later. Wagner upon being arrested charged four other men of a conspiracy to bring about Steinburg's end. They were arrested but will now be discharged. Wagner said, according to the district attorney, that he shot Steinburg for personal reasons.

ATLANTIC WOMAN SEEKS DIVORCE

Filing Suit of Mrs. Irene Malloch Against Her Husband

SURPRISE TO FRIENDS

Mrs. Irene L. Malloch, choir singer and considered one of the most handsome young women in Atlantic by many of her friends, has filed a libel for divorce at Dedham against her husband, Henry P. Malloch.

Her action comes as a surprise to her friends, as both she and Mr. Malloch are said to have caused to be circulated in Atlantic that the reason for placing their 3-year-old son in care of Mrs. Malloch's mother in Dorchester was that the young woman had determined to secure employment in town to assist her husband financially.

Mrs. Malloch is but 22 years old while her husband is nearly 10 years her senior, and while the young woman has sought young companions and indulged in many activities, particularly those connected with the Memorial Congregational Church, Atlantic, the husband has been more inclined to lead the quiet life, his friends say.

Mrs. Malloch appeared regularly until very recently in the choir of the Memorial Congregational Church. She often led the Christian Endeavor. The couple lived with their child, at 53 Newbury avenue, Atlantic, for three years until a week or so ago.

In her divorce libel Mrs. Malloch alleges that her husband has been guilty of cruel and abusive treatment toward her. The couple were married in Medfield, June 23, 1909, and lived in Bradford, Somerville and Quincy. Their child is named Earle Allen Malloch.

Mrs. Malloch seeks divorce, custody of the child and alimony.

COMMITTEES TO GIVE HEARINGS

Quincy Point People Want Hall in Washington School

Two committees of the City Council will give hearings at City hall this evening. The special committee appointed to probe into the fire department will hold a session at which the call men who were examined at previous sessions will be called to furnish any information they possess bearing upon conditions in that important department. As at the other hearings the examination will be conducted behind closed doors.

The committee on public buildings will give a hearing to Quincy Point residents upon their request for a hall in the Washington school. The people of that section claim that they should have a hall in the building and have petitioned the City Council to that effect. The committee will hear their claims and then recommend on their findings. The committee from the Point district desire as many citizens as possible can find the time to attend this hearing and back up the claims of the district.

FIRST BIG BALL OF BUFFALOES

The first grand ball of Quincy Herd, No. 1, Benevolent Order Buffaloes was held in Alpha hall Tuesday evening. A large number was present from Braintree, Milton, Weymouth, Dorchester, Somerville and Cambridge.

The early part of the evening was devoted to a concert by Wilson's Union orchestra. About nine o'clock the grand march was formed and at its conclusion the dancing commenced and continued until two o'clock.

President Charles H. Finn and Miss Anna Finn were the leading couple in the march. John J. Byron and Miss Mildred Byron were the second couple and they were followed by about 60 others.

Charles H. Finn was floor marshal and John J. Byron, assistant. Herbert E. Seldon was floor director and he was assisted by Thomas F. Flaherty and George Davey. The chief of aids was H. A. Smith.

WANT TUNNEL AT WOLLASTON

Citizens' Association Will Urge Such An Undertaking

The Wollaston Citizens Association will probably go on record as advocating a tunnel at North Central avenue and Brook street and will also take up the matter of the mosquito pest. The next regular meeting of the Association will be held in Brasee's hall, Thursday evening, when both those subjects will be taken up for consideration. Many people believe that the convenience of the people in that section of the city require tunnel service at the points mentioned. The manufacturing plants in the vicinity employ a large number of people who find their way to and from work quite lengthy under the present conditions.

The Association will enter upon a lively campaign for the extermination of the mosquito pest and no doubt plans calling for co-operation from other associations in other parts of the city and of the City Council will be adopted. The association is growing and its activity in civic welfare is quite marked.

A REAL GAME ON HAND.

Quincy High plays Newton High at Newton this afternoon. Quincy opened the season by pinning a 7 to 2 defeat on Stetson high and demonstrated fine fielding ability. Crocker pitched for six innings and allowed no score, only two men reaching third. "Les" Andrews relieved him and also held them down well. The day was cold and was hardly conducive to fast ball. Then again the Stetson team did not perform in a wonderful manner.

Today however, the Quincys have a real game on their hands and if they return with the Newton scalps a most promising season can be expected.

CUT IN DUTIES OF TEN PERCENT

New Tariff Bill Makes Its Appearance In House

RECEIPTS OF THE GOVERNMENT

They Will Be Less Than Disbursements by $68,790,000, but Revenue From Income Tax Is Expected to Meet Deficit—Manufacturer May Be Spurred to Greater Activity

Washington, April 23.—That the American manufacturer, spurred by a competitive tariff to greater activity to retain control of his home market, will increase his efficiency to such an extent that he will make new trade conquests abroad, is the prediction of the Democratic members of the house ways and means committee who framed the Underwood tariff bill.

Their report, signed by fourteen Democratic members of the committee, was presented to the house. They estimate that for the first fiscal year following the passage of the bill the receipts of the government will be less than the disbursements by $68,790,000. To meet this deficit the income tax has been framed, and it is estimated the revenue from this tax will be $70,125,000.

According to the committee's estimates the customs revenues from the Underwood bill will be $37,896,000 less than the customs receipts from the Payne law in 1912.

It is estimated that the chemical schedule of the new bill will produce $12,985,000, as against $12,239,742 in the Payne law; the earthen ware schedules $9,497,000, as against $11,156,221; metal schedule $15,549,000, as against $17,346,221; wood schedule $898,000, as against $3,042,834; sugar schedule $40,196,000, as against $50,951,000; tobacco schedule $26,002,000, as against $25,571,000; agricultural $21,567,000, as against $34,146,000; spirits, $20,987,000, as against $17,409,000; cotton $11,257,000, as against $11,085,000; flax, hemp and jute $15,977,000, as against $49,062,000; wool $12,774,000, as against $27,082,000; silk $16,212,000, as against $13,695,000; pulp and paper $2,957,000, as against $4,886,000; sundries $59,952,000, as against $26,931,000.

The average reduction in duties from the present Payne law to the Underwood bill by schedules are as follows:

Chemicals from 25 to 19 percent, earthenware 50 to 33, metals 34 to 20, wood 12 to 3, sugar 48 to 35, agricultural 29 to 16, spirits 83.98 to 83.30, cotton 45 to 30, flax 45 to 20, wool 55 to 18, silks 51 to 44, pulp and paper 21 to 11, increases tobacco 82 to 85, sundries 24 to 33.

It is estimated the amount of dutiable importations under the bill would increase in value from $759,209,915 to $798,956,000. The average duty under the Payne law is 40.12 percent, as against an estimate average duty under the Underwood bill of 29.60 percent.

Under the income tax law it is estimated that 425,000 incomes, including corporations as well as individuals, will be taxable.

REFUSES TO PLEAD

Anhut Declares Indictment Violates His Constitutional Rights

New York, April 23.—Attorney John N. Anhut pleaded that his constitutional rights had been violated by the indictment charging him with bribery in connection with an alleged attempt to free Harry K. Thaw from Matteawan hospital for the criminal insane.

He held that his action in testifying before Governor Sulzer's investigation commission had rendered him immune from indictment.

On this ground the attorney asked to have his arraignment put over until he could move to have the indictment quashed, and when this motion was denied he refused to plead. Supreme Court Justice Seabury directed that a plea of not guilty be entered for him.

IMPERATOR GROUNDS

World's Largest Steamer, on Way For Trial Trip, Is Floated Unhurt

Hamburg, April 23.—The new Hamburg-American line steamship Imperator ran aground in the Elbe. She was proceeding from the Vulcan Ship Building yards for the lower Elbe to make ready for her official trial trips when she grounded off Aitona. She was floated last evening and proceeded on her way to sea.

The Imperator, when she goes into commission with the start of her maiden voyage to New York on May 28, will, for a time, be the largest vessel sailing. Her keel is 900 feet in length. Her other dimensions are 96 feet beam and 62 feet depth.

COMPROMISE AGREED TO Government Yields In Belgian Strike For Equal Suffrage

Brussels, April 23.—Parliament voted to accept the proposal made by Premier Broqueville that a commission be appointed to examine the suffrage question and draft electoral reforms. It was a signal victory for the strikers and work will probably be resumed generally on Thursday. The strike committee will meet today.

The leaders of the Socialist trades unions and their followers have gained their first point, which was to make the government take into consideration a change in the Belgium parliamentary franchise hitherto to their disadvantage at the polls owing to its system of plural votes for the wealthier and more highly educated classes.

At the last returns 993,070 men possessed one vote, 395,866 two votes and 308,683 three votes, so that the single votes were always overwhelmed.

This is the first occasion in which a political strike has resulted in a victory for the strikers, and the whole movement has been notable for the energy and determination displayed and for the excellent control shown by the men, who have entirely refrained from violence.

FLETCHER A SUICIDE

Palmist Drinks Poison as Officers Are About to Arrest Him

Boston, April 23.—John W. Fletcher of 74 Boylston street, who widely advertised himself as a palmist, committed suicide by taking poison in his office after police officers had shown him a warrant in which he was charged with immoral practices.

Fletcher, when the warrant was read, asked to be excused to get a drink of water. He went into an anteroom, where the police heard him fall. Running into the room, they found him unconscious. He died in a short time.

Fletcher was more familiarly known as "Willie Fletcher, the medium." He was 59 years of age and had been a public lecturer and medium since he was 17. He spent many years practising in London, and while there was well known as the most fashionable medium in the British capital. It is said he made $25,000 a year from the aristocracy for many years.

TWO WOMEN'S BODIES BURIED IN CELLAR

Woman Suspected of Killing Mother and Sister

St. Louis, April 23.—The bodies of Mrs. Ernestine Kommichau and her daughter Selma were found buried in the basement of a building at 2412 South Broadway. Marie Kommichau, another daughter, aged 49, was arrested at the City hospital, pending an investigation of the mystery. Both bodies were immured in concrete.

Marie was taken to the City hospital two weeks ago after she had broken her leg in a fall down stairs. A week before that time neighbors noticed the absence of her mother and sister and inquired about them. Marie replied that her sister Selma had died and that the mother had taken the body to Illinois for burial.

The finding of the bodies resulted from a visit of the owner of the building, Albert Stuhr, to the premises. He noticed a peculiar odor and telephoned to police headquarters. An investigation resulted in the finding of a grave and the bodies.

HIGHWAYMEN ARE FOOLED

Bag Supposed to Contain Money Yielded Sample Crackers

Westerly, R. I., April 23.—Two armed highwaymen were badly fooled when they held up Edward Sullivan, a representative of a Boston biscuit company, and relieved him of a leather bag which they believed to contain the payroll of the White Rock mills, but which in reality contained only some sample crackers.

The men evidently supposed Sullivan to be the paymaster of the mills, who was due to pass the spot at about the time the robbery was committed.

Colonel TODHUNTER of Missouri

By RIPLEY D. SAUNDERS

Copyright, 1911, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company.

SYNOPSIS

Colonel Todhunter booms his friend William J. Strickland for the nomination for governor. Tom Strickland, son of William, loves Mary Todhunter. Lottie-May Doggett loves Tom.

Stamford Tucker pays attention to Mary. He and Tom are rivals. They clash at the Todhunters'.

A political rally of Strickland's supporters is interrupted by the Yancey men, led by Stam. His father, Eph Tucker, is Yancey's main supporter in Nineveh.

Tom and Stam quarrel about Lottie-May, to whom Stam is attentive. Colonel Todhunter and Eph Tucker meet in the office of the Nineveh Blade.

Dick Cantrill, editor of the Blade, defeats one of Tucker's "low down" tricks. Old Mirandy, one of Colonel Todhunter's negro dependents, living near the Doggetts, tells the colonel of Stam's visits to Lottie-May.

In a wrangle Tom knocks Stam down. Colonel Todhunter is to indorse Strickland's note for $3,000 to meet campaign expenses.

Eph Tucker accepts the note. In St. Louis the newspaper men "write up" Colonel Todhunter, who is campaigning, and make much of his picturesque personality.

The colonel's speech takes the city partisans by storm. Tom proposes to Mary and is accepted.

In accordance with this promise Colonel Todhunter found opportunity to speak with Lottie-May Doggett. Very frankly he told her of the danger in which she stood. The girl, vitally beautiful, apparently as conscienceless as some wild thing of the woods, flashed her hot resentment of his words.

"I ain't thankin' you for what you've just said, Colonel Todhunter," she cried. "It strikes me you're in mighty small business to come to me with this story."

"I reckon I am, Lottie-May," agreed Colonel Todhunter in all honesty. "But I wanted to save you and your old grandfather from shame, and that's why I done it."

The girl's bosom was heaving with passionate anger. "I'd just like to know who it was that got you to come and speak to me about it!" she exclaimed. "Who was it, Colonel Todhunter? Was it one of them ladies what thinks I ain't good enough now to associate with their daughters? I've got the right to ask you this, and I do ask it. Who sent you here, Colonel Todhunter?"

"It wasn't none of the ladies, Lottie-May," Colonel Todhunter made answer without the slightest hesitation. "It was Tom Strickland. He heard what was goin' on, and he felt sorry for you, the little girl he went to school with when he was a boy. And it wa'n't meddlin' on his part, either. It was plumb good heartedness."

The girl shivered as if she had been struck. "Tom Strickland!" she repeated, almost as if speaking to herself. "Tom Strickland—of all men! He's makin' love to Miss Mary Todhunter, your own daughter. And he knows that I'd lay down and die for him any day he give the word. And it's Mrs. Todhunter that's been told of all this talk about me, and that's goin' to shame me here before all Nineveh! Oh, but it's a fine game you all are playin' to get me where I can't do no harm to Tom Strickland or to your daughter Mary, his sweetheart!"

She stood rigid, her hands clinched.

Then swiftly she spoke again. "They shan't ruin me this way!" she cried. "Neither Tom Strickland nor Miss Mary Todhunter nor Mrs. Todhunter, nor you, neither! I'll bring you all to law. I'll make Tom Strickland come in for his share of my trouble. Since him and his sweetheart and his sweet heart's mother have set the ball a rollin', he's got to face the music along with me!"

"What do you mean?" exclaimed Colonel Todhunter.

All color had gone out of the girl's face as she spoke.

"I'll show you what I mean!" she half whispered, her fingers fluttering at her throat. "I'll show you! I ain't a good girl no more, Colonel Todhunter. I ain't fitten to breathe the same air with your daughter Mary. Tom Strickland and the rest of 'em's mighty anxious to get me out of the way. I'm a-goin', too. But not till I've said my little say to Mrs. Todhunter, sir. Not till then—not even if judgment day and hell itself come to me the next minute!"

"Stop that, Lottie-May!" cried Colonel Todhunter sternly. "You can't talk that way without reason—and you ain't got no reason to say what you've just said about Tom Strickland!"

For a reply the girl laughed in his face—and the next instant she had darted past him.

Her head high, her eyes flashing, her little hands clinched at her side, her frame all a-quiver with excitement Lottie-May sped ominously to where Mrs. Todhunter stood with a group of other Nineveh ladies, Mary Todhunter standing close behind her mother.

"Mrs. Todhunter," said the outcast girl, her eyes defiantly holding those of the person whom she addressed, "I understand that you want me to leave this party because you think I ain't fitten to be here—that I'm a bad woman. Ain't that so, ma'am?"

Mrs. Todhunter was at first shocked into shrinking from the girl. Then she looked at her pityingly.

"Lottie-May," she replied, with a frank dignity, "I'm sorry you've made such a scene. It is true that we think you should not be here. But I was going to tell you this privately, to spare you as much as possible"—

"No, you wa'n't!" interrupted the girl passionately. "You was a-goin' to put all the shame on me you could! But I'll say my say before you do it, Mrs. Todhunter. And I ain't denyin' anything, either, nor I ain't a-beggin' any of you for mercy. You're goin' to make me pay for my sin, ain't you—me, the sinful daughter of a sinful mother? But why don't you make the man pay at the same time, Mrs. Todaunter? That's what I'm asking you. Why don't you make the man pay, too?"

A dead silence followed these words.

"Maybe you don't know who the man is?" inquired the girl. "Maybe you can't name him? Maybe that's the reason you ain't doin' nor sayin' nothin' against him?"

There was no reply.

"Then I'll tell you who he is!" cried the girl. And at this her voice broke and her fingers again went fluttering to her throat. "I'll tell you his name! It's Tom Strickland, the man that wants to marry your daughter, Miss Mary Todhunter, ma'am—it's Tom Strickland, that's who it is!"

A piteous little cry came from Mary Todhunter. Lottie-May Doggett heard it and laughed.

"Now you've got it good and plenty—both of you—more'n you bargained for!" she cried tauntingly. Already she had moved toward the nearest door. Her reckless eyes were full of scornful defiance.

"Make the man pay, too!" she flung back at the group of which now a mother and her downward swaying daughter were the central figures. "Make Tom Strickland pay—along with me!"

The next moment she was gone.

Colonel Todhunter saw Tom Strickland spring to Mary's side, catch her in his arms; and, thus holding her, face the group of women who had fallen back from him.

The next moment Mrs. Todhunter had passed her own arms around the girl, letting her sink into a chair that had been brought. The mother's face was stern in condemnation.

"Why don't you make the man pay too?"

"For shame!" she said to Tom. "You are not fit to touch her. For shame, sir!"

Tom Strickland's face grew white. His eyes, that had met those of Mary in mute entreaty, held Mrs. Todhunter's indignantly. For an instant he seemed about to speak. But the elder lady bent above her daughter, obviously ignoring him. The widening group of women looked at him with accusing eyes. Lottie-May Doggett's dreadful charge seemed still ringing in the air.

Apparently bewildered, Tom Strickland turned away, his helpless glance resting for a breath of time on Mary's face. The shock and shame of what the girl had just heard were shown in the look that met his. Then she averted her gaze and Tom Strickland left her side, the women whispering behind him. He came direct to Colonel Todhunter.

"I must see you, colonel," he muttered brokenly. "You heard everything, didn't you?"

The colonel nodded, studying the speaker closely as they moved away.

"What is it, Tom?" he asked. "What can I do for you?"

Tom Strickland laughed bitterly. "Nothing," he replied. "But I must tell you the only thing I can do for myself. I've got to see Stamford Tucker and choke the truth out of him!"

"What do you mean?"

"I mean that he's got to tell the truth and face this scandal in my place. He is the one that's responsible, not I. God only knows what possessed Lottie-May Doggett to lay her disgrace at my door!"

Colonel Todhunter drew a quick sigh of relief. "If that's the truth, Tom, you're all right, and I must say I'm glad to hear it, because the case looks mighty ugly for you otherwise. I'll have to speak plainly. Tom, as Mary's father, if you've got the proofs that'll call Stam Tucker to time produce 'em right now."

The younger man looked the speaker in the face, a white hot anger in his eyes. Then suddenly doubt and something of dismay took the place of rage. At last he laughed mockingly, as if at himself.

"I haven't got a shred of proof," he said, "unless my own conviction, from what Lottie-May herself has told me, can give a hold on Stam Tucker that'll make him toe the mark. I've got the girl's word that Stam Tucker made love to her and that she met him in secret."

"And Lottie-May has just publicly accused you," commented Colonel Todhunter, a curious expression in his eyes as they rested upon Tom Strickland's pale face. "That's mighty poor evidence, Tom. The girl has made it worthless in advance. Nobody on earth would believe you."

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

COFFEE CAKES.

THE Germans make many delicious cakes to eat with their afternoon coffee, and, thanks to German bakers, Americans have acquired a fondness for these.

A favorite way of making coffee cake is to prepare a spice cake batter and use cold boiled coffee instead of water where the recipe calls for the latter.

The coffee is generally made with two tablespoonfuls of coffee to a cupful of water. It is strained through a fine cloth before using.

Simple, Yet Delicious.

Hasty Coffee Cake.—Cream one-fourth of a cupful of butter with a cupful of sugar; add one beaten egg, one-half cupful of milk, a saltspoonful of salt and one and one-half cupfuls of flour sifted with one good teaspoonful of baking powder. Bake in a flat tin, pouring the batter less than an inch thick. Dot with bits of butter the size of a pea about an inch apart and sprinkle plentifully with sugar and cinnamon.

Rich Coffee Cake.—Take five cupfuls of flour dried and sifted, one cupful butter, two cupfuls of sugar, a cupful of molasses, one cupful black coffee one-half pound raisins seeded and minced, one-half pound currants washed and dried, one-fourth pound citron chopped fine, three eggs beaten very light, one-half teaspoonful cinnamon one-half teaspoonful mace, one-fourth teaspoonful cloves and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Cream the butter and sugar, warm the molasses slightly. Beat these with the spices until the mixture is very light. Next put in the yolks, the coffee and when these are well combined the flour with the whipped whites of eggs. Next add the baking powder dissolved in hot water and the fruit. Mix together and dredge well with flour. Beat thoroughly and bake in two loaves or in small round tins.

Individual Cakes.

Coffee Cakes.—The batter in this case is baked in individual pans. Take three eggs, a large cupful sugar and quarter cupful soft butter. Put together and beat until very light. Add a cupful of strong cold coffee, two cupfuls flour well sifted with two teaspoonfuls baking powder and two teaspoonfuls of any spices or flavoring that may be preferred. This cake may be iced or not, as liked. If closely wrapped in paper the cake may be kept two or three days.

Bread Coffee Cake.—To make this take about two cupfuls of dough which has been kneaded and is ready to be made up into bread. Work into it a beaten egg, half a cupful of sugar and one tablespoonful of shortening. Knead until you have a light, soft dough. Put into shallow cake tins to rise. When it is light spread with melted butter and sprinkle with a mixture consisting of a tablespoonful of flour, the same of sugar and a tablespoonful of butter. Rub these together until they crumble between the fingers. Sprinkle upon the cake and strew with granulated or pulverized sugar and ground cinnamon. Bake in a moderate oven.

Anna Thompson.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

SHAKESPEARE CLUB.

The Atlantic Shakespeare Society met at the home of Mrs. E. S. Tenny in Wollaston, Friday evening, April 18 for their annual musicale and review, a fine program had been prepared by the assisting president, Mrs. Theodore Parker and the music committee, Mrs. Cecil H. Marble, Mrs. Frederic J. Peirce and Mrs. Lyndon D. Gurney.

Mrs. William F. Cummings opened the program singing the song "When daisies pied and violets blue," from "Love's Labor Lost," accompanied by the societies able accompanist, Mrs. Marble.

Two short scenes from The Merchant of Venice followed the song. Mrs. Bartell as Portia, Miss Maud Read, a graduate of Leland Powers School of Expression and daughter of one of the members of the society, Nerissa in the first scene Bossanio in the second.

First scene, second scene of act first, a room in Portia's house in Belmont. Portia is discussing the merits of her lovers with Nerissa. Second scene same room, second scene act third, the casket scene, Portia and Nerissa are bathing of the contents of the three caskets, Portia shows great anxiety as to the man who will find her picture in the right casket. A servant enters and announces Bossanio, Nerissa goes out and Bossanio enters, Portia warns him not to be too hasty in his choice and watches carefully to see if he chooses right, as he obtains her hand in marriage should he find her picture in one of the caskets.

Mrs. Bartlett as Portia was very sweet and lovable, her lines were clear and well rendered. Miss Read showed ability, fine training and talent. Mrs. Cummings played the part of the servant with spirit and dignity. The performance was highly applauded.

Mrs. Tenny presented each with pinks, Mrs. Gurney, Mrs. Nickerson and Mrs. Peirce sang a trio. "Three merry men we be" Twelfth Night.

Mrs. Pierce sang by request "Where the bee sucks" from the Tempest. Mrs. Nickerson read delightfully Hamilton W. Mabie's charming story, "An undiscovered Island."

Mrs. Tenny assisted by Mr. Tenney threw upon a screen thirty-one views of Shakespeare's birthplace giving a short and entertaining talk as each picture was shown. The exterior of the house, the garden and the room the great writer was born in were of especial interest. Guild hall were he attended school, the church and the monument, Harvard house and the Memorial theatre also had their share of interest.

A ladies trio, sung by Mrs. Gurney, Mrs. Peirce and Mrs. Nickerson followed. Mrs. Cummings sang, "It was a lover loved a lass," and "As you like it." Flowers were presented to all taking any part. The society are very proud of the talent. The musicale members, singers and accompanist deserve great credit. Ice cream and cake was served by Miss Mary L. Hinkley and Mrs. Elijah G. Hall during the social hour. A more delightful evening has never been held since the society has been formed.

A vote of thanks was given to all taking part and to Mrs. Tenney for opening her house and making the evening such a success. It was a veritable Shakesperian evening.

PINCH HITTERS SETTLED GAME

Weymouth Reserve Men Made Good in 14th Inning

GREAT BALL CONTEST

It took 14 innings to decide the Weymouth-Braintree High school game Tuesday afternoon and Weymouth won 9 to 7. From the eighth inning, when Braintree tied the score, the game was one of sensational plays that kept the big crowd of rooters almost on the verge of hysteria.

In the 14th Weymouth sent in Gardner, a pinch hitter, to bat for Reed and he made good, getting a two-bagger to right field. Condrick, another pinch hitter, went into bat for Baker and he sent a single between third and short, scoring Gardner and taking second on the throw to home plate in an effort to catch Gardner there. A smart single to left field by Murphy brought Condrick in and then the side went out.

Braintree played heroically to even matters but was unable to connect with the ball. It was one of the best-played games ever seen in the town. The fielding of Riley, Gloster and Taylor was at times sensational. Munroe achieved the distinction of being the first man to bat a ball over the new Town Hall, thereby getting the only home run of the game. The score:

The Gear Works athletes were victorious in the Track Relay race, Base-Ball game and Bowling match all three of these events counting 5 points each. This event added 5 points to Fore River, making the standing 21 1-2 to 16 1-2.

The Bowling Match was the last event of the program and on the result of the match hung the ownership of the trophy which was offered to the team scoring the largest number of points scored during the evening. AMATEURS SCORE GRAND SUCCESS

Gardner Club Maintained Standard in Dramatics

A crowded house witnessed the raising of the curtain on the Gardner Club Dramatics at the New Colonial Hall Wednesday evening and the outbursts of applause given the amateurs throughout both comedies evidenced the hearty appreciation of the audience.

Both productions were developed on the love theme, the first, "I've written to Browne" being founded on the happenings that ordinarily beset an ardent suitor, and the second, "Poor Pilleody" showing the life of a person who has married the second time without really knowing whether the first husband has died, the effect being the ever present feeling of uneasiness of the second husband over the possible return of the Enoch Arden and his continual sputtering regarding his actions should his suspicions be realized.

The cast, which in the past has successfully presented a number of playlets, exceeded all past successes. Those in the more prominent parts reached expectations while those who carried on the minor parts which however supplied the necessary detail, greatly assisted in the presentation.

The stage settings were picturesque and added greatly to the effectiveness. It was one of the few times that Quincy audiences have not been obliged to listen to the monotonous droning of lines but were spectators of a cast which vivaciously interpreted two good comedies.

The cast of Poor Pillycody was as follows:

Mr. John Peter Pillycody, Her second, Ernest Andrews
Captain O'Scuttle, who has returned Everett Prout
Mrs. Pillycody Cora Barnicoat
Sarah, Shop Girl, Olive Barnicoat
Mrs. O'Scuttle, a runaway wife Ethel Schools

The scene of "I've Written to Browne" is a living room in Ivy Hall, and the cast was as follows:

Otway Sheridan, a playwright, R. Ellis Young
Peregrine Dotts, Engaged to Mrs. Walsingham Henry Boutelier
Charles Hetherinton, A country-gentleman Thomas Veale
Mrs. Walsingham, a rich country lady, Miss Marion Bolster
Laura, her sister, Miss Lizzie Ross
William, a gardener, J. W. Owens

Dancing followed until midnight, music being furnished by Frank Boutelier. The committee of arrangements consisted of Fred Barnicoat, Everett Andrews and Henry Boutelier

The stage committee was Everett McLaughlin, Alfred Smith and William Richards, Jr.

The advertising committee was John Marshall, R. Ellis Young and G. Russell Westland.

The ushering and doorkeeping committee was Charles R. Smith, John Marshall and Alfred Smith. Fred Barnicoat had charge of the tickets.

NEW HOLLIS SCHOOL DEDICATED WITH APPROPRIATE CEREMONY

Braintree Woman's Relief Corps Presented American Flag to Each Room

Able, Logical, Instructive Address By Hon. John D. Long

Before a large and interested audience and on a stage beautiful with Easter lilies, ferns, palms and other decorative plants, there took place Wednesday evening the impressive exercises of dedication of Braintree's largest and finest hall of learning, the Hollis school. Over the platform was draped a large American flag, the gift of Mrs. Austin White, sister of Mr. N. Eugene Hollis, whose generosity made possible the land comprising the school house site and the adjoining playground.

The master of ceremonies was Mr. Herbert F. Kneeland, chairman of the school board. After the invocation by Rev. Daniel Roy Freeman, the opening address was delivered by Mr. Kneeland in which he gave important dates incident to the erection of the building and paid a glowing tribute to the late George O. Wales, formerly chairman of the building committee. There was a chorus "To Thee O Country" rendered by the pupils of the seventh and eighth grades and then came the delivery of the keys of the building to the Selectmen by Otis B. Oakman of the building committee. Colonel A. C. Drinkwater, chairman of the Board of Selectmen, in turn delivered the keys to the school board and they were received by I. Wendell Gammons of the committee.

All the foregoing gentlemen paid high tribute to the unselfish and untiring work of Mr. Wales on the building committee.

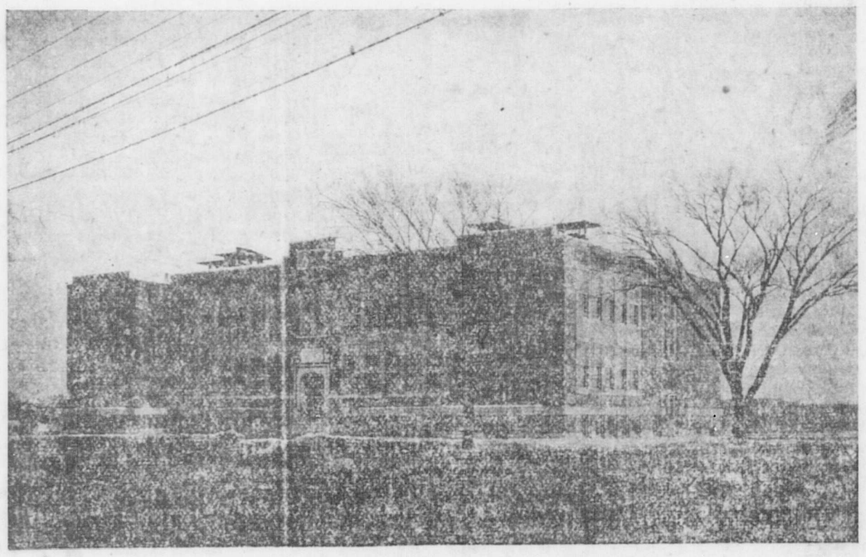

The address of the evening was delivered by Hon. John D. Long, an ex-governor of the commonwealth and former secretary of the navy. It is here given nearly in full.

True education recognizes in every trembling little soul, in the dull, the slow, the lazy, the unwilling as well as in the quick and brilliant the divine springs of human development, the capacity for growth and the discovery that children all are not alike fitted to shine. There is none that has not if rightly guided, some orbit in which it can shed radiance.

Our schools are not supported if one scholar in ten may pass a brilliant examination or win a prize for scholarship. It is not so much what this or that precocious boy or girl can do in a special branch, but rather what has been the general growth, how far has the whole body of our youth been taught to elemental principles of the book they con and the lessons they learn and how far is established in them the vital foundations of good learning.

Let us of course have all the means and appliances of education, but more important than the school house or the text book or the recitation even, is the effect of the combined influences of the whole school upon the mind, the intellectual and moral nature of the child.

It is of less consequence whether your daughter learns to conjugate a French or Latin verb or whether your boy can do a problem in algebra. This is all well but you may safely leave that matter to take care of itself if you have assurances of the higher necessity that the general influence of the school room is of the right sort and right method. For myself I am not in sympathy with the over-multiplication of studies in our public schools and the expensive multiplication of

NEW HOLLIS GRAMMAR SCHOOL AT BRAINTREE.

ADDRESS OF HON. JOHN D. LONG.

Education is no new thing, no new process. The methods of the teacher may vary, the school house may change, it may be the old red box with its rattling shingles its broken windows, its cut benches, or disfigured walls, or it may be the classic, spacious and finished temple, such as this touched with the skill of the architect and builder. Under all these forms it has still been the one steady effort and aim to unfold the budding mind of the child and train the faculties for the highest and best uses. For education is not the mere accumulation of external accomplishments. It does not add to the mind a single faculty. It is what the Latin composition of the word signifies, the drawing out of what is already within—the development of the seed that only needs the air and light and the soft dews and the beautiful spring weather

Teach the pupils music, give him its beautiful and elementary inspiration that comes from the cultivation of its soulful harmonies as from the sweet voice of singing. A chord may touch the spring that will bubble in his eager heart into a love for the natural scene or art. A hint may transform him into a botanist or an astronomer and reveal to him the secrets of the flowers and grasses, or lift his eyes to the skies and the beautiful stars and unfold to him the laws of their revolution and light. Or rouse to genius of invention and stimulate his cunning hand to ply the tools of the mechanic and build engines to bore the solid rock or tunnel under the sea; suggest to him the simple but neglected laws of health; the grandeur of the temple of the body, the virtue of physical courage and cleanliness and temperance, of regular sleep and food, of keeping his chest out, his shoulders back, and his system sound; assuring that any man who is physically erect and pure may be more than half sure of his moral rectitude.

Let him learn wisdom in his amusements, not stinting or robbing him of his boyish ardor, but directing to such as are manly and brave and

NINETEENTH ANNIVERSARY

Quincy Council K. of C. Plan Appropriate Observance

Quincy Council, No. 96, Knights of Columbus are contemplating the celebration of their 19th anniversary. The council was instituted June 6, 1894 and is one of the oldest in the country. At the present time it is in a flourishing condition, has a large membership and the future is exceedingly bright for a continuation of their present program.

When the Quincy Council was formed, the organization was in its infancy. Leading young Catholic men at that time were the original applicants for a charter and the solid influence they exerted in directing the society left a lasting impression. A few have been removed from membership through death, but the earlier members who are now numbered on the rolls while perhaps not particularly active have not withheld their approval from the acts of their younger members.

The committee considering the anniversary is Past Grand Knight Edward D. Barrett, Past Grand Knight John J. Cunniff, Recording Secretary Richard A. Cole, Treasurer Michael T. Sullivan, Peter M. Sullivan with Grand Knight Michael T. Walsh and Secretary John T. Caine ex officio.

TYPHOID FEVER CASES CHECKED

Norfolk Downs and Atlantic Milk Dealers Released FROM RESTRICTIONS

All possibility of further spreading of typhoid fever cases in Norfolk Downs and Atlantic seems to have been eliminated by the action of the Board of Health, ordering the delivery of only pasteurized milk three weeks ago. This morning the dealers who were doing business under this recommendation were released and are at liberty to deliver milk as before.

The frequency with which cases of typhoid were discovered in the northern section of the city gave rise to the fear that an epidemic was at hand. An investigation by the local board and also by the Boston Board of Health placed the disease as having originated at a Connecticut dairy which employed an infected maid who handled milk which was afterwards distributed here through local dealers. Since the outbreak no milk has been received in or about Boston from the dairy.

The W. C. T. U. will hold their next regular meeting Thursday, May 1st, in Protection hall at 2.30 P. M. The L. T. L. meet on the same afternoon at the same hall at 4.15. All are most cordially invited.

NO ADDITIONAL CASES REPORTED

Condition at Massachusetts Field and Montclair Schools the Same

There is no material change regarding measles in the Massachusetts Field and Montclair schools this morning. Four rooms in the former building remain closed and the latter is still under the observation of the Board of Health. No additional cases were reported to the board today and it is thought that the warm weather will have a tendency to suppress further developments.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

The season of rubbish grass fires has arrived. Stokers of the former should be careful they do not endanger property.

While it is a little early for woods fires, a word of caution regarding the setting of them would not be out of place.

The Wollaston Citizens' Association is after the mosquito. They will have the hearty co-operation of every one in their movement.

The I. W. W. have extended their activities to Ipswich. They are a very strenuous body.

No public hearings on the tariff bill is the order. It seems as if too much publicity could not be given to this important measure.

While the collectors have to go, the deputies have the consolation of knowing that their heads were saved by civil service even after the reorganization of the customs department, July 1.

Those youngsters out in Pittsburg manifest the spirit of '76 and if their claims are well founded they have set an example which older people should follow in the battle for morality.

The Pope like many other great men proves an impatient patient to his medical advisers.

Some people will disagree with the learned doctor who says that weak minds are responsible for filling the jails. Even in this age there are evidences of many very bright men occupying prison cells.

Where will the vaudeville manager stop? The base ball players, fighters, and others have been hauled on the stage and now a manager offers the Mayor of Salem $500 a week.

The much tooted friendship between this country and Japan is liable to be pretty well strained if California keeps up her pointed antagonism to the Japs. Over the game of equal rights as well as in poker all friendships cease.

West Newton men have organized a cooking club because they claim that women's clubs and suffrage have forced them to that point. The suffragettes will have some difficulty in meeting this argument.

Harvard need not feel any danger of being forced to the wall with $18,000,000 in investment securities and being rated as the richest institution in the land although not having the largest enrollment of students.

POPE RECOVERING.

Christian people all over the world who have been for several days past anxiously watching the newspapers for reports of condition of Pope Pius X. the head of the Roman Catholic church have received with many manifestations of pleasure evidence of his strong hopes of recovery. The pope has been ill several times since his ascendancy to the high position he holds but this last was the most serious and caused grave apprehension among those surrounding him and his physicians. The Pope is a very active man. His duties are numerous and onerous and he has undoubtedly given his physicians considerable trouble in his persistent efforts to perform tasks of his office which they knew were beyond his strength at the time. It is now agreed by them that they will plainly tell him of the dangerous condition which he passed through and insist that he spare himself more in the future. The anxiety and well wishes for the Pope were not confined alone to people of his own religion, but other denominations joined in sincere hopes for his recovery.

A GOOD BILL.

The house of representatives by an overwhelming vote passed over the Governor's veto, the so called Mackay bill for the benefit of defendants on minor criminal offences in court. The senate cannot do better than to follow suit and also attach its stamp of approval to a measure which cannot do any great harm compared with the great amount of good it is liable to perform.

The bill was drawn by John D. Mackay of Quincy, a lawyer of wide experience and excellent judgment. It provides that probation officers or other officers may not introduce a record of a defendant who has only been before the court on one occasion prior to his appearance in the case being heard. Even if the evidence is not strong, it is claimed that the introduction of such record may prove prejudicial to the unfortunate defendant who may be entirely innocent of the second offense but the first record would mean strong grounds for assuming that he offended again. In cases where a defendant deliberately lies about his actions and previous record there should of course be the chance to show him in his true colors. If there is doubt of the guilt of the defendant or he is really innocent but circumstances point to the contrary the failure to introduce the record may prevent a great injustice being done and help the unfortunate to continue living down his first offense and doing better in the future when he or she knows they have a chance.

CARE SHOULD BE EXERCISED.

The season for clearing up the back yards has arrived. This means a considerable burning up of accumulated rubbish. It also means much grass burning. In the former case the stokers should exercise due care and take every precaution to not only safeguard their own property, but the property of their neighbors as well. Here is a case where cooperation will do wonders. It will not do to start a fire in the morning, and go off and leave it expecting the fire to care for itself or trust to luck that it will not create damage. Rubbish fires need constant and careful attention. Otherwise there is danger with the possibility of great loss. This word of warning should be heeded by all who intend to engage upon the annual cleaning campaign.

The season for woods fires is also close at hand. People who have occasion to go into the woods should be careful how they throw around matches, cigar and cigarette butts. Those are the main causes of woods fires, although in some instances the blaze is the product of simon pure maliciousness. However if those innocent of wrong-doing light matches in the woods or are smoking take care to blow out the match and stamp out the fire of cigar or cigarette before discarding them the possibility of woods fires will be minimized.

SCHOOL MASTERS CLUB.

The semi-annual banquet of the Quincy School Masters Club was held at the Quincy House in Boston Wednesday evening with an attendance of 22. Prof. Marshall L. Perin of Boston University gave the address of the evening on "Preparation for College." The annual election of officers for the new year resulted as follows:

President—Horace W. Rice of Woodward Institute.

Vice President—Ernest L. Collins of the High School.

Secretary and Tresurer—David H. Goodspeed of the Wollaston School.

MISCELLANEOUS.

There is some discussion of the advisability of organizing a Coddington School Alumin Association and a petition has been sent to the School Committee asking for the use of the School hall for meetings two evenings each year.

Grammar school boys are practising daily for the opening of the school baseball league season which is set for the first week of the new term. Each school will play a series of six games.

There has not been so much contagious disease among the school children of the city for a long time as there is at present. It is hoped that the week's vacation will tend to reduce the amount very largely. Five rooms at the Massachusetts Fields school are now closed on account of measles.

PUBLIC LIBRARY NOTES.

A very interesting set of pictures representing the rise of architecture in Italy is now on exhibition at the Library.

This collection begins with the Temple of Paestum, now known as the Temple of Neptune, built about 550 B. C. by the Greeks and coming into Roman possession about 273 B. C. This represents the ancient Greek form of the Doric column, "the oldest, plainest and most sturdy." Then comes the Pantheon iin Rome, delineating the dome over a circular building and later the Church of St. Mark in Venice with its round arch and domed roof in the form of a Greek cross, the latter representing the Byzantine type. The Renaissance style follows, portrayed in this collection by the Church of St. Peter in Rome, and here we find the reversion to the forms of Greek architecture combined with the round arch. The Romans again borrow from the Greeks in their Colosseum at Rome, here adopting the Greek column style and joining it to the arch, dome and tower.

The Campanile at Pisa represents the late Romanesque, the Campanile at Florence the Gothic, and the Cathedral at Milan the very ornate Gothic. The last three pictures of this instructive collection, show the interiors of the court of the Palazzo Vecchio in Florence, St. Paul Beyond the Walls in Rome and the Cathedral of Siena.

All these pictures are accompanied by interesting notes and a number of them have small plans of the buildings represented.

The library owns a book, Fletchers' History of Architecture, 476.93, which might be well used in connection with this exhibition and will be reserved at the desk for anyone wishing to consult it.

TRAVELLERS ON LONG VOYAGE

Chamber of Commerce Party Started From Boston Today

QUINCY MEN ON TRIP

At noon today the South American tourists of the Boston Chamber of Commerce sailed from Boston on the steamer Metapan, and many friends were at the wharf of the United Fruit Company on Atlantic avenue, Boston, to wish them bon voyage.

The spokesman of the long tour party is Col. Henry L. Kincaide of Quincy, who some weeks ago was elected president, and upon whom many of the arrangements have devolved. He personally visited Washington and secured the co-operation of President Wilson and Secretary of State Bryan, who have already instructed the consuls at the various ports touched to arrange for the tourists.

The Metapan sails direct to Panama. The long tour party numbers 35, including two Boston school boys, and representatives of the New England industries, banking houses, universities, etc.

On the same steamer were 30 other members of the Boston Chamber of Commerce and ladies, who will take the short tour, visiting only Panama and Columbia. Among these are Charles E. Haskins, W. B. Nichols and Fred B. Rice of Quincy, and Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston.

The steamer will touch at Kingston May 1, and arrive at Colon May 2. On Monday, May 5, the tourists will embark at Panama for a seven days sail on the Guatemala for Collao, Peru. Then on May 16, to Mollendo, Peru, and by rail to Arequipa and Puno. By boat to Guaqui, Bolivia, and by train to LaPaz, for a week's stay.

May 28 by train to Arica, Chile and thence by boat to Iquique, Autofagasta and Valparaso, which will be reached June 2.

June 5 the party will proceed to Santiago, Chile, thence over the Ardez into Argentia, with stop at Mendoza, reaching Buenos Aires June 11, where six days will be enjoyed.

June 17 they sail for Santos, Brazil, visiting Sao, Rio de Janeiro and Bahia. July 8 they sail for Port of Spain, Trinidad. They will touch at the Barbadoes and reach New York on the return July 23.

Col. Kincaide will write of the trip for the Ledger.

ANNUAL MAY DINNER.

The annual May dinner of the Universalists will take place May day at Bagnell hall, Plymouth. Rev. C. F. Andrews of Plymouth has sent out notices which show that reduced rates will not be given by railroads, but the trolley is a convenient means of conveyance.

Miss Frances Curtin of Garfield street has entered the employ of Johnson Bros. Miss Curtin was formerly with R. E. Foy & Co.

NEW HOLLIS SCHOOL

above all vulgar and mean suggestion.

Teach him not to be mean, not to lie, not to be a coward. There is no better motto.

That teacher serves the whole community who trains his boys to feel that it is part of their duty and education to be gallant, to be neat, to be considerate, to have good manners. Let them understand that personal dirt is as bad as a poor lesson, that a lie is worse than a blot on the copy books, that an impure word or an obscene mark on the walls, or a vulgar suggestion to a comrade, or an insult to a girl is a ranker crime than standing at the foot of the class.

Let it be known that the bright boy who seeks the public applause for a perfect recitation on examination is not to be trusted, unless when screened from the observation of others and responsible only to his own sense of honor and right he then can be relied upon to do nothing unbecoming the dignity of a scholar and a gentleman.

I would not crush his merry spirits or love of fun. I would not check his natural genius of buoyancy, I would so direct these that they should always tend towards magnanimity in character and conduct.

Then there is a practical suggestion with reference to the details of the school room and that is the necessity of thoroughness on the part of the pupil in his work and study and in his grasp of any subject in which he receives instructions.

Non multa, sed multum, (not many things, but much,) should be the motto. Not a smattering of many things, but a thorough, clear, intellectual, impartable knowledge of the few elemental foundations. The object of our schools is not completion, but direction and the establishing the welfare of its pivotal points.

Good heavens, sometimes one would think that we meant to compress between the years of 2, 5 and 15 all the learning of the world! As I contemplate this beautiful and spacious temple of education you can fancy that my memory runs back many years and compares it with the rough and homely little school house on the Maine hill where all the village boys and girls of that town had but one teacher and but one room and where any grading of classes was as unknown as was the hum of the automobile.

Don't you feel your heart beat for the first day at school when you came with eager face and running step with an apple in your pocket and the old Smith's arithmetic and slate and map under your arm to choose your seat and to find what sort of a school master held the rod?

How long the summons seemed then. How bright it is now.

What a glorious season of heroic endeavor, of Arctic glory, of glowing health and roaring fun, was the winter when to find an unerring snow ball hurt when it hit, more than the fatal mminie ball that kills but leaves no lingering smart. Was life ever so intense as then? Think of him the valiant school boy, so bright, so hopeful so ingenous, lightly departing from those halls, bearing into life the atmosphere of their culture.

Let this thought gild with its reflection the edifice which is a fitting monument to the wisdom, the generosity of the descendants of that Puritan stock which, poor in bank notes and railroad shares, but rich in public beneficence and foresight, who gave freely of its scanty store 275 years ago to the end that learning not be buried in the graves of the forefathers.

After the address, a notable speech was made by Miss Josephine B. Colbert, patriotic instructor of Woman's Relief Corps 94, who in accordance with the custom presented ten American flags, one for each room, to the new building.

The flags were accepted by Carroll E. Farrington, principal of the school.

The exercises were concluded by the singing of America by the audience after which the entire building was open for inspection.

The building committee comprised the following gentlemen: George O. Wales, Elmer E. Abercrombie, Herbert F. Kneeland, F. Eugene Dyer, Otis B. Oakman, Paul Monaghan, Judge Albert E. Avery, J. Parker Hayward and Benjamin Hawes.

Rev. John E. Lillback, pastor of the Finnish Congregational church in this city went to Worcester today and will remain in that city until Monday conducting a series of religious services both afternoon and evening.

NEW YORK MODES.

Simple Draperies—Boleros—Yoke Effects—Sashes and Girdles.

While dresses look more elaborate this year because of the draped effects that are the prevailing mode, they are in reality easier to make than the severely tight costumes where every inch of line and every detail of finish was conspicuous. The long straight silhouette remains unchanged but the narrowness at the foot of the skirt is relieved by inserted pleats or slashes. Slight fullness of materials at the waist, and simple but pretty draperies that are easily achieved by following any of the many models shown in American designed patterns.

BOLEROS.

Boleros and bolero effects such as are shown in the picture, are extremely popular, and the kimono sleeve with the seam dropped half way down between shoulder and elbow is seen on the best liked models. Buttons are not used as extravagantly as last year, but judiciously placed, are still a most important trimming feature of all sorts of costumes, and serve to introduce a contrasting color note in many attractive ways. A waist of black veiled, and trimmed white lace or net will have a few little crystal buttons in lime green, or amber that are very important items in the general effect.

LARGE WAISTS.

Waists are made looser and larger than ever, and belts placed low on coats and jackets, and sashes and girdles galore with all sorts of dresses still further emphasize the fact that waist curves are unfashionable. The slim, straight outline that reduces the apparent size of the hips is however quite contradicted in any of the many three-quarter draped coats now so much worn. These are tight at the bottom of the garment and loose as bags everywhere else, with sleeves in raglan or kimono cut, and are most popular in matlasse cloths, eponges and figured goods of other weaves. Linings are in contrasting tone as a rule, though self colors are considerably employed. These figured cloths "trim themselves" and need little extra garniture and should be selected in coloring that will harmonize or prettily contrast with all the frocks in one's outfit, when they will prove most useful and desirable additions.

BOYS HAD GOOD TIME.

The Employed Boys of Quincy Y. M. C. A. had a social evening on Wednesday in the Association hall. Walter Gile of Boston, a well-known impersonator, entertained the boys for an hour with sketches, monologues and stories. Between the parts of the program music was rendered by Herbert Driscoll and the prize was awarded the winner of the Employed Boys pool tournament, George Peterson. After the program was concluded refreshments were served.

FORE RIVER LODGE.

I. O. O. F. M. U. will hold its regular bi-monthly meeting tomorrow night in Protection hall, Johnson's building during which time there will be two candidates initiated and applications for others received.

There is also going to be a presentation to one of its officers after which there will be a collation an intertainment and a smoke talk.

The District Officers will attend and a good time is assured to all its members.

WEEKLY WHIST.

The weekly whist at the Granite City Club brought out several new enthusiasts Wednesday evening. W. R. Dimock and D. E. Meurk were the high scorers of the evening. Rolin H. Newcomb acted as stewart in place of "Tom" Smith who is at the Quincy City Hospital where he is under the observation of doctors, probably preparatory to an operation.

ADVERTISE IN THE LEDGER.

RIBBON TRIMMINGS.

There is simply no end to the uses made of ribbons this year. Not only are they first favorites for hat trimmings, but in brocaded styles especially they are employed with telling effect for the collars, vests, cuffs, sashes and girdles that trim many plain dresses in fetching fashion. Ribbons with patterns in brocaded velvet are costly as elegant, but it takes only a very little of these to achieve the smartest trimmings and moreover they are easy to place by amateur or professional dressmaker.

FASHIONABLE COTTONS.

Cottons will be more than ever worn this year, and these come in such endless variety of style, texture and designs that a choice is sometimes difficult. Whatever the cotton dress fabric if it is stamped with the name "Bontex" on the selvage, one is assured of its quality and satisfactory wear, and that it is this season's most fashionable production in its class of weave as no left over goods or undesirable styles are permitted to bear this stamp.

One can find almost any known weave reproduced in cotton dress goods. Beside the extremely popular ratine or towelling goods, there are mercerized marquisettes so silky it is hard to believe they are cotton. Voiles and crepes that are both delicate and practical since they launder with greatest success. Cotton serges and mercerized poplins that make stunning and practical tailored frocks and suits, and all the host of bordered goods in printings that take the place of any other trimming, and make up smartly in any of the many models that are designed especially for this class of goods.

HUNDRED LIVES PROBACLY LOST

Workers In Pennsylvania Mine Killed by Gas Explosion

RESCUE WORK IS RETARDED

Fire and Deadly Fumes Make Progress Exceedingly Difficult—Men Who Reach Surface Say "Mine Is Full of Dead People"—Seventy Bodies of Victims Are Recovered

Pittsburg, April 24.—One hundred miners are believed to have lost their lives as a result of a gas explosion in the Cincinnati mine of the Monongahela River Consolidated Coal and Coke company at Finleyville, twenty-seven miles from this city. From twenty-six to twenty-eight men made their escape. Some of them, however, were badly burned. The bodies of several victims have been recovered.

The mine is aflame. Rescue work is being carried on with difficulty owing to the fire and deadly fumes. The coal company maintains a rescue corps patterned after the mine force of the United States government.

But a few of the miners who reached the surface were in a condition to talk. From these little could be gained. Suffering from burns or fright, the miners only knew that an explosion had occurred and that a large number of men were either killed by the explosion or asphyxiated by the "after damp."

Several hours after the explosion seven foreign miners crawled from one of the entrances of the mine. All were seriously burned. They could give no connected account of conditions in the mine or their individual experiences. They all said that the "mine was full of dead people."

Business in Finleyville was suspended. The greatest excitement prevailed and practically the entire community rushed to the ill-fated mine.

Relatives and friends of the men beneath the surface were frantic. Many of them had to be restrained. After a time a guard was placed, completely surrounding the entrances to the mine, and all persons except rescuers and mine officials were held at a distance.

A gas explosion is thought to have caused the disaster, although this fact has not been exactly determined. Fire damp, it is said, may have been responsible.

The explosion occurred between No. 1 and No. 2 right entries, 3000 feet from the mouth of the mine.

A. V. Brown, assistant mine foreman, stated that 179 men went to work in the mine.

Seventy bodies of victims have been recovered. The bodies were located by rescuing squads of the United States bureau of mines, the Monongahela River Consolidated Coal and Coke company and of the Pittsburg Coal company.

SCHOOL STRIKE GROWS

Sixty Thousand Pittsburg Pupils Have Deserted Their Studies

Pittsburg, April 24.—Hardly 10 percent of Pittsburg's 70,000 school children are in attendance at the sessions. While the disorderly processions of children through the streets have been suppressed, large numbers of children congregate about schoolhouses but are soon scattered by the police.

The children arrested while carrying banners demanding the removal of S. L. Heeter, superintendent of schools, were brought before a police magistrate and after a reprimand were turned over to their parents.

No announcement has yet been made whether the citizens selected by the board of education to investigate the reflections upon the character of Heeter will accept the duty imposed on them.

Pearl Necklace Smuggled by Pugilist Confiscated by Government

Chicago, April 24.—Jack Johnson, negro pugilist, was fined $1000 on two indictments charging him with smuggling into this country a pearl necklace as a present for his first white wife, Etta Duryea, who committed suicide.

Through his attorney, Johnson withdrew his plea of not guilty when arraigned and entered a plea of nolo contendere. The necklace, valued at $2000, was declared forfeited to the government and probably will be sold at auction.

Far In Excess of Road's Percentage of Earnings

BUILDING OF HAMPDEN ROAD

Declared by Prouty to Be Extravagant and Unnecessary—Maine Central Finances Show Hand of Morgan, Who Is Said to Have Made $570,000 In Financing Subsidiary Boston, April 24.—Finances of the Maine Central railroad, its dealings with the Boston and Maine, the hotel properties and the Portland Terminal Railroad company were gone into yesterday before Interstate Commerce Commissioner Prouty at the hearing in this city.

Here are some of the most important details of the New Haven's methods of finance brought out:

The Boston and Maine earned only ½ of 1 percent in 1911, but paid a 5 percent dividend.

It earned in 1912 only 2 8-10 percent, yet paid 4 percent dividends.

It is paying nearly $100,000 a mile to build the Hampden railroad. It will lose annually about $7000 a mile on this road. The rental is $12,000, the return less than $5000.

Commissioner Prouty said this road is costing almost as much per mile as the Culebra cut. He termed the policy of the building "extravagant and unnecessary."

Vice President Hobbs admitted that the Boston and Maine is not earning enough to pay fixed charges. The directors of the Boston and Maine voted to build this Hampden county road when it is paralleled by the Boston and Albany with which it has a trafic agreement.

Other facts brought out through the questioning of Mr. Prouty and Mr. Brandeis of Vice President Hobbs of the Maine Central and Boston and Maine were:

That the indebtedness of the Maine Central has increased $20,000,000 since the New Haven acquired control.

That the New Haven juggled the accounts of the Maine Central as it did other subsidiary companies.

That the Portland Terminal company was organized out of whole cloth to control transportation in Maine.

That the Portland Terminal company was capitalized at a million dollars.

That it issued bonds of $4,750,000 at par value, $100.

That these bonds were sold to J. P. Morgan & Co. at $88, allowing Morgan a profit of $570,000.

That the New Haven, through the Maine Central, paid the Ricker Hotel company approximately $1,400,000 for its hotel property and assumed an additional indebtedness of the company amounting to about $1,000,000. Ricker of the company was a director of the Boston and Maine at the time.

JENNINGS' CONFESSION

Will Be Used In Prosecuting Him For Donovan Murder

Cambridge, Mass., April 24.—District Attorney Higgins of Middlesex county has partially confirmed William B. Jennings' story of how he killed Mrs. Mildred Donovan, and is pursuing his investigation to corroborate other parts of the former pugilist's confession.

It is said Higgins has secured sufficient evidence to corroborate Jennings' confession to warrant bringing the slayer of William MacPherson to trial for the murder of Mrs. Donovan.

Medical Examiner Durrell and newspawermen who heard Jennings' confession the night he was sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of MacPherson are expected to be present among the principal witnesses for the prosecution.

FOUND DEAD IN FIELD

Well-to-Do Farmer Is Believed to Have Been Murdered

Woburn, Mass., April 24.—Charles E. O'Brien, a well-to-do farmer of Burlington, aged 45, was found shot to death in a field aocut a half-mile from his home. No weapons were found anywhere near the body, and it is believed he was murdered.

The police arrested Joseph McClay and William Farrell on suspicion, holding them pending the inquest.

According to the police the two men in custody were with O'Brien at a resort in Burlington when he was last seen alive and it is alleged that they had been drinking. The state police are working on the case.

No Gloom at Atheist's Funeral

Bridgeport, Conn., April 24.—With his funeral address written by himself and read by a personal friend, and such selections as "Dixie" and "Silver Threads Among the Gold" for music, the funeral of Dr. J. P. Thorndike was held at a local mortuary chapel. The deceased was an atheist and an admirer and friend of the late Robert Ingersoll.

Girl's Burns Prove Fatal

Fitchburg, Mass., April 24.—Five-year-old Tynne Desonen, who was terribly burned when she swung from two high tension electric wires, died at the B— bank hospital.

FAREWELL TO PASTOR WIGGIN

Wollaston Parishioners Extend Greetings to Him and His Family

With a reception in the vestry, Tuesday evening the parishioners of the Wollaston Methodist church bade a fond farewell to their pastor Rev. Wesley Wiggin and his family who leave shortly to take up the work in Beverly.

Mr. Wiggin has been in Wollaston for four years, coming from Whitinsville and by his faithful work has won many friends by his faithful endeavors.

Many were the regrets voiced upon his departure. Mrs. Wiggin and their son Storer have also ably filled their places in the church.

The reception was held from eight until nine and in the receiving line were: Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Sanders, Rev. and Mrs. Wesley Wiggin, Storer Wiggin, Mrs. S. Storer, Miss Ruby Walters and Miss A. N. Merrill.

The evening's program opened with an address by Mrs. George Crothers, president of the Ladies Aid society and was followed by the presentation of a purse. Mrs. Crothers referred to Mr. Wiggin as a Christian gentleman and spoke of the able efforts of himself, his good wife and his son.

Mr. Wiggin in replying said that the affection and loyalty to the old and outgoing was best evidenced by the reception tendered the new and incoming pastor.

Storer Wiggin received a token of regard from the Epworth League, its president Clarence Cassidy making the presentation speech. Storer replied fittingly and caused a laugh by stating his surprise as most gifts went to his parents. Mrs. Wiggin was presented with a bouquet from the Ladies Aid by Francena Crothers.

A musical program of soprano solos by Miss Marguerite Louise Holbrook, selections by George Critchley, cornetist and Miss May Critchley pianist was rendered.

The choir contributed several numbers. Composing the choir were: Mrs. Frank G. Bennett, pianist; Miss Marguerite Louise Holbrook, Miss Mertie Lovell, Raymond Cassidy, Frank Dunham, Mrs. Roberts, F. A. Sutermeister and S. N. Belcher.

Refreshments followed, the tables being presided over by the two young matrons Mrs. Walter Sutermeister and Mrs. Chester Cleveland.

Those serving were: Mrs. T. N. Lane, Miss Cherry Newell, Miss Helen Euerle, Miss Mertie Lovell, Miss Myrtle Starbird, Miss Florence Waite, Miss Mary Cleveland, Miss Nettie Crittenden, Miss Alfreda Dewsnap.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

KING NICHOLAS TAKES SCUTARI

Fortress Falls at Last Into Hands of Montenegrins

THOUSANDS SLAIN IN ASSAULT

Little Kingdom Carried on Siege For Weeks In Defiance of Powers, Which Are Now Confronted by New Crisis—Growing Tension Between Greece and Bulgaria

London, April 24.—Scutari, the Gibraltar of Turkey in Europe, and the last stronghold of the Moslems in the lands which they tortured for 500 years, has fallen into the hands of Montenegro, the puny kingdom which fired the first shot in the Balkan war and perhaps, also, the last.

Scutari was taken after a long siege culminating in two days of the most desperate fighting of modern times. The surrender of Essad Pasha, Turkish commandant, was announced after two hours of fighting with bayonets, during which both Montenegrins and Turks lost heavily.

Approximately 3000 Montenegrins fell in the last assault on Scutari and 5000 Turks were killed. The victors took 20,000 prisoners.

Shortly after the formal surrender of Essad Pasha, King Nicholas of Montenegro triumphantly rode into the the fallen city, emulating Czar Ferdinand at Adrianople and the late King George of Greece at Salonica, achieving his cherished ambition.

With this fortress in the possession of King Nicholas, the powers are confronted by a new crisis. Montenegro has steadfastly refused to be coerced by the concert of Europe. She carried on the siege for weeks after Europe ordered her to stop and now, with the city in her hands, it will be very difficult to dislodge her without actual bloodshed.

The spectacle of the combined military energy of Europe taking from this little nation by force what she has won by the most tremendous sacrifices of life and treasure would not elevate the powers in the eyes of the world. No valid reason for such action has yet been put forth. The creation of an autonomous Albania everyone knows to be a farce—a surrender to the triple alliance, which is backing Austria's effort to keep Servia bottled up.

Only a few days ago an ultimatum was sent to King Nicholas of Montenegro by the commander of the blockading fleet of the powers, informing him that landing parties would be sent ashore on Montenegrin territory unless the wishes of the powers were carried out. In the meantime the Montenegrin army was continuing its operations with the greatest energy.

The long defense of the stronghold under Essad Pasha was made by an army estimated at about 10,000 men, who also had to guard the outlying stronghold of Tarakosch and other connecting works surrounding the city. This they did so well that the Montenegrins, even when they were aided by the Servians, could not make any impression until a few weeks ago, when the Servians brought up a large number of heavy siege guns which soon reduced the fire of the Turkish artillery.

Most of the civilian population remained in the city throughout the siege. The population is understood to comprise about 27,000 Mohammedans and 8000 Christians of various sects.

It was said at various times that the people of Scutari as well as the garrison were in a condition of semi-starvation, but it appears that there were considerable quantities of maize and other stores within the city and that the people suffered most from lack of vegetables.

Another disturbing feature in the Balkan situation is the growing tension between Greece and Bulgaria over the possession of Salonica. If Servia sides with Greece it is doubtful if Bulgaria could fight her way to the city.

Greek and Servian armies are of different calibre than those of Turkey. But it does not seem possible that Bulgaria would precipitate such a war. She must soon get her sons back to the grain fields or go hungry. It is more true of her than in the cases of Greece and Servia, although both the latter have had fighting enough.

CALLS UP UNDERTAKER

Coffee House Proprietor Then Ends His Life With Pistol

New York, April 24.—Tony Brailanti—"Big Tony" of the East Side—has been losing money for some time in his coffee house. Yesterday he locked the door and stuck this notice on the glass:

"Closed on account of death in the family."

Then he called up an undertaker. When the call was answered, Tony was found on the floor with a pistol in his hand—dead.

AFTER MANUEL'S MARRIAGE

Powers May Attempt to Set Up a Monarchy In Portugal

London, April 24.—That the coming marriage of ex-King Manuel of Portugal and Princess Auguste Victoria will be followed by a concerted effort on the part of the European powers to re-establish a monarchy in Portugal is the belief of many who have followed the career of the ex-king since his dethronement.

The bride-to-be is 23 years old and the eldest child and only daughter of Prince William Hohenzollern, head of the non-reigning Catholic branch of the family. Ex-King Manuel is now visiting his bride-to-be at Sigmarlingen, the family castle on the Danube.

JUDGE IS RECALLED BY WOMEN'S VOTES

San Francisco Official Was Accused of Incompetency

San Francisco, April 24.—The first application of California's new law for the recall of judiciary has been successful. By a margin of 815 votes, Police Judge Weller, accused of incompetency, was removed from office at a special election here.

Wiley F. Crist, an attorney, put forward by women voters, who were chiefly active in the campaign, was named as Weller's successor. The total vote was less than 61,000, while the city's normal vote is over 100,000.

RAILWAY MAIL SHAKEUP

Burleson Plans Sweeping Changes In Heads of Divisions

Washington, April 24.—Postmaster General Burleson is said to be contemplating a general shakeup in the railway mail service, and the heads of divisions in that branch of the post-office department are nervously awaiting the departmental earthquake. The changes, it is intimated, will not affect the 17,500 railway postal clerks who travel over the various railroads throughout the country.

Members of the congressional committees having to do with the department have recommended the appointment of James T. Canfield of New York as general superintendent of the railway mail service to succeed the present incumbent, Theodore Ingalls.

While Burleson has made no promises, he is said to have intimated that he would undertake a sweeping change in the railway mail personnel "as soon as he could get around to it." Pressure of other matters has been so great, he said, that action has been deferred.

CANAL OPEN IN OCTOBER

Culebra Cut and Locks Will Be Completed by That Time

Washington, April 24.—Colonel Goethals, chief engineer of the Panama canal, says he may be able to admit Explorer Amundsen's ship, Fram, to the new waterway before the end of the year. He said:

"The present schedule contemplates admitting the water into Culebra cut in October and the completion of one flight of locks at either end of the canal by that same date. It is hoped we will be able to pass the Fram before the close of 1913."

Colonel TODHUNTER of Missouri

By RIPLEY D. SAUNDERS

Copyright, 1911, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company.

SYNOPSIS

Colonel Todhunter backs his friend William J. Strickland for the nomination for governor. Tom Strickland, son of William, loves Mary Todhunter. Lottie-May Doggett loves Tom.

Stamford Tucker pays attention to Mary. He and Tom are rivals. They clash at the Todhunters'.

A political rally of Strickland's supporters is interrupted by the Yancey men, led by Stam. His father, Eph Tucker, is Yancey's main supporter in Nineveh.

Tom and Stam quarrel about Lottie May, to whom Stam is attentive. Colonel Todhunter and Eph Tucker meet in the office of the Nineveh Blade.

Dick Cantrill, editor of the Blade, defeats one of Tucker's "low down" tricks. Old Mirandy, one of Colonel Todhunter's negro dependents, living near the Doggetts, tells the colonel of Stam's visits to Lottie-May.

In a wrangle Tom knocks Stam down. Colonel Todhunter is to indorse Strickland's note for $3,000 to meet campaign expenses.

Eph Tucker accepts the note. In St. Louis the newspaper men "write up" Colonel Todhunter, who is campaigning, to make much of his picturesque personality.

The colonel's speech takes the city partisans by storm. Tom proposes to Mary and is accepted.

Tom Strickland lifted one clinched hand and smote it savagely into the open palm of the other.

"Nobody but Stam Tucker!" he cried. "He'll know it's the truth and he'll know that Lottie-May told me because she was trying to make me his rival. And he's got to confess that it's the truth—by God, I'll kill him if he don't!"

"Stop right there, Tom!" exclaimed Colonel Todhunter sternly. "You're makin' the biggest fool of yourself that's possible on all this earth to a man in your fix, suh!"

"Fool or no fool," cried Tom Strickland, "I'm not going to let this thing lay at my door when I know the guilty man, and know, besides, he wouldn't ask nothing better'n for Miss Mary to throw me over on account of this so that he could marry her. That's the situation, Colonel Todhunter, and no man fit to be called a man would let Stam Tucker go free!"

"If you go lookin' for Stam Tucker now, Tom," said Colonel Todhunter quietly, "there'll be a shootin' scrape in less'n two minutes after you two come together and somebody's mighty apt to get killed. If it's you, the difficulty ain't helped you any that I can see. If it's Stam Tucker, then you're worse off'n ever, because he'll be dead and you'll be held for killin' him and Lottie-May Doggett's accusation will stand against you. Have some sense, my boy, before it's too late."

Tom Strickland laughed at the words. "I'll have sense enough," he retorted. "I'll see that Stam Tucker don't profit by this thing. And there's only one way to see to it—and that's by having it out with Stam Tucker himself and making him tell the truth. You can't interfere in this matter, sir, even though you are Miss Mary's father. No third party can take a hand in it, sir."

Colonel Todhunter contemplated the speaker earnestly for a moment. Then he nodded.

"You're right, Tom," he conceded. "I reckon you'n Stam Tucker'll have to sift this out between you, and th' ain't nobody else can lift a finger. But I've just got one favor to ask of you before you go any further, my boy."

"What's that, sir?" asked Tom. "I don't mean to be disrespectful, colonel, and I'm willing to meet you as far as I can, but you see now just how things are between Stam Tucker and me."

"I'm not saying another word," answered Colonel Todhunter. "The only thing I want you to do, Tom, is not to go lookin' for Stam Tucker tonight. In the first place, he's right here, and you ain't got no business runnin' the chance of provokin' a serious personal difficulty where there's women, and in the second place, you'd better get a night's sleep for your own good, Tom. I'm talkin' plain to you, my boy, because a good deal depends on it. The chances are a million to one that there'll be some shootin' before you'n Stam Tucker get through with your argument, and a cool head and a steady hand are mighty useful things to have at such a time."

"I'm cool enough, sir," replied Tom Strickland.

But the colonel shook his head. "Tom," he said, "I want you to promise me to go quietly home right now and go to bed. After tonight the game's in your own hands, and you can play it any way you see fit. This is all I'm goin' to ask of you. Go home and get a good night's rest, Tom." There was just the least shake in the speaker's voice.

Tom Strickland hesitated.

"Go home, Tom," said Colonel Todhunter. "I wouldn't be a true friend of your father if I let you take any foolish chances in an affair of this kind. And I'm thinkin' of Mary, too, when I say this. You go home now."

The colonel's grim lips were trembling a little.

Tom Strickland nodded. "All right, colonel," he spoke finally. "I'll go home. I won't try to do anything further until tomorrow, sir."

"That's all I ask, Tom," replied the colonel.

But he saw to it that the younger man got away from the perilous scene without being subjected to temptation that might compel him to break his word. And then, knowing that Tom Strickland was safely on the road home, Colonel Todhunter looked up Sim Birdsong without losing a moment's time.

"Sim," he said, "I want you to see Stam Tucker tonight without fail and tell him not to come into town to morrow. Just say this to him—that Tom Strickland's lookin' for him on account o' this here Lottie-May Doggett business and there's a-goin' to be trouble if they meet, and then you come back here and tell me what he says. I'm tryin' to prevent a shootin' scrape, Sim, and this is the only way I can see to do it."

"All right, colonel," replied Sim. "I'll look up Stam Tucker right away and deliver your message, then I'll report to you again, suh."

"I'll just be eternally condemned," communed Colonel Todhunter to himself when Sim had departed on his mission, "if any other man meddled in a serious private difficulty of mine like I'm meddlin' in this of Tom Strickland's I'd tell him in pretty plain language what I thought of his interference, even if I was engaged to his daughter. But I ain't got no choice in the matter. I want to save Tom and keep Mary's heart from bein' broken, and I want to save old Bill Strickland from such a tragedy as this would be, and I've got to take the bull by the horns to do it. I'll keep those two young fools apart if I've got to break my neck a-doin' it!"

Sim Birdsong was not gone long. "Well, colonel," he said upon returning, "I've just seen Stam Tucker and told him what you said, and he told me to say to you that he wouldn't come in town at all tomorrow. Says he don't want to have any trouble with Tom Strickland now if he can help it, because it would be serious trouble, and he ain't in the humor for it just at present."

"Sim," asked the colonel, "what did Stam do or say when you told him that it was on account of Lottie-May that Tom was lookin' for him?"

"Colonel Todhunter," replied Sim, "he got white clean to his lips. I never saw a man's face go white as quick as his'n. But he didn't make no comment on that part of the message, suh. He just stood still for a minute when I got through, and then he told me what I've just said to you."

A look of deep relief sprang into Colonel Todhunter's face. "That's all right, then," he spoke. "And it tells me what I wanted to know. Now, Sim, I'm goin' to ask you if you can't contrive some plan that'll take Stam Tucker away from Nineveh and keep him away for a few days at least. If we can do that, Sim, we may be able to prevent the trouble altogether."

Sim Birdsong looked at the speaker with something of helpless bewilderment in his honest eyes. Then, suddenly, his face brightened.

"I-crackey, I've got it!" he exclaimed. "Some of the boys was arrangin' this very night for a fishin' frolic down on Black Bottoms lake, and they planned to start before sunrise day after tomorrow. I'll make 'em count Stam Tucker in on the deal, and I'll go out to the Tuckers' and give him their invitation myself tomorrow and see that he consents to go. Then, colonel, all we've got to do is just keep him and Tom apart for one day and night—and we've turned the trick!"

"Bully for you, Sim!" approved the colonel. "It begins to look like we can see this thing through to a sensible finish, and that's a blamed sight more than it looked like to me a few minutes ago, I can tell you!"

CHAPTER XI.

Tragedy on the Road.

SHORTLY after noon the next day Colonel Todhunter stopped in at the Stricklands' on his way home, as was not unusual for him to do. In reply to an apparently careless question, Margaret Strickland, Tom's eldest sister, told him that Tom had gone into town soon after breakfast.

Colonel Todhunter returned into Nineveh at once, after explaining to Margaret Strickland that he had forgotten to execute certain housekeeping missions for Mrs. Todhunter before driving out. But he found no trace of Tom Strickland until he came to a certain barroom frequented mainly by the Yancey and Tucker factions in politics.

"Colonel," said the bartender, in answer to a question, "Tom Strickland was in here, sir, about two hours ago, lookin' for Stam Tucker. Not findin' him, and waitin' here quite awhile in hopes of his turnin' up, he wrote a note yonder at that table and sent it out by one of the town boys to Stam's house. Then he went away, sir."

"Have you any idea where he went?"

The bartender hesitated for a moment. Then: "Well, Colonel Todhunter," he said at last, "I believe, from the way he was talkin', that he went to see that girl, Lottie-May Doggett, that the scandal's about now, sir. He was drinkin' pretty heavy, colonel, and he talked pretty threatenin' about Stam Tucker, and it seemed to me that the two things was connected in some way—his trouble with Stam and his trouble with the girl. I'm inclined to think there's a difficulty brewin', colonel!"

Leaving the barroom, Colonel Todhunter drove directly out to old Rafe Doggett's place. Neither the girl nor her grandfather was at home. Returning into Nineveh he encountered Sim Birdsong, who wore an anxious face.

"I've just seen Stam Tucker, suh!" cried Sim. "We aren't a bit too soon in layin' our plans to prevent trouble, Colonel Todhunter. He's just got a note from Tom Strickland tellin' him to come into town tonight if he don't want to have serious trouble at his own home instead, so it's plain that Tom Strickland's on the warpath, suh."

"What's Stam Tucker goin' to do?"

"He ain't goin' into town, colonel. He told me that he had an engagement to call on a young lady, so he wouldn't be at home anyway if Tom came there lookin' for him, and, besides, he says he'll do most anything to prevent trouble just at this time. He's as anxious to get away on that fishin' frolic as we are to have him get away, Colonel Todhunter."

"I'm powerful glad to hear it," commented the colonel. "Well, with Stam Tucker not goin' into town and not stayin' at home and Tom Strickland not knowin' where he's to be found, I reckon things are pretty tolerable safe for tonight. But don't you fail to get Stam off on that fishing jaunt before daybreak tomorrow, Sim."

"I won't, suh," promised Sim Birdsong earnestly. "I'll get him if I have to drag him by the scruff o' the neck!"

Arising early the next morning, Colonel Todhunter drew in a deep breath of fresh air, grateful of soul.

"Thank the Lord!" he said to himself. "Stam Tucker's gone with Sim and the other boys, and we've got a few days' breathin' time anyway before there's any further danger."

But even as Colonel Todhunter thus spoke young Stamford Tucker lay dead at home. He had been shot the night before, and Tom Strickland now was held a prisoner in the little Nineveh jail accused of his murder.

A messenger bearing these dreadful tidings arrived as the colonel stood on the front gallery enjoying the freshness of the morning. He came from Tom Strickland himself.

Colonel Todhunter received the news in silence, his gray brows bent until his eyes were but two glints of metallic blue gray beneath, his grim lips set in an inflexible line.

"Tell Tom I'll be with him right away," he said at the story's completion. "And tell him to keep his courage up—I'm going to do everything I can for him."

A COMMON ERROR

The Same Mistake Is Made By Many Quincy People.

It's a common error.
To plaster the aching back,
To rub with liniments, rheumatic joints,
If the trouble comes from the kidneys.
Doan's Kidney Pills are for kidney ills,
And are endorsed by Quincy citizens.

Mrs. F. Curtis, 18 Quarry St., Quincy, Mass., says: "We used Doan's Kidney Pills in our family with good results and in 1908 publicly endorsed them. At the present time, I am pleased to confirm that statement. A member of my family was in bad shape from kidney complaint. He used plasters and several well-known remedies, but did not improve until he began taking Doan's Kidney Pills. They effected a cure in two weeks and restored him to better health than he had enjoyed for years. I have also taken Doan's Kidney Pills myself and have found them excellent for strengthening the kidneys."

LINCOLN WON BY RALLY IN 9TH

Hancock Held Them to a Tie For Eight Innings

IN PITCHER'S BATTLE

With the aid of a ninth inning rally the Lincoln school nine defeated the Hancock team in a well fought game on the Ward Three playgrounds by a score of 6 to 3. From the fifth inning on until the first of the ninth the score was a tie 3 to 3. Finally the Lincoln players found Pitcher O'Brien's curves and hit the ball in a lively manner about the field for a gain of three runs.

The game was entirely a battle between Pitcher Anderson, for Lincoln and O'Brien for Hancock, very few hits being made of either.

The score by innings:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Lincoln	1	0	2	0	0	0	0	0	3—6
Hancock	0	1	1	0	1	0	0	0	0—3

The batteries: Lincoln school, Anderson and Zavatoni; Hancock School, O'Brien and Emery. Umpire Principal Wilson.

GRANITE STREET BEATEN

The Y. M. H. A. Jr., defeated the Granite street team in a very close game of base ball, yesterday.

The batteries were Rosenburg and Grossman for the Y. M. H. A., Jr., and Gorman and Tinney for the Granite streets.

Another game will be played Saturday at the Ward 3 playgrounds in which the Granite streets hope to secure a better umpire.

SQUANTUMITES ARE FEARFUL

Will Get In Their Objections to Dance Halls Early

A COMMITTEE HEARING

At the council chamber this evening the committee on licenses will give a hearing on the application of Frank A. Harriman for an innholders license for Squantum Inn. A large delegation of Squantumites are planning to attend and protest vigorously against the granting of a license to conduct a public dance hall and a shooting gallery at the Inn.

At the present time no request for such has been filed by the applicant, the only application bearing his name being one petitioning for an inn holders license.

Dance Hall and shooting gallery licenses are within the province of the executive department and are granted by Mayor Stone. It is probable that the delegation will make their objections known to the committee so that they will know that Squantumites favor a conditional grant to Mr. Harriman.

At any rate there will be some excitement in the chamber when the progressive residents of that section appear.

ADDITION TO POINT SCHOOL

To Make More Rooms and a Hall Requested

BY PEOPLE OF DISTRICT

Nearly 50 interested citizens of Quincy Point, many of them members of the Washington School Parents-Teachers Association attended the public hearing given their petition for a school hall before the committee on public buildings in the council chamber Wednesday evening. All manner of projects were introduced by the speakers, the general trend being an addition to the school which will be large enough for three or four rooms on the first floor and a good sized assembly hall on the second floor. This is the first concerted move on the part of Quincy Point parents towards remedying the crowded school.

WIDOW GETS YEAR'S PAY

Legislature Acts on Death of J. Walter Cropper

STATE HOUSE EMPLOYEE

(Special to the Ledger)

State House, April 23. The House Committee on Rules today admitted the resolve that the State shall pay to the widow of J. Walter Cropper, of Wollaston, an amount equal to the amount Mr. Cropper would have received had he lived the entire fiscal year.

The resolve will now go to the committee on Ways and Means but there is no doubt of its ultimate passage as the House is unanimously in favor of it.

The measure as reported by the Rules Committee reads as follows: "Be it resolved, that there be allowed and paid out of the treasury of the Commonwealth to Alice J. Cropper, of Wollaston, widow of J. Walter Cropper, who was employed about the State House in various capacities for seventeen years, the sum of $684.45, being the sum said Cropper would have been entitled to had he lived to complete the present fiscal year."

In addition to this amount, Mrs. Cropper will receive a sum of over $200 which was raised by private subscriptions among members of the legislature, State House employees and members of the State House Press Association, Mr. Cropper was especially popular with the newspaper men, they being the ones to benefit by his accommodating manners and favors while working at all hours of the night in the State House. Mr. Cropper was night watchman at the time of his death, a week ago.

The Misses Annabelle Jane Hersey, Margaret Fogarty, Marie Morrissey and Catherine Harkins of the office of the Citizens Gas Light Co., formed a theatre party that attended the Chocolate Soldier, Wednesday evening.

QUINCY HIGH WHITEWASHED

Andrews Only One to Secure a Hit Off Conlon

SOME PRUNING NECESSARY

Quincy High received a 7 to 0 trimming at Newton Wednesday afternoon from the strong Newton High school. "Les" Andrews negotiated the only hit off Conlon, the winning pitcher. Newton registered only four hits off of Andrews, but they were timely. The game on Quincys part was slightly dissappointing since it was thought that the positions of the men would practically remain as they are. However, there will probably be another shaking up to secure a perfectly balanced team.

Coach Mansur is certain that the material is on the diamond and looks for a steady development on the part of the players. At the present time he is handicapped with inexperienced men, who while able to play the game, became nervous. After the elimination of a few of these minor ills which trouble all teams he expects to see Quincy High travel at a rapid rate towards the top notch of state base ball. The score:

Runs made by O'Neil 3, Bryson, Wauska, White, Hyatt. Two-base hits, Hyatt, O'Neil. Stolen bases, O'Neil 2, Wauska, Andrews. Base on balls, by Conlon 3, by Andrews 4. Struck out by Conlon 10, by Andrews 5. Sacrifice hit, Donnelly. Hit by pitched ball, Bryson. Wild pitches, Andrews 2. Passed balls, Hanlen 2. Umpire Hyslop. Time 1h 30m.

"Les" Andrews who was in the pitchers box for Quincy had a bad case of stage fright during the first three innings and through his wildness and a few bad throws by P. Larkin and Price Newton made five runs. Andrews settled down after the third inning and pitched a fine game, allowing only five hits and getting his share of the strikeouts. He showed that before the season closes he will measure up to the standards of the fast slab artists in school boys ranks.

None of the Quincy men had their batting eye with them. Sam Prout, although hitting the ball heavy swats every time he faced the pitcher seemed to be unable to connect for a safety and he was the only man on the Quincy team that did not strike out.

Light practice is on the bill for the day and the Hingham nine will play Quincy at Merrymount Park Friday afternoon.

COLLECTIONS IDENTICAL.

At the session of the First Church of Christ Scientist of Quincy, Wednesday night, a collection was taken up for the members of that church who suffered from the floods of the middle west. The sum of $96 was taken up and the leader put in $5 making a total of $101.

It was rather a strange coincidence that at a previous meetung when a collection was taken up for the same object, the results were identically the same, $96 in the collection and $5 was added making the total $101.

MANY PLAN TO ATTEND HEARING

Before Railroad Commissioners on the Grade Crossings

Many plan to attend the adjourned hearing before the Railroad Commissioners at their office in Boston tomorrow morning at 10.30. The proposed grade of the railroad is not clearly understood by everybody.

The commissioners' decree for abolishing the grade crossing at Saville and Water streets does not propose to change the grade of the railroad between Saville street and Neponset but just south of the Quincy depot near the Hancock cemetery, the grade begins to rise toward Braintree.

At Granite street the tracks will be raised two feet, at School street, eight feet, and at Water street eight feet, reaching the present grade near Lawry street.

The Saville street crossing will be closed. Upland road will be extended to Granite street. Water street will be carried under the railroad and also under the new way leading to the freight yard where the crane is located.

IN THE ARTILLERY.

Cards have been received from Arthur O'Neil of this city who is in Guantanamo with the United States Artillery. He was in the Philippines for a full enlistment and after a brief absence re-enlisted in the Artillery. He reports that his health is good.

Friday afternoon and evening a May basket and candy sale will be held in the Christ Church Parish House by the St. Margarets Guild. The affair is under the direction of the members who have made the baskets and candies which will be on sale.

BOULDER OF TWENTY TON

To Be Converted Into A Mammoth Polished Ball

JOB TO MOVE IT

Edward J. Sandberg, the contractor moved an unusually large boulder Thursday from the Bay View quarry, formerly known as the Field & Wild quarry to the plant of Andrew Milne at South Quincy. The boulder or block weighed in the rough twenty tons and is to be turned at the plant of Mr. Milne into a large ball. Twelve horses were required to draw the load and a pair of oxen was used in luffing the load around corners. The stone was too large to get into the turning mill until it had been roughed down. It was therefore left in the yard at Mr. Milne's plant.

CITY OFFICIALS ANNUAL DINNER

Pronounced Cooking at the City Home Excellent

The City Officials, that is a few of the higher ones had their annual dinner at the Quincy Home Thursday noon and sampled the cooking which Mrs. Vaughn the matron puts out for the unfortunates. The party including Overseer of the Poor James H. Elcock, Mayor Stone, City Treasurer Tilden, City Clerk Crane, Commissioner of Public Works Tupper, City Engineer Sargent. Tax Collector Sandberg and possibly some lesser lights whose faces could not be seen for the dust they raised as they hurried down Coddington street. The dinner was pronounced a most excellent one and was thoroughly enjoyed by all. After dinner as usual on such occasions there was a little shop talk and the smoke that rolled up from the cigars as they wended their way back to City Hall gave the appearance for a moment of the smoke from a conflagration in their direction.

WOLLASTON ASSOCIATION

Acted Promptly on Tunnel Need and Mosquitoes

BIG TIME PLANNED

The Wollaston Citizens Association held a largely attended meeting in Brasee's hall, Thursday night and took steps towards the establishment of a tunnel at Wollaston and for the extermination of the mosquitoes. There was considerable discussion on both subjects the speakers setting forth pretty strongly reasons for the success which should attend both movements. It was voted that a special committee to be appointed later by the president be appointed to wait on the City council and urge the need of the subway as suggested.

On motion of vice president Robinson it was voted that a special committee be appointed to exercise full powers in the effort to have the pools at Wollaston drained and otherwise treated to prevent as far as possible the mosquito pest. The president appointed on that committee, William E. Robinson, chairman, A. L. Baker, H. F. Weston, Herbert Low, Milton Burton and M. S. Burns.

The association plans to hold a big affair, May 30, at which members of other associations of Wollaston will be invited. The ladies will be special guests on this occasion. A fine array of speakers and an entertainment will be provided. All the ministers of Wollaston are honorary members of the Citizens Association will full powers.

MANY CITIZENS DISAPPOINTED WHEN GRADE HEARING POSTPONED

Gus Bates Accused Mayor Stone of Betraying People of Quincy

Mayor Claimed Bates Was Guided by Personal Interest

A big surprise and disappointment was sprung on Quincy people this morning when they attended in large numbers the adjourned hearing of the Railroad Commissioners on the decree for abolishing the grade crossings at Saville street and Water street in Boston.

The chairman of the board announced at the outset, that Charles B. Breed, the consulting engineer of the city of Quincy, had notified them that it was impossible for him to attend as requested by the board.

J. J. McAnarney, Esq., appeared for his brother, City Solicitor John W. McAnarney, and announced that the later was in court and also unable to attend.

After a conference the chairman announced that it was very important that these two gentlemen should be present; that he was sorry to disappoint so many who were in attendance; but it was necessary to adjourn the hearing, which he did until Monday, May 5, at 2.30 P. M.

Mayor Stone entered the room only in time to hear the announcement of adjournment. To a Daily Ledger representative he said he did not see the necessity of the postponement. He knew but little of Engineer Breed, and had had no dealings with him since he became Mayor in January 1912.

Counsel Benton addressed the board after adjournment, and said he should object at the adjourned hearing to the introduction of any evidence for a change of the decree.

Col. Benton then approached the desk where President Hamilton of the Board of Trade was busy tabulating a stack of petitions, and remarked that he should object to the introduction of them.

A lively tilt followed between the two men. President Hamilton said it had come to a pretty pass when the people of the city had nothing to say how a railroad should be run through their city. The petitions will certainly be introduced, and they should be.

Col. Benton said:—"I don't know why you are so antagonistic to me."

Mr. Hamilton replied— "Because you were antagonistic to me at the last hearing.

The petitions in question bear the names of 761 people, of whom 757 signed as favoring depression of tracks and only 4 in favor of elevation of tracks.

last hearing."

Before leaving the room G. B. Bates and Mayor Stone got into a heated argument. The former accused the Mayor of betraying the people, while Mayor Stone said Mr. Bates had queered the whole thing by stamping his name on the Board of Trade plans. The Mayor argued that Mr. Bates was sore because of his personal interest. That the depression plan would favor him financially. Mr. Bates denied this, but the argument continued for some time.

C. W. Guy Plans May Day Festival For Children

C. W. Guy of Rose Lawn has recently purchased a large number of packages of German flower seeds, about 300 packages in all. These packages each contain about seventy-five varieties of flowers and usually retail for seventy five cents. These he proposes to give away to the children who visit his lawn on May day. On that same day David J. Roach will give away to the lady visitors a barrel of dahlias. Mr. Guy has recently set out a large number of tropical trees at Rose Lawn and an inspection of these are well worthy of a visit.

DISTRICT COURT.

Sam Hinden was sent to the state farm for being a tramp at Milton.

John McKay was sentenced to two months in the house of correction for drunkenness at Quincy.

The continued case of Angelo Carnoni of Weymouth for assault with intent to murder was called and again continued until May 16, as the victim of the assault is still in the hospital.

WILL COUNCIL SUSPEND RULES?

To Act on Pony Express Licenses Previously Refused

It was rumored about City Square this morning that Mayor Stone is to call a special meeting of the City Council for next Monday evening. It is said that the purpose of the meeting is to act on the matter of granting the Adams Express Co., W. F. Loud & Son and N. T. Murphy permits to transport liquor and on the matter of the approval of the certificate of incorporation of the Quincy Tennis club. The only way in which the applications of these people can come before the meeting is on suspension of the rules and it requires a two thirds vote of members present and voting.

BEHIND CLOSED DOORS.

Inquests were held before Judge Avery this morning on the deaths of James Kelley who was killed at the Fore River yard about a month ago and on the death of Bradford C. Jones who was killed by the cars at the Wollaston station on the evening of April 11. Both inquests were held in private the witnesses being examined separately.

"I Like to Trade at Foy's Store"

Said a Well-known Club Woman a Few Days Ago.

"First because it is the cleanest market in Quincy, second because as soon as anything new appears in any of the magazines, if it is good, Foy has it; third, because it is always delivered when promised." The friend to whom this was told knew it was an honest statement and wanted us to know that thinking women appreciated the quality, the up-to-dateness and the promptness of our service.

Now About the Second Reason

Our constant aim is to make this store a better one, a more desirable source of supply, an efficient aid to thrifty housewives. And to keep up-to-date we are constantly searching the market for new goods—goods that we test personally for quality and desirability, and if it comes up to our idea of being a standard, it is promptly put in stock and offered to the public. For instance;

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Society has invented another queer dance called the Kitchen sink. All the fancy foibles do not emanate in the public dance hall.

Scutari has fallen and Europe is in quandary what to do with the intrepid ruler of the little nation who defied the big six.

Each and all are fearful of the momentous move on the political checker board which may precipitate a general war.

Bryan has had his "crown of thorns and cross of gold." It is the olive branch that he is flourishing at this time.

A soup spot cost a fashionable hotel $25, but of what good is the $300 dress to the wearer when she declares it will not go within four inches around her waist and is even shorter than the latest fad in that direction.

The Ellis milk bill has again been rejected by the house. If it is a good measure to safeguard the health then the appeals of the venders should have had very little weight in defeating it.

One congressman predicts a Progressive victory if the Democrats persist in passing their proposed tariff measure. The Bull Moosers cut quite a swath in the last election and with any business disturbance there is no knowing where they will land next time.

Gov. Foss wisely vetoed the police listing bill on the ground that it might make police stations political headquarters.

One congressman is all stirred up over a base ball trust. The fight between a base ball president and a player over salary is of little consequence compared with the many monumental evils which exist and by which thousands are injured. The congressman could easily obtain more commendable pursuits for his unwonted energy.

And speaking of base ball it must be refreshing to those who like to keep intelligent tabs on the National game to find that the games are reported in almost human and understandable English, this season much more so than they were before.

Boston has 1216 more adults than in 1912 and one paper comments on it as strange. It would be peculiar indeed if in a city the size of Boston, more than 1000 young men had not reached their majority or the assessable age in a year.

According to reports from across the water the German manipulators know a trick or two of boosting up prices.

The fellow who made his escape through the roof of jail van did not fly very high but he got there.

The national Federation of Musical clubs for a censor of all songs. Not a bad idea, but the public should be intelligent enough to pass its justifiable verdict on some of the trash that is handed out those days yet gains popularity.

An English judge would send the militants on a sailing ship. Was he thinking of the "Houseboat on the Styx?"

THE KITCHEN SINK.

The "Kitchen Sink," that is the latest application of that term does not apply to that necessary adjunct to every well regulated house, but means a new kind of dance. The name is not one that literary men would conjure with. It is not a title which would bring enduring fame to its author. The "kitchen sink," is another of the dances which are products of people who surfeited with the ordinary things in life and tiring of the luxuries which surround them and their satiated natures cry out for something to stem the craving for excitment, something new, something out of the ordinary, something that will give them a brief if not wholly sweet scented notoriety.

Every little while a reformer sets forth a screech against the public dance halls, as the source of all evil. Undoubtedly they are not as free from stain as people would like to have them, but on the whole the people who attend them have not the inventive genius for novelties as the more favored wealthy social class and they derive their innovations in imitating this favored class. All the objectionable dances, all of the objectionable things which crowd into the every day life do not originate in the public dance hall. The idle rich, society people and the like are responsible for the new things which are not all good. Let the reforms be universal. Let the condemnation be as widespread as possible and clip the foolish idea of people who have money and social position that they can do things which go uncondemned, while their less fortunate fellows are held up as examples and there would be less of this senseless creation and greater good to the country at large.

THE BASE BALL TRUST.

Growing out of the trouble between a Detroit player and the president of that club over salary, a United States congressman has arisen and in stentorian tones demands an investigation of the base ball trust. He is stirred by the alleged injustice done to his fellow citizens. Did this same congressman ever give thought to the injustice which it is alleged is being done to thousands of people in the south? Does he approve of the manner in which the colored people are deprived of rights? Has he considered to look into the condition of the "poor whites," and endeavor to elevate them from the degraded position they occupy or has he even given ear to the factory conditions which are said to exist in some states below Mason and Dixon's line? If he has he has not found it convenient to demand a congressional investigation for any improvement in those departments. But a base ball player who stands out $15,000 for a part of the year, and whose record on and off the field is hardly in keeping with that of a church deacon must have justice. Let the congressman bestir himself in other channels and seek out pathways for his virtuous indignation where the clamor is really louder and demands more claim upon humanity but which sad to relate does not get so much publicity or consideration.

THE RAILWAY DOLLAR.

A pamphlet on Railway Statistics of the United States for 1912, published by Slason Thompson of the bureau of railway news and statistics, has a chart showing the distribution of the railway dollar, the money expended during the year by all the railroads of the country. This shows that much the larger proportion, or 44.17 per cent., is paid for labor; 8.93 per cent. for fuel and oil; 14.05 per cent. for materials, supplies and miscellaneous expenses; 2.20 per cent. for loss and damage; 4.21 per cent. for taxes; 3.75 per cent for betterments, deficits and deductions; 4.84 per cent. for dividends; 4.41 per cent. for rents for the leased roads, and 13.43 per cent for interest on funded debt, etc. Of the entire amount, 73.59 per cent. was spent for operating expenses and 26.93 per cent for other expenses, including betterments, etc., dividends, rent for leased roads and interest on funded debt, etc.

McDEVITT STILL WITHOUT A WORD

As to His Intentions Regarding Apology to Senate

GREENWOOD FIRST

State Senator John J. McDevitt, suspended from the state Senate March 13, and who on his departure therefrom declared emphatically that he would "never apologize for telling the truth," was asked yesterday if he was preparing to go back to the Senate Thursday, when his term of suspension ends, and make apology.

His reply, reluctantly given, was: "I must decline to answer that question. Courtesy demands that I shall first inform President Greenwood of the Senate of my proposed course, before informing the public."

SUCCESSFUL AND UNIQUE AFFAIR

Carnival of Nations Auspiciously Opened at Park and Downs Vestry

The "Carnival of Nations" which opened auspiciously in the Park and Downs Vestry Wednesday afternoon and continued through Thursday evening and was one of the most successful affairs held at the church.

Under the auspices of the Womens Missionary Society this unique bazaar attracted extended patronage. Miss Catherine Robinson is the president of the society.

Each of the booths represented some nation and was decorated appropriately. An entertainment bringing in many of the nationalities was enjoyed in the evening.

Songs of the nations were sung by the young people in native costume. Monologues by Thomas Breen and Clark W. Criton were among the hits of the evening.

Miss Freda Klingenhagen was pianist for the evening. Maybelle Atkins, Geraldine Scott and Hazel Hendrie sang "Three little maids from school" in Japanese costume while six young men in German attire sang "Johnny Schmoker."

In the American number Mrs. Walter Dey represented Columbia, Willard Atkins, Uncle Sam, Blanche Morris, Dixie and Clara Coombs, Indian Maiden.

Mabel Stuart was in Russian costume while Lydia O'Neil, Alma Kilpatrick and Ethel Axberg represented Holland and sang a Dutch song.

Myrle Daniels as a Swiss Maiden sang "The Waterfall" while Allen Painten as a toreador sang a Spanish song. Natalie Scott was a French Girl and Mabel Doring also took part.

The candy table represented Japan and was gaily decked with the peach blossoms and Japanese lanterns. In charge were Mrs. Frank Knowlton, Mrs. A. J. Podbury, Mrs. Fred Robinson and Mrs. Victor Harrie.

Shamrocks and decorations of green and white depicted Ireland at the fancy table. Here were Mrs. Amory Waite, Mrs. Nichols, Mrs. F. C. Blake, Mrs. F. J. Brown and Mrs. Marden.

The Great Britain table was hung with May baskets and had Mrs. Chas. A. Richardson and Mrs. Helen Boynton in charge.

Tea and coffee were served in the United States booth which was alive with the national colors. Here Mrs. James A. Boone, Mrs. Charles L. Gilliatt, Mrs. Eugene Blaisdell and Mrs. James A. Barney presided.

The neckwear table had France for its nation and was trimmed with the tri color. Mrs. Hill, Mrs. William J. Colby, Mrs. Millbury and Mrs. Fuller were in charge.

Mrs. Nettie Shay was at the neckwear table that claimed Spain. It was trimmed in red and yellow.

Holland was the domestic table where Madame Knowlton, Mrs. L. I. Mossman, Mrs. Zwicker, Mrs. Greer and Mrs. Bussler displayed the wares.

McDONOUGH FOR RESERVES.

The torpedo boat McDonough has been assigned by the Navy department for the use of the Massachusetts Naval Militia. The McDonough was built at the Fore River Co., ship yards

The MacDonough is 246 feet 3 inches over all, 22 feet 3 inches beam a draft of 8 feet 6 inches, and a displacement of 470 tons. Her engine capacity is 8400 horsepower and on her trial trip made May 28, 1903, she registered 28 knots. She has a coal capacity in bunkers for 200 tons, which will enable her to make 3000 knots and 1000 knots at full speed.

Her armament consists of two 14-pounders and five 6-pounders, and two torpedo tubes of 18 inches in diameter for torpedoes. The MacDonough will accommodate 76 men and five officers.

RELAYING RAILS.

The street railway company has a large gang of men at work in City Square and Hancock street relaying some of its rails and replacing some of the curves and switches, particularly that directly in front of City Hall, leading to depot street. It is also the intention of the company to take up the T rail on Washington street between Temple street and Revere road and replace it with the grooved girder rail of ninety pounds to the yard. This work will be done at the same time Commissioner Tupper rebuilds Washington street between these points.

SQUANTUMITES READY FOR FRAY

Prepared to Aid or Fight Harriman's Application

ACCORDING TO ITS NATURE

A special car load of Squantumites arrived at City Hall at 7.30 Thursday night in their fighting togs prepared to oppose in a vigorous manner any attempt to grant a license for a dance hall or shooting gallery at the Squantum Inn. There were several ladies in the party and all were filled up with hot talk which they intended to give forth if occasion demanded. The Vice President Mr. Smith however consulted with the committee before it convened. He was informed that the committee had nothing whatever to do with the granting of a license for a dance hall or shooting gallery. These matters were entirely in the hands of the Mayor. The matter which they were considering was the application of Frank A. Harriman for a license as Innholder at the Squantum Inn.

Mr. Smith said that his association was prepared to boost or to oppose the license as the case might be. If Mr. Harriman intended to come to Squantum and maintain a first class restaurant and did not intend to run a dance hall or shooting gallery they were prepared to boost and help him in every way, but if he intended to run a dance hall or shooting gallery they were prepared to fight him.

It was suggested that the association get in touch with Mr. Harriman and see what he intended to do after which they could consult the committee and inform them as to their position in the matter. This the aforesaid Squantumites said they would do and they left the hall with their faces wreathed in smiles.

LITTLE PORKER IN PINK RIBBONS

Trundled Around the City in Baby Carriage

The delightful grunts of a young porker, snuggled into an absolete baby carriage beneath prettily arranged coverings which were twisted enough for curious people to see a pink ribbon run through a little lace collar drawn tightly around its neck surprised many people in City Square Thursday afternoon. A small card bearing the announcement that the occupant was to be disposed at the Farmer's Ball of the Harmony Club in St. Mary's hall this evening hung over the sides.

The motorman of the equippage was James McDonnell and Thomas O'Brien carried a green flag, showing a degree of safety. Both wore characteristic farmers costumes, lacking the hay seed in their hair.

The Harmony Club consists of 15 young West Quincy men who planned the Farmer's Ball about a month ago in order to secure funds for a summer cottage at Nantasket Beach. The affair at this time is an assured success, the only speculation being as to whose name John Fitz of West Quincy will draw out of the pork barrel.

WOLLASTON CLUB DANCE.

Mt. Wollaston Club of Odd Fellows held a very successful dancing party in Alpha Hall, Thursday evening which was well attended. Music was furnished by Wilson orchestra.

The committee in charge consisted of Frank L. Carlton, chairman; Thomas Furnald, treasurer; Walter H. Walker, secretary; Abele Gomez, floor director; and the following aids —Charles C. Barron, Arthur Dunston, Charles Hodgkinson, Albert Marnock, Howard Andrews and Edward McDonnell.

MAKING PROGRESS.

Work was commenced in earnest Thursday cleaning City Hall. Previous to that time one man has been at work on the front and side of the hall several days and at the rate of speed at which it was being cleaned it would be somewhere in the dim future before it was completed. Tuesday however two men were put at work and considerable progress was made.

BOTH IN AND OUT AT BRAINTREE

Athletic Club Holds Events on Cinder Path and Under Cover

The annual indoor meet of the South Braintree Heights club was held in their rooms Thursday evening. Before the indoor events there was a four mile relay race and a one mile run held on the cinder path.

The relay race was won by Edward J. Cullinan and James Dillon with William Mooney and Arthur Lane in second place.

In the mile run, John Baganzi was first and Ellsworth Thayer, second.

A ten round boxing bout between Elmer Johnson and Richard Finley, resulted in Johnson being declared the winner in the ninth round.

The event of the evening was a fiercely contested wrestling bout between John Frazier and his rival Edward McDonald, the former securing the first fall in 35 minutes and the second in 19 minutes thus winning the event.

The officials of the meet were James Dillon, referee and Martin Dillon, timer. After the sports, refreshments were served and there was music by the club orchestra under the leadership of Robert Reardon. The Heights ball team, twice winners of the flag in the Sunset league will enter the league this year and will open the season by a game with Pond Street, May 5th on French's common.

A delegation will go to cemeteries outside of Quincy.

The committee in charge is William A. Carey, John T. Caine, Charles A. Keating, John J. Cunniff and Edward Larkin.

WHIST PARTY.

A benefit whist party and dance was held under the auspices of the Quincy Odd Ladies, M. U., in Clan McGregor Hall, Thursday evening. A large crowd attended the affair. The following were awarded whist trophies: Harlie Smith, 55; George Craig 49; Mrs. A. E. Bredros 48; Katherine F. Gorman, 47; A. G. Fletcher, 43 and Duncan McDonald 41. The consolation was won by M. L. Thomas. Dancing was enjoyed with Billy Provost at the piano.

As a result of the affair a neat sum will go to the Nightingale family, whose father was killed a few weeks ago by the Fire Chief's auto, on Franklin street.

BOSTON AND VICINITY

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

"The Wife" is one of the first and most popular of David Belasco's many successful plays. It was written in collaboration with Henry C. DeMille and for years it was played throughout the country by the famous Lyceum Stock Company of New York. It has been given several times at the Castle Square during the past fifteen years and it will be revived there by John Craig on Monday for a brief run of a single week.

The cast of "The Wife" at the Castle Square will be a strong one. It will introduce to Boston theatre-goers for the first time Miss Mary Keener, a talented young actress who will next week make her first appearance as a member of Mr. Craig's company. Mr. Craig will be seen as John Rutherford, and other important roles will be played by William P. Carleton, Donald Meek, Mabel Colcord and Florence Shirley.

BOSTON THEATRE.

Maclyn Arbuckle in Klaw & Erlanger's realistic production of Edmund Day's famous play, "The Round Up," which begins its sixth week at the Boston theatre on Monday evening, continues its unbroken succession of crowded audiences. The battle scene is worked up to a climax of great excitement bringing tumultuous applause from the audience. In this scene twenty mounted Indians ride along a tortuous path at the edge of a precipice. The attack upon the two wanderers in the desert by this band and their routing by a detachment of U. S. Cavalry headed by "Slim" Hoover, the sheriff, played to the life by Maclyn Arbuckle, ends the scene with a whirlwind of hurrahs and cheers.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

A great all-star bill of features, all but one new to Boston audiences, is announced for B. F. Keith's Theatre next week, headed by Lulu McConnell and Grant Simpson in Herbert Hall Winslow's entertaining comedy, "The Right Girl." This is by far the most amusing comedy seen in vaudeville in many a day. It deals with a case of double identity, two sisters separated from childhood, who meet the same young man under extraordinary circumstances and are mistaken for each other. James and Bonnie Thornton, two of the best known entertainers of the old variety days, will make their first appearance in Boston in years at B. F. Keith's Theatre with a new act; another splendid feature new to Boston audiences will be J. OM'alley Jennings and Edna Dorman, the English Johnny and the American girl.

THE MACKAY BILL.

Editor Daily Ledger:

Your excellent editorial in Thursday's paper on the Mackay bill (House Bill 908) left out two things which ought to be stated. If the bill becomes a law a defendant's record may be used the same as before to discredit his testimony if he takes the stand. And his record may be considered on the question of sentence whether he takes the stand or not.

Whether the Senate votes to pass the bill over the Governor's veto or not, it will probably become law some day, and it might be well for you to publish it in full so that your readers may judge its merits for themselves. There seem to be a good deal of misunderstanding regarding it.

Yours truly,
Michael T. Sullivan
Represenative, Fifth Norfolk Dist.

The bill reads as follows:

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court assembled and by the authority of the same as follows:

Section 96 of Chapter 217 of the Revised Laws is hereby amended by inserting at the beginning thereof the words:—In the superior court; by striking out the word "court" in the first line and inserting in place there of the words:—presiding justice; and by adding at the end of said section the following: In police, district and municipal courts the former conviction of a defendant shall not be communicated to the judge by the Probation officer until the defendant has been found and declared guilty,—so that said section when so amended shall read as follows:—

Section 96. In the superior court every probation officer shall inform the presiding justice, so far as is possible, whether a person on trial has previously been convicted of crime. In police, district and municipal courts the former conviction of a defendant shall not be communicated to the judge by the probation officer until the defendant has been found and declared guilty."

PROCLAMATION FOR ARBOR DAY

The annual Arbor Day, the special time for planting trees will be observed Saturday. In accordance with the usual custom Gov. Foss has issued a proclamation bearing upon the same which is as follows:

In accordance with Chapter 53, Section 16, of the Revised Laws, I hereby set apart Saturday, April 26, as Arbor Day.

This statute draws attention to the planting of trees, shrubs, and vines, the promoting of forest growth and culture, and the adorning of public and private grounds, as measures which the Governor should recommend to the people. Of these several considerations the first mentioned is undoubtedly the most important.

Extensive timber growth, if properly conserved, freed from useless undergrowth, and utilized intelligently as a product of the soil, are among our most valuable assests; but their full value can be reached only through an aroused public demand for conservation.

If Arbor Day serves only to emphasize to the public consciousness the importance of maintaining our timber lands, it will accomplish a most useful purpose.

I urge upon the citizens of the State a more concerted action toward this much-desired results, and recommend that Arbor Day be observed also by planting shrubs, vines, and flowering plants as a means of adding beauty and value to private grounds.

Given at the Executive Chamber, in Boston, this sixteenth day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and thirteen, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and thirty-seventh.

EUGENE N. FOSS.

LETTER CARRIERS BIG EVENT.

Eleven hundred Letter Carriers are on the qui vive for the Annual Reunion of the Boston Letter Carriers' Mutual Benefit Association which takes place in Mechanics' Hall on May 14th, and they and their families and friends are making great preparations for one of the most enjoyable reunions ever known in the history of this popular organization.

The sale of tickets has been unprecedented and the Officers of the organization are at their wits' ends to know how to accommodate the immense crowd that they are assured will attend the event.

This reunion, although the last big semi-public dance of the year, is a very popular one, and coming so late in the season as it does, is called the marker which closes the winter's indoor festivities. After the Letter Carrier's Reunion comes the glorious out-of-doors, with the Spring's beauty and the Summer's bloom, so the devotees of the Turkey trot, the Tango dance and the Bunny hug make the most of it before writing 'Finis' at the season's end.

The men at this Station are among the most active members of the Letter Carriers' Association, and have always done their share towards the success of the Annual Reunion, and this finds them in the harness again and working harder than ever. The officers of the association are:—President, John T. Cass; Vice-president, John T. Cleary; Secretary, Charles H. Norton; Treasurer, Peter J. Cunningham, and in the local committee are Messrs:—Cornelius J. Connors, John T. Cain, John J. Cunniff, Winfield L. Jacobs.

WHAT LOVE MEANS

How Doris Lorimer Learned That One Person Had Become Very Dear.

BY M. DIBBELL.

Gilbert Farrandale had reached the age of thirty-two without ever having had a serious affair of the heart. He regarded with rather a patronizing and pitying manner those of his friends who considered a wife and home the best that life could give them.

"I would rather be free to go and come as I choose, than to be bound with the matrimonial chain," he told his friend Frank Whiting, having overtaken that young man on the street a few days before the date announced for his marriage to pretty Kitty Slocum. "I hope you will be happy, Frank, but nothing cuts like the fetters with which one has manacled himself." He smiled with the complacency of assured wisdom.

"Oh, rubbish!" retorted his unappreciative friend. "Wait till you find the right one and all the chains in creation wouldn't keep you from marrying her—if she would have you." He turned and left Gilbert, who watched his retreating form with benevolent pity.

"Poor chap, he has it bad," he said to himself, continuing on his homeward way.

Mrs. Horton, the housekeeper, had taken the best of care of the big Farrandale mansion for many years. Gilbert had come into possession of this fine old place upon the passing of his uncle, and Mrs. Horton was part of the inheritance.

Gilbert Farrandale was left an orphan, and his bachelor uncle had adopted him as his own child. Undoubtedly living all these years with a confirmed celibate had much to do with the nephew's profound knowledge on the subject of love and marriage.

Gilbert had received an invitation to young Whiting's wedding. Appointed day and hour found him waiting in the Slocum home for the coming of two foolish yooungsters, as he regarded them.

Kitty Slocum in filmy white advanced down the long room with Frank Whiting at her side. She was pretty enough to touch even a harder heart than Gilbert's. Gilbert's eyes fell next on the cousin who, with Kitty's brother, Ernest, followed the bridal pair, and the delights of bachelor freedom began suddenly to fade for him.

The clergyman joined the young people in marriage, and Gilbert was among the first to offer congratulations. Then he turned to speak with Ernest Slocum, and obtained an introduction to the cousin, the mere sight of whom had given him a new outlook on life.

Doris Lorimer was the picture of youth and happiness. Her big brown eyes were enough in themselves to have made her beautiful. She had come from her home in a distant part of the state to act as her cousin's lady in waiting, and she was to remain with the Slocum family indefinitely. Hers was the office of smoothing over the parting of Mr. and Mrs. Slocum from their only daughter.

After the Slocum household had settled back into its regular routine Gilbert Farrandale found his way there frequently, but his friends were no longer favored with anti-matrimonial lectures.

Doris always met Gilbert with perfect friendliness, but there was nothing in her manner to indicate that the arrow which had pierced his heart had even touched her own.

Gilbert was only too well aware of this fact, but he tried to reassure himself with the hope that as he really knew so little of feminine ways hers might be the usual attitude in such a case.

Finding Doris alone on the piazza one evening, about six weeks after his first meeting with her, Gilbert resolved to know his fate, and her glance of kind greeting gave him courage to say:

"Doris, I love you; will you marry me?" then he thought, "I must be crazy to put it so stupidly," and waited in an agony of apprehension for her answer.

Doris' smile broadened, and she replied calmly, "Why, Mr. Farrandale, I could not think of being so cruel as to let you manacle yourself with the fetters which cut so deeply."

Gilbert's heart seemed to sink into the earth on hearing these fateful words.

"I was a fool to say that," he declared. "I thought I was so wise when in fact I had no idea what love meant. But now I have learned. I love you, Doris. Do not punish me for ignorance—I know the truth now."

He held out his hands to her in frank appeal.

Doris' look grew kinder, but, alas there was not love for him in the brown eyes. "Love cannot be forced," she said, "and sometimes I think it is not my nature to love any one person but to care for each of those who are dear to me, and they are many."

Had Gilbert been in the right mood he might have smiled at this Minerva like utterance from one who was so plainly made for love. But he was far too much in earnest to see anything humorous in her remark.

"I shall win you away from all the others," he said positively, and here their conversation ended, the family coming out to join them.

Later as Gilbert walked homeward his thought went over the scene with Doris, and he had to acknowledge that his suit had received no encouragement. "But I shall not give up—she shall love me," he said to himself with a firm setting of the lips.

The week end brought the bride and groom and a surprise Kitty's relatives had been planning. This was the presentation of a handsome pair of saddle horses to the newly married couple with a third beautiful mount for Doris. It had long been Gilbert's habit to take a daily gallop, and it became a regular custom for the four young people to enjoy a morning ride together.

Gilbert continued his efforts to touch the affections of the little cousin, but at times he almost despaired of ever attaining the desire of his heart.

One morning in early September the four started on their usual ride, choosing a beautiful path through the woods. Doris and Gilbert rode in advance of the others, and after cantering for some distance under the dense shade of the massive oaks they slowed down.

Suddenly at the left side of the road ahead of Doris there appeared a giant hound with a broken chain dangling from his collar. He was a fierce-looking animal, and his swift and silent coming had startled them. Instantly he made a spring at the neck of Doris' horse, and the frightened beast reared backward. Doris was a good rider and retained her seat, but as her horse's fore feet touched the ground again the hound made a savage leap, and this time fastened his fangs in the shoulder of the animal.

Gilbert sprang to the ground and brought down the handle of his heavy hunting crop with all his strength upon the hound's head. The crushing blow dazed the brute, and he loosened his hold. Then he made a ferocious spring for Gilbert's throat.

"Oh, Gilbert, Gilbert!"

It was the first time Doris had ever called his name, and her love spoke in the cry. It seemed to give Gilbert superhuman strength, for as the hound leaped he struck it again with the loaded crop square on its massive head; the blow crushed through into its brain, and the furious monster dropped at his feet, lifeless.

It was a very thankful but very nerve-shaken party of four that turned homeward. The wound which the hound's teeth had given to Doris' horse was bleeding freely, and the animal was trembling from shock. Doris dismounted and Gilbert placed her upon his own mount, leading her wounded one.

"Gilbert, you are a brave man," said Frank Whiting, as they started homeward. "We all owe you a debt of gratitude for acting so promptly and so well."

"Indeed I thank you for my life," said Doris, eagerly.

"I did only what you would have done had you been nearest, Frank. And I am sorry, Miss Lorimer, that I was not in time to save your horse from all harm, though I think the wound is only a slight one, and will heal rapidly."

Gilbert received a very different answer from the first, when he next appealed to Doris for her love.

"As that awful beast sprang at you I learned that one person had become very dear to me," she said.

ANTS SHOW MUCH INGENUITY

Remarkable Thought That Is Not At All Appreciated by People Who Are Made Victims.

In the telephone system of the canal zone steel rails are used as poles. According to a correspondent of the Telephone Review wooden poles cannot be maintained any great length of time on account of the ants that will cut into a wooden pole and before long leave nothing but the shell.

Creosoted cross arms are used as a protection against these pests.

"I might relate one instance," he writes, "where even the ants discovered the value of having a telephone in the house. They had followed the twisted wires into an office building and into the bell box, which was fastened to the side of an oak veneered flat top desk.

"They bored through the bell box into the interior of the desk and had removed practically the entire pine wood of the interior, when the desk suddenly fell to pieces.

"These busy ants, in their operations, when they feel that their presence might be discovered, construct a kind of tunnel of mud extending along the floor beams for the entire length of the building and come and go through this concealed passage."

School Lunch.

One mother has procured a small earthen jar about the size of a teacup. When baking beans, she fills this and bakes them for next day's school lunch for her little daughter, says the Mother's Magazine. They are not mussy, as they are apt to be if dipped with a spoon from the family jar. Add to this a sandwich or two of thin slices of bread spread with butter, a crisp cucumber pickle wrapped in wax paper, an orange or a good apple, two or three crisp cookies, all neatly packed in a clean, well-aired lunch box, which has been lined with a paper napkin, and you have a wholesome, attractive lunch. The cup may also be used for custards, a favorite pudding, scalloped potatoes, or any baked dish that is relished cold.

Sew Eyelid on Horse.

William, a large draft horse belonging to H. G. Grey of Brooklyn, Anne Arundel county, Ind., lost his eyelid when it was caught on a hook in a stall. The parts around the eye were treated with an antiseptic and the lost eyelid was sewed on. In a short time the eye will be as good as ever.

Arbor Day Observed In Many States

Photos copyright, 1913, by American Press Association.

KING GEORGE AND QUEEN MARY OF ENGLAND PLANTING TREES

TO Nebraska belongs the credit of inaugurating Arbor day. The movement began in 1872, when the board of agriculture of that state recommended that the people should set aside a certain day to be specified by the board for planting trees. The suggestion met with popular approval. The sentiment rapidly spread to other states, with the result that Arbor day is now recognized as a national institution. In many states it is recognized as a legal holiday.

North America being the chosen home of forests, it is very proper that it should be this country that should set aside a day for the tree. No other part of the country approaches the territory lying within the United States for its forest growth. That is, such was the original condition of the country, but it has been greatly changed by the wasteful and reckless havoc wrought by the tireless energies of the pioneer and the lumberman. They needed but a trifle of the timber that was cut, and much was burned in order to provide land for tilling purposes.

The onslaught of the primitive woodman was nothing compared to the warfare waged by the modern woodman. The woodman has passed away, but the lumberman is still with us.

Tree planting for commemorative purposes has long been a custom in many countries. In connection with this article are pictures of King Edward and Queen Mary of England planting trees.

A committee was appointed to arrange for a social following the meeting on May 8. They are Mrs. Alice Killer, Mrs. S. Perkins. Mrs. Alfred Bean, Mrs. J. WHAT, INDEED?

There is a tale told of an Englishman who, arriving in New York, was taken into the subway by a friend. They boarded a local, changed to an express, and returned to a local, all on the way to their destination. The return trip was made in the same manner, hurrying all the time, and running most of it. "Why," asked the guest, all out of breath, "why" do you run about this way?" "Come on," cried the New Yorker excitedly, I save two minutes!" "But," was the reply, "what—what do you do with the two minutes?" —International.

DOES NOT MEAN BITTER.

The phrase, "to the bitter end," is explained by a writer in the New York Sun, who shows that the word does not mean bitter. He says: It is a nautical term. If you have ever been on a big ship, you must have noticed two large pieces of timber sticking up out of the deck forward, alongside each other. They sometimes have a windlass between them, and they are used to secure the anchor cable. These pieces of wood are called the "bitts."

When the ship comes to anchor and the cable is paid out, all that part of it which is abaft, or behind, the "bitts" is called the "bitter end of the cable."

PROUTY WILLING TO HEAR MELLEN

But He Will Not Accept Written Statement From Him

B. & M. NEEDS $73,000,000

Amount Required to Put That Railroad In First Class Condition—Boston Produce Exchange Drops Brandeis as Its Representative, but He Will Continue Investigation

Boston, April 25.—Interstate Commerce Commissioner Prouty refused to receive a written statement from President Mellen of the New Haven road yesterday regarding the Hampden railroad.

"If you want to bring Mr. Mellen here, I will hear him," he said to Solicitor Rich of the Boston and Maine road, "but I shall not accept any written statement from him."

This episode, combined with the appearance of a statement from the directors of the Fruit and Produce Exchange, denying the claim of Louis D. Brandeis that he is representing them as counsel, and a declaration by Chief Engineer Corthel, of the Boston and Maine that $73,000,000 is needed to put the Boston and Maine road in first class shape, were the features of the day's proceedings.

The statement showing that over $73,000,000 must be spent to put the tracks and structures of the Boston and Maine railroad in first class condition was introduced by Counsel Rich of the road.

The statement of these expenditures, constituting a recommendation for the improvements to the directors of the road, was compiled by Corthell. The statement was typewritten and designated "a statement of the expenditures necessary to put the tracks and structures of the Boston and Maine into first class condition."

These expenditures were scheduled in the statement to cover a period of six years. They have not yet been acted upon by the directors, according to Corthell.

Brandeis will continue his investigation of the New Haven's finances at the interstate commerce commission's hearing today, although he was yesterday repudiated as its legal representative by the Boston Fruit and Produce Exchange.

This was intimated by Brandeis at the close of the hearing yesterday, soon after it became known that the exchange, on whose joint petition with the Chamber of Commerce the whole investigation was undertaken by the interstate commerce commission, had sent him a letter notifying him that he should no longer consider himself their legal representative.

Commissioner Prouty said Brandeis' services in the case had been of great value to him in getting at the truth of the railroad situation, and that he hoped Brandeis would continue to appear before the commission as a citizen.

The action by which Brandeis was dismissed by the Produce Exchange was taken at a directors' meeting yesterday.

CANNOT GET JUDGMENT

New York State Likely to Drop Case Against General Sickles

Albany, April 25.—New York state probably will take no further action to recover $23,000 unaccounted for by General Daniel E. Sickles as chairman of the New York monument commission. Attorney General Carmody said last night that Sickles had failed to meet the judgment obtained by the state for the recovery of the money.

"Although numerous offers were made to aid Sickles at the time the state began action against him for the recovery of the $23,000," said Carmody, "not a dollar has yet been turned over to the state authorities for this purpose. If we are satisfied that Sickles has no assets and that we cannot recover this money, we will not press the body execution the state obtained to satisfy the judgment."

Abramovitch very severely and the princess slightly. Their machine collapsed at a height of thirty feet and dashed to the ground.

The German aviator, Dunetz, was killed earlier in the day at the Johannisthal aerodrome by falling from a considerable height when flying in his aeroplane.

AWAKES FROM LONG SLEEP

Frenchman None the Worse For His Seventy-Seven-Day Snooze

Cherbourg, France, April 25.—When Leon Jean, a ropemaker, woke up yesterday he was amazed to find himself in a hospital instead of at home. He had been asleep seventy-seven days, although he thought he had been in bed only a few hours.

Jean could not be awakened on Feb 5, and he was sent to a hospital by members of his family. The present health of the ropemaker seems to be very good.

STRANGLES FOR EIGHTEEN MINUTES

Bungling Officials Responsible For Revolting Hanging

Uniontown, Pa., April 25.—Bungling by the officers detailed to the execution of the death sentence upon John Harris, a negro, made the affair peculiarly revolting. Execution was by hanging.

The rope was nearly a yard too long for the purpose, and when the trap was sprung Harris dropped to the ground, remaining motionless upon his knees for several minutes. It was thought the drop had broken his neck until he started to rise to his feet. Then the sheriff and his deputies jumped to the scaffold and pulled up Harris' body by the rope until the feet were clear of the flooring.

For eighteen minutes the condemned man struggled and twisted, his contortions evidencing the intense agony of strangling to death.

Harris shot and killed a fellow negro last May. The execution is the twelfth in the history of the county.

Pittsburg, April 25.—There are few developments in the strike of school children against the retention of S. L. Heeter as superintendent of the city's public school system. A great number of children remain away from the schools.

Bishop Canevin of the Roman Catholic diocese of Pittsburg, one of the seven men asked to investigate alleged charges of immorality against Heeter, declined to serve. A. L. Weil, president of the Voters' League of Pittsburg, has accepted. As yet no response has been received from the other five men requested by the board of education to conduct the inquiry.

BRYAN HAS FREE HAND

Off For California Hopeful of Avoiding Trouble With Japan

Washington, April 25.—Secretary of State Bryan left Washington last night for Sacramento. On Monday he will begin consultations with Governor Johnson and members of the California legislature in an effort to frame an anti-alien land law that will not be in conflict with treaty obligations of the United States with Japan.

"I go hopefully, yet with a realization of the responsibility involved," said the secretary as he left the White House after a final conference with President Wilson.

The president had explained earlier in the day during his conference with the newspapermen that the purpose of Bryan's visit was to take counsel with the California authorities as to the best way to avoid international difficulty. Bryan is unhampered by instructions. His efforts will be directed solely toward averting discrimination.

LIPTON'S CHALLENGE

New York Yacht Club Places It In Hands of a Committee

New York, April 25.—The New York Yacht club, at a meeting last night to consider the challenge of Sir Thomas Lipton for the America's cup, voted to leave the entire matter of acceptance, or rejection, in the hands of a committee of twelve members of the club of which Commodore Pratt will be the chairman.

If the committee votes to accept Lipton's challenge under the deed of gift, the club provided that it be empowered to arrange the details of the acceptance and the conditions of the race.

The Royal Ulster Yacht club, through the agency of which Lipton forwarded his challenge in another attempt to lift the America's cup, it was also announced last night, had appointed a committee with similar power.

SEVEN OF MORALES' STAFF EXECUTED

Morales was formerly an adherent of Zapata. He surrendered to the government and offered his services. Recently he was arrested on the charge of spying and plotting and was confined in the penitentiary.

The members of his staff were placed on a military train, ostensibly as conscripts, but a few miles from the city they were taken from the cars and shot.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. BAKERS PAY $500 FINE

Flavoring In Cake Causes Taste If Rotten Eggs Are Used

New York, April 25.—One hundred and twenty pounds of rotting eggs in liquid form, found in the factory of the Steel-Drake company, cost Louis Kenert, the company's manager, a fine of $500. The concern is one of the largest cake bakers in the world, using a ton of eggs a day.

The manager insisted there was little chance that the bad eggs would have gone into cake; but he admitted that the company used in its cake a flavoring which would cover up the taste of any decomposed eggs that accidentally slipped in.

THREATENS WAR ON MONTENEGRO

Austria Tells Powers to Turn Victors Out of Scutari.

ASSUMES BULLYING ATTITUDE

Small Prospect of Troops Being Disembarked on Montenegrin Soil—Montenegrins Won't Surrender After Attaining Ambition of Centuries—European Situation Is Acute

London, April 25.—The Austrian government sent a strongly worded and peremptory circular note to the powers yesterday afternoon, demanding immediate ad concerted action to turn the victorious Montenegrins out of Scutari.

"Take immediate combined action to turn the Montenegrins out of Scutari or we shall do it alone," is the effect of the note, which is virtually an ultimatum.

It is learned from a high diplomatic source that the triple entente, composed of England, Russia and France, has refused to disembark troops on Montenegrin soil, nor will these powers encourage Austria to invade Montenegro. The other two powers in the triple alliance, namely, Germany and Italy, are not evincing a burning desire to disembark troops from the warships in the Adriatic.

Austria insists that Scutari remain an Albanian city, but the Montenegrins will not consent to give it up, they say, without receiving rich compensation elsewhere. It has been the national ambition of Montenegro for over four centuries to own Scutari.

A telegram from Berlin says that the German press, both official and unofficial, holds that the capture of Scutari by the Montenegrin army will not affect the decree of the powers that the city shall remain Albanian territory.

The situation causing the gravest anxiety has arisen as a result of the fall of the city. From Cettinje comes word that the Montenegrin people are determined that Scutari shall become a Montenegrin city and the little country apparently has the moral support of Servia in this connection.

The European situation, since King Nicholas went ahead and took the Turkish stronghold, is ridiculous, as well as acute. The peace of Europe almost may said to be in the balance. The solution of the problem, diplomats concede, depends upon the attitude of Russia.

If Russia remains with the triple alliance there is hope Montenegro may be persuaded peaceably to give up Scutari. But reports say Russia is suddenly stirred by a wave of pan-Slavism, and it is admitted to be a remote possibility that Russia might refuse to concur in any scheme to coerce the little Slav kingdom.

A dispatch from Constantinople says the armistices among Turkey, Bulgaria, Servia and Greece has been extended to May 5.

COUPLE ODDLY GARBED

Bride Wears Grecian Gown and Groom Is Dressed In White

New York, April 25.—Society is discussing the newest thing in weddings, presented at the home of William N. Burritt, 35 East Thirty-second street, for the marriage of his daughter Katherine and Harold S. Deming.

Deming was dressed in a white suit, the dinner jacket of white vicuna being finished with white satin. Miss Burritt wore a long, trained, sleeveless Grecian gown of white satin charmeuse, trimmed with ropes of pearls, and a cap.

Instead of an orchestra playing the wedding march, eight girls in Grecian costumes sang a Swedish wedding march. Thousands of candles illuminated the house and the walls were draped with hangings of red and yellow. There were neither bridesmaids nor ushers.

SIX MONTHS IN JAIL

Sentence of Boy Bandit Who Attempted Suicide In Cell

Central Falls, R. I., April 25.—George Gootner, the Boston boy who attempted suicide in his cell at the Central Falls police station yesterday, after being arrested for holding up an automobile at the point of a gun, was sentenced to six months in jail yesterday afternoon. He was arraigned on the charge of disorderly conduct.

City Physician Fenwick said that, although he could not call Gootner insane, he thought the boy's mind had been highly affected through the reading of dime novels.

Eight firemen are said to have been severely scalded. Three of these, it is feared, are fatally injured. The damage to the ship, it is said, is slight. No details are available.

CASTS PEACE TO THE WINDS

I. W. W. Leader Now Advocates Policy of Revenge

HE MAKES AN OPEN THREAT

Charged With Breaking Laws of Milford Following the Killing of One of His Most Active Followers—Man Who Had Been Throwing Stones Shot, Presumably by Policeman

Milford, Mass., April 25.—Following his veiled threat that the I. W. W. would exact vengeance for the death of Emilio Bacchiocchi, Joseph M. Coldwell, leader of the strike at the Draper company's mill at Hopedale, was placed under arrest.

Coldwell was charged with breaking the bylaws of the town of Milford. The charges include unlawful leading of a parade, disturbing the peace and uttering threatening and defamatory statements. The bylaws which Coldwell is accused of breaking were drawn up by the selectmen last Monday and became operative yesterday.

Coldwell was admitted to bail, to appear in court today. When he had been liberated he said he would immediately take up the case of the dead striker, claiming that already Attorney Cedella had been retained to investigate and push the matter in the courts if necessary.

The I. W. W. has denied responsibility for any violence that may occur following the shooting of Bacchiocchi, who was killed, it is thought, by a special officer.

Coldwell gave out the following statement after hearing of the death of Bacchiocchi:

"Draper's cry for blood has been answered. Heretofore I have advocated peaceful measures and have counselled the strikers and the sympathizers not to carry firearms or weapons of any description.

"Now I think I will advocate the Mosaic law: 'An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth.'

"Bacchiocchi was shot from behind in cold blood by a special policeman, as near as I can find out. I will assume no responsibility hereafter for what may occur."

While the shooting was going on Charles G. Wood, a member of the state board of arbitration and conciliation, was in Hopedale gathering data for the board with a view to settling the strike. A meeting of the board on the Hopedale strike was held at the state house yesterday.

Bacchiocchi, a striker from the Draper company mills, was shot dead yesterday in a strip of woods off the road in the Spindleville district of Hopedale, about a mile from the Draper mills.

The shooting is attributed to a special police officer employed by the company, but neither the police of the town or the state nor members of the Draper company will give out any definite statement. The man was married and had three children.

The shooting occurred when the strikebreakers employed by the Draper company were on their way to work. Bacchiocchi with two others had been throwing stones and, it is said, was warned by a special officer to stop.

With the two others he was seen to run through the strip of woods leading to Green street. In this clump of trees his body was later found.

The man was killed with one revolver shot, which took effect behind the right ear at the base of the brain.

Bacchiocchi was one of the most ardent of the strikers and had never missed a parade or a chance for picket duty. He was well known to the police for this reason. The Italians of the town are greatly excited by the affair.

THIRTY-FIVE BODIES FOUND

Death List In Cincinnati Mine Explosion Expected to Reach 115

Pittsburg, April 25.—Thirty-five bodies of miners have been taken from the Cincinnati mine at Finleyville, the scene of a disastrous explosion.

Many other bodies, it is said, have been located, but the greatest difficulty is being experienced in finding means to convey them through wreckage to the surface.

Eighty miners are unaccounted for. These, with the thirty-five dead taken from the mine, bring the probable list of fatalities to 115.

Miss Nina Boyle and Mrs. Julia Wood, arrested with Mrs. Despard, were fined $14 and $10, respectively, and chose to spend ten and seven days in jail instead.

Colonel TODHUNTER of Missouri

By RILEY D. SAUNDERS

Copyright, 191[illegible] the Bobbs-Merrill Company.

SYNOPSIS

[illegible] Todhunter boosts his friend William J. [illegible] for the nomination for governor. [illegible] Strickland, son of William [illegible] Todhunter, Lottie-May Doggett [illegible] rival.

Todhunter pays attention to Mary Hedgeman, [illegible] rivals. They clash at the Todhunters'.

A political rally of Strickland's supporters is interrupted by the Yancey men, led by Stam. Hatcher, Eph Tucker, is Yancey's main supporter in Nineveh.

Tom and [illegible] quarrel about Lottie-May, to whom [illegible] is attentive. Colonel Todhunter and Stam Tucker meet in the office of the Nineveh Blade.

Dick Cantrill, editor of the Blade, defeats one of Tucker's "knock down" tricks. Old Mirandy, one of Colonel Todhunter's negro dependents, living near the Doggetts, tells the colonel of Stam's visits to Lottie-May.

In a wrangle Tom knocks Stam down. Colonel Todhunter is to indorse Strickland's note for $3,000 to meet campaign expenses.

Eph Tucker accepts the note. In St. Louis the newspaper men "write up" Colonel Todhunter, who is campaigning, and make much of his picturesque personality.

The colonel's speech takes the city partisans by storm. Tom proposes to Mary and is accepted.

Nevertheless the colonel's own heart was heavy for Mary's sake, for Tom's dire peril and knowing well that it would not come near to breaking the heart of Colonel Bill Strickland, his lifelong friend. But it was no time to sit in cold judgment upon Tom's sin. The boy must receive all the help that was in the power of mortal man to give.

Halting a moment at the Nineveh hotel to send a telegram to the Hon. William J. Strickland, now himself campaigning in northern Missouri, Colonel Todhunter then hurried to the jail. The moment his eyes met Tom Strickland's face he knew that the lad had been drinking heavily. The two clasped hands and stood facing each other in silence. At last the colonel spoke.

"Tom," he said, "I want to tell you at the start that I'm going to accept every word you say as gospel, and I want you to tell me the whole truth. Then while we're waitin' for your father to get here I'll know better what to do in beginnin' arrangements for your defense. You must tell me the God's truth, my boy."

Tom Strickland's plucky eyes, unflickering, though still bloodshot from overnight drinking, held those of the speaker in a level glance.

"I'll tell you the truth, colonel," he answered. "I won't vary from it by a hair if I know it."

"How did the meetin' between you and Stam Tucker come about, Tom?" asked Colonel Todhunter. "Tell me just when and how you killed him."

"Colonel," replied Tom Strickland, "I have no recollection of killing Stam Tucker last night. I don't even remember meeting him."

"What do you mean by that?"

"I mean that I started out to meet Stam, and that it was my intention to kill him if he didn't publicly tell the truth about you and Lottie-May Doggett, but I can't clear in my mind as to what happened after I left Nick Bledsoe's barroom. I got to drinking there, thinking while I was waiting for Stam Tucker to keep an appointment that I made by letter, and I got tired waiting for Stam to show up, so I started out to go to his house, seeing as how he wouldn't come to the place I had named. This much I remember, and I've got a confused recollection of wandering about the edge of town, but the first thing I remember with any distinctness after leaving Nick Bledsoe's, is finding myself in the Nineveh hotel barroom drinking again. Whatever happened between is gone from my memory. I was drinking hard, Colonel Todhunter, and that's all there is to it. I started drinking because I had lost—well, I didn't care what happened to me, sir." Tom concluded.

"You were armed, of course, when you went to meet Stam and have it out with him?"

"Yes, sir; I had my pistol on me."

"Well, then—well, then, Tom—when you were arrested this mornin' after Stam Tucker's body was found on the side of the road halfway between his home and the town, what story did your gun tell, boy? If you had had a shootin' scrape durin' that time your weapon would have said so—a man in your condition, with this difficulty settled, wouldn't have reloaded his gun. What fix was yours in, Tom?"

"That was the first thing the deputy sheriff looked at when he placed me under arrest," said Tom Strickland, his eyes dumbly perplexed. "Colonel Todhunter, one chamber of my pistol was empty. I reckon I must surely have met Stam on the road and killed him."

"Tom," said Colonel Todhunter, almost pleadingly, "whatever why Stam Tucker was killed he got one shot at the man that killed him. His own weapon was a-layin' right at his hand when they found him, and one bullet had been fired from it. In God's name, my boy, if you was that other man you must have some sort of recollection of the shootin' scrape. It's the truth I'm tryin' to get at, Tom; the truth of how Stam Tucker came to his death. If you killed him we've got to know it, because the whole line of defense has got to be based on absolute knowledge of the truth of whether or not it was you that shot and killed Stam Tucker last night. Dig down in your mind, Tom. My God, boy, you've got to remember everything you did every minute of the time you say you was out lookin' for Stam Tucker!"

Tom Strickland drew a deep breath. "It must have been me that killed him," he said. "I was on my way to do it. And who else wanted to kill him? But I can't remember anything about it, Colonel Todhunter. I'd be glad if I could."

Colonel Todhunter sat helpless for a moment. Finally, "Did you go home after the hotel bar was closed?" he asked.

"No, sir. I slept at the hotel last night."

"What time were you arrested?"

"About 6 o'clock."

"Yesterday afternoon, when you had been to Nick Bledsoe's barroom for the first time, did you then go out to see Lottie-May Doggett, as you told Nick you was a-goin' to do?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did you see her?"

"Yes, sir. I asked her to tell the truth and acknowledge that I had nothing to do with her disgrace. I told her if she didn't I was going to see Stam Tucker and make him do it or else kill him."

"What did she say to that?"

"She laughed at me. That girl's a she devil, Colonel Todhunter. She wouldn't even acknowledge to me that she had lied in telling Mrs. Todhunter what she did. She just laughed."

"You also hinted to Nick Bledsoe that there was some serious trouble brewin' between you and Stam about Lottie May, didn't you?"

"I believe I did, sir."

"And you told him you were bound for Stam Tucker's when you left his barroom last night?"

"I seem to remember saying something of the sort. Colonel Todhunter I reckon I gave him a pretty good inkling of the whole affair."

"The man you sent to tell me of your arrest says that Stam Tucker's mother and sister says that Stam left his home about the same time, accordin' to Nick Bledsoe's story, that you left Nick's place to go out there."

"It's likely, sir, that he was coming in to meet me in answer to my letter."

"Tom, that would have brought you and Stam Tucker together about halfway between his home and the town."

"Yes, sir."

"And Stam's body was found beside the road just about halfway between his home and the town."

"I know it, colonel. The evidence against me is about as complete as it could be, unless somebody saw me kill Stam. I wish they did, if I killed him. It wouldn't look so much like a cold blooded murder in the dark then."

Colonel Todhunter went direct from the jail to the home of Lottie-May Doggett. This time he found the girl there.

She met him with a defiant look in her eyes, but it seemed to Colonel Todhunter that there was something of dread as well, and her manner, despite a certain bravado, suggested a haunting fear.

"If it's grandfather you want to see, Colonel Todhunter," she said, her voice not quite steady, "he ain't at home right now. He got some work helpin' Lute Burroughs with his hosses, and it keeps him over there most o' the daytime."

"It ain't your grandfather, Lottie-May," replied Colonel Todhunter; "it's you I come to see. But I wish he was here, because I reckon I've got to have a right plain talk with you, and I'd rather Rafe was present while we're a-havin' it."

The girl shrank back suddenly. "Then maybe you better call again," she quickly suggested, uneasiness and the hope of delay expressed in her face. "It'll keep till some time when he's home surely, Colonel Todhunter."

"No, Lottie-May, it won't. That's why I've come straight out to see you after leavin' Tom Strickland a prisoner in the Nineveh jail. Stam Tucker's been shot and killed, and Tom's accused of murderin' him, Lottie-May."

The girl gave a little cry, whitening to the lips. She stood facing the colonel with horror stricken eyes.

"Lottie-May," continued Colonel Todhunter, "the time has come when you must tell the truth about Tom Strickland. His life is in danger, not to speak of his bein' disgraced through what you said about him—and your story caused him to be lookin' for trouble with Stam Tucker—and we've got to know the truth as to whether it was him or Stam Tucker that you had the right to accuse before everybody at the party that night."

A sudden light of fiery venom leaped into Lottie-May Doggett's passionate eyes.

"It ain't me that's to blame!" she cried. "Tom Strickland wanted to kill Stam Tucker because he knew that "The time has come when you must tell the truth about Tom Strickland."

Stam Tucker would marry Miss Mary Todhunter, your daughter, now that she's got to throw him over. It's her that's to blame for the killin', not me!"

Something came into the girl's throat that seemed to choke her. She threw her hands up to her eyes and began sobbing.

"He wa'n't thinkin' about me at all!" she cried brokenly. "And Stam Tucker didn't really care nothin' for me neither. They was both of 'em thinkin' about Miss Mary Todhunter. I ain't nothin' but poor white trash in their eyes, to be th'owed like a rag to one side. And Tom Strickland knows I love him with all my heart and all my soul!" Here her voice broke pitifully.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

SALT MACKEREL.

SALT fish should be prepared by soaking overnight in cold water with the skin side up or else taking off the skin before the fish is put into the water. This takes out the salt. Changing the water often will shorten the process.

Salt mackerel broils to advantage. It may be served with cream sauce. Potatoes, beets and onions are suitable vegetables to go with it.

Seasonable Suggestions.

Suggestions for cooking salt mackerel are given here:

Broiled Salt Mackerel.—Soak the fish overnight. In the morning dry without breaking. Lay between the bars of a buttered gridiron and broil to a light brown. Place on a hot dish. Melt a tablespoonful of butter and add to it a teaspoonful of lemon juice or vinegar, a tablespoonful of hot water, a pinch of black pepper, a small pickle chopped fine and pour over the mackerel.

With Sharp Sauce.

Mackerel and Horseradish Sauce.—Soak a salt mackerel for ten hours, changing the water once. Then cook in boiling water with a bay leaf, a sliced onion and a tablespoonful of lemon juice. When done put the fish on a platter. Serve with a sauce made from a cup of thin cream, a level tablespoonful of butter and an egg yolk, stirring in half a cup of grated horseradish, bringing it to the boiling point.

Creamed Mackerel.—Soak the fish overnight and wipe dry before using. Broil on a buttered gridiron over a clear fire. Lay on a hot dish and pour over it a cream sauce made as follows: Into one cup of boiling water stir two teaspoonfuls of cornstarch. Rub smooth with one tablespoonful of butter and cook until well thickened. Add a well beaten egg, mixing carefully to prevent curdling. Cook a moment longer, season with a teaspoonful of chopped parsley and a saltspoonful of pepper.

AGAINST BRIDGE OVER NEPONSET

Committee of the Legislature Grants Leave To Withdraw

BOSTON OPPOSED IT

Senator John H. Buckley's bill for a new bridge over the Neponset river was given leave to withdraw by the Legislative committee Thursday. The bill called for an appropriation for a steel bridge connecting Quincy and Boston in place of the wooden structure now in use. The apportionment of the cost fell heavily on the city of Boston and several representative men of that city were numbered in the opposition.

The introduction of the bill by Senator Buckley was the result of agitation of prominent men in Quincy, Neponset and other places. This improvement has been talked over in a general way for quite a few years but definite legislation has not yet been enacted which will fulfill the desires of interested constituencies.

BETHLEHEM CO. ANNOUNCE SALE FORE RIVER CO. STILL SILENT

Statement From Latter Concern to be Given Out Monday on Transaction

Report That $4,800,000 was the Purchase Price of Plant

While it was intimated Friday night that the Fore River Co., would give out a statement today in regard to the sale of the Fore River Ship Building plant to the Bethlehem steel company as announced in the Ledger Friday, it was stated at the Fore River office this morning that no official statement would be given out until Monday morning. They would not affirm or deny the sale at the Fore River offices this morning but the sale was confirmed late Friday night by a dispatch from the Bethlehem steel company.

The news of the sale, which is one of the most important business transactions that has taken place in Quincy for many years was made public in a dispatch from Boston to the Ledger and published Friday afternoon.

At the present time 23 vessels are in the course of construction at the yard, involving contracts aggregating $10,000,000. The company is building for the United States Navy a gigantic battleship, nine submarines, a collier and a tender.

The sale of the Fore River Co., is one of the greatest importance, not only to the ship building industry but to the steel world. The Schwab interests have elaborate plans on foot so that the now famous plant at Fore River and to so increase activities there as to materially increase the port of Boston revenues.

A monster dry dock is one of the improvements contemplated. Rumor has it that while the present company was prosperous the Schwab interests felt there was indefinite possibilities for them under their direct steel supplies and their ability to draw on an unlimited supply of raw material in the construction of modern ships and commerce.

The Boston News Bureau has given out the following regarding the absorption of the Fore River Ship Building Co. by the Bethlehem Steel Co. which was consumated Friday after short negotiations. The salient point in the statement is that President Schwab of the new owners does not cherish any illusions as to ship building possibilities but is seeking an outlet for the product of his massive rolling mills at Bethlehem, Pa.

The statement follows:

"The purchase of the Fore River Co., by the Bethelhem Steel Co. is understood to have involved less than $1,250,000. This is a cash price which President Schwab has agreed to pay. The transaction is a direct purchase of the physical property. The price paid will work out under $40 per share for the preferred stock aggregating $2,400,000 par.

"Inasmuch as preferred is entitled to $100 per share in liquidation, the $2,400,000 of common stock will receive nothing.

"The Fore River Co. has been well managed under Admiral Bowles, but the entire ship building industry of the country has been on such an ultra competitive basis that is has been impossible to make any sustained showing of earnings.

"The company has happily been without bonded debt and has kept itself free from bank loans and today does not owe a dollar. At the same time the outlook for dividends on the stock was so remote that the controlling factors in the property felt that it would be more advantageous to sell even at a heavy discount.

"It is understood that Admiral Bowles will remain in charge of the property which after the formalities of liquidation are completed will become a department of the big Bethlehem Steel Co.

"Mr. Schwab's object in expanding into ship building industry is not based on the fact that he cherishes any illusions as to money making possibilities of ship construction, but Mr. Schwab does make armor plate for half of the nations of the globe and in this country he has been feeling the increasing need of an outlet for his armor plate and allied steel products in ship construction.

"As the Fore River Co. and other ship building concerns owned by the Bethlehem Steel Co., are operated, the idea will be therefore to break even on the work of ship construction and make a profit in selling armor plate, finished shapes and the like.

"Boston interests are disposed to be somewhat enthusiastic at the late turn

KELLY CAPTURED FESTIVE PORKER

Harmony Club Carried Out All Its Obligations AT FARMER'S PARTY

Sportive farmers in all kinds of rural garb kicked their heels together like restless colts at the Farmers Ball in St. Mary's hall, Friday evening given by the Harmony Club of West Quincy. The wide variety of costumes surpassed those ever before seen at a local farmers affair. The rubes came from miles around and before the roundup they paraded as a body guard to the pig which was raffled off by "Johnny Fitz" of Grove street.

Harness and trappings of all kinds hung from the beams in St. Mary's barn, and the platform was covered with crates of hens, geese and farm yard population, all guarded by a constable carrying a musket.

The excitement of the evening was furnished by the porker which escaped from captivity and reached the floor. The gigglings of the girls turned into hysterical cries as they sought protection from their beaus, while others stood on the benches with their skirts wound closely about them.

The girl winners were "Bea" Joyce, Rita Collins, "Lizzie" Rouleau and Grace McCreavey of South Boston, who wore a man's costume. The rubes who took the money were Andrew Dinegan who appeared in one of the best makeups ever built, Joseph Lemieaux and Edward Joyce.

The judges were Mrs. Benjamin Earl, Mrs. Charles Sampson, Daniel Duggan, John Coffey and Charles Sampson.

The porker was given to Michael Kelly whose name was drawn from the barrel by John Fitzgerald.

The committee in charge was John J. Joyce, Francis Leo McPherson and John Fitzgerald.

The staff of aids included the following milkmaids, Miss Clara Mullen, Miss Agnes Kelly, Miss Annie Kelley and John J. Welch, Cornelius Sullivan Joseph Fitzgerald, Joseph O'Rourke, James McDonald, George McDonald, Thomas J. O'Brien, James Fahey, Rapheal A. Elcock, Lawrence Donovan, Bart Flaherty, Robert Fitzgerald.

Rev. Henry T. Grady, special guest of the evening gave the ladies a bright and entertaining talk.

SURPRISE PARTY.

Playmates and friends tendered Edward Minihan a surprise party at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Minihan, Furnace Brook Parkway, Friday evening. Nearly 45 of the younger people attended and enjoyed themselves with games until 10.30 o'clock.

During the fun, William Sheehan, a chum, presented him with a signet ring, suitably inscribed with the initials and date of the occasion.

Among the committee in charge were Julia Reardon, William Sheehan Matthew Bryan and Cora Currie.

NOW A CORPORAL.

Franklin Dyer, superintendent of the Boston schools, in his very enthusiastic address before the 1800 cadets of the English High School at their recent prize drill, complimented them on showing that each had a well disciplined body, a splendid asset for a young man. Albert D. Parker of one of the prize winning senior companies has been appointed a corporal under Lester U. Young, captain.

DEFECTIVE CHIMNEY CAUSED FIRE IN THE FLETCHER HOME FOR $300

Crackling Sounds Arouse Curiosity of the Young Daughter

She Found the Roof Blazing and the Attic Full of Smoke

A dangerous fire in the home of J. Warren Fletcher, 77 Garfield street, at 10.50 this morning was confined to the attic by the fire department. The fire started on the roof from a defective chimney, and spread rapidly to the contents.

A sharp crackling aroused the curiosity of Gladys, the 10 year old daughter. She remarked to her mother that she was going to investigate and reaching the third floor she found the place in flames and smoke flooding the rooms. Kladys ran down stairs crying "the house is afire."

Herbert Morton, who boards with Miss Lucy Fletcher in one side of the house jumped on a bicycle and hurried to box 42 where he sounded the call. The box is situated opposite the pharmacy of Mr. Fletcher who hurried to the house when told the news.

The quick work of the department resulted in stopping the damage at about $300. The dwelling is fully insured.

The house is situated in a thickly populated district and is closely surrounded by property valued at $30,000.

Box 431 sounded while the Fletcher fire was on and the balance of the department responded. The fire was in the tall dry grass near the Carey estate on Hall Place. There was no property damage.

FLOOD FUND FORWARDED

The Amount Raised in this City Sent on Its Way

Clarence Burgin, treasurer of the fund that was being collected by the city for the flood sufferers forwarded to the headquarters this morning a check for the amount collected in Quincy. The amount was not as large as one might expect from a city of this size the total being but $311.25 This sum it is understood does not include the sum contributed by the Christian Science church but includes the proceeds from the concert held and money contributed by the Syrians and others.

—What a joy to live in Orleans, says the Brockton Enterprise where the tax rate is $3 and where more rich people are rushing in to establish residence and get the benefit, with the result that presently the tax rate will be pretty nearly nothing on each thousand!

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

One could not be censured or ridiculed for sporting a straw hat Friday.

The open electric cars looked inviting to most people.

People do not appear to be paying much attention to the civic pride boxes according to the decorations on the street.

The fees in the office of secretary of state have been pooled and divided. How long would a private concern permit an employee to do that sort of thing?

The Boston city laborers are to receive their long promised extra quarter a day, June 1.

Now that the probe has been opened and so much matter sifted the railroad business must be opened up to the full glare in justice to all.

According to latest reports Fresno Dan is somewhat tired of his job.

Now that the grape juice incident has been explained the nation may rest easier as it did not result in any international tangle.

As there has been a movement to photograph base ball plays, it might be just as well if the decisions were kept over a day and rendered by picture instead of umpire.

Some of the bright stuff handed out to the public now-a-days might look like an infringment of Sol Smith Russell's Felix McCusick.

City hall looks lighter but there is a question as to the improvement side of the argument.

The French man who slept continuously for 77 days will never know what he missed.

The imperator grounded on her trial trip and later had an accident to some of her crew. If sailor superstition is as strong today as in the good old days she might have some trouble in scrambling a crew.

The following Solomonic effusion from a base ball manager is the latest hand out: "If a manager could drop his club into a world's series without letting the players know it was this derby event and without the realization that so much money for each participant hung on the result, he would get more baseball out of his men, I believe."

They might be hypnotized into forgetting some of the things, but when it arrived at the money stage, nothing doing.

Some one, probably facetiously, characterized Adam Bede as a statesman. There is no need of any apology the mixup between statesmen, wisemen and humorists in this age is quite popular.

It is to be hoped that the Chamber of Commerce delegation will wake those southern countries up to the fact that they have a friendly neighbor and good customer on this side of the hemisphere.

Both Boston teams occupy the same positions in their respective leagues, and neither of them has much to brag about at the present writing.

Judge Murray of the Boston court rapped lawyers who settled cases out of court and in one case ordered the trial to proceed as an example to other offenders.

THE PATHWAY OF TEMPTATION.

The excuse for an official who padded his expense account and mulcted the state out of about $100 or more per month is that he was in the pathway of temptation. Rather a lame and rickety defense to stand upon. The question is how long has the thing been going on? How much did he really secure before discovery clipped his wings?

George W. Coleman an $11 a week bank clerk sported an automobile, and it was not until the bank he worked in was wrecked that any attention was paid to his habits.

In the case in question the offender is said to have lived in an expensive house, sported an automible and frequented certain alleged sporting localities, all on $2000 a year.

And now the extenuating circumstances offered are that he was in the pathway of temptation. What would he have done if he had been slipping along the midway of crime?

THE RAILROAD PROBE.

The railroad probe now being conducted by Interstate Commerce Commissioner Prouty has revealed some strange transactions. If they are all true then some one is open for serious condemnation and necessary steps taken in the future to protect, the investors, and public from such rapacious methods.

But it is too early yet to pass judgment with only one side laid bare for public consumption. The men who are the head of those railroads are presumably honorable and able business men. To lightly charge them with offenses which need adjustment, without hearing their side would be unfair. The public should withhold its judgment until all the evidence in the case is in.

Then if the men charged are unable to clear themselves of the serious charges brought against them there should be a strict accounting demanded and exacted. Until that time arrives it is well to stand upon the legal axim of that a man is presumed to be innocent until he is proven guilty. One thing is quite certain if those things charged have actually happened the many high priced commissions supported by the state are in the nature of huge jokes. The commissions either do not have power enough or fail to exercise the power which is granted them. If the former, an immediate remedy should be applied. If the latter, then the drastic remedy of casting out useless timber is in order.

INCREASING SALARIES.

One committee of the legislature has recommended an increase in the salary of the state auditor, state treasurer and state secretary of $2000 a year above the $5000 which they now receive while another committee has vetoed the proposition. Those officials strive very hard for the jobs at the fixed salaries, but they usually manage to get in a word for a raise as soon as possible. Now how many of those self same officials would throw up their jobs if confronted with the alternative of accepting the existing salary or letting some one else take the job. The chances are that none of them would be breaking their necks. The old saying that few die and none resign would hold good. On top of this salary increase it has been discovered that in one of the offices the fees which officials receive for performing semi official business during the time they are employed on their jobs, are pooled and divided among the men in the office. That hardly looks much like such a tremendous increase of actual official work as to warrant an increase of salary. And still the people wonder at the yearly increase of the state expenditures.

SUCCESSFUL OPERATION.

Thomas G. Smith of Washington street, confidential agent in the Boston office of Prince, Portland, Me., express company and one of the well known and popular members of the Granite City club was successfully operated upon Friday afternoon at the Quincy City Hospital for trouble on his leg which has been bothering him for some time. The operation was performed by Dr. Nichols the well known Boston surgeon, assisted by Dr. N. S. Hunting and Dr. D. B. Reardon. The operation was a successful one. He passed a comfortable night and this morning his condition was reported at the hospital as being good.

YOUNG PEOPLE MADE BIG HIT

Engaged By Wednesday Proved Proper Vehicle

TO DISPLAY THEIR TALENT

A delightful entertainment was presented at the Unitarian chapel last evening by the Young Peoples Religious Union, directed by Mrs. A. Isabelle Davis. A farce entitled "Engaged by Wednesday," in three acts was the attraction and the young people entered into the spirit of the occasion.

The cast was as follows:

Martin Henry, laziest man in county — Everett Rhodes
Arthur Watson — Curtis Arnold
Jack, friend of Arthur — Allen Miller
Ted, friend of Arthur — Frederick Schenkelberger
Dick, friend of Arthur — Richard Allen
Miss Abigail Persons, a woman of ideas — Lela Smith
Mrs. Watson, a gentle person — Ella Packard
Lucile Persons — Ruth Packard
Marie, friend of Lucile — Minnie Hardwick
Jane, friend of Lucile — Ethel Hersey
Mabel, friend of Lucile — Dorothy Packard
Mary, Cook at Persons' — Carlena Walker
First Gypsy — Alice Arnold
Second Gypsy — Catherine Saville
Girls and men

All the parts were exceptionally well taken, but especial mention should be made of Curtis Arnold of Braintree who took the leading male part and Ruth Packard who is always good, the leading lady. Everett Rhodes certainly exemplified the part of the laziest man to perfection, and was quite a philospher, whose hobby was chickens. Miss Saville, one of the gypsies, sang a solo which was very pleasing. She was accompanied by Miss Ruth Penniman.

The plans of "Miss Persons" and the deception practised by Arthur and his friends and Lucile and her friends caused a grand tangle, but of course it all came out right.

During the evening William Weston at the piano and a violin furnished excellent music and young ladies of the union sold delicious home-made candy.

CARRY OUT SUICIDE PACT

Youth and Maiden Leap 180 Feet From Church Tower

Antwerp, April 26.—A youth 18 years old and a 19-year-old girl were the principal characters in a shocking love tragedy enacted here. Arm in arm they climbed to the clock gallery in the tower of the Notre Dame cathedral and from a height of 180 feet leaped into space, falling at the feet of passers-by.

Every bone in the bodies of the boy and his companion was broken. As they hurtled through the air several men and women who witnessed the sight fainted.

According to the police the leap from the church tower was in accordance with a suicide pact.

TO PREPARE FOR 1914

Townsend Urges Republicans to Open Publicity Bureau at Once

Washington, April 26.—Senator Townsend, one of the most active of the regular Republicans in the senate, is sounding his fellow senators as well as members of the house on a proposition for the Republican congressional committee to open a publicity bureau at once and prepare for the campaign of 1914. He urges that the cause of Republican organization will be forwarded by this means and he believes that the regulars should take a militant leading part in the work.

Representative Mann, the minority leader in the house, however, is somewhat sceptical of the advisability of taking so important a step at such an early date. At any rate, the subject of Republican progress is rapidly assuming a practical form and it will be surprising if the session advances much further without definite forward action.

Then Bryce and his wife will go overland to San Francisco to sail for Yokohama on May 3, touching at Honolulu. They will spend some time in China and Japan, where Bryce will study the evolution of the new Chinese republic, and then proceed to London by way of Siberia.

FLIES 513 MILES WITHOUT A STOP

Records Broken by French Aviator In Remarkable Flight

Paris, April 26.—Eugene Gilbert, the French aviator, beat all records for a continuous cross-country flight, flying from Villacoublay to Vitoria. The distance between the two places is about 512 miles, which Gilbert covered in eight and a half hours.

Gilbert, after leaving Vitoria, came down at Medina del Campo, landing awkwardly and damaging the wire stays of his monoplane. He made repairs without difficulty and continued his flight to Salamanca, where he landed for the night.

In many ways the flight of Gilbert is the most remarkable ever made. The non-stop portion, from Villacoublay, a suburb of Paris, to Vitoria, Spain, is not only 100 miles longer than that of any other aviator across country, but includes in the territory covered the highest part of the Pyrenees mountains.

Pierce, chairman of the board of directors of the Waters-Pierce Oil company, met the charge that he had converted to his own use 15,000 shares in the Nashville Terminal company, which had been placed in the National Bank of Commerce of St. Louis as security for a loan, with the counter-statement that he had been the victim of misplaced confidence to the extent of nearly $7,000,000.

The statement of Pierce was made during the taking of depositions in the suit filed by the National Bank of Commerce to recover the 15,000 shares from Pierce, or their money equivalent, $1,500,000.

A Simple Idea Behind a Simple Starter

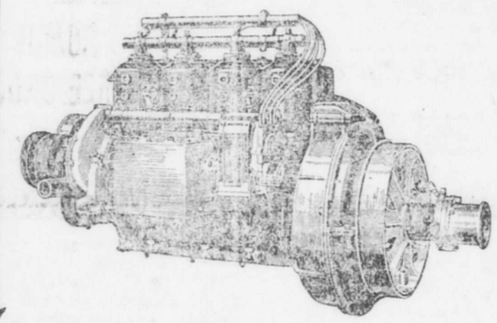

This electric lighting idea

Every Pullman car in the land is giving a daily demonstration of the Cross Country electric lighting system. Motor generator directly connected to axle for lighting purposes.

Coupled with this power idea

Allis-Chalmers direct current generator directly connected to a heavy duty Corliss engine. This is the type used in the Jeffery factory power plant—but much smaller.

Produced this perfected starting and lighting system

The Cross Country gasoline engine is directly connected to the electric motor generator. No chains; no gears; not even an extra bearing.

IT is not strange that the ideal self-starter grew out of a simple thing. For many years a great corporation has been making motor generators to attach to the axles of Pullman cars for lighting purposes. The application is direct and the light generating capacity positive. One day a man attached a similar motor generator to a gasoline engine and by a simple arrangement made it serve as the fly wheel. He simply adopted a principle proved practical by the builders of the great Allis Chalmers power generators. It is not a new, untried experiment, but an old principle simply applied to a new use.

THE attachment of the electric generator to the Cross Country gasoline motor is not an after-thought. Little weight is added. There are no extra bearings, no chains, gears or belts. The parts are large and substantial. There isn't a single delicate piece. The result, of course, is efficiency.

STOP and listen when you see a Cross Country owner starting his car. Even in the most quiet street the sound will hardly be audible. You will recall that some puff, others grind and a few squeal. This one operates quietly, starting the motor without jerk or jar. There is only one operation. Others require three. The lighting system is positive and the lights brilliant. You will know the Cross Country if you meet it on a country road on a dark night.

A beautiful four-color reproduction of the Cross Country, from an oil painting by R. Philip Brainard, is ready for mailing. See the Cross Country by all means, at any Jeffery branch or dealer's display room, but send for the picture anyway.

PARISHIONERS INTERESTED.

Parishioners of St. Chrysostom's church, appreciating the good work done by Rev. Albert Edwin Clattenburg while rector of the church, will be interested in the following from the current issue of North Dakota Sheaf, official organ of Bishop Mann.

"The Parish House just built by the Rector and Congregation of the Church of the Advent, Devils Lake. The description of the building and the account of the exercises at its formal opening we condense from the report given in The Devils Lake Daily World of March 25, 1913.

"That the Guild House of the Church of the Advent fills a long felt want, and that the new building is a monument to the untiring efforts of Rev. Mr. Clattenburg, was the sentiment of the hundreds of people who attended the opening last evening, inspected the building and enjoyed a concert, dance and refreshments.

"The new Guild Hall is a very attractive building and its exterior appearance, built much along the lines of the Church of the Advent, out of stone secured in the vicinity of Devils Lake, makes it as handsome as might be desired. Passersby have admired the architecture of the building and were proud of the edifice to which they had contributed, for nearly all the city contributed toward its erection.

"The upstairs is a very large assembly hall where almost every kind of an entertainment can be enjoyed. The stage with its large dressing rooms and scenery, is complete. The building is well lighted and the acoustics are excellent.

"The basement or main floor of the Guild House provides a commodious gymnasium which, when more apparatus is installed, will be one of the most enjoyable and enjoyed places in the city. Even now there are Indian clubs, punching bag, and equipment for basket ball, volley ball and medicine ball. On occasions when the ladies entertain a large crowd, as was the case last evening, the gymnasium can be converted into a large dining room. The kitchen is well arranged and excellently provided for, as a result of a kitchen shower recently held.

"Another feature is the shower baths which will be provided in the gymnasium, and the members of the classes will also have individual lockers. The heating plant, complete in every detail, is also located on the lower floor. The new building is indeed a valuable asset to the city. The Guild Hall of the Episcopal Church is a monument dedicated to the city of Devils Lake.

"Following an address by Rev. Mr. Clattenburg which fairly rang with enthusiasm over the completion of the building, those in attendance enjoyed dancing, the music being furnished by Miss Wallace and Professor Maxwell. The ladies in the meantime provided lunch, outdoing previous records so anxious were they to serve in their new home. An enjoyable and satisfactory evening that fittingly dedicated the new Guild Hall was the feeling of all. Rev. Mr. Clattenburg is ace high in the community for having provided the Guild Hall and such an auspicious opening."

The many friends of Mrs. James Harlow will be sorry to learn that she is seriously ill at her home on Mill street.

Strike Settled After Conference Between Parties

MEN GET INCREASE

The strike among the painters which has been on in Quincy three weeks today was settled Friday and it is expected that all of the men will return to work Monday. The strike was for an increase in wages and it is understood that the new wage that has been settled upon is $20 per week of five and a half days. In other words the men were receiving 41 cents an hour under the old scale but under the new scale they will receive 45 1-2 cents an hour an increase of four and a half cents per hour, which means as stated above $20 per week of five and a half days.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

Hub's Three Handsomest Men Are Sought to Lead a Suffrage Parade —No Response as Yet for the Men Do Not Like All to Speak Up at Once—What Wild Life in the Open Really is a Boston Sculptor Shows with his Likeness of a Bison Attacked by Wolves.

Boston, April 25, 1913.—How old Anne is, may be told by the way she eats, according to an inveterate Boston diner out, who has been watching the habits of his sister habitues of Chinese restaurants, Italian table d'hotes, and swagger hotel dining rooms. If the young lady, for example, enters one of the popular places in Chinatown and goes through chicken chop suey, chw mien, and preserved ginger, and is then equal to an American college ice, the expert argues that she is in her teens. If she makes a good start with the chop suey and rice, but shows no interest in the rest of the meal, she is presumably between 20 and 30 and married. When she declines every Chinese staple, and craves only a rare delicacy, she has passed 30, but has not reached 35. After that age her appetite becomes settled and she is usually good for anything and everything that the restaurant provides. A similar generalization applies to the several ages of women as revealed at the fashionable hotel. The rule is said to have but few exceptions.

That wild animals are happier and safer in captivity than in their natural habitat is the underlying idea of a large group sculpture recently modelled by Alexander Pope, Boston's famous animal and portrait painter. The critics of zoological gardens are hereby given a graphic description of some of the perils of life in the wilds, in the hope that they may cease to expound on the cruelty of keeping animals in captivity. The group represents a bison attacked by wolves, the great animal resisting the onslaught of the starving creatures with lowered head, and shows how the wolves are one by one being completely worsted. One, on his back, is mortally wounded, the second stands panting, exhausted, and the third is closing in on the big animal. Many who have seen the model in Mr. Pope's studio have expressed the hope that it might be executed in life size and erected in one of the leading zoological gardens.

"Wanted: The three handsomest men in Boston to lead a suffragist parade." This not a literal transcript from a want advertisement, as yet; but it expresses a demand which may eventually require to be filled by advertising for the aforesaid Apollos. The trouble is that although there are a few handsome men at the New England Capital none are willing to own up to it. Hence, unless some modern scions of Curtius, he who devoted himself to the cause of ancient Rome, shall appear ready to leap into the gap, it looks as if the great triumphant procession which the suffragists are planning will have to go unmanned. Anyone familiar with the name and address of a really handsome gentleman who is also a believer in equal suffrage is requested to communicate with the Man-Quest Committee, 585 Boylston Street, Boston.

STRANGE DEALS BY NEW HAVEN

Revealed In Examination of Accountant at Hearing

CITES HUGE PAPER PROFITS

One Stock Valued at $10,000,000 Less Than Appears on Company's Books —Mellen Wanted Big Suburban Road Transaction Kept Secret—Brandeis Appears as Private Citizen

Boston, April 26.—Testimony showing how the New Haven road appears to have put on its books huge profits which were seemingly only paper profits obtained by transfers of stock to and fro between its subsidiaries was brought out from Accountant Brown, under examination by Attorney Brandeis during yesterday afternoon's session of the railroad investigation.

According to the witness, these "apparent profits," as they were termed by Brandeis, were used to swell the company's surplus account on the books.

Brown cited one case in which he said the records showed that the New England Navigation company bought shares of the New Haven road from the New Haven in exchange for debentures of the Consolidated Railway company.

As the result of this transaction, said the witness, the New Haven put on its books a "paper profit" of about $7,000,000, and the navigation company, by subsequent dealings in the debentures, recorded a book profit of $645,000.

Again, the witness said, in December, 1907, the navigation company delivered to the New Haven 247,892 shares of New Haven stock at $76 a share when the market value of the stock was $155 to $159 a share. In October, 1909, Brown said, the New Haven sold back 218,781 shares of this stock to the navigation company at $169 a share, a difference in price of over $15,000,000.

The witness further said the books show that in May of the same year 15,935 shares of New Haven stock were acquired from the New Haven by the navigation company at $167½ a share, as the result of which the New Haven put on its books another $1,000,000 of alleged "paper profit."

Questioned as to the results of all these "paper" transactions, the witness replied that the navigation company held 215,000 shares of the New Haven stock on June 30, 1912, which was rated on its books at $34,659,657.

Q.—What is the actual market value of that amount of stock today? A.—On a basis of $111 a share, which is about yesterday's price, the actual value would be approximately $10,000,000 less than the figures at which it stands on the company's books.

President Mellen of the New Haven railroad did not want the public or the stockholders of the road to know the relations between the New Haven and the Port Chester and New York suburban line, according to testimony brought out at the hearing.

The New Haven road financed the suburban in 1907 through the Middlebrock company and put $11,155,000 into the project, according to Mr. Brown.

Louis D. Brandeis withdrew as counsel for the Fruit and Produce Exchange before the hearing, but continued to appear there as a "citizen of Massachusetts."

Forty business men asked Brandeis to represent them at the hearing, but he refused, saying he would appear only in his capacity as a citizen, but he would see that their interests were protected.

Charles F. Choate, a leading corporation lawyer and counsel for the New Haven, appeared at the hearing as "representing the people."

Brandeis gave out correspondence showing that members of the Fruit and Produce Exchange asked him in 1912 to represent them, contradicting a statement in Mellen's paid advertisement that Brandeis had offered his services to the Exchange.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Colonel TODHUNTER of Missouri

By RIPLEY D. SAUNDERS

Copyright, 1911, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company.

Then, "And he wouldn't ha' known anything about Stam Tucker's makin' love to me if I hadn't told him myself! Yet he don't think nothin' about me—it's only how he can clear his own skirts by loadin' the blame on Stam. And if he killed him he killed him for your daughter Mary's sake, out o' jealousy, and nothin' else in the wide world! Well, I've done said my say, and you all got to take it for the truth whether you're willin' or not. Stam Tucker's dead and gone, but that ain't a-goin' to clear the way for Tom Strickland to marry Miss Mary Todhunter. I've told her mother the truth, and you and Mrs. Todhunter can't let her marry Tom Strickland with the blame for my ruination restin' on his good name."

She threw back her head and laughed at him mockingly.

"You've come here to make me help you to get Tom Strickland out o' danger, ain't you, Colonel Todhunter? You're just like all the rest of 'em. I'm settled and done for. I'm dirt under you all's feet. But maybe I can help save Tom Strickland if I tell the right sort of a story—that's it, ain't it? Well, I ain't goin' to do it, Colonel Todhunter!"

"Tom Strickland's got just one chance for his life, Lottie-May," said Colonel Todhunter, "and that is, to prove that you accused him of a sin that ought to ha' been laid at Stam Tucker's door instead and that he quarreled with Stam and killed him for refusin' to acknowledge publicly that this was the truth. Even this ain't much of a chance, but if we don't get it Tom Strickland's goin' to the gallows just as certain as the sun rises and sets. If you told what ain't so, Lottie-May, his blood will be on your head."

The girl shrank back and shivered as if she had been struck. Then, again, the hard mocking light leaped into her eyes, and she laughed aloud.

"And if I change my story to please you all," she scoffed, "what does it amount to, Colonel Todhunter? Just two things, and I'll tell you what they are. I help to get Tom Strickland out o' danger for killin' Stam Tucker, and I clear his good name so he can go straight and marry your daughter Mary. That's what I do—if I'm willin' to tell the story you all want me to tell, and so lift my shame off'n Tom Strickland and put it on a dead man instead—put it on Stam Tucker, that was shot and killed by Tom Strickland because both of 'em loved Miss Mary Todhunter!"

"I'm askin' you to tell the truth, Lottie-May!" said Colonel Todhunter; "that's all. I'm askin' you to tell me now what you will surely have to tell under oath in the Nineveh courtroom at Tom Strickland's trial unless you mean to perjure your soul by kissin' the Bible and then swearin' to a lie. That's where you are, my girl! If you told the truth in what you said to Mrs. Todhunter about Tom Strickland I ain't got another word to say. But, if you didn't, for God's sake tell it now, Lottie-May, and help me and Tom's father to save his life!"

Again the girl's face had whitened as Colonel Todhunter so suddenly acquainted her with the fact that she must needs be a witness for or against Tom Strickland when he was placed on trial for his life. And again, succeeding this, her eyes hardened with the deadly rancor born of her secret thoughts.

"I told Mrs. Todhunter the truth," she replied. "What I told her I—I'll tell in court, if I got to. I might be willin' to tell—I might be willin' to tell a lie for Tom Strickland's sake if it wa'n't for Miss Mary Todhunter, but I can't do it for her, and I won't! It ain't in my blood to let another woman walk on me to get to the man I love, Colonel Todhunter, and you and all the rest of 'em might as well know it once and for all! I got the same shame on me now that my mother had, and I'm her daughter, body and soul!"

Colonel Todhunter looked at Lottie-May Doggett long and silently. His face was grave when he spoke.

"That's all I wanted to see you about, Lottie-May," he said finally. "It looks like I been on a fool's errand, but I've done the best I could. Goodby, child, and you better think over what I've been sayin' to you after I'm gone."

Oddly enough, a little sob broke from the girl's throat as the colonel spoke. The next moment, with one hand fluttering nervously at her bosom, she closed the door behind him.

Crossing the country road a few rods from the gate leading into the Doggetts' yard, Colonel Todhunter stopped to speak to Aunt Mirandy Ransom, the old negress whom he had last met in the Nineveh town square and who now stood at the door of her little cabin. After talking with her some brief time he resumed his way into town.

He met the Hon. William J. Strickland at the entrance to the Nineveh jail. The father's face was gray with anxiety. Colonel Todhunter held his hand with a grip of comforting friendliness.

"The boy's in hell's own hole, Bill," he said. "But you and me 'll pull him out of it if we've got to bust the breechin' doin' it, suh!"

NEWS ITEMS FROM MILTON

The Metropolitan Park Commission has recently purchased a lot of land containing about 60,000 square feet on River street, near the foot of Idaho street. The property has a frontage of 236 feet and is known as the old ice house lot. Development plans have not been made as yet but it is generally understood that the Commission will equip and maintain it as a public playground. There is opportunity to lay out a good sized base ball diamond and since there is no available field nearby for games there is considerable satisfaction. The members of the Walter Baker Co. Ltd., base ball team is handicapped this season because grounds cannot be secured.

The special committee on mosquito extermination commenced spraying stagnant pools and breeding places with a solution of oil. The members are W. L. W. Field, chairman; John Balch and Dr. Harris Kennedy. They will make a study of the application of salt water throughout this summer.

Cunningahm base ball looks promising for the year. A fine team, practically the same as the champion last year aggregation will sport the gym colors. Games are being arranged with the fastest semi professional teams in the state, and an added feature will be the formation of several junior teams under the direction of Sydney Hazleton of the high school.

A whist and dancing party will be held in Associates Hall the evening of May 15 by Div. 20. A. O. H. The committee in charge consists of William F. Walsh, John Hansberry, John Stephens, William A. McCarthy and Joseph Fallon.

MUST GIVE UP CAPTURED CITY

King Nicholas May Get Out of Scutari Without Coercion

TOWERS PLAN CONSIDERATION

Rules of Smallest State Is For the Moment the Big Man of Europe—France to Make Heavy Troop Movement—Austria Continues to Be In Belligerent Mood

London, April 26.—King Nicholas of Montenegro is still the headliner at the concert of the powers, and what the doughty monarch intends to do is what every ministry of Europe wants to know.

There is no change in the program of the great powers to make Scutari the capital of Albania, and the big nations unanimously agree that Montenegro must give up the captured city.

The ambassadors in London have taken under advisement the note in which Austria-Hungary virtually said that if the other powers do not oust Montenegro the dual monarchy will do it alone.

Dispatches from Cettinje quoted King Nicholas as telling his jubilant people that Montenegro will hold Scutari against all comers. In spite of his boastful declarations, though, it is believed in diplomatic circles that the king can be persuaded to evacuate the city.

King Nicholas professed to have his heart set on emulating the examples of Czar Ferdinand and the late King George, in triumphantly entering a captive city. He has had that experience now, and it is believed the king, for a consideration, might be persuaded to give up Scutari without coercion. Dispatches from Vienna and Berlin indicate that this is the view held in those capitals.

From Rome the Cettinje government has been diplomatically informed that Montenegro must give up Scutari and that such demand on the part of the powers is not discrimination. It was pointed out that Bulgaria, at the instance of the powers, desisted in her march to Constantinople; Servia agreed to evacuate Durazzo and the Greeks were persuaded not to attack Valona.

Fresh impetus was given to the European war scare by the announcement in the Paris Echo that the French government has begun preparations to move 20,000 additional troops to the German frontier, and that all the forts on the eastern border will be strengthened.

It is said the determination to make this heavy troop movement was inspired by the complications which have followed the capture of Scutari by the Montenegrins, and by the demands and threats which Austria is making.

A telegram from Vienna says the Austrian government is getting ready to take independent action unless the powers act in concert within the next few days to remove the Montenegrin army from Scutari.

The ambassadors of the powers are trying to form a program which will allay the feverish feeling in Europe and the dangerous tension which is growing up between the two big groups of powers, the triple entente and the triple alliance.

CONDITIONS APPALLING

Scutari In Most Dire Distress When Taken by Montenegrins

Cettinje, April 26.—Conditions in the fortress of Scutari on Wednesday last when Essaad Pasha, the Turkish commander, surrendered to the Montenegrins, were appalling.

The Turkish troops and the whole population were in a state of such extreme exhaustion from lack of food that Essaad Pasha had been threatened with death unless he agreed to the capitulation of the city.

When the victors entered they were surrounded by half-starved men and women clamoring for food.

The hospitals also were in a horrible condition. Unburied and semi-decomposed corpses were lying about in the streets, and in the houses many people were found dead or dying of exhaustion.

In the last few days of the siege, whenever Essaad Pasha appeared in public he was followed by groups of esperate, famished natives demanding "bread or surrender!"

Butte, Cal., April 26.—Grouped about the coffin of Mrs. John R. Burney's 3-year-old son, members of the family and relatives were listening to the funeral services when the child, clad in its shroud, sat up and gazed at its grandmother.

The aged woman stared at the child a moment and then sank into a chair dead. The child died a few hours later.

Skipper Drops Dead at Wheel

Portland, Me., April 26.—Captain Loring C. Rice, master of the schooner Kate L. Pray, dropped dead at the wheel just as he was guiding the vessel into her dock. Heart disease was the cause of death.

"I Like to Trade at Foy's Store"

Said a Well-known Club Woman a Few Days Ago.

"First because it is the cleanest market in Quincy, second because as soon as anything new appears in any of the magazines, if it is good, Foy has it; third, because it is always delivered when promised." The friend to whom this was told knew it was an honest statement and wanted us to know that thinking women appreciated the quality, the up-to-dateness and the promptness of our service.

Now About the Second Reason

Our constant aim is to make this store a better one, a more desirable source of supply, an efficient aid to thrifty housewives. And to keep up-to-date we are constantly searching the market for new goods—goods that we test personally for quality and desirability, and if it comes up to our idea of being a standard, it is promptly put in stock and offered to the public. For instance;

Richardson & Robbins Concentrated Tomato Soup

Hotel Astor Rice, pkg. 10c
Uncoated—which tells volumes about being pure.

Beechnut Catsup, bot. 15c, 25c

Ritter's Catsup, Tobasco Flavor, bot. 10c

Ritter's Fresh Fruit Jams, bot. 15c

Chocolate Pudding Given Away

3 packages D-Zerta 25c

D-Zerta Ice Cream Powder

CHINESE PUZZLE TRANSPARENT

When Compared With Financia Tangle of Richards

OTHERWISELORD ASHBURTON

Charles F. Richards, a man 74 year of age, and with fully as many aliase as years was arraigned in court thi morning for the larceny of $130 fron Patrick Kelliher of Neponset. Rich ards was arrested Friday by Capt Daniel R. McKay, when he was re leased from Deer Island where he ha just finished serving a sentence o two years. One of Richards aliase and one by which he was most wide ly known was "Lord Ashburton." I was several years ago when he mad his appearance under this alias. H was received by high officials i Washington, Boston and other parts of the country and was most royally entertained until he was learned to be a bogus Lord. During the years he has been prominent in police cir cles he has spent according to the police, thousands of dollars, of other peoples money, and he has always cu a wide swath.

The particular case which was heard this morning was a complicated one and showed him to be a slick article.

In November 1911 he made his appearance at Kelliher's shop in Neponset stating that he represented the Commercial Mercantile agency, and asked if he had any bills to collect and was given one against N. E. Alley of Wollaston.

According to the evidence he visited Mr. Alley and after some conversation, during which he threatened to bring the matter into court Richards agreed to loan Alley the money to pay the Kelliher bill. According to the testimoney he first passed Alley $81 and then $50, Alley immediately passing the money back to Richards to pay the claim of Kelliher. Mr. Alley claimed that he paid Richards back the $80 in cash the following day and in addition to this gave Richards some of his own bills to collect from which he was to retain the balance due him for money loaned. Richards however claims that Alley did not reimburse him for money loaned but that he gave him two notes, one for $81 and the other for $50. One of these notes Richards claims that Mrs Alley signed.

Mr. Alley however declared that no notes were signed and that the signatures were forgeries. When asked why he made such a roundabout transaction Richards admitted it was a subterfuge to get the money out of Alley.

An inspector from Police Headquarters Boston was called and put in Richards' criminal record which the latter did not dispute.

Mr. Kelliher has received no money from the transaction with the exception of $5 which Richards gave him in Cambridge jail two years ago to keep him quiet.

The court found Richards guilty and sentenced him to six months in the house of correction. He appealed and was held in $500 for the grand jury.

f affairs in the Fore River Co. It vas argued that Mr. Schwab, repreenting as he does $50,000,000 of capial and an abundance of youth and nergy can do for Boston more good han any other company expected rom purely local auspices.

"Mr. Schwab has ambitious plans or the Fore River plant. In conection with the important plans rewing for the interests of Boston, he interest of a powerful corporation ike the Bethlehem Steel Co., led by o thorough a steel expert as Mr. Schwab cannot be otherwise interpretd than being of favorable local imortance."

The price paid is not known. None of the officials of the Fore River company would talk. William T. McQuarry, private secretary to the president, Rear Admiral Francis T. Bowles, and secretary to the corporation, declared there would be nothing given out by the Fore River officials.

The capitalization of the company is $4,800,000. At present there are twenty-three vessels, involving contracts to the amount of more than $10,000,000, under construction. Among these are the super-dreadnought Nevada, nine submarines, two torpedo boat destroyers, and a tender for the American navy; a superdreadnought for the Argentine republic, and a number of merchant vessels. The annual business recently done amounted to from six to twelve millions of dollars. At present 5000 hands are employed.

Just why the Bethlehem corporation should have purchased the Fore River works as a fourth to the list of shipbuilding concerns it has acquired is not known. Although the Fore River has much government work on its hands just now, it was declared its chances for acquiring more were not so good as under the Taft administration.

Two high officials of a recent administration were several times rumored to be interested in the Fore River company, and under a Democratic administration, it was freely whispered, the chances of the company were not so good.

The Bethlehem Steel corporation is one that has plants at Wilmington, Del.; San Francisco and Elizabethport, N. J. It is a very attractive bidder and stands four chances of capturing government contracts.

The officers of the Bethlehem company stated that they preferred the details of the purchase and the price come from the Fore River company. The officials of the latter company, when this statement arrived, could not be located.

Under the new owners the Fore River plant, established in 1901, is expected to be much enlarged.

HINGHAM HIGH OUTCLASSED

Quincy Played Rings Around the Visiting Team

MORGAN A SURE FIND

Hingham High was severely beaten at Merrymount Park Friday afternoon by Quincy High, 18 to 3. The game was a comedy of errors on the part of Hingham and Quincy became so listless that they were commencing to add a portion to the summary.

Pratt, the visiting pitcher, while showing control did not seem to have the judgment necessary to a display of his probable qualities and receiving no decent support from his teammates he just lobbed them over and watched the ball sail through the air.

And it did sail in a good many cases, sometimes within striking distance of Hancock street, and at other times in the vicinity of the Fenno street hollow. Donnelly of Quincy crashed one for altitude which the wind curved within reach of Campbell, Hingham's right fielder, but before he could scoop the hide it had struck a glove laying in right field and bounded by, rolling into the hollow. Donnelly rounded the bases, crossed home, but neglecting to touch third he returned to comply with the rules and was snapped out half way down.

"Les" Andrews also made the circuit of the bases after a fielder had been accommodating enough to make an error, and while "Les" was credited with a homer it was in reality a rank error.

Crocker made good in the six innings he pitched, and received splendid support in general from the infield. But few temptations were placed in the outfielders way.

Morgan, a south paw of the sophomore class, succeeded Crocker in the box and surprised the fans by showing a burst of steam which he had hidden. A warm welcome was accorded him on his debut and his acquisition to the pitching staff means something if performances are any criterion.

"Les" Andrews was not in the box holding down the centre field, where he just missed making a sensational catch of a long drive. Creedon also demonstrated marked ability in covering second and made the only sacrifice in the Quincy lineup.

The game lasted two full hours but the weather conditions were ideal for the players and fans. Several scouts for minor professional teams were eager spectators throughout the game.

BRAINTREE CATHOLIC CLUB

First Dancing Party Largely Attended and Proved Big Success

The first dancing party under the auspices of the Braintree Catholic Women's Club was held in Cochato hall, Braintree, last evening and from 8 to 11.30 o'clock the merry throng tripped the light fantastic to the sweet strains of Cuff's orchestra. The color scheme was pink and the hall was beautiful with its profusion of pink roses and carnations. A floral bower of this color banked the stage in front of the orchestra while from the ceiling was suspended a huge basket of roses and each electric globe and fixture masqueraded as a huge flower. All this display made an effective back ground for the ladies' gowns which were most elaborate and beautiful.

The exertion of dancing on such a warm evening was mitigated by the generous supply of punch served in one corner of the ball room. A noteworthy dance was the german with its unique favors of lapel decorations for the gentlemen and sashes for the ladies. The affair was well attended by people from this and the surrounding towns and was a grand success socially and financially.

A feature of the dance came near the end when the rose waltz was enjoyed. The lights were dimmed and a profusion of petals were showered from the large paper roses above.

The committee of arrangements were: Mrs. W. H. Fitzgerald, chairman, Mrs. John Mulcahy, Miss Helen J. Moran, Miss Claire E. Shay, Miss Mary Burns, Mrs. Edward Heffernan, Miss Nellie McGaughey, Mrs. Knowlton, Mrs. J. Edwin Dee, Mrs. John F. Galvin, Miss Catherine Gogan, Mrs C. A. Sullivan, Miss Catherine Dillon. Mrs. J. J. After the entertainment there was dancing to the music of a hurdy gurdy until 5 o'clock.

WITH LIQUOR INTERESTS

Representative Sullivan Against Bar and Bottle Law

Editor Quincy Daily Ledger:

May I call the attention of your readers to the action of our Representatives on the measures to repeal the "Bar and Bottle" law, Mr. Leslie voting against the liquor interests, Mr. Sullivan voting with them.

I quote from a letter which I sent both by special delivery:—

"This Bar and Bottle law has not merely been in the most important legislative victory which has been won in recent years over the liquor forces, but has proved to be a measure of far-reaching value—of larger value even than we anticipated. The enclosed slip shows some of the gains it has brought, and its value in decreasing the consumption of liquor is also strikingly testified to by the united and most strenuous effort the liquor forces are making and have made to get it repealed."

The slip which was enclosed showed that the law brought about a decrease of 87 saloons in Boston, 250 taking the State as a whole, and that it resulted in a material decrease in the arrests for drunkenness.

The following letter is of interest in this connection:—

April 24, 1913

"Dear Mr. King:—

"On Monday last the House took action on two bills submitted by the liquor interests for the purpose of virtually repealing the Bar and Bottle law.

"In years past we have felt that we could depend upon the Representatives from Quincy being solidly with us on temperance matters since they represented a district so definitely committed to no-license policy.

"We were not disappointed in the position taken by Representative William J. Leslie but were greatly surprised to find that Representative Michael T. Sullivan is recorded as having voted in favor of these dangerous liquor bills. The House, however, killed these bills by a vote of 120 to 105.

"The following day an attempt was made to reconsider this vote and the roll was called once more. Again we find Representative Sullivan of Quincy lining up with the liquor interests.

"May I suggest that steps be taken to inform the no-license voters in your city regarding Representative Sullivan's attitude in this matter. I would also suggest that Representative Leslie be commended for his vote.

Very truly your,
Massachusetts Anti-Saloon League
by Arthur J. Davis, Supt."

It is not a pleasant task to call to the attention of the people of Quincy the fact that our Representative, Mr. Sullivan, thus voted twice with the liquor interests in their great effort to repeal this "Bar and Bottle" law, but I feel that we ought to know how he has represented us. I believe that personally Mr. Sullivan is a total abstainer and that his reason for his vote was because the measure contained a referendum but that does not detract from the fact that this was an effort of the united Liquor Interest to repeal by in direction the most important temperance law achieved in years. It is a pleasure that we can commend the attitude of Mr. Leslie.

Yours very truly,
Delcevare King
Chairman Massachusetts No-License League.

CAMPAIGN TO RAISE $2000

Conducted By the Braintree Y. M. C. A. This Week

EVERYBODY ENTHUSIASTIC

A campaign began in Braintree this morning. It will be an important campaign, lasting six days and covering the whole town. Two thousand dollars will be raised. The Braintree Young Men's Christian Association will do it. The town will be combed for contributions of one dollar to fifty dollars or more. A Boys' Summer Camp at Manomet will be the result. The Boy Scouts are alive to what is coming. All boys are interested. Their enthusiasm is only exceeded by that of President Urann and Messrs. Herbert A. Bryant, I. Wendell Gammons, Frederic C. Folsom and Herbert Clogston who are at the head of the financial campaign.

The Association is particularly fortunate in having as its first president Marcus L. Urann of 34 Vine street, an honor graduate of Maine University 1897, captain and later coach of foot ball team, for past fifteen years, a practising attorney in Boston, of wide hunting and exploring experience in Maine, Rocky Mountains and South, automobile and golf enthusiast, lover of out-of-door life.

About one acre of high sandy land at Manomet has been given the Y. M. C. A. by friends as a camp site. The location is near Indian Beach within five minutes walk of a large pond, and is considered ideal. The camp building will be used to give summer outings at cost. It will contain a large living room, kitchen, and have sleeping quarters for about twenty-five.

The Board of Directors consists of the gentlemen named above and A. W. Hoe, secretary, Rev. Nelson A. Price, Rev. Tyler E. Gale, Charles R. Hill of East Braintree, Dr. J. M. Watson, James H. Stedman, H. T. Cushman, Walter A. Poore, Benjamin H. Woodsum, Jr., Rev. A. L. Ryan, Rev. Harry Grimes, Ralph L. Wiggin, Rev. Robert H. Cochrane, Thomas Patterson, A. L. Slater, Rev. J. A. Mitchell and Mansfield A. Belyea.

MARCUS L. URANN.
Secretary Braintree Y. M. C. A.

A meeting of the Directors was held Friday evening at the residence of Mr. Folsom and plans for the campaign perfected.

The trustees are W. F. Rogers, Walter O. Hastings, Henry M. Storm, and Albert A. Droilett.

MADE WANTS KNOWN.

A delegation of ten from the Park and Downs Improvement association headed by Louis F. R. Langelier visited on Mayor Stone Saturday night and innumerated some of the things they desired in that section of the city. These wants included new streets accepted, concrete sidewalks, sewers, etc. The mayor promised them he would do what he could.

ENGINEERS AND FIREMEN SAVED JUMPED AND ROLLED DOWN BANK

Accident Said to Be Due to Misunderstanding as to the Passage of a Train By Engineer of Work Train

Engines Firmly Wedged Together. Tender Telescoped Combination Car One Half its Length. Passengers Thrown Around

Not a Single Car Left the Track Injured Hustled Out of the Way and Railroad Officials Peticent

Fifty or more people were more or less seriously inuried, but fortunately no one was killed when two trains met head on early this morning on the Granite branch just north of the Standard Oil company plant not far from what is known as Capen's bridge.

The two trains were, a passenger train which left Boston for South Braintree via of the Granite branch at 6.32 and due in Braintree at 6.58 and a work train. When the former train left West Quincy it was fairly well loaded with girls and young men who were bound for their work in the shoe factories at South Braintree.

From West Quincy to Braintree the grade is an up one and in order to get over the elevation the train had to get up considerable speed. The weather was very foggy at that hour and as the passenger train shot out of the woods onto the up grade, the engineer saw the approaching work train. At that time however the two trains were so near together that it was impossible to avoid an accident. The engineer of the passenger train however set his air brakes and he and the fireman jumped and rolled down the embankment into the swamp. This probably saved their lives as the trains met with a loud crash and with such force that the cylinder head of the work train locomotive was forced into the cylinder head of the passenger train locomotive in such a manner as to lock both trains together.

The tender of the passenger train engine was forced backward telescoping the baggage end of the combination car behind, and going half way through it. In this combination car No. 2427 were a number of passengers but fortunately the baggage compartment was on the front of the train and this saved many from being seriously injured. Many of the windows of the car were smashed however and the passengers were thrown about against the seats but beyond a severe shaking up and some few scratches they escaped injury.

The passenger train was in charge of Conductor Rogers who was in the combination car and Conductor Williams who was on the rear of the train. Rogers was taking tickets at the time and was thrown down receiving a cut over the left eye and a bad injury to the thumb on his right hand. He was also severely bruised and shaken up. Conductor Williams was not injured. The engineer of the passenger engine was William Glidden and the fireman John Ford. As stated above both of these men jumped and rolled down the embankment. Engineer Glidden says that the trains were not more than fifteen feet apart when he and the fireman jumped to save their lives, he however first set the air brakes. Had they remained in the cab they must have been killed, for the cab of the locomotive was entirely demolished.

The passenger train was made up of locomotive number 1610 a combination baggage and smoker and four passenger coaches.

The work train was in charge of engineer John Dutton and fireman William Jackson, and the train was made up of two cars. In the first car behind the locomotive were the tools of the workmen while fifty or more Italian workmen were in the second freight car. The engineer and firemen jumped when they say the collision was unavoidable. Train was going down the grade toward West Quincy intending to switch over just south of the West Quincy depot into the gravel pit.

The roof of the first car was completely splintered off and the forward trucks leaving the rails went over the side half way down the embankment on the Quincy side, the car being completely demolished. The locomotive, which was numbered 621 was also a bad wreck. The cab being smashed in and as stated above it locked with the locomotive of the passenger train.

The front end of the second freight car where the workmen were, was thrown off one side though the trucks did not leave the iron. The half a hundred Italian workmen in this car were thrown about like so many sticks and while none were killed all of them were more or less cut and bruised.

As near as could be learned the accident was due to a misunderstanding of orders on the part of the engineer of the work train. The tower man at the North Braintree station let the work train onto the Granite branch rail thinking that he would back onto the siding and let the passenger train pass. Instead of doing so however, the engineer of the work train, as he started to go on the switch was passed by an out train on the main line. He evidently thought this was the branch train and instead of backing onto the switch as was intended kept on to the branch rail and started down the grade toward West Quincy. He however was running slow according to witnesses of the accident.

Finding that the work train had gone on instead of taking the siding and hearing the bell of the approaching branch train the tower man in the Braintree tower realized that an accident was sure to take place and he immediately ordered out the relief train and physicians.

Dr's. Gould and Sullivan of Braintree were also notified and they were soon on the spot rendering first aid to the injured. The police of Quincy and Braintree were also notified and the police ambulance was sent up from Quincy.

The injured men were hurried to the Braintree depot and then sent home or got out of the way of newspaper men. As usual in such cases the railroad employees were mum when asked questions and knew nothing and would give out no information.

As far as could be learned only one was taken to the hospital. That was Mortimer Murphy of Willard street, West Quincy. There were many West Quincy girls in the passenger train all of whom were more or less shaken up.

Joe Snyder of West street, West Quincy was in the smoking car of the passenger train. He says that there were quite a number of persons in this car including two girls, Lizzie Conway of West street and Marie Burkhardt of Wittich place, West Quincy. Others in this car that he remembers were Albert Rizzi of Bunker Hill avenue, Mary Satori of Doble street and Mary Sweeney of West Quincy. They were all thrown against the seats but as far as he could learn Lizzie Conway was the only one injured. She was thrown against a seat and complained of an injury to her back. These girls were taken home in the police ambulance.

According to Mr. Snyder the passenger train was going up the grade at a good clip and the passengers in the car were talking and laughing, all on their way to work. Suddenly he heard the sound of the brake being set and the next instant there was a crashing sound and he saw the rear of the tender force its way through the end of the baggage car. The girls scheamed and all were thrown about and in an instant all was confusion. But little of the glass in this car was smashed, however, and as soon as possible everybody made a

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

How mean of the German parliament to suggest a grumble at providing a two million dollar yacht for the emperor.

The sale of the Fore River Works does not necessarily mean that this large and thriving industry will be moved from this locality.

Citizen Brandeis appears to have some inside information obtained some way or other.

The New York Eugenic twins are a year old and much towse is made because they have not been sick. Probably there are hundreds of cases of babies who have not been treated with half the care are just as strong and healthy.

The father of the twins says he does not want God to bless. Some day he will find how mistaken is his boasted power.

Undoubtedly the Grand Army veterans will object to the appearance of a circus on Memorial Day.

That naval committee of congress must have felt some happy at their blessed deliverance from a trip to Davy Jones locker.

Massachusetts with a public subscription of $212,000 to the flood sufferers without taking into consideration the many private donations has again "did herself proud" in the time of need.

Mayor Gaynor has at last received some commendation from a newspaper. He is credited with breaking up the taxibandit practice carried out so brazenly in that city.

The rat is the scourge of the earth and the most dangerous, barring none is the announcement of a learned professor. Who suggested exterminating or licensing cats?

In treatment of the liquor question the Wisconsin legislature has hit upon the plan of making people take out a license to buy drinks, not to sell them. What a great place for the saloon keeper.

The school boys and girls will have a brief rest before they enter upon the last lap of the school year.

The legislature wastes a lot of time debating and acting upon resolutions to investigate strikes. What's the matter with the state board of arbitration exercising the powers and functions granted under the act creating the body.

Even if the fee is for qualifying officers it is performed in the time of the state. Some other notary besides those actually engaged in state positions could perform the qualification business without any embarressment.

If any one had any doubts on the question of frenzied finances their mind would be quickly disbursed of that belief after the recent sensational disclosures.

The house is on record for the law prohibiting the Red flag in Massachusetts. What excuse have the three men who voted against such a measure continuing in office?

MOTOR TRUCK TAX.

The Boston motor truck interests are up in arms over the proposed change in the law taxing motor trucks Heretofore the tax has been $5 for each truck. Under the new conditions the tax would be raised to $5 per ton.

This is only another way of putting tax on the people, for the relief of the state. There hardly seems any real necessity for such a change at this time. It is quite evident that the only way the motor truck men will meet the increased tax will be to increase their rates and so the money will come as usual from the people.

Motor truck owners all over the state will undoubtedly unite with the Boston concerns in contesting the passage of this measure. The legislators from all parts of the state will have ample opportunity to learn just how their constituents feel about the matter. Judging from the sentiment stirred up there appears ample proof for the prediction that the bill will not become a law this year at least.

LIKE MANY OTHERS.

The great and general court placed itself on record in trying to interfere with the female right to wear just what she pleases so long as it conforms to good judgment and decency.

The hatpin law has been in effect now something over a month. Does any one seriously believe that it is being enforced? Hardly. It is practically a dead letter. It was not backed by public sentiment to any appreciable extent. The police have come to look upon it in the nature of a joke.

The legislators spent many hours for hearings and debating this subject. Some of the time thus enjoyed was in the form of burlesque. The women go about just the same with the same sized hat pins and some few of them may have decorated the points of the pins with guards, but event this has not become general.

On the whole the law is looked upon as a dead letter like many others and the surest way for its repeal would be a determined effect to enforce which does not apear to be backed by public opinion up to the present time.

On the whole before the legislature again launches forth upon any such legislation it may listen to the judgment of those who are in touch with public sentiment.

AN IMPORTANT CHANGE.

The sale of the Fore River Company to the Bethlehem Steel Co., of which Charles M. Schwab is the head, came in the nature of a surprise last week. The latter gave out the news but the officers of the former concern declined to make any statement until today. While it is an important transaction from a business standard, in big business it may not mean any great change to this community. The Bethlehem Company naturally desired to obtain a direct outlet for their products. They have secured other ship building plants in other parts of the country. It is to be devoutly hoped that the new owners of the property do not plan closing this yard in consequence of its other holdings.

Nothing along those lines have been indicated and it is hoped that any fears which may have been entertained in that direction are wholly unfounded.

DRAMATICS AND DANCE

An enjoyable evening was spent by all who attended the meeting of the Pond Street Social Club held at the club house on Town street, South Braintree, last Saturday evening. First on the program was a piano solo played excellently by Mrs. Guy E. Wood. This was followed by the two-act drama "When women vote" presented in a most able manner by the following cast:

Miss Mabel Campbell, who was effective as Mrs. Jameson, a suffragette.

Miss Mary Dyer as Helen, her daughter.

Miss Dorothy White as Mrs. Delano, a wealthy society lady.

Miss Elsie Dyer as Mrs. Brownell, the mother of six.

Miss Mildred Dyer as Hannah, a maid of all work.

The piece was well acted and was accorded great applause. Miss Susie Devine favored the audience with readings after which was presented the farce entitled "Zerubbakel's Second Wife." Mrs. Fred A. Hayden was Matildy Wiggin, spinster. Mrs. C. A. Bangs took the part of Peggy, a near sighted maid while the role of Deacon Scrubber, hard of hearing, was played by Mr. C. A. Bangs. It was a laughable skit and amused the audience immensely. The program was concluded with vocal selections by Miss Devine and piano solos by Ray Glover. Ice cream was served and dancing was enjoyed until 11.30 o'clock with Ray Glover presiding at the piano. All had a good time and the financial returns which were good will be placed in the club treasury.

The affair was arranged by Mrs. Fred A. Hayden, assisted by the house committee consisting of Guy E. Wood, Fred A. Hayden, John H. Devine and Frank G. Southwick.

FRANK LUCIANO.

Frank Luciano, died at his home 345 Middlesex street, East Weymouth, Saturday. The funeral was held from the Immaculate Conception church with a high mass of requiem, this morning at 10 o'clock.

MASONS IN FORCE SEE FINE WORK

Five Organizations Attended Lodge of Instruction

UNDER GRAND LECTURER

With scarcely an exception, all the officers of the five lodges in the 26th Masonic district attended the lodge of instruction held in the apartments of Rural lodge on Saturday, and there was a large attendance of the brethren from the cities and towns of the district, all of whom felt well repaid.

The exemplification was under the direction of Wor. Frederic L. Putnam, the grand lecturer, and Rt. Wor. Walter S. Pinkham the district deputy grand master presided.

Work began at 2 P. M. and continued through the afternoon and evening with an intermission at 6 o'clock for the banquet. The officers of Delta lodge of Braintree, Charles G. Jordan worshipful master, exemplified a part of the first degree, and the remainder of the three degrees were divided among these lodges:—Norfolk Union of Randolph, Leroy C. Holbrook worshipful master; Rural lodge of Quincy, Frank A. Reed worshipful master; Wollaston lodge of Wollaston, Charles E. Cherrington worshipful master, and Orphans Hope of Weymouth, Charles W. Dunbar worshipful master. The grand lecturer carefully followed the work and was quick to note any variations, and his instructions were kindly received. At the close he complimented the lodges upon their excellent work and careful attention. At times the work was applauded.

WOLLASTON TO OPEN THE SEASON

National and State Associations First Meet Wednesday

100 EXPECTED ON GREEN

Members of United States Golf Association and Massachusetts Golf Association clubs will have their first opportunity of meeting this week when the Wollaston G. C. of Montclair holds its annual Spring meeting Wednesday to Saturday next.

On Wednesday a medal play handicap will be the event for the entire day, with prizes for the best gross and best net scores. At least 100 will play if the weather is favorable, and the course is so good that no difficulty should be experienced by those familiar with it in playing well up to their State handicaps.

F. Ouimet made the best score in this competition last year, 74-3-71, which won the gross prize as well as the net prize. Those making the first 16 gross scores were drawn for match play and one round played on Thursday, one on Friday and the semifinal and final rounds on Saturday. The same program will be followed this week.

F. Ouimet did not play in the matches last year. The Wollaston cup was won by A. G. Lockwood, who also was successful in 1911. B. E. Jones of Concord was runner-up.

Much interest will be taken in the handicapping of the tournament on Wednesday as the State Committee has returned to the system which prevailed for nine years but was given up last year, of handicapping from the score in which players placed at scratch can play the course when at their best. Then the field is handicapped from that score on its known best form.

In 1912 the handicapping was done from par, to conform to the system introduced by the United States Golf Association for its own use, the object being to handicap players only up to six strokes so that the field which entered the amateur championship might be kept to those so handicapped and within reasonable limits.

In departing from the United States Golf Association's system the Massachusetts organization intends no disloyalty to the parent body, but has had to do so to suit local conditions. What the U. S. G. A. aims at is to limit the field in the National amateur championship tournament to those competent to play in such a meeting and Massachusetts will stand by the National body in this effort to keep the field within such limits.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN CHURCH

In exchange with Rev. Carl G. Horst the pulpit of the Wollaston Unitarian church was occupied by Rev. Adelbert L. Hudson of the First Church, Quincy. Taking the 8th chapter of 1 Corinthians for his scripture reading and the 9th verse for his text, Rev. Mr. Hudson preached a most interesting and able sermon on the intimate relation between law and liberty. Especially did he emphasize the need of recognizing, in this country which welcomes to its shores so many foreigners seeking freedom, the deep underlying difference between freedom from restraint and that nobler freedom which is the result of development under wise law.

To nourish reverence for law in the youth of our day, and in those who from other countries come here with very inmature ideas of what true freedom means, it becomes the grave and serious duty of every American adult to so live that he shall be a noble example to be followed by these learners.

If we would have them become citizens with a deep sense of their moral and social obligations we must constantly bear in mind the admonition of the text: "Take heed lest by any means this liberty of yours become a stumbling block to the weak ones.

WOLLASTON CONGREGATIONAL.

The pastor, Dr. Isaiah W. Sneath preached an inspiring sermon from John 6:21 "Then they willingly received him into the ship: and immediately the ship was at the land whither they went."

Jesus stood in a boat and preached to the people on the shore. At another time he was in a boat asleep and again he appeared walking on the waves. The greatest event was his walking on the sea, his disciples did not know him until he spoke.

Human life is a voyage on a tempestuous sea, yet it is as it ought to be. A successful life is impossible on a smooth sea. People cannot sail the voyage of life alone, they need a pilot, not the absence of storms but the presence of Christ. Christ is the abiding friend in the midst of difficulties.

It is a great age but dependent on God.

Jesus is the pilot to guide our boat on a successful voyage.

The influence and power of towering personalities along religious lines are far reaching.

Jesus Christ is the towering personality of the ages. We will do more as we receive him into our boat. Salvation of the world comes through the Saviour Jesus Christ. It is when men receive him into their boat that they have a safe pilot and things go smoothly and they never have a wreck."

Dr. Sneath closed his sermon with an appeal for a generous contribution to the Congregational Church Building Society.

The Sunday school met at 12.15 in charge of Charles Campbell, Superintendent.

The entertainment Saturday afternoon, for the benefit of Unity Circle, King's Daughters was delightful in every way. The weather was ideal, and entering the beautiful home of Mrs. Theophilus King was the happiest kind of introduction to the choice program that followed; for, every one was greeted by the gracious hostess with charming cordiality.

The program included the Eberle Musical club.

Agnes Bachelder Edwards, Soprano.

Kate Merriel Thomas, Violin.

Marion Lawrence Moorhouse, Violin cello.

Marion Webster Hyde, Piano.

Extase—Trio—Gaune, showed the well-matched quality of tone of the performers.

Miss Edwards sang "Jean" Burleigh "Joy of Morning"—Ware, the blithe purity of her voice delighted the audience, and called for an encore.

The playing of Miss Moorhouse was also received with great pleasure, Tarantelle by Popper having all the wild, rapid movement of Neapolitan dance music, demanding great technique. "Doris," was sung by Miss Edwards with piano, violin and 'cello Legende—Wieniawski for violin was beautifully rendered by Miss Thomas. The Spanish Dance was equally delightful.

Miss Marion Hyde accompanied with unusual ability and the final Bolero by the trio was much applauded. Encores were demanded after each solo.

Mrs. Mabel Loomis Todd spoke for an hour about her "Ascent of Fuji, the Peerless," 12,400 feet high. The speaker charmed everybody by her word-pictures of Japan and her graphic account of the experiences of the Astronomical party that climbed the mountains. 15,000 pilgrims annually go to the summit to pray for favorable crops, and other material advantages. They provide themselves with 15 or 20 pairs of straw overshoes which they discard as fast as they give out. Mrs. Todd told legends about Fuji, and why it was held sacred by the people.

She spoke of the fascination of the bamboo trees with their dainty foliage—of the quaint toy-like houses, lighted at night by colored globular lanterns; of the neat little back yards which, even the poor man cultivates with great pride; of how the poorest children presented her with gifts.

The fun of riding in jinrikshai was dwelt upon etc. etc., but when she brought one home, it was impossible to find anybody who would run with it.

Altogether, the lecture was charming. The large company remained to partake of the delicious refreshment which had been provided by the generosity of Mrs. King and everybody felt that it had been a most delightful occasion.

LOCOMOTIVES CRASH

scramble for the rear end of the car and got out. Some of the girls in their excitement ran back toward West Quincy and disappeared while others stood about a few minutes and then walked up the tracks toward Braintree or toward West Quincy. Few if any of them however went to work.

The relief train arrived on the scene soon after 8 o'clock and went to work clearing the track. The bodies of the cars of the work train were lifted up and thrown down the embankment where they were later burned up, while the trucks were lifted up place on the opposite embankment. The track was clear shortly after 9.30.

Among those injured were Joseph Zanacetti of South Braintree who was in the work car. He suffered an injury to his left foot and was cut about the head by glass.

Marie Burkhardt, West Quincy bruises.

Helen Schwinn, 74 Crescent street West Quincy, bruises and shock.

Elizabeth Conway, West Quincy, bruises and shock.

Mary Sweeney, Bryant avenue, West Quincy, bruises and shock.

Mrs. John Doffini, Bates avenue, bruises.

Ritta Collins, Larry place, West Quincy, bruises.

Joseph E. Granahan, Atlantic, letter carrier, shaken up and hand cut.

Edward Rhines, Atlantic, shaken up.

Francisco Cancerio, South Braintree, right arm and back sprained.

Columbus Frank, South Braintree, scalp wound, back, hip and knee sprained.

Archilli Mari, South Braintree, hand cut and wrenched leg.

Domenic Mari, South Braintree, wrist and elbow sprained.

Alfred Bidini, South Braintree knee wrenched.

Ernest Rogers, conductor passenger train thumb wrenched, cut over left eye.

William Williams, conductor passenger train, scalp wound, slight.

Elizabeth Rouleau, Willow street, severely shaken up.

Mortimer Murphy, bruised and cut by glass. Taken home.

Joe Snyder, West street, West Quincy shaken up.

Albert Rizzi, Bunker Hill avenue, West Quincy shaken up.

Mary Satori Doble street, bruised and shaken up.

Dr. C. M. Marstin of Braintree was the first physician to arrive on the scene. He treated William Williams of Braintree, the ticket taker on the passenger train who had sustained a gash over the left eye, a sprained right thumb and a severe shaking up. He remained on the spot and rendered what assistance he could to the railroad investigators.

Dr. Marstin told of the scene as it appeared. He said the utmost confusion reigned, that passengers were piling out of the cars in a reckless fashion, urged to greater efforts by the crackling of wood, escaping steam and terrified cries. The engine crews were hustling to and fro taking water from the flooded marsh along the foot of the embankment and carrying it to the engines where they continued pouring it into the fire box until the live coals were extinguished. All scampered away from the embankment, into the marsh and anywhere to escape from the cars which seemed posed for the moment, just awaiting a signal of some kind to drop.

The calmer ones went through the cars seeking to give aid to injured passengers but their assistance did not seem to be required. Girls, shaking and frightened ran down the track to West Quincy where many of them lived and others who had heard of the wreck poured into the spot from all directions.

Harry Jackson the fireman on the engine of the work train jumped when he saw the oncoming train. He struck the side of the embankment, lost his balance and rolled partly down the side. He remarked after the accident that things looked bad for him.

Conductor Glidden of the passenger engine realizing the impending danger set his air brakes.

The shiver and grating that followed the locking of the brakes was felt through the car. Joseph Granahan, of Atlantic, a mail man at the Braintree Post Office said that instinctively all in the car braced themselves on the seat in front and awaited the shock. When the engines collided many were thrown forward and as soon as possible the confused people crawled from the cars. With him was Edward Rhines of Atlantic who was shaken up but apparently uninjured. Mr. Granahan received slight scratches to his left hand but is today delivering his mail.

Chief Hunt, when apprised of the accident gathered every available Braintree officer together and repaired to the spot. Quincy officers were present and all rendered what assistance was necessary.

Among those noticed were Mayor Eugene R. Stone, who learning that Quincy people were in the wreck, hurried to give all possible assistance.

John Walker, signal tower man at Braintree in speaking of the accident said that he had called to Engineer Dutton from his window in the tower and told him to take a spur track so the train could make Braintree station all right. The working train immediately proceeded down the track, past the spur, and was about 1000 feet north of Capen's bridge when the collision occurred. The engineer probably thought Walker had reference to a spur track leading into a gravel track on the branch line, about 1200 feet north of the wreck.

Miss Helen and Miss Catherine Duane were taken to their homes on Railway street.

Mrs. Frank Donovan of California avenue, Mrs. Joseph Montani of Quarry street, Miss Mae Duffy and Miss Cecilia Shea, both of Copeland street were taken to their homes suffering from a severe shaking up.

Mortimer Murphy was taken to the Grace hospital, Boston, where he was treated for multiple wounds and afterward allowed to go to his home on Willard street.

Miss Elizabeth Conway is at the Massachusetts General hospital with two fractured ribs and many bruises.

When the passengers returned to West Quincy they sought out the physicians and at the office of Dr. John H. Ash, nearly 28 were examined, no serious injuries developing however. The offices of other physicians were also crowded by wreck-injured but none of the wounds were serious.

Miss Georgianna Dalphe, of Cross street, bruises on the chest and side.

Others known to have been slightly injured are:

Miss Catherine Nimmerskern, Willard street.

Miss Annie Buckley, Common street

Miss Viola Malcolm, Hillside street.

Mrs. John Dunn, Hillside street.

Miss Mary Crowley, Grove street.

Miss Margaret Leary, Grove street.

Miss Lillian Donovan, Perkins street

It Pays To Buy Good Things

Glenwood Gas Ranges are built for service, and to give the utmost satisfaction to the user. In the first place, they weigh more and are put together more securely than most gas ranges. The castings are smooth, and easy to keep clean. Owing to their sturdy construction and fine workmanship, they will stand the intense heat and last much longer than the ordinary kind.

The Cooking Top is supplied with five burners, three ordinary size, one extra large and one simmering burner. Pilot cocks and burner cocks are at the front of range, and light from in front, safe and sure.

The Baking Oven is big enough to bake for the the largest family, and every square inch is heated exactly uniform.

The Linings of the Oven are made of white alumaloyd sheets, a new rust-resisting metal which does not scale, but keeps neat and smooth and lasts with the rest of the range. The bottom and side linings of both broiling and baking ovens are a bar-locking, removable type, securely fastened, but very easy to take out.

The Glenwood Patent Oven Heat Indicator is dependable, and what gas range users have long been looking for.

"Glenwood Range" is to-day a household word the country over and the standard for cooking and baking wherever sold.

SOCIAL EVENING BY MAYFLOWERS

There was plenty of fun after the regular business meeting of Mayflower Lodge, No. 44, Workmen's Benefit Association held in G. A. R. hall, South Braintree, Saturday evening. George Packard pleased all by his vocal selections and Eugene W. Gillett extracted beautiful harmonies from his violin. A popular feature was the violin and harmonica duet played by Mr. Gillett and William Cullinan.

Well executed piano solos were rendered by Miss Anna O'Rourke of East Braintree. Refreshments were served followed by chorus singing of familiar melodies and general dancing with Mrs. T. E. Burke presiding at the piano. Miss O'Rourke was the pianist for the entertainment. Remarks of interest to the order were heard from Deputies Charles E. Roats and John Twomith of the Supreme Lodge, Boston. The committee of arrangements was as follows: Willard T. Brown, Elsie A. Brown, Frank Gour, Charles Roberts and Susan Erwin.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

FOR THE CHILDREN.

THE juniors of the family are almost always enthusiastic for puddings. Some simple recipes are given here that will be wholesome and satisfactory.

Cereal Puddings.

Graham Pudding.—Take two cupfuls of graham flour, one cupful of sweet milk, one cupful of sirup or molasses, one egg, one teaspoonful of soda, one teaspoonful of salt, one cupful raisins. Warm the raisins to prevent them falling to the bottom. Steam three hours. Eat this with sugar and cream. Some may prefer a sauce.

Eggless Indian Pudding.—Scald one quart and a half pint of milk, mix with three-fourths cupful cornmeal, one large tablespoonful flour, one-half teaspoonful salt and one cupful molasses. Pour scalded milk over the mixture, stir thoroughly, then add one cupful of cold milk and one cupful of raisins. Bake two hours, stirring frequently the first hour.

Fruit Puddings.

Lemon Pudding.—Wash about a third of a cupful of the rice and cook it in a sirup made as follows: Peel a lemon and slice the pulp, putting it in a saucepan with a third of a cupful of sugar and a little water. When boiling add the rice. When soft put it in a baking dish with three cupfuls of milk, a little more sugar if necessary and half a teaspoonful of salt. Bake, allowing it to brown slightly at the last. The pulp of the lemon should be removed from the sirup before the rice is added. Serve hot or cold.

A Cold Dessert.

Prune Pudding.—Wash half a pound of prunes and add two cupfuls of cold water. Cover and let stand two hours; then cook in same water until soft. Remove stones from prunes, crack and add meat from stones to prunes. Then add one cupful of sugar, one inch piece of stick cinnamon and enough boiling water to that in which the prunes were cooked to make one and one-third cupfuls. Bring to the boiling point and let boil ten minutes. Dilute one-third cupful of cornstarch with cold water until mixture will pour easily, add gradually while stirring constantly to prune mixture and let simmer five minutes. Remove stick of cinnamon, turn into a pudding dish and chill. Serve with sugar and cream.

Quincy People Should not Neglect Their Kidneys.

No kidney ailment is unimportant. Don't overlook the slightest backache or urinary irregularity. Nature may be warning you of approaching dropsy, gravel or Bright's disease. Kidney disease is seldom fatal if treated in time, but neglect may pave the way. Don't neglect a lame or aching back another day. Don't ignore dizzy spells, irregular or discolored urine, headaches, weariness or depression. If you feel you need kidney help begin using the reliable, time-tried remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills. For 50 years, Doan's have been found effective. Endorsed by Quincy people.

W. Charlesworth, 33 Cranch St., Quincy, Mass., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills are certainly an effective kidney medicine. They fixed me up in good shape some years ago and since then, I have had no kidney trouble."

FATHER FINDS RAMONA BORDEN

Missing Heiress Is Finally Located In Boston Hotel

LONG CHASE BY DETECTIVES

Millionaire Says Daughter's Course Is Simply That of Undisciplined Girl Who Sought to Evade His Authority—Will Not Prosecute Those Who Aided In Her Flight

New York, April 28.—With her father, Gail Borden, a multi-millionaire, who found her in Boston, after a four days' search, Miss Ramona Borden is on her way to a private rest asylum, where she will undergo medical treatment.

Borden refused to tell where he would take his daughter, merely announcing that she would be removed to a place where medical attention would be administered to aid her recovery from the mental and physical strain she underwent since her strange disappearance from the sanitarium at Pompton Lake, N. J.

Bordon met his daughter at the Touraine hotel, Boston, having hastened to Boston on receipt of a message from a person who identified one of the party which accompanied his 17-year-old daughter and who notified Borden at once. The girl was affectionately greeted by her father.

With Miss Borden at the Boston hotel where she stayed were two other girls, believed to be the Misses Gladys and Violet Sheldon, nieces of Mrs. William J. White, wife of the wealthy chewing gum manufacturer. Mrs. White has been named as another companion of Miss Borden in her flight.

Mrs. White, it was said, had also been with Miss Borden at a hotel, but left just before Borden arrived in search of his daughter.

Raymond J. Burns, who had been engaged in the quest with other detectives, discovered the party, and asked Miss Borden if she would go to meet her father. She consented readily, and accompanied Burns to the Touraine hotel, where Borden was awaiting them.

Mrs. White could not be found, Borden said, talking of her: "She has left the city through repentance," but refused to explain his remarks further.

Borden's Statement

An authorized statement in behalf of Borden reads in part:

"Mr. Borden's daughter has been restored to him by the ill-advised and foolish persons who assisted her to evade his authority. The case is simply that an undisciplined girl who found the study and discipline her father had laid out for her distasteful, and what has been made so notorious is actually nothing more than a reckless escapade of some schoolgirls.

"Mr. Borden's only thought has been the good of his daughter, who is at heart a good girl and a sweet girl, who now fully recognizes the deplorable consequences of her foolish conduct, and who is happy to be back with her father."

Borden has announced that he will take no legal action against the persons who aided his daughter's flight from the Pompton Lake sanitarium. He said he had suffered greatly in the time between his daughter's disappearance from the sanitarium until he found her, but that he was now content to drop the matter.

Ramona Borden disappeared from the Pompton Lake sanitarium last Tuesday afternoon, in an automobile in which were two women, one of them believed to be Mrs. White and the other, Mrs. Marion A. Backe of Brooklyn. The girl's nurse tried to prevent her going away and was carried to Newark, where the party eluded her.

Ramona Borden had been living in Washington for about a fortnight with Mrs. White and two young girls. Her father had caused her to be taken from there to the sanitarium four days before she fled.

Gail Borden, on Friday, announced that he had attempted to break the influence of Mrs. White and her friends over the girl. If other means failed, he said, he would offer a reward of not less than $5000.

Two women registered, Wednesday night, at the Taft hotel, in New Haven, as Mrs. J. W. White, Mrs. M. A. Backe and "maid." This last is supposed to be Miss Borden. Thursday afternoon the party arrived in Boston, took a taxi at the Back Bay station and disappeared. Friday morning detectives in the employ of the father located the fleeing heiress. Saturday morning Gail Borden reached Boston, registered at the Essex and disappeared. At 3 o'clock his daughter was brought to him at the Touraine. At 4 o'clock the party left in a touring car.

Carpenters' Strike Settled

Newport, R. I., April 28.—The strike of carpenters which began four weeks ago has been settled. The men returned to work this morning under a schedule of rates fixing their pay at 50 cents an hour for the first year, 52 cents for the second and 54 cents for the third year.

IS DETERMINED TO ACT ALONE

Austria Said to Have Begun Move Upon Montenegro

10,000 TROOPS LEAVE TRIESTE

Italian Government Prohibits All Balkan Demonstrations, Although People Applaud Successes of Allies—Royal Family Placed In Embarrassing Position

London, April 28.—According to a report published in Berlin, an Austrian naval division has left Triese with 10,000 troops, with the intention of occupying Antivari, Dulcigno and San Giovanni di Medua and advancing against Cettinje.

The Strassberger Post asserts that the German emperor has received a telegram to the effect that the Austrians have already entered Montenegro. This probably is premature, but little doubt is now felt that Austria is determined to act alone unless the ambassadorial conference at London today resolves upon European action.

Dramatic Situation In Italy

Rome (via Chiasso, Switzerland), April 28.—The Italian government has placed a ban on all references to demonstrations in favor of Montenegro. Recently students in Rome displayed enthusiasm over the recent Montenegrin victory and addressed Queen Helena as the daughter of King Nicholas. This information was not permitted to be sent out of the country over the telegraph lines.

The present attitude of the Italian government brings out emphatically the dramatic situation in Italy. While a majority of the people, by reason of sentiment, tradition and a common bond of nationality, applaud the Balkan successes and condemn what they term "the overbearing action of Austria," the Italian government, for reasons of state and because of the pledges of the triple alliance, is obliged to co-operate with the administration at Vienna.

In this way the royal family, with its close connections with the Montenegrin sovereign, is placed in a most embarrassing position, which has aroused sympathy.

Essad "King of Albania"

Cettenji, April 28.—Essad Pasha, the defender of Scutari who surrendered the town to the Montenegrins and was permitted to depart with his troops, has proclaimed himself King of Albania at Alessio.

Duke Declines a Throne

Paris, April 28.—The Duke of Montpensier, in a letter to a member of his family, announces that he has formally resolved to decline the throne of Albania because if he accepted he would lose the two titles he was proudest of—French citizen and a French prince.

NINETY-FOUR DEAD

Bodies of Victims of Mine Explosion Probably All Recovered

Pittsburg, April 28.—When the emergency crew of the Pittsburg station of the bureau of mines was withdrawn from the Cincinnati mine of the Pittsburg Coal company near Finleyville, where an explosion occurred Wednesday, ninety-four bodies had been removed and two miners taken out alive.

According to Coroner Heffran the mine has been explored thoroughly and all bodies are out except possibly those that may be buried under debris.

Of the eighty-three bodies in the morgue at Monongahela a number have been identified. Some, however, will probably not be identified because recognition is almost impossible, due to mutilation.

PERHAPS SET BY BOYS

Somerville Fire Threatened to Develop Into Conflagration

Somerville Mass., April 28.—A general conflagration in the Union square district was barely averted when, prefaced by a mysterious explosion, flames burst out in the stable and salesroom of Fulton O'Brion, hay and grain dealer.

Seven horses were burned before the firemen could rescue them. Three firemen were injured in the falling of a floor in a fire believed to have been set as a joke by boys.

Several nearby wooden shops and houses caught fire and the fire departments of Cambridge and Charlestown were called on to rush aid to fight the blaze.

Machine Bumps Dynamite Plant

Steubenville, O., April 28.—Five employes were injured, two fatally, when they ran a machine into a dynamite plant at the Labelle coal mine, causing it to explode. The dynamite had been planted two days ago and its location forgotten.

Girl, Cash and Lover Missing

Boston, April 28.—Manuel Buscemi, a confectioner and caterer, reported to the police that his 16-year-old daughter, Olga, had taken $747 of his money and disappeared in company with a young barber.

Colonel TODHUNTER of Missouri

CHAPTER XII.

A Strange Cry From Black Lips.

Old Governor Leslie hurried to Nineveh from St. Louis the day following Colonel Strickland's own return home. He came in response to an urgent telegraphic summons from the candidate, whom he found in close conference with Major Gentry Dryden, one of Missouri's most famous criminal lawyers. Colonel Todhunter was with them.

"We'll bring Tom through all right, governor," said Colonel Strickland, although his worn and worried face belied the brave words, "but in the meantime I thought it best to get you down here so that I could straighten myself out in the matter of my campaign for the nomination for governor with as little delay as possible."

"What do you mean to do?" asked old Leslie.

"I mean to withdraw from the race," replied Colonel Strickland. "I can't run, carrying this weight of Tom's trouble. It's got me beat right now. I won't ask my friends to make a hopeless fight."

"You'll stay right where you are," said Governor Leslie. "You're not responsible for Tom's reckless folly, and the Democratic voters in Missouri won't hold you responsible."

"The Yancey crowd will make it appear that the killing of Stam Tucker was a political murder," Colonel Strickland answered. "They're doing it already. Their newspapers are handling the case along that line. They've published the story of the quarrel between Tom and Stam Tucker the night we opened my campaign here in Nineveh and of their fight in the barroom the next day. They point out that old Eph Tucker is my bitterest political enemy and that he and his son were working tooth and nail for Stephen K. Yancey and that this political feud has resulted in the assassination of Eph Tucker's son by my son. It's a pretty black story handled that way, and it'll do me all sorts of harm throughout the state."

"They can't ignore the facts in the case," retorted Governor Leslie. "In the first place, as I understand it, your son himself doesn't know that it was he who shot Stam Tucker. He's bound to plead not guilty, and the prosecution's got to prove the fact of guilt. In the second place, the real reason for deadly trouble between Tom and Stam Tucker was the story told by that Doggett girl and its bearing upon their rivalry for the hand of Miss Mary Todhunter. The Doggett story puts an entirely new light on the feud between the two boys."

"Not the way the Yancey organs are presenting it," said Colonel Strickland. "It only serves to intensify the original trouble and to make a thrilling 'murder story' with what they call 'romantic' as well as political trimmings. They're featuring it on that basis, and they're going to get Steve Yancey nominated just that way."

"I thought this was what you wanted to see me about," commented old Governor Leslie, "so I had a conference with the St. Louis men who worked with me to put you in the race. But before I tell you any more about that I want to ask you just one question, Bill Strickland."

A moment of silence followed these words. Colonel Strickland held Governor Leslie's eyes with his own inquiringly.

"Do you want your son to be convicted of the murder of Stamford Tucker?" asked Governor Leslie.

"Good God, man!" cried Colonel Strickland. "How can you ask such a thing?"

Governor Leslie turned to Major Dryden. "Dryden," he queried, "what would be the effect of Colonel Strickland's withdrawal from the campaign at this time?"

"It would be taken as a confession of his belief in his son's guilt. It would be the worst blow possible to the defense right now. I should strongly protest against Colonel Strickland's withdrawal."

"There you are!" exclaimed old Leslie, turning to the candidate. "That was exactly the view I took of it—you've got to consider your son's interests above all else, Strickland. And now I'll tell you what your St. Louis backers said. They authorized me to refuse to accept your withdrawal as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor of Missouri. Aside from whatever personal regard they may have for you, they believe that, even as matters now stand, you're the strongest man in the state and that you've still got a better fighting chance to win than any other man would have. You've got to stay in, Strickland."

"But, good Lord, man, how can I fight to any purpose?" asked Colonel Strickland piteously. "I must deal fairly with you, so I tell you right here and now that compared with Tom's safety I don't care what becomes of my chances in the campaign. I'm going to stay right here and move heaven and earth to clear my son of the awful charge against him, and by the time his trial's ended the campaign will be over too."

"I'll make Mizzoorah too hot to hold 'em!"

"Not quite," answered Governor Leslie, unmoved. "But if that was the case it wouldn't make any difference. God knows you're justified in sticking to Tom through thick and thin, to the finish and regardless of all other demands upon you. I wouldn't wipe my feet on you if you were capable of doing anything else. So don't you worry about that. We're going to do all the fighting for you from now on and we've picked on Colonel Todhunter here as the best man to lead what you seem disposed to call a forlorn hope."

"Now you're talkin', suh!" broke in Colonel Todhunter, his grim old face alight with the lust of battle. "I won't ask anything better'n to get out on the stump and skin 'em alive. They're crowdin' old Bill Strickland to the wall because they think they've got him foul, and Bill's friends have got to stand by him closer'n ever. Turn me loose on 'em, Leslie. I'll make Mizzoorah too hot to hold 'em!"

Old Governor Leslie smiled ominously. "We've made arrangements to that end, Todhunter," he replied. "I knew just how you'd feel about it. We want you to tell the Democrats of Missouri just exactly why we wouldn't let Strickland withdraw, just exactly why he himself won't do any more campaigning for the nomination and just exactly why and where the Yancey newspapers and the Yancey speakers are distorting the truth of this case against Tom Strickland to make it look like a political assassination. And it's going to be pretty hot work, Todhunter. You may have more than one personal difficulty on your hands before you get through with it."

"We needn't talk about that feature of it, Governor Leslie," said Colonel Todhunter. "There won't be no trouble 'less'n some o' the Yancey crowd object to a man's talkin' straight from the shoulder. We've just about got time now for a lightnin' finish on the stump, takin' it for granted that I'm expected to reach all parts of the state so the sooner I start the better."

"You start tomorrow, Colonel Todhunter," responded old Governor Leslie. "We've already made the speaking appointments for you, and I've got the list of towns and dates right here with me. It's a devilish big contract sir, and you won't get back here until just a few days before the primary elections."

"I don't want to get back here before then 'less'n I could be of some use to Tom Strickland," said Colonel Todhunter, a sudden huskiness in his throat as his eyes fell on Colonel Bill Strickland's haggard face. "The main thing I want is to give the Yancey crowd a fight they wasn't expectin' suh, and I'll be eternally condemned if we ain't a-goin' to do it too!"

Wherefore the following morning Colonel Todhunter started out in the lead of the forlorn hope that was to make the last stand for Colonel Bill Strickland in Missouri.

It proved to be a soul wearying battle, full of baffling chagrin and disappointment. On the very eve of the trial of Tom Strickland for the killing of Stamford Tucker, Colonel Todhunter returned to Nineveh. He was met by Colonel Strickland, whose face seemed now not only haggard, but hopeless.

"They're pushin' us pretty hard, Bill," said Colonel Todhunter. "I've fought 'em the best I knew how, but Steve Yancey's crowd is workin' Tom's case against us better'n I thought was possible among folks that know you like our Mizzoorah Democrats know you, suh. It's enough to make a dog sick to see how easy people can be turned against a man when he's in trouble. I'll just be double whipsawed if it ain't!"

"That's all right, Thurs," replied the other listlessly. "Don't you go worrying yourself any longer about my campaign. I knew I was beat the minute they got Tom's trouble to use as a weapon against me. But what hurts me most now, Thurs, is that Governor Leslie is finding it impossible to raise that campaign fund we counted on. I'm licked, and I've hurt you mighty bad at the same time."

But Colonel Todhunter fired up at this. "I'll be shot full o' holes if you're licked—yet!" he exclaimed. "And I ain't hurt any till you hear me holler, suh. Don't you misunderstand me, Bill Strickland. I acknowledge that we've got a hard row to hoe, but that ain't no sign we ain't a-goin' to hoe it. Any way, by Godfrey, we'll make an everlastin' good stagger at it. The next best thing to livin' victorious is dyin' game, suh!"

Colonel Strickland shook his head. "There's mighty little fight left in me," he spoke sadly.

"I'll do the fightin'," retorted Colonel Todhunter. Then he looked his friend anxiously in the face. "How's Tom's case goin'?" he asked.

"It looks mighty black," answered the other. "It's going to be a political trial, bitter as sin, because the old gang counts on Tom's conviction to drive me out of Missouri politics. The evidence in the case is all against the boy. The courtroom will be packed with Yancey heelers—there's no way to prevent it—and they'll make every demonstration possible to influence the jury. And every man connected with the court wears the gang's collar, even to Judge Pittman himself. If we ask for a change of venue we'll jump from the frying pan into the fire, because my enemies have got the whiphand anywhere we turn. Old fellow, I believe they'll have my boy's life before they get through!" The speaker's voice broke in spite of him.

Colonel Todhunter's face grew hard and grim. "No, they won't!" he said stubbornly. "They can't do it. They ain't got nothin' against Tom but circumstantial evidence, and it surely ought to be mighty hard here in Nineveh to convict a boy like Tom, well known and comin' of a family that's lived here so long, on circumstantial evidence alone. They'll try to do it, Bill, but they can't. Tom'll get the benefit of the doubt."

BUSINESS MAY BE ENLARGED

Rumors of Big Dry Dock and Quincy As a Port Current

UPON FORE RIVER SALE

No statement was forthcoming this morning from the Fore River Co. in relation to the sale of the plant to the Bethlehem Steel Co. as was expected. It was stated Saturday that the Fore River Co. would probably give out a statement this morning.

A meeting of the directors for the company is being held at the Boston office this afternoon and it is more than possible that a statement will be issued to the public after this meeting.

That the plant has been sold is beyond question but what Quincy people are interested in is what the outcome will be. It has been rumored authoritatively that there will be but little change at the Quincy plant and that the Bethlehem Steel Co. desired to make Quincy a port from which it can ship its product by water to all parts of the world. It is rumored that the raw material will be shipped by rail from the mills to Quincy and will be fashioned into the shapes desired at the Quincy plant and then shipped by water to its destination.

One thing is certain and that is if the business is to be enlarged as believed more land will be necessary. The company now own considerable land on the north side of Bent's creek toward Washington street and it may be possible that this property will be connected with the main yard by a bridge. Still another rumor is that a mammouth dry dock will be constructed near the plant. About the only dry dock of any size in these waters is that at the Charlestown navy yard and the demand for a dry dock is such that this dock cannot fill the wants.

ORIENTS WON FROM STATIONS

The Orients, the local amateur champions of last year, evidently intend to retain their honors. Saturday they defeated the Station Outing club, 9 to 2 Bradley was in good form allowed six hits with a total of nine bases and only 30 men faced him.

The score:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9

DRAFTSMEN LOST TO APPRENTICES

The Fore River Apprentices opened the season Saturday afternoon at Merrymount Park by beating the Draftsmen 14 to 8. The team made a splendid showing.

The game was full of sensational moments, Wilkens, Cresswell and Walter Williamson making home runs. The crowd was very enthusiastic and vigorously applauded every play.

The Apprentices have reorganized for a busy season and Manager Larkin is highly pleased with the showing.

The lineup on the Apprentices was: Creswell, catcher; Wilkins, first; Howley, second; Fitzgerald and Grethe, short stop; Laing, third; Holteen and C. Williamson, left field; Norling and Bergfors, centre field; Kennedy and Melville, right field; Kerr and Williamson, pitchers.

The Draftsmen players were Artis, centre; Young, first; Price, second; Simpson, short stop;; Chapman and Avery, third; Rhodes, left field; Segars, centre field;; Ryan, right field; Muntor and Ryan, pitchers:

The score:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9

This Black Tuscan Calf 5-Eyelet Blucher Oxford is what a college man would call "Some Oxford." It is built along snappy lines, and, like all Ralston Authority Style Oxfords, will not bulge at the sides or slip at the heels.

Some men who have never worn the Ralston always dread buying a low shoe. They contend that it means too much misery in "breaking it in." Those who know the Ralston Authority Styles never complain, because Ralston Authority Styles are scientifically moulded to fit the bottom of the foot as well as at the sides and across the instep Once you wear a foot-moulded Ralston, you will never go back to wearing ordinary shoes.

"DARE DEVIL" JOHNNY REYNOLDS

One of the most fearless and daring performers in vaudeville today is Johnny Reynolds, who is now playing at Kincaide's Theatre. He actually flirts with death at every performance.

Big city theatres consider his act so exceptionally good that its always a headline feature. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday were the only open dates he has for the summer, and altho Manager Wardwell had his regular show engaged, Johnny Reynolds was too good to miss.

So patrons of this popular new playhouse will enjoy five good vaudeville acts instead of four this first half week.

Another strong attraction is the picture of the Western floods. Then there's a two reel Indian picture: "The Barrier," and two good comic pictures also. Full orchestra provides plenty of good music.

FUNERAL OF MRS. E. W. WHITE.

A very beautiful service, intimate and tender, like a son returning to bury his mother, was the one held for Mrs. White at her home, 51 Edison street, on Friday. Rev. Leon H. Austin of Roslindale, the officiating clergyman, spoke feelingly of the character of the deceased and of the time when 12 years ago, he came into Mrs. White's home on his assuming his first pastorate, that of the Washington Street Congregational Church, of which Mrs. White was the oldest member. A few choice poems, among them Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar" were fittingly woven into his remarks. Mrs. Moore sang in her own sweet manner "The Homeland" and "Passing out of the Shadow." Many lovely flowers were the trbiutes of affection for Mrs. White and of sympathy for her daughters.

The remains were taken to Forest Hills for cremation which had been Mrs. White's frequently expressed wish, and later the ashes will repose in the family tomb in Christ church cemetery on School street.

THREE MORE PONY EXPRESS LICENSES GRANTED BY COUNCIL

Applications Which Had Already Been Turned Down Meet With Favor Under a Suspension of Rules

Lively Debate and Some Sharp Parliamentary Fireworks Skyrocketed. President Whiton on the Job

It took the City Council just an hour and a half Monday night at the special meeting to decide to grant three more poney express permits. The meeting was one of the most lively of the several lively sessions that body has held this year. Personalities were freely indulged in and the Mayor was taken to task for singling out three of the half dozen or more that had been turned down at the regular meeting April 21.

President Whiton was on his dignity and promptly squelched, several times, what he considered were attempts to ride over him. It was a trying position and bang, bang, bang, went the gavel time and time again. Such astute parliamentarians as Councilmen Bryant and Cunningham were unable to trip him up and he carried the meeting to a successful end.

The meeting was called to act on the applications of the Adams Express, W. F. Loud & Son and N. T. Murphy for permits to transport liquor and to approve the certificate of incorporation of the Quincy Tennis club.

On motion of Councilman Bryant the matter of the Tennis club was taken up first and an order approving the certificate offered by Councilman Gilliatt was adopted. The three applications for permits were then received and the President ruled that under the rules of the council they could not be received. The first of these taken up was of W. F. Loud & Son and Councilman Boyd promptly moved to suspend the rules.

Councilman Bryant immediately raised the point that this matter had already been adjudicated upon and that it was not proper to call a special meeting for that purpose.

The City Solicitor being called upon for a ruling said that there was no limit to what the Mayor might ask to be considered in his call. The fact that rejections are not filed with him and that permits must be passed in April was sufficient ground for him to call the meeting. In other words the Mayor has a right to call a special meeting at any time and if these applications are filed with him before the call he can put them in the call.

Councilman Bryant was asked a ruling if a matter that had once been considered and acted upon could again be brought up. He said it is a well known parliamentary law that a matter once having been disposed of can not again be taken up that same year, that is the same subject matter.

President Whiton promptly ruled that the meeting was a legal one and that the matters could be considered if the council so desired.

Councilman Bryant—Do you mean to say that this is a new matter to be considered? It is the same matter that was disposed of at the last meeting.

President Whiton replied that if the Council voted to suspend the rules the matter could be acted upon.

Councilman Griffin argued that it was perfectly proper to suspend the rules. It was also proper for the Mayor to call a special meeting. He believed that at the last meeting the Council did not get all the facts. He had asked the Chief some questions but did not hear what he had said in reply. As a matter of justice to those parties he hoped the rules would be suspended.

Councilman Cunningham said that for once he agreed exactly with the gentleman on his left, Councilman Bryant. When a matter is acted upon once that ends it. It is well known that in legislative proceedings that once a matter is disposed of, that same subject matter can not again be brought up during that session. Take for instance the question of a new street. Suppose the Council turned down a street and the Mayor 24 hours later brought the same matter up again would it be right? The records of this body show that these matters have been disposed of and it is not right to bring them up again. If the Mayor has any new evidence, it is his place to be here and tell us what it is.

Councilman Bryant said that these matters had been absolutely settled and it is an unwritten law that they can not come up again, simply because some man went to sleep at the last meeting is no reason why we should take it up again.

At this point Mayor Stone came in and in reply to questions said that these people had come to him and he had considered it good judgment to call the meeting.

Councilman Gilliatt thought it all nonsense to talk further on this matter as the council was only killing time.

The rules were then suspended by a rising vote of 15 yes and 3 no.

President Whiton then called City Solicitor McAnarney to the desk to ask a question. Councilman Bryant promptly raised a point of order that there was no question before the meeting.

President Whiton said that he was seeking information and Councilman Bryant renewed his statement that there was no motion before the meeting. Bang,Bang, Bang, went the gavel as President Whiton replied that he was seeking information and ordered the speaker to take his seat. President Whiton had blood in his eye and it looked for a minute as if he intended to call upon City Messenger Tirrell to preserve order.

What the president wanted to know was about the clause, relative to making reports. The City Solicitor made a ruling that that clause did not apply to Messrs. Loud as they did not transport liquor into Quincy but simply transported it in the city.

Councilman Gilliatt then offered an order granting W. F. Loud & Son a permit to transport liquor.

On motions of Councilman Thompson and Corcoran the condition was amended as to provide that an "expressman" transporting liquor, instead of a driver should make daily reports and it was also amended so as to read "into or in" the City of Quincy.

There was a little more hot argument during which Councilman Duffy claimed that it was not giving a square deal to the other men who had been turned down not to consider their applications. He wanted to lay this order on the table and then adjourn until Tuesday night in order to consider the applications of the men who had been turned down.

The President informed him that even if an adjournment was taken until Tuesday night nothing could be considered except what was stated in the call.

The motion to lay on the table was then rejected but not until after a sharp debate in which several councilmen took part, and a square deal had been asked, for the men turned down and for the applications that had been refused under the rules at the last meeting.

The permit of W. F. Loud & Son was then granted on roll call by a vote of 16 yes and 2 no, Councilmen Corcoran and Cunningham voting no, President Whiton not voting and Councilman Bailey, Farquharson, Richards and Ross being absent.

An order granting a permit to the Adams express was then adopted on roll call 15 voting yes and 2 no. Councilmen Corcoran and Cunningham voting no, President Whiton and Councilman Gauthier not voting and Councilmen Bailey, Farquharson, Richards and Ross were absent.

An order granting a permit to N. T. Murphy was then adopted on roll call by a vote of 15 yes and 3 no. Councilmen Barker, Beeman and Ericson voting no, President Whiton not voting and Councilmen Bailey, Farquharson, Richards and Ross being absent.

Adjourned at 9. 35.

REP. SULLIVAN MAKES REPLY

Objects to Criticism Intended to Be Misleading

FAVORS REFERENDUM

Editor Quincy Daily Ledger:

Permit me space in your paper to answer the criticism of Mr. Delcevare King, contained in his article of yesterday.

He cites a letter from one Arthur J. Davis, who styles himself as Supt. Mass. Anti-Saloon League, but as I understand that Mr. Davis is not a resident of this Fifth Norfolk district, I do not feel bound to act according to his desires.

Honest criticism I court, but this is not honest and is intended to mislead the public.

The bill under discussion in the House on April 21, was not to repeal the "Bar and Bottle Law" but to extend the Local Option principle to the law.

In support of my contention I present herewith a copy of that part of the House Calendar relating to this subject:

2430. Bill relative to the granting of licenses of the fourth and fifth class for the sale of intoxicating liquors (House, No. 1103). (Question on ordering to a third reading.) (Reported also on House, No. 1302.) (Ahern.) (Messrs. Hilton, Wells and Montague, of the Senate, and Messrs. Tufts of Waltham, Haines of Medford, Wilson of Lynn and Casassa of Revere, of the House, dissent.) (The bill has been changed by striking out section 2 and inserting in place thereof the following. "Section 2. This act shall be submitted to the voters of the several cities and towns of the Commonwealth at the next annual election for state officers; and in cities and towns where a majority of the voters voting thereon vote in favor of its acceptance it shall become effective thereafter in any year in which such cities and towns vote to license the sale of intoxicating liuors.")

If this proposed amendment had been adopted the effect would be that the voters of every city and town in the state would have the privilege of voting on the matter in November of the present year.

In a city or town voting not to accept the amendment there would be no change from the present system.

In a city or town voting to accept the amendment there would be no change unless that city or town voted later in favor of license.

In cities or towns voting no license, like Quincy, the act would have no effect.

The act for which I am criticised is that I voted for the Referendum.

I believe in the Referendum on all important questions and would call your attention to my vote on the Women's Suffrage Bill as proof of my consistency.

The most disagreeable experience in connection with my service in the Legislature is that while I am doing the best that I can, in my humble way, to serve the best interest of the district, attempts have been made to influence my actions by people who I believed opposed my election.

These people should remember that they have no monopoly on wisdom or virtue and that people who do not see things as they do may sometimes be right and actuated by proper principles.

Trusting that you will give this article the same prominence that you gave to the article of yesterday I remain

Very respectfully yours,
Michael T. Sullivan.

ST. JOHN'S PLAN 3 CELEBRATIONS

Triple Anniversaries This Year to Be Observed

CHURCH IMPROVEMENTS

A meeting of the committee in charge of plans for the celebration of the 50th anniversary of St. John's parish will be held Sunday afternoon. In the meantime the interested parties are preparing programs which will be submitted at the meeting.

At a meeting in Parochial Hall, Sunday afternoon Edward J. Parker was elected chairman, and Miss Nonie O'Connor secretary. Sub committees will be appointed by the chairman.

The interior of the church is being decorated under the direction of Rev. Fr. John J. Coan. Memorial windows will replace those in use and other changes of a minor nature will be made.

St. John's parish has had but four pastors since it was set off as a separate parish. Previous to that it was a mission station and priests came here from Randolph to officiate at services. The town of Hingham was at one time a section of St. John's parish and St. Mary's parish was but thinly settled.

Rev. William Halley the first pastor, remained until 1867 when he was succeeded by Rev. Fr. James Sullivan, an uncle of Mgr. Ambrose F. Roche of Watertown. Father Sullivan died in 1871 and was succeeded by his curate Rev. F. Francis A. Friguletti. At the death of Father Friguletti in 1903 the present pastor, Rev. Fr. John J. Coan was appointed pastor.

This year marks the 10th anniversary of Father Coan's pastorate and in June he will also observe the 25th anniversary of his priesthood. Since coming here Father Coan has cleared St. John's Church and the Church of St. Frances-by-the-Sea from debt, has erected a fine parochial school and recently has secured the title to a valuable piece of land at Quincy Point which will be devoted to church extention in the near future.

This Black Tuscan Calf 5-Eyelet Blucher Oxford is what a college man would call "Some Oxford." It is built along snappy lines, and, like all Ralston Authority Style Oxfords, will not bulge at the sides or slip at the heels.

Some men who have never worn the Ralston always dread buying a low shoe. They contend that it means too much misery in "breaking it in." Those who know the Ralston Authority Styles never complain, because Ralston Authority Styles are scientifically moulded to fit the bottom of the foot as well as at the sides and across the instep Once you wear a foot-moulded Ralston, you will never go back to wearing ordinary shoes.

RIVADAVIA LOSSES FORCED SALE FORE RIVER CO. TO BETHLEHEM CO.

Stockholders' Committee Recommended Move After Capital Was Threatened

Admiral Bowles to Remain in Charge Outlook Satisfactory

That the sale of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company to the Bethlehem Steel Company was precipitated by heavy losses sustained in the construction of the Argentine dreadnought Rivadavia, and which impared the credit of the concern, frequently rumored of late, was indicated Monday in a communication of the directors to the stockholders of the company.

In a letter expressing satisfaction at the fact that the sale has been arranged the directors say that "the completion of certain existing contracts would in the near future leave the company with its working capital seriously impaired, to such an extent as to necessitate financing."

The figures at which the Rivadavia was taken made it a good contract, but the failure of the Bethlehem Steel Co., to furnish armor and guns in season, with some similar delays from other contributory sources, with the financial penalties falling on the Fore River Company, have made it a heavy loser. Federal legislation, which compelled the entire plant to go on the eight-hour basis last November, did not make the problem any easier, with the results now disclosed.

The communication of the directors, made public after a meeting in Boston, announced that Admiral Bowles and the other officers of the company at the yard will continue in charge. It declares that the sale, which will be formally arranged as to details very soon, was accomplished at the suggestion and initiative of the directors by a committee representing more than 80 per cent of the stockholders.

All obligations, as well as all assets, it is announced, will be taken over by the Bethlehem Company. The terms of the sale are announced to be the payment of $600,000 in first lien and refunding 5 percent bonds by the purchasing company, and the purchase and arrangement for sale by the stockholders committee of $750,000 worth of first mortgage, 20-year 5 percent bonds, guaranteed, principal and interest, by the Bethlehem company.

The stockholders committee is congratulated on the arrangements, as "in the best interests of the stockholders, and offering the best prospects for the further development of

HOW DUST KILLS ONE OUT OF EVERY SEVEN PEOPLE

The New York Times writes on January 17, 1913, page 6: "Dr. John Van Doren Young, secretary of the New York County Medical Society received enthusiastic applause yesterday in the discussion of 'Household Sanitation' at the Academy of Medicine when he thought he was going to offend his audience. Dr. Young, whose talk was on hygienic living rooms, said that nothing stirred his wrath so much as to hear someone beating rugs, or to see some one shaking dusters." "The Vacuum Cleaner is a surprize party," he said. "The only use I know for a broom is to wipe down the walls with a woolen rag on it."

The Vacuum Cleaner is not a luxury any more today, but a reorganized necessity. It is not expensive, and will do the work much better than a broom or carpet sweeper—and in less time.

"Everybody's" Vacuum Cleaner, U. S. Patent granted, costs you only $4.50 and you don't have to buy it until you have seen with your own eyes that it will do the work at least equally as well as any other and more expensive machine.

"Everybody's" Vacuum Cleaner has been adopted by the Pullman Car Co., and 5000 of these machines are now used to clean their cars throughout the country.

"Everybody's" Vacuum Cleaner is guaranteed for one year, and with ordinary care will last a life-time.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

The resonant tread of the school children down Hancock street, will be missed this week.

It was fortunate indeed that no lives were lost at the Railroad accident Monday.

According to the reports it was a clear case where some one had been doing some thinking without any license to do so.

The cubists are beginning to take themselves seriously believing they are wholly on the square.

The Belgian strike came high costing something like $20,000,000 but it was remarkable from the fact that it was for a righteous principle and was settled without lawlessness or blood shed.

Some would be authorities blame the low moral condition to colleges. As usual the poor college and college students come in as the authors of all wrong after all the other sources have been exploited without amounting to a great deal.

Quincy's worthy citizen Caleb F. Howard is quite busy these days as an organizer of the Industrial Workers of the world. Praise be.

Mr. Bryan has his work cut out for him in California. He probably has carried along a good supply of the new diplomatic grape juice.

Much has been said of raising the rafters at times, but the lathers have at last entered the ranks.

Has that circus agent been found yet?

How do you like City hall so far after its bath?

Few people seem to take heed of those civic pride boxes. City Square looked like a waste paper basket Monday morning.

A nerve specialist should be taken with the base ball teams next season to see that they do not develop writers cramp. That would seriously interfere with one source of income.

London Truth practically accuses Mrs. Pankhurst and her daughters of being fakirs and out for the stuff. For poor people they have certainly given freely of their time for a cause and could have starved outside of prison as well as in, unless there was something coming to them.

Hawthorne and Morton will soon be on the parole list. If they had been starving and stole a loaf of bread instead of trying to rob people wholesale they would have been forgotten and allowed to serve out their sentence.

There is a stretch of brick pavement on Tremont street Boston, which could furnish ample material for hollow art if such a thing is started. There is no doubt of the existence of the thing, only the name has not been attached.

ARE THEY SINCERE?

Truth seems to take exceptions to the sincerity of Mrs. Pankhurst and her daughters in this suffrage movement in England and does not hesitate to say so. Truth says they are seeking notoriety and the money which cannot fail to come from such operations. There it is again the ever present notoriety and the resultant monetary returns. Certainly the women have not failed to make the most of their opportunities. They have not hidden their light under a bushel. They have been right up to the footlights under the full scope of the opera glasses.

The charge is made that they have retarded woman suffrage in England and taken steps to prevent a peaceful solution of the problem, because it would leave them minus an occupation and a means of posing. That they have posed to the limit is quite evident. That they have always been sincere has been a subject of grave doubt in some quarters. That they would be just as well appreciated in England if they moved their activities elsewhere is quite understood and that they have repeatedly violated the law, jeered at justice, defied the will of the people is known. They have jeopardized life and property without regard to the life and property of innocent people. On the whole, summing it up, it is hard to intelligently figure where Mrs. Pankhurst or her tribe have helped woman suffrage, but that they have retarded it and aroused antagonism among those who would naturally favor their cause is conceded.

THE CAUSE.

A few self constituted authorities bob up at all times and proceed to tell the rest of the world, the cause and effect of everything under the sun. The wonder is that any notice is taken of them. But let any hair brain give utterance to an absurdity and it is seized upon as material upon which to feed. And by the way all the flighty utterances are not confined to the hair brain. Much of the stuff comes from people whose influences, education and opportunities should teach them better, but the lust of the limelight is too much for them and fearing that they may be permitted to sink into oblivion of public opinion, unless they speak, branch forth with anything. This class can usually be counted upon to treat upon every subject under the sun and provide the cause, but they are somewhat short on the remedy.

The latest outburst is that colleges are the institutions responsible for low morals. And of course this includes the students. It was about time the colleges and student body were arraigned before the bar of those self constituted judges. Every time every other probable cause has been exhausted by the notoriety seeker the college and college student are hit upon as the target to aim at.

The students and the colleges may be responsible for their portion of low morals, but not all by any matter of means. They can only honestly be charged with their fair proportion. Every other class must take upon their shoulders their respective parts, their deserved share. To blame one class more than another is shifting the blame without rhyme or reason or a proper understanding of existing conditions.

Every one is more or less to blame. Every section of the country, every community, every representation has done its part towards any low morality which may exist however much they may try to shift it to the shoulders of some one else. The people as a whole are to blame and they know it, if they take the time to figure it out and have the courage to examine their consciences and deeds before the looking glass of public opinion. To blame any particular class for a condition which is universal is absurd. If the people of any community, were honest, sincere, devoted, determined and earnest in the cause of morality, if they all united in that ideal, which some few claim, if they all decided to perform the Master's work, giving power to certain persons to perform it and drive out evils, then there would be a change and there would be no need of the hypocritical shifting of responsibility which is periodically the indulgence of many people.

But aside from the division of the responsibility, the greatest per centage can be credited up to greed, avarice and selfishness. The less that those three qualities appear in a community, the cleaner and sweeter is the community in all its department Let us be honest with ourselves. Let us throw off the mask of the hypocrite and acknowledge that we all have our share in the responsibility. This thrusting it upon the shoulders of others may quiet the conscience for a brief period but not for all time; you can no more fool your conscience all the time than you can go against the famous remark of Abraham Lincoln about fooling the people.

DELIGHTFUL HOSPITALITY

Marked the Debut of Miss Mary Munroe Faxon

ON HER BIRTHDAY

In response to cards sent out by Mrs. Henry Munroe Faxon and her daughter Miss Mary Munroe Faxon for an at home there was a continuous stream of guests at their beautiful home on Adams street, Monday afternoon from four until seven o'clock. It was not only the eighteenth birthday of Miss Faxon but also her debut into society and the library where Mrs. Faxon and her daughter received was filled with beautiful flowers from many friends.

Seldom has there been a more charming debutante. Mrs. Faxon was gowned in white and Miss Faxon was also in white with just a touch of pink and the gracious hospitality of mother and daughter was most attractive.

Pink was the color scheme of the floral decorations, the dining table had a centre piece of pink roses and candelabra with pink shades. The matrons in the dining room were Mrs. Clarence Burgin and Mrs. Paul R. Blackmur who poured chocolate and tea, while many waiters served ices and cake. Punch was also served in the sun parlor. Music by an orchestra stationed in the parlor added to the pleasure of the guests.

After the reception a dinner was given for Miss Faxon, with a few of her most intimate friends as guests, which was followed by a dance, also at the house, which was an enjoyable ending to a birthday, happy and memorable to hostess and guests.

Of the many hospitalities of Mr. and Mrs. Faxon the observance of the eighteenth birthday of the eldest daughter of the house will long be remembered as one of the happiest.

ALL NEW DANCES WERE TRIPPED

At a Select Private Dancing Party at Alpha Hall

A private dancing party was held in Alpha hall Monday evening by Walter Rogers.

The matrons were Mrs. George Saville, Mrs. E. E. Jameson, Mrs. A. Isabelle Davis, Mrs. Henry L. Kincaide, Mrs. Laurance Sturtevant.

Yards of bunting and all sizes of American flags were strung about the hall. Suspended from wires running across were large and small Japanese lanterns and the matrons corner was one heavy bank of potted plants and palms. The decorations were set by Mr. and Mrs. Jackson Marvin, supervisors of the hall.

The evening was devoted to the new dances, many that were entirely new being introduced by out of town guests. Young and old enjoyed these features, while those of a more sedate nature quietly devoted themselves to the now "old fashioned but nevertheless pretty" waltz and two step.

Nearly 200 attended and the party was a formal affair. Music was furnished by Roger's orchestra and the dancers adjourned at 11.30 P. M.

BORDEN'S WIFE TO FIGHT FOR RAMONA

Sequel to Girl's Disappearance and Hunt For Her

New York, April 29.—With the wife of Gail Borden now on her way to New York, a fight in the courts for the possession of Ramona, 17-year-old daughter of the couple, is looked for as a sequel to the girl's disappearance and the hunt which followed last week.

Miss Borden is still in the custody of her father, but William B. Ellison, counsel for Mrs. Helen S. White, with whom the girl fled from the Pompton Lake sanatorium, was authority for the statement that Mrs. Borden would soon start action to gain the guardianship of her daughter.

In this connection it was intimated in some quarters that the flight of Miss Borden was really the first step in the fight to be made by the girl's mother.

TEASDALE DEAD IN KANSAS CITY

First Man to Blow An Electric Light Bulb Has Relatives Here

George Teasdale of Kansas City who died Sunday is believed to be a relative of William H. Teasdale, chairman of the Board of Health. George Teasdale claims to have been the first man to blow an electric light lamp while associated with Henry Goebel of New York. A son of Mr. Teasdale is reported to have said "I remember when father made the light. He and Mr. Goebel planned it, and father made the straight tube about five inches long with a platinu mwire running down the centre. The air was exhausted and the jeweller sealed up the ends. Father did not realize the value of the invention and he turned his rights over to others and devoted his time to other glass work."

According to Chairman Teasdale of the Board of Health his ancestors for generations back have been glass blowers. He knows that he has many relatives in the west but it is so long since he has heard from them that he has lost track of them. He however believes that the George Teasdale mentioned in the despatch is a distant relative.

FOR YOUNG FOLKS

Campfire Girls' Movement Growing In Popularity.

WORK, HEALTH AND LOVE.

These Are the Watchwords of the Organization, and Its Symbol Is Fire. Character Building One of the Underlying Principles—Origin of Week Day Names.

Although less than a year old, the Campfire Girls have a membership of over 50,000. The important watchwords of the organization are "Work, Health and Love," and fire is its symbol, because fire has always been the center of the home. It is also a symbol of enthusiasm. Anything that is worth doing at all is worth doing well. Similar in its aims to the boy scout movement, there is no connection whatever between the two organizations. Each is working in its own way to improve the youth of the nation mentally, morally and physically.

There are three degrees of Campfire Girls—the wood gatherers, the firemakers and the torch bearers. When a girl first joins she becomes a wood gatherer, and gradually as she becomes proficient in the duties imposed upon her she advances to the next higher degree. She must be able to do many useful and helpful things—there are fourteen specifications—before she is admitted to the higher degrees. Then there are honors to be won.

Indian life has furnished the models upon which the activities of the Campfire Girls are patterned. In Campfire Girl garb, adorned with beads and beadwork, they look like real forest maidens. The winning of honors is shown by wearing beads of various colors. Red stands for health craft, orange for home craft. Blue is the color for nature lore, wood brown for camp craft. Green and yellow are for handcraft and business respectively. There is much in the Campfire Girls' movement that will interest the coming mothers of the nation.

Days of the Week.

The days of the week get their names from very, very long ago, when the Norsemen had never heard of Christianity. In those days they worshipped the sun, and Sun's day was named for it. Moon's day (Monday) was the wife of the sun and, of course, had to be honored also. Tyar was the god of war, and so they had Tyr's day (Tuesday), while Wednesday is Woden's day, the god of the Norseman's heaven. Thor was the god of strength, so he has Thursday. Friday is Freya's day. Freya was the Woden's wife and Thor's mother. The last of the days, Saturday, gets its name from a Roman god, Saturn, who presided over the games on a holiday called the Saturnalia, so that it is quite appropriate that our Saturday should be a holiday too.

What is that which is lengthened by being cut at both ends? A ditch.

What kind of essence does a young man like when he pops the question? Acqui-escence.

What is the difference between an auction and seasickness? One is the sale of effects, the other the effect of a sail.

Who may marry many a wife and yet live single all his life? A clergyman.

The Boy's Dilemma.

A dear little boy
With a very sad face
Sat hiding away
By the big fireplace.

When asked why he hid
He said, with a stare,
"Why, can't you all see
I ain't combed my hair?"

And so there he sat
Till the company went.
And when he came out
His ma saw a rent

In his pants—but, my me,
I'll not tell you where!
But when his ma saw
She said, "I declare!"

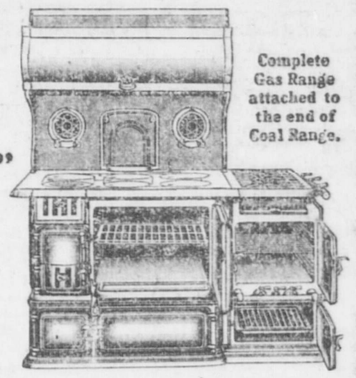

And straightway a patch
She sewed o'er the rent;
Then out to his play
The little boy went.

Seven directors, headed by Gordon Abbott, sign the letter, which is as follows:—

"Quincy, Mass., April 28, 1913.

"To the stockholders of Fore River Shipbuilding Company:

"The directors of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, being aware that the completion of certain existing contracts would in the near future leave the company with its working capital seriously impaired to such extent as to necessitate financing, have learned with satisfaction of an arrangement made by a stockholders' committee acting on the initiative and suggestion of the directors and representing a very large proportion (over 80 per cent) of both preferred and common stock, to sell the property of the company to the Bethlehem Steel Company, which assumes all its obligations and takes all its assets. The directors believe the arrangements, which will soon take formal shape, are in the best interests of the stockholders and also offer the best prospect for the further development of a large industry important to the community as they are informed by the president of the purchasing company that it is his intention that Admiral Bowles and other officers continue in charge of the yard. The directors refer to the letter of the stockholders' committee under date of April 28 herewith enclosed and recommend the immediate deposit of stock with the committee.

The statement of the stockholders' committee referred to by the directors is as follows:

"To the Holders of Common and Preferred Shares of Fore River Shipbuilding Company:

"The undersigned stockholders' committee, already representing over 80 per cent of both classes of stock, has completed an arrangement with the Bethlehem Steel Company by which all of the plant and other assets, including goodwill, will be sold to the Bethlehem Steel Company, which assumes all the Fore River Company's contracts and liabilities. The terms of the sale are as follows:

"The Bethlehem Company pays $600,000 in first lien and refunding 5 percent. mortgage bonds due May 1, 1942, of the Bethlehem Steel Company.

"The committee is to purchase and arrange for the sale of $750,000 of first mortgage 20-year 5 per cent. bonds, a lien on the present property, when and as issued by a new Massachusetts corporation, said bonds guaranteed principal and interest by the Bethlehem Steel Company.

"The committee will have some expenses in the sale of the bonds, for counsel fees and for commission for the sale of the property.

"The committee itself serves without compensation.

"No commission will be paid to any director or officer of the corporation.

The form of agreement under which the committee is acting is on file with the Old Colony Trust Company and the committee recommends the deposit of stock under the terms of said agreement dated April 22, 1913, such deposit to be made with the Old Colony Trust Company, 17 Court street, Boston, which company will issue its usual form or receipts on behalf of this committee.

WOULD SETTLE BY DIPLOMACY

Bryan Asks California to Delay Alien Land Laws

IS HEARD IN SECRET SESSION

Concedes State's Right to Act However It Sees Fit, but Suggests Alternatives Based on Foundation of Public Policy—Would Have State Department Handle the Question

Sacramento, Cal., April 29.—California, in the fulness of her right as a state, may enact a rigid land law barring Orientals from ownership, but such action would be against the earnest wish of the national administration.

This is the substance of the message that William J. Bryan, secretary of state and personal representative of President Wilson, delivered to a secret conference attended only by Governor Johnson, Lieutenant Governor Wallace and the 120 members of the California legislature.

Until the doors of the assembly chamber were closed and locked, Bryan refused to give any inkling of his message to anyone, and even at the conference he spoke only after legislators had explained fully the public demand for alien land legislation that brought about the present situation.

Those who expected Bryan to expound a new theory of states' rights were disappointed, as were those who expected predictions of war. Advice in the name of President Wilson was all Bryan had to offer, and the paramount question here is whether such advice will overcome the previously announced determination of the progressive Republican majority to enact an anti-alien land-holding law along lines already agreed upon.

Secretary Bryan reaffirmed the state's right to act in a manner it saw fit, but suggested several alternatives to the passage of a bill restricting aliens "ineligible to citizenship," basing his reasons on the broad foundation of public policy. Briefly these alternatives in the order in which they were suggested are as follows:

1. Delay immediate action and allow the state department to try to accomplish the ends desired by means of a new treaty with Japan.

2. Delay immediate action and appoint a commission to investigate the subject of alien land ownership and act in conjunction with the president in securing relief.

3. Enact a law similar to the statute in Illinois, which permits aliens to hold land for a period not exceeding six years, and applies alike to all aliens.

4. Enact a law similar to the federal statute governing land ownership in the District of Columbia, which is a general law, applying to all aliens.

Of these alternatives, it may safely be said, according to leaders in the legislature, that the last two are out of the question. Many Democrats favor turning the matter over to the state department, while the progressive Republican majority apparently remains unchanged in its support of a bill that would apply its restrictions to Orientals alone.

RECEIVE REPLY OF MONTENEGRO

Powers Asked For Same Justice Given Stronger States

TROOPS ARE LEAVING SCUTARI

Marching Toward Port Where Austria Threatens to Land a Force—Indications That Powers Were Double-Crossed by Nicholas, Who Formed Alliance With Essad

London, April 29.—Threatened with invasion by Austria, supported by the powers, Montenegro still refuses to yield.

M. Popovitch, the Montenegrin plenipotentiary to London, handed the reply of his country to the demands of England and the continental powers that Scutari be given up.

This reply, which was formally tendered to the ambassador at the foreign office, protests against coercion and requests that the powers again examine the question before presenting a last ultimatum.

"Montenegro, despite its size, desires to be placed on an equal footing with the other members of the Balkan league," says the communication. "We request the same consideration and demand the same justice as given to the stronger states."

Advices by way of Vienna state that Crown Prince Danilo and most of the Montenegrin troops in Scutari left that city yesterday and are marching northward. The Montenegrins left only five batteries of guns in Scutari, it was reported. The dispatch indicated that the Montenegrin army is marching toward Antivari, the port of Cettinje, where the Austrians threaten to land a force.

While these disquieting reports came in from Cettinje, Scutari, St. Petersburg and Vienna, the peace ambassadors of the powers were in earnest consultation behind closed doors at the foreign office. They had before them Austria-Hungary's note, amounting almost to an ultimatum, that unless the powers took concerted action immediately to force Montenegro out of Scutari the dual monarchy would act alone.

The situation is acute and the rumors from Austria-Hungary are expected to goad the ambassadors into quick, concerted action. In view of the strained relations now existing throughout Europe, diplomats realize it would be unfortunate for any one nation to move independently against Montenegro.

Essad Pasha, the defender of Scutari, who surrendered the town to the Montenegrins and who was permitted to depart with his troops, and who has proclaimed himself King of Albania at Alessio, has had a picturesque and adventurous career. He is said to be marching into the interior of Albania with 40,000 men. He was received with enthusiasm at Alessio and is proceeding to Tirana to be proclaimed and to take possession.

Essad Pasha is an Albanian chieftain of the type which earned for the Albanians a reputation for barbaric simplicity approaching savagery. He was always opposed to the Young Turks' repressive measures in Albania.

In Vienna and Paris his surrender of Scutari is now regarded as having been an arranged matter with King Nicholas, who approved his plan to proclaim himself independent prince of Albania. The whole scheme of the alleged storming of Scutari and the marching out of Essad Pasha's army with their arms is now regarded as coup de theatre to deceive Europe.

Essad is said to have joined Djavid Pasha's army of 9000 men, and if he had the support of Servia and Montenegro it would be a severe blow for Austria. A Belgrade dispatch to the Daily Mail asserts that Essad Pasha's Albanian standing assures his success and that he has an alliance with King Nicholas.

Ogdensburg, N. Y., April 29.—The heaviest earthquake ever experienced in Ogdensburg occurred at 7:30 o'clock last evening. It lasted fully half a minute and was followed by a loud, rumbling sound.

Buildings throughout the city shook so badly that the people ran into the streets.

Shocks were felt in several villages in northern New York, causing considerable alarm. At Canton the shocks continued for a minute. Houses were jarred and dishes rattled on the shelves, but no damage was done.

The 'quake also shook the middle St. Lawrence valley, the shock lasting for ten seconds. Reports from Potsdam and Gouverneur say the 'quake was felt there.

The shock was accompanied by a high wind and storm on the St. Lawrence.

TRAINS CRASH HEAD ON

Eighty Persons Injured as Result of Somebody's Blunder

Quincy, Mass., April 29.—Because somebody blundered, over eighty persons were injured in a head on collision between two trains on the Granite branch of the New Haven road, between West Quincy and Braintree.

Speeding through a dense fog a passenger train carrying more than 200 persons and a work train crashed together on the single track.

A few moments later, while the shrieks and cries of injured men, women and girls rose on the air, the town of West Quincy was thrown into a panic at reports of awful loss of life.

The New Haven has issued no statement as to the cause. It was established, however, that a verbal order, shouted from a signal tower through the fog, to give a clear line to the passenger train, was misunderstood.

LEADERS ARE NEAR BREACH IN MEXICO

Diaz and Huerta Reported to Be Approaching a Conflict

Washington, April 29.—A rapidly growing situation in Mexico City, fraught with friction between the Huerta and Diaz factions of the provisional government, is reported in confidential advices, and these reports are augmented by agents of the Carranza constitutionalists arriving here.

Reports of the situation in Mexico City confirm earlier advices of the tensity of the relations of Diaz to Huerta. Between the two practically all government forces in the federal district have been divided into two armed camps. Huerta has added to the infantry at the national palace and Diaz has encamped much of the artillery about thirty miles away.

HEAVY LOGS ON RAILS

Attempt to Wreck Train on the Boston and Maine Railroad

Reading, Mass., April 29.—Railroad officials reported an attempt to wreck a Boston and Maine train last night on the Portland division line, between Reading and Wakefield, by placing railroad ties on the inward-bound track.

A man who refused to give his name telephoned the Reading station that ties had been put on the track and railroad and police officials, who hastened to the spot indicated, found a heavy log on each rail.

A local passenger train was due shortly after the obstructions were discovered. Three other alleged attempts to derail trains have been made within a few years in the same locality.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 29.—Two plain clothes patrol women will walk beats in the down-town district of Los Angeles at night, beginning May 1. This innovation was announced by Police Chief Sebastian, accompanied by the statement that the police women would devote most of their efforts to the protection of girls.

Mrs. Alice S. Wells, who claims the distinction of being the first police woman in the United States, and Mrs. Rachel Shatto, for some time a police matron, will be the pioneer patrol women.

MOVING BIG DERRICK.

The feat of moving a mammoth derrick a distance of 50 feet with a drop of 20 feet, without taking down the derrick was successfully accomplished recently at the granite quaries in Barre, Vt. The usual method is to take down a derrick and set it up again in its new position.

The derrick which was shifted has a capacity of 60 tons. It is estimated that the weight on the casting is about 50 tons. The mast is 90 feet in length, but with head and foot castings on is 100 feet in length.

INJURED FROM HEAD TO FOOT

Badly Bruised and Burned Woman Succumbs to Injuries

SAID SHE FELL DOWN STAIRS

Police Think She Sought to Clear Husband From Suspicion—He Had Served Thirteen Years In Prison For Murder of His First Wife—Is Held on Suspicion

Whitman, Mass., April 29.—With her dying breath, Mrs. James Southerland sought to clear her husband from suspicion of having killed her here.

Southerland, who was released from state prison two years ago, after serving thirteen of a twenty years' sentence for killing his first wife, is being held by the police, pending an autopsy on the body of his second wife.

According to Chief of Police Brouillard, the woman, covered from head to foot with scalds and bruises, managed to whisper before she died that her husband was not responsible for her condition.

"I fell down stairs," she gasped out, and apparently tried to say something about how she came to be scalded, but died before the words had left her lips.

Associate Medical Examiner McNamara declared that her scalds alone were enough to cause death. Brouillard said that he thinks the woman's dying words were only an heroic attempt to shield Southerland.

The authorities were astonished by the information that Mrs. Southerland, who said she was Miss Winifred S. Maxwell of Newton, when she was married in Brockton last December, had been married before and had a boy 13 years old, living in Newton. This was told by Mrs. Della Monahan of Burrage, a sister of Southerland.

Dr. Deculeiu notified the police that he found the woman dying seemingly from bruises and burns with which she was covered from head to feet. Southerland, the physician said, explained that his wife fell down stairs and in pouring hot water on her bruises upset a kettle and she was scalded. He said he applied local remedies.

Southerland's first wife was Josephine Conwell of Boston. She died of injuries, according to a jury which convicted him of manslaughter in February, 1899. Before death the woman made a statement in which she exonerated her husband and corroborated his claim that she was fatally injured in falling down a flight of stairs.

ASKS WARDEN'S REMOVAL

Investigator Says Convicts In Auburn Prison Are Driven Insane

Albany, April 29.—Governor Sulzer is expected to take quick action on the report of his investigator who looked into conditions in Auburn prison, in which it is charged cruelties and punishments worse than the tortures of ancient times are inflicted on refractory prisoners.

The report arraigns Dr. Gerin, the prison physician, on charges of brutality, indifference to suffering, refusal to treat women prisoners in childbirth and with driving scores of refractory prisoners insane by permitting their solitary confinement to be continued beyond all endurance.

George W. Blake, the investigator, recommended the immediate removal of Warden Benham, who has been in office since 1905.

FAVORS MERIT SYSTEM

Lodge Is Opposed to Shakeup In the Consular Service

Washington, April 29.—Senator Lodge defended the merit system of appointments to the consular service when Senator Johnston's resolution for an official analysis of the political and geographical composition of the service came up.

"This resolution, I take it," said Lodge, "is to form the basis of changes in the consular service. The service has been reorganized and is now the best in the world. It should not be subject to change every four years."

WEDDING GIFTS SEIZED

Englishman Refuses to Pay Duty on Presents For Intended Bride

New York, April 29.—Unromantic customs inspectors seized $10,000 worth of wedding gifts and sent them to the public stores because Sir Wilfred Peck of Seaton, Eng., refused to pay 45 percent duty on them.

They were intended for Miss Edwina Thornburgh of St. Louis, who is to become Peek's bride on May 7, and consisted of gold and silver plate from his relatives and friends.

Danced a Little Too Much

Beaver Falls, Pa., April 29.—Mrs Jon Kuxlus may die as the result of attempting to dance 300 dances at her own wedding. She collapsed when seven dances from her goal.

LONG BEFORE THE COURTS

Verdict of $52,339 Against Boston Brokers In Stock Deal

Boston, April 29.—A verdict of $52,339.99 was awarded Oscar M. Chandler, executor, in his suit against Frederick H. Prince & Co., stock brokers, by a jury in the superior court. This verdict represents $29,344 worth of stock securities lost by the late Mrs. Mary F. Colburn, and $22,995.99 in interest for thirteen years.

The plaintiff, as executor of the estate, sought to recover the money on the ground that her dealings with the stock broking firm came under the "wagering statute," whereas the defendants claimed that Mrs. Colburn, in dealing with them, ordered the stock she manipulated through them actually purchased.

The case has been before the courts for about a decade. It was heard by an auditor, then by the superior court, and was appealed to the supreme court. The last court recently ordered a new trial of the case, sustaining the plaintiff's exceptions.

SHEVLINS' BAIL RAISED

Inquiry Into Smuggling at Boston Has Taken a New Turn

Boston, April 29.—Assistant United States District Attorney Garland, who has been directing the smuggling investigation here with Assistant United States District Attorney Shea, left Boston hurriedly yesterday afternoon for New York to confer with Chief Wilkie of the United States treasury agents.

Before leaving Garland had the bail of Terrence L. Shevlin and his wife, who were indicted on charges of smuggling and conspiracy, raised from 2000 each to $5000 for Shevlin and $2500 for Mrs. Shevlin.

He also secured the release, on her personal recognizance, of Miss Margaret Mulhall, a New York dressmaker, who is under indictment on two charges of smuggling.

SAVES CLERGYMAN FROM THE GALLOWS

Daughter of Condemned Man Says She Testified Falsely

Fort Smith, Ark., April 29.—Bertha Capps, 15 years old, daughter of Rev. Marion Capps of White Bluff, sentenced to hang for killing his children, confessed she had testified falsely against her father.

It was the testimony of the girl and that of her brother, Ellis, 13 years old, that convicted Capps. It is said the boy has also repudiated the story he told at the trial.

The girl testified she had been tied in an oil soaked bed. She said she saw her father leave her room and lock the door before the fire gained headway.

In her confession she denies each one of these statements, and now says the fire undoubtedly was caused by an exploding oil lamp.

NO RACE SUICIDE HERE

Arkansas Man, Married Three Times, Is Father of Fifty Children

Walnut, Ark., April 29.—In Thomas Ellison, better known as "Uncle" Tom, it is believed the real champion of the principles of Theodore Roosevelt has been found.

Uncle Tom is 93 years old. The birth yesterday of a son to one of his granddaughters caused a recasting of Ellison's record. Here it is:

Married three times; father of 50 children; grandfather of 125 children; great-grandfather of 60 children; great-great-grandfather of 27 children. His youngest child is 11 years old, the oldest 65.

Wife Is Held as the Person Who Aided Him In Escaping

Tampa, Fla., April 29.—E. F. Andrews, under sentence of death for murder, escaped yesterday and his wife is held in the jail from which he fled, charged with furnishing the saw which released him.

Mrs. Andrews was admitted to the jail Sunday to visit her husband during religious services. During the night Andrews sawed out of the cell in "murderers' row," and then through the barred outer window into the jail yard. He scaled the prison wall without arousing the guards.

EATON'S WILL PROBATED

Lawyer Appointed Executor to Take Place of Widow of Admiral

Brockton, Mass., April 29.—The will of the late Rear Admiral Joseph G. Eaton was allowed in the probate court here by Judge Chamberlain, George W. Kelley appearing for the will. There was no opposition.

Kelley was appointed executor to take the place of Mrs. Jennie M. Eaton, now in the Plymouth county jail on the charge of having murdered her husband by poisoning him.

Colonel TODHUNTER of Missouri

By RILEY L. SAUNDERS

Copyright, 1913, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company.

There was something deeply pathetic in this eager clutching at the one remaining strand of hope. The two old friends were now making their way toward the jail to see Tom. Suddenly they came face to face with Mrs. Todhunter and Mary.

The girl advanced directly toward them with outstretched hand, her mother following.

"Howdy, Colonel Strickland!" she said, her voice trembling a little. "You are on your way to visit Tom, aren't you?"

"Yes, Miss Mary," replied Tom's father quietly. "The trial begins tomorrow, and I only left him to meet Colonel Todhunter, and he's returning with me."

"Colonel Strickland," said Mary resolutely, though her voice shook more than ever, "I want you to carry a message to Tom from me."

There was a curious little pause. Mrs. Todhunter laid her hand gently on her daughter's arm, but the girl moved away from the touch, not harshly, yet as if she felt it to be a protest.

"I want you to give Tom my love, Colonel Strickland," she said. "And I want you to tell him, from me, that I don't believe one word of these awful charges against him—not one word—either about Stam Tucker or about that—that girl!"

And as she spoke Mary Todhunter burst out crying. She dabbed piteously at her face with her handkerchief, unable to control her emotions. Then, sobbing, she turned away with her mother, no other word being spoken.

"God bless that girl of yours, Thurs!" spoke Colonel Strickland, his own voice unsteady. "She's good grit clear through—and, somehow, she gives me more courage than I've had for many a day. They haven't got Tom yet—and they'll have the fight of their lives before they do get him!"

"That's the talk!" cried Colonel Todhunter. "Face 'em that way, Bill, and we'll make 'em strain their souls for every inch they try to gain! They got to do it—by the good God up yonder in them skies, Bill, they got to do it!"

But the little flicker of encouragement caused by a girl's brave words soon died away in the somber shadow of Tom Strickland's prison. It was two very weary and gray faced old men who came away from the prisoner an hour later and parted at the jail's front, each to go to his own home.

That evening Colonel Todhunter went by appointment to the Strickland home for a conference with Tom's father and Major Gentry Dryden, leading counsel for the defense. It was nearly midnight when he returned to his own home.

He found Aunt Mirandy Ransom there. The old negress rose, trembling, at sight of him, her black hands fluttering toward him in instinctive gladness of welcome.

"Bress Gawd, yo' done come!" she cried. "I been eatin' my ole heart out waitin' fo' yo', suh! Kunn'l Todhunter, yo' got some mighty quick an' ticklish wu'k cut out fo' yo' ef yo' gwine save Mars' Tom Strickland's life—das huccome I hyar now to tell yo' erbout it, suh!"

* * * * * * *

Through the after midnight blackness that was soon to change into the gray of a cloud swept dawn a fugitive man and woman fled.

Side by side they sat in a light road wagon drawn by a rawboned horse whose long and swift stride told of its selection for this special service.

The man, gaunt, swarthy, with keen black eyes that gleamed alertly from under the wide brim of a weather beaten sombrero, seemed ill content, however, with the progress being made.

Almost incessantly he urged the horse to increased effort, now and then cursing outright in the grip of a feverish impatience.

Save when he leaned forward for this urging the man sat slouching and limp, the mark of the vagrant Ishmael on every line of body and limbs.

The woman was tense, rigid, her face set always to the front. It was framed in by a shawl thrown over her head and drawn about her shoulders. Once or twice her glance went furtively to the man beside her. Fear and distrust were in her eyes. Her hands were tightly clasped together as they lay in her lap.

Deep woods stretched on either side of the road. Their stillness was profound. The enveloping gloom seemed as of the grave itself. The woman shuddered and drew her shawl closer.

"Lord ha' mercy!" she spoke. "I can't do it, Jesse—I can't! It's worse'n murder—worse'n what's been done a'ready!"

The man laid a cruel lash across his horse's flanks. "You fool!" he muttered. "It's high time I brung you away! You lovesick fool!"

The girl's eyes flashed sullenly. "That word's a lie!" she retorted. "Ain't I goin' with you? And would I be a-doin that if I was lovesick for somebody else? It's a lie, and you know it!"

The man laughed. "If you had stayed where you was you'd h' blabbed the whole thing out and you'd be in jail now 'stead o' him."

Suddenly the woman threw her arms upward. "It'll ha'nt me to my dyin' day!" she cried. "I ought to ha' told the truth! I wish I had! I wish I had! It couldn't be no worse'n it is now!"

"I say that it could!" savagely returned the man. "You keep your mouth shut. I got all I can do to save us as it is, 'thout'n you waggin' your tongue. You keep your mouth shut!"

The woman passed her hands over her face miserably.

The man again slouched down in his seat. Now and then his moody glance turned apprehensively to his companion.

"I've done a whole lot for your sake, Lottie-May," he spoke at last. "I could ha' got away long ago. I'm takin' big chances on your account. And you don't seem to care."

Lottie-May Doggett's face grew shamed. "Yes, I do, Jesse!" she exclaimed. "I know just what you're doin' for me. The only show I got is to go with you. And you mustn't think I don't appreciate it." Her hands fluttered piteously at her throat. "My God!" she cried, her voice breaking in anguish. "Tom Strickland's goin' to be hung! He's goin' to be hung! They ain't nothin' on earth can save him!"

Far in the east the gray dawn was breaking.

"D——n Tom Strickland!" cursed the man. "I'll be glad when he is hung! You've always been in love with him!"

"He's goin' to be hung!" repeated the girl. "And they ain't no way to save him now!"

An evil mockery leaped into the man's face. "Oh, yes, there's a way," he retorted. "You go back there to that trial and confess the truth. You're the only one on God's earth that can save him. Ain't that so?"

The girl's face whitened. As the man spoke they had turned from the pike road and were going deeper into the woods. A scant light of day had come. The faces of the two were haggard and worn.

"Yes, I'm the only one!" cried Lottie-May Doggett suddenly. "And that's what I'd do now if I had the chance—tell the whole truth. I ain't thinkin' no more about me. I ain't thinkin' no more about you. I'm thinkin' about Tom Strickland!"

A forlorn and dilapidated cabin was revealed in a barren little opening ahead. The man laughed aloud as he saw it.

"You'll have to take it out in thinkin', Lottie-May!" he exclaimed triumphantly. "I've got you now where you are safe. When you and me leave that shack tonight there'll be no more talk o' you savin' Tom Strickland. We'll be headed straight for Oklahoma then, and nothin' can stop us!"

The girl's eyes rested on the miserable little cabin. An ominous light was in them. The man drew up at the hut and assisted his companion from the wagon. He pushed open a creaking door. The cabin's interior showed black and forbidding.

"That's where we stay till night time," he said. "I'll take the horse and wagon round where they won't be seen if anybody happens to come along. And I don't want no more o' your foolishness, Lottie-May!"

The girl started as if struck. "Don't talk to me like that!" she cried. "I ain't your nigger yet. I ain't got to do anything I don't feel like doin'. You're takin' too much for granted, Jesse!"

The man seemed to lose all patience at this. Grasping the girl by the shoulders he forced her into the hut. Then he disappeared. A moment later he returned.

The girl was standing against the wall. Her face was buried in her arms. Sobs shook her body. The man closed the door behind him.

CHAPTER XIII.

Capture and Trial.

FIVE miles back, on the road along which the fugitives had come, two men on horseback were galloping swiftly in pursuit. One was tall, with cool gray blue eyes under shaggy brows, gray hair, white mustache and an old fashioned imperial. His seat in the saddle was that of a seasoned cavalryman. The other was small, wiry, with a smooth shaven, hardset face, a mouth like a steel trap, cold hazel eyes that kept themselves fixed on the road ahead.

"We oughtn't to be very fur behind 'em now, Jim," spoke the first named. "Th' ain't no way they could ha' dodged from the main road, is there?"

"No, colonel, they ain't," returned the other. "Not till they come to the old dirt road that leads to the cabin I told you about. That's where they're headin' for, Colonel Todhunter, and it's where we're goin' to run upon 'em. We'll be there pretty soon too."

Colonel Todhunter's face was grim. "I hate to think of Lottie-May Doggett!" he spoke. "It's mighty bad, mighty bad, suh. I feel that sorry for poor old Rafe Doggett. Lord, Lord, the shame of it all is a-goin' to kill that good old man!"

The wiry little man to whom he spoke snapped his jaws together in angry scorn.

"That can't be helped now, colonel," he made answer. "I got to do my duty, woman or no woman!"

"I ain't askin' you to do anything less'n your duty, Jim," replied Colonel Todhunter. "And I'm just as responsible as you are. But I'm sorry, and I'm afraid too. If there's any serious trouble I hope there'll be some way o' seein' that the girl don't get hurt."

"She won't if she behaves herself," said the other. "But she's got to do that, for there ain't goin' to be no time for foolishness. You've got to forget the girl part of this business if you want to come out on top, Colonel Todhunter."

Colonel Todhunter sighed. "I reckon that's straight, Jim," he agreed.

The two rode on abreast without further words until they reached the crossroad.

"Here we are, colonel," spoke the little man, his voice low. "It's a safe bet they're layin' up till dark in that old shanty."

The two riders checked their horses to a walk.

Suddenly a woman's shriek broke the stillness. "For God's sake, Jesse!" the cry sounded. "You ain't a-goin' to kill me like a dog, are you?"

Instantly, hearing the cry, Colonel Todhunter pressed his horse to a full gallop. His companion did the same. They threw themselves from the saddle in front of the cabin. Colonel Todhunter hurled his weight against the door. It yielded, and he plunged inside.

(To be continued.)

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

EGGS IN COCOTTES.

IF you wish to serve eggs attractively provide yourself with the little individual egg cups, or cocottes. The latter are very convenient, as each has a small handle by which it may be conveniently lifted, even when hot.

The most useful cocottes are of earthenware. They will stand more rough usage than the china cups or ramekin dishes.

Individual Dishes.

Eggs Shirred In Chicken Broth.—Take the cocottes and butter them well on the inside. Stir together a cupful of chicken broth, a quarter of a cupful of butter, a cupful of cream and the whites of two eggs. Pour into the dishes and break an egg into the center of each one. Stand the dishes in hot water for about eight or ten minutes. When served, garnish with sprigs of parsley.

Culinary Melanges.

Steamed Eggs In Cocottes.—Take four eggs, four tablespoonfuls of cream, two tablespoonfuls of chopped parsley, salt and pepper and a little butter. Butter the little cocottes. Put about two tablespoonfuls of cream into each; then on to this carefully break a new laid egg. Sprinkle a little salt, pepper and parsley on the top. Place them in a pan of water to come halfway up the cups and put buttered paper over the tops. Let them steam till the eggs are just set; then serve immediately in the cups.

Eggs Shirred With Tomatoes.—Drop a bit of butter in dishes, break into each a fresh egg, season and place in the oven until the whites begin to set. Do not forget that the cooking continues for a minute after the dishes are removed from the oven. A sprinkling of minced ham, chicken, tongue or parsley may be added before the dish is sent to the table. It is these little decorative touches that add so much to the appearance of a dish.

NO BATTLESHIPS OR DESTROYERS

Were Ready for Battle at the Assembled Review

SAID CAPT. HOOD

Not one of the 31 battleships and 24 destroyers that constituted the fighting force of 127 vessels which assembled for review in New York Harbor last October was ready for war, Capt. John Hood, then captain of the dreadnought Delaware, the pennant ship of the fleet, told the Navy League at Washington recently.

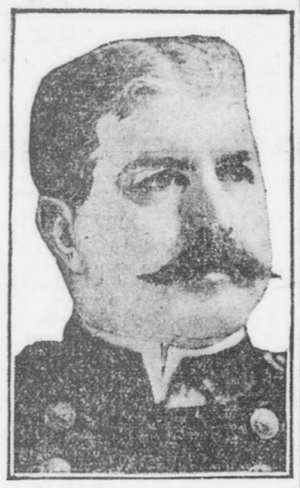

Capt. Hood, now a member of the Navy General Board, gave his views on a desirable naval policy.

"Not counting the British fleet, with which no conflict need ever be feared," he said, "in 1920, Germany can put to sea 41 battleships, of which 25 will be dreadnoughts and also 15 battle cruisers; France will have 38 capital ships of which 23 will be dreadnoughts; Japan will have 36, of which 17 will be dreadnoughts or dreadnought cruisers.

"Nothing short of the General Board's general policy of 48 battleships for the United States can even approach adequacy and a fleet inadequate is a burden without protection. At our present rate of growth we in 1920 could put out against those armaments 33 ships all told of which only 16 will be dreadnoughts.

"Today we have a fleet too small and hetergeneous to meet the ends, which justify its maintenance and too large to be carried as a burden or a plaything.

"Take as the basis of your Naval policy a building program that will give us by 1925 a fleet of 48 first line battleships, with the lesser units and auxiliaries that go with them, since it is hopeless to attain that result by 1920, the date originally called for by the general board policy.

"Cut off ruthlessly and sell and scrap all vessels on the Navy list of no military value and all superfluous yards and stations not needed for the maintenance of the fleet, which uselessly are absorbing large sums of public money in their care and upkeep.

Provide and train enough officers and men on the active list and in the reserve to fully maintain this fleet for war. Provide necessary bases and arsenals; and educate the people that no fleet is adequate for the preservation of peace which has not the readiness and strength to meet the enemy and say 'Thou shalt not.' Show them its trifling cost as compared with even the smallest and successful war— our war with Spain."

AFTERMATH OF TRAIN WRECK

Some Additional Persons Who Were Slightly Injured

IN BRAINTREE CRASH

West Quincy has practically recovered from the fright it received Monday when the train carrying many of its young men and women to their work at Braintree was wrecked near Capen's Bridge after colliding head on with a work train.

It is estimated that about 50 were more or less bruised although no serious injuries have been reported. It is possible that several who were thrown forward against seats will develop internal injuries and the majority of the young women who were riding in the passenger train are today confined to their homes suffering from shock.

Facial bruises and scalp wounds were numerous and the teeth of many suffered considerable strain from the impact with the seats. The train which was proceeding at a stiff rate up the Braintree grade had almost come to a full stop when wreck occurred. The engines pried apart are now in the repair shop and the wreckage of the combination car and a box freight is distributed along the foot of the 15 foot embankment where it was tossed by the crane on the wrecker in order to liberate the locked engines.

Service was impaired on the single branch line until shortly after noon when the regular schedule was resumed. Passengers who waitde the regular 7. 15 train to Boston came to Quincy and Quincy Adams stations on the main line.

Lillian Paradise of Dunns Hill who was slightly injured had recently left school and was making her first trip on the train. Mrs. Mary Rizzie of Bunker Hill street and Miss Delma Brunot of Willard street, both reported for duty at the Rice & Hutchins South Braintree factory but a serious reaction caused them to suspend work.

Monday afternoon claim agents and adjustors of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad personally called on all the passengers that were in the wreck and in some cases it is known prompt settlements were made.

An investigation is being conducted by the road officials as to why the work train took the track at the time it did. The heavy fog which hung over the meadows on each side of the track thickened the atmosphere and it was impossible to see objects at any distance. Several engineers viewed the spot during the day and said that it was miraculous that the passenger did not go over the embankment when the brakes were set. Much praise has been given Engineer Glidden of the passenger engine for the prompt manner in which he applied the brakes

Additional persons who were injured are:

Girl At the Horses Head Fortunately Escaped Without Injury

Department Called Out For Two Fires With Light Damage

The fire department were given two runs Monday evening. The first alarm came from Box 173 at 8.40 and was for a fire in a side room of the house of Jacob Asnes on Main street and was caused by a candle that had been left burning setting fire to the woodwork. The fire worked in behind the walls and caused a damage of $100.

While responding to the alarm Hose 4 of Quincy crashed into a buggy that had been left standing on the side of Washington street near the corner of North street. The buggy was owned by Abraham Swart of 32 Nash avenue. There was no one in the buggy at the time but Mr. Swart's daughter stood at the horses head holding him. The buggy was smashed and the horse ran away but was captured before he had gone far. Miss Swart escaped uninjured. According to the firemen there were no lights on the buggy and the driver of the apparatus did not see it until almost upon it.

A few minutes before 11 o'clock Monday night the central station auto chemical and Chief Litchfield responded on a still alarm for a fire in the cellar of a house at Montclair occupied by Iver Lund. Hardly had the apparatus passed through City Square when an alarm was sounded from Box 69 which called out the apparatus at Wollaston and Atlantic.

Mr. Lund was in the cellar filling a kerosene lamp connected with an incubator when the lamp suddenly tipped over setting fire to the kerosene. It also set fire to Mr. Lund's clothing and he was quite badly burned about the hands and legs before he could extinguish the flames.

The firemen confined the flames to the cellar and there was practically no loss.

Maximum Salary of All Grade Teachers to Be $700 From April 1

Committee Seeks New Quarters Owing to Lack of Heat

The regular meeting of the School Committee was held Tuesday evening at eight o'clock.

Present:—Messrs. Bushnell, Bruce, Foster, Hunting, Mackay, McPherson, Miller, Newcomb and the Secretary.

A delegation from the Wollaston Parents and Teachers Association was present asking that the Wollaston and Massachusetts Fields graduating class have separate graduation exercises in the Wollaston School hall. Among those who spoke were Eugene DeNormandie, Rev. Carl G. Horst and Eugene H. Sprague.

The Committee considered the financial statement with reference to the budget and voted that it was the sense of the committee that the schools be run as economically as possible, so far as the same could be done without injury to their efficiency, as long as the appropriation granted by the City Council would carry them, at the end of that time if no more money is forthcoming the schools will be closed.

The Committee on the Use of School Halls as announced by the chairman consists of the chairman, secretary and Dr. N. S. Hunting.

The resignation of Nellie E. March, teacher in the Cranch School and Bulah A. Sturtevant teacher in the Wollaston school were received and accepted.

The committees on finance and on teachers made the following recommendations which were adopted by the Committee: To increase the maximum salaries of all grade teachers to $700 dating from April 1 and the maximum salaries of Masters Assistants to $800 from the same date; also to rate the men assistants at the High school, who are not department heads or sub-masters as assistant masters and to fix the maximum salary in that position at $1,100.

The committee on rules presented the revised list of Rules and Regulations which were accepted and laid on the table until the next meeting.

It was voted that the sessions of the elementary schools hereafter be from 9 to 12 A. M. and from 1. 30 to 3.30 P. M.

The use of the Coddington school hall was granted for a lecture by Winthrop Packard on May 10 on the "Protection of Birds."

COLDWELL ONCE MORE ARRESTED

Caleb Howard Likewise Ordered to Appear in Court

For the second time within a week, Joseph H. Coldwell, who has been directing the strike of the Draper employes at Hopedale, was Tuesday night placed under arrest on a charge of violating the bylaws of the town of Hopedale. The specific charge is that he took part in a street parade which was interdicted by the town authorities.

At 10 o'clock, after Coldwell had gone to his room for the night, he was visited by Capt. William H. Proctor of the state police, who technically placed him under arrest.

Capt. Proctor told Coldwell that he would agree not to lock him up if he would promise to be in court tomorrow morning, bringing with him Caleb F. Howard of Quincy, the I. W. W. organizer; Flavio Abazzio, the strike leader, and 20 others of the strikers who were in the parade. Coldwell agreed to this condition and Capt. Proctor departed.

RAILWAY PROBE BY COMMISSION

Provided By Act Now Before the Legislature for Action

WIDESPREAD IN SCOPE

An investigation by the railroad commission and the transit commission into the service of the Boston Elevated and of the Bay State street railway company and into the matter of trolley freight franchises is proposed by a resolve reported by the committee on street railways.

Authority to administer oaths, to summon witnesses and to require the production of books and papers is given the joint board.

The resolution follows:

Resolved. that the members of the board of railroad commissioners and of the Boston transit commission are hereby authorized and directed to act as a joint commission to inquire into and consider the street railway service furnished by the Boston Elevated Railroad Company in the city of Boston and the service of the Boston Elevated Railway Company and of the Bay State Street Railway Company between the city of Boston and the cities of Chelsea and Lynn and the towns of Revere and Dedham, and between those parts of the city of Boston served by the Boston Elevated Railway Company and the Hyde Park district of said city served by the Bay State Street Railway Company, and to inquire into and consider the granting of franchises for the carrying of freight and express matter by street railway companies in this commonwealth, particularly in regard to the imposition of limitations as to the life or terms of such franchises and conditions under which the same may be exercised, and to report their conclusions and recommendations, if any to the General Court on or before the 10th day of next January.

Mayor Stone was a guest of Paul Revere Woman's Relief Corps Tuesday evening and made a brief address.

WIFE FOUND HOBART HANGING TO BEAM, FOOT OF CELLAR STAIRS

Unfortunate Man Had Been Suffering From Nervous Trouble For Months

Prominently Identified With the Universalist Church

Charles A. Hobart of 32 Bennington street, one of the best known young men of South Quincy was found dead this morning by his wife. When found he was hanging to a beam at the foot of the cellar stairs. Mr. Hobart has been a sufferer from nervousness for the past six or eight months and has been able to do but little work during that period, although he has been about most of the time. He arose as usual this morning and ate his breakfast. Nothing unusual was noticed about him by his wife. Shortly after she missed him and began a search to locate him. Going down cellar she was horrified to find his body swinging from a beam near the foot of the cellar stairs. He had evidently stood on the cellar stairs and after making a rope fast about his neck and the beam, had jumped off.

This was shortly after 8 o'clock. Mrs. Hobart ran up stairs screaming and Dr. McCauseland was quickly summoned. Dr. McCauseland cut down the body and notified the police department. Lieut. Hanson who was in charge sent the patrol wagon with the new pulmotor. An effort was made to resuscitate him with the pulmotor but the effort was unsuccessful.

Dr. Jones, the Medical Examiner is out of town and it was necessary to summons Dr. John C. Frazier of Weymouth.

Mr. Hobart was about 41 years of age and has been a resident of Quincy all his life. He was educated in the public schools of the city and after completing his education he took the government civil service examination and secured a lucerative position in the Boston Custom house where he has been employed for the past fifteen years.

He was prominently identified with the First Universalist church and had served as a member of the Parish committee, as clerk and as treasurer also as superintendent of the Sunday school.

He was also prominently identified with the Odd Fellow fraternity being a Past Grand of Mt. Wollaston lodge. He was also a member of the Encampment branch.

He was a son of Elisha Hobart of Pearl street and was born in Quincy and has always made his home here. He leaves a widow and two sons, Merrilll and Wendell and father and mother.

$1,200 BLAZE IN GERMANTOWN

Mysterious Fire at the House of Edward B. Warren

CAUGHT INSTANTLY

The house of Edward B. Warren at 162 Palmer street, Germantown was gutted by fire shortly after 6 o'clock this morning. Just how the fire started is somewhat of a mystery. Mr. Warren who occupies the house the year round got up shortly before 6 o'clock and built a fire in the kitchen stove. He and his wife then went into the yard, he to gather up some wood for the fire and Mrs. Warren to feed the chicks.

Happening to turn about while in the yard they were surprised to see smoke coming from the house. Rushing in they discovered a small fire over the sheathed kitchen. Grabbing a pan of water Mr. Warren threw it onto the blaze and the next instant the whole house seemed to be in a flame.

Box 12 located near the premises was sounded at 6.10 and this brought the fire apparatus from the Central station. When the department arrived they found the entire house in flames. Several lines of hose were laid but it was an hour or more before the fire was out and it was not until 7.45 that the recall sounded.

Chief Litchfield is of the opinion that the fire must have started in some way from a defective funnel to the kitchen stove. The house was badly gutted and the furniture practically ruined. Chief Litchfield estimates the loss on the building and contents at $1200. There was an insurance of $800 on the house and it will require fully that amount to repair the damage. There was no insurance on the furnishings and the damage on those will be a dead loss.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

A raw recruit in the Boston police department fired two shots at a man coming from his own house to go to work the other morning and then talked afterwards. Where was the civil service?

Candidate Russell has retired from the contest for the port of Boston. It was evidently intimated that the place was not for him.

President Wilson says let their be light on all public subjects. A good thing. If there was more publicity there would be less rascality.

It seems as if there might be two sides to the California alien law after all.

And by the way how much do the Japanese who are on almost every ship of the United States navy know of the internal operations of those big engines of war?

Brandeis is not on trial before the public just at present for any offense.

Sneers are credited for the cubist art fad. Judging from the exhibits they are hardly worth that exertion.

President Eliot would undoubtedly make an excellent head of the social work commission. but when it came to a proper clean up of existing conditions in Massachusetts the police could tell a thing or two that would be worth knowing.

While May is supposed to be the forerunner of the opening of the beautiful summer season it is likewise indicator of much labor agitation.

Many trees look beautiful in their blossoms at the present time.

Will Gov. Foss keep up his political moving and jaunt along with the Progressives?

King Nick of Montenegro seems to have put one over on his fellow throne occupiers in the Scutari affair.

A syndicate wants to buy up southern California. Why not go the limit and buy up the whole of Mexico at the same time.

The reports that Japan had planned to send a commissioner to this country to offer aid in the California situation, is another of the absurdities perpetrated by people who ought to know better.

Gov. Sulzer is making a record for himself. He bounces incompetents and tells them about it afterwards and in this he is backed up by the people.

There is always danger of trespassing on the railroad as some people find out to their sorrow when it is too late.

The contributors to the Wilson inaugural are receiving a rebate. That was some modest and economical induction into office. It offers a pattern of common sense should be more generally followed.

What's the matter with recognizing the Republic of China. This country should go back less than 150 years and count upon what recognition counted for in her own case.

Dr. Friedmann sold his serum in this country. Was there any violation of the foreign contract law?

Nothing strange in that if the public addresses and policies of present day public men were followed the letter S would be straight line to the pathway. through which they would lead.

THE PONY EXPRESSES.

Fourteen candidates have successfully passed the examination as it may be called to transport liquors through this city. Some of them can carry the goods from other places, while the remainder can only convey them from the depot where they arrive as freight to the home or some other place designated by the owner. The conditions under which they receive these licenses are such that there will be opportunity for the police to maintain ample supervision over the imports of liquor to the city. The expressmen, the people holding the licenses, not the drivers are supposed to present to the Chief of police reports of the amounts of liquor received or transported, the place they were delivered at and the name of the owner. It remains to be seen how closely this regulation will be followed

It is quite certain that it will tend to make many individuals, their own expressman in the conveyance of liquors into the city as it is not every one who cares to have entered as part of the police record the amounts of liquors received, and presumed to be consumed at his office. Although of course the consumption may not be confined entirely to the family as the head of the house may be a large entertainer. In the latter case if the head of the house who has many friends calling frequently wishes to keep his transactions secret, there is good chance for him to make a truck horse out of himself.

THE POLITICS OF IT.

It has been hinted and intimated in certain quarters that this grave measure which the people of California contemplate enacting to the exclusion of aliens holding land. aimed directly at the Japonese is to be treated in the usual peanut politic measure of legislation. If such is a fact it is a rather severe arraignment of Californian judgment and common sense to say nothing of fairness.

If the contention thinly veiled that some one beside the California leaders are behind this movement to embarrass the present administration, it is time that a proper rebuke was administered by the people of the country. The peace and happiness of the people of this country, and the same may hold equally true of our friends the Japanese are too high to have them juggled with for the aim of personal ambition. The people of California are well able to solve the problem wisely and well. They are on the ground floor. They are in touch with the situation. They know what foreign land ownership will mean to them at the present day and will mean for the future of their state. That they should settle it from this knowledge and determination to preserve their future integrity should be enough and worthy of being respected. Let the people settle it, but the politicians who would make a foot ball of this serious problem should be immediately cast adrift. They cannot be any too great aid to any great cause.

BRYAN'S POLICIES.

"New times bring new issues. Sixteen years ago Bryan sought the presidency by accentuating low prices.His 16 to 1 was put forth as a method of raising prices— and hence, cost of living. He wasn't elected President, but lo and behold, now he holds the first cabinet position in an administration committed to do just the opposite of what Bryan promised in 1896.

He promised higher prices with free and unlimited coinage of silver at the "constitutional ratio of 16 to 1." Now the Wilson administration promises lower prices, and it hopes to obtain them through reductions in the tariff.

You'll have to admit that Bryan is a progressive. Were he not, he could not have landed in office on a platform for lower prices, when his own platform a few years ago was for an increase of prices.—Tacona Ledger.

BENEFIT A SUCCESS.

A benefit dance for Robert McKeene was held in Clan McGregor hall Tuesday evening, under the auspices of Clan McGregor. There were vocal solos by Messrs. Melrose and McFarland, and recitations by Adam Orde.

The affair was very successful, judging by the crowded hall. Refreshments were served during a short intermission. The committee in charge was Angus Martin, chairman; Alfred O. Diack, Charles Nicholls, M. A. MacDonald, Alexander Mavers, Angus Kerr, James Birnie and W. Johnson.

FIFTH FOR ORIOLE.

The Oriole A. A. won its fifth consecutive victory defeating the Doble A. C., in baseball, by a score of 14 to 5 Tuesday afternoon. The pitching of Catler, of the Orioles. was the feature of the game. The batteries: Oriole A. A., Catler and Grossman; Doble A. C., McKenzie and Williams. Umpire, Berman. The Orioles have not lost a game and are willing to play any 11-12 year old team in the city.

TWENTY-FIVE CANDIDATES

Given Famous Third Degree of Knights of Columbus

BY AVE MARIA COUNCIL

The third degree of the Knights of Columbus was exemplified by Distirct Deputy John A. Feley of Dorchester, assisted by District Deputy Daniel J. Gallagher of Boston, in St. Joseph's hall, Tuesday evening under the auspices of Ave Maria Council.

The candidates numbered 25 and represented Councils in surrounding cities and towns. A large list of visitors were present. An auto truck transported 30 members of Seville Council. No. 90, from Brockton and Weymouth and Braintree Councils were represented.

The guests of the evening were Rev. Fr. Henry T. Grady and Rev. Fr. William J. Duffy of St. Mary's Church, Rev. Fr. John J. Coan and Rev. Fr. P. J. Scannell of St. John's Church, Rev. Fr. John P. Cuffe of Sacred Heart Church, Atlantic and Rev. Fr. Andrew J. Fitzgerald of St. Francis Church of Braintree, Grand Knight Thomas Shea of Braintree was among those present. Grand Knight Bernard M. O'Neil of Ave Maria Council had charge of the arrangements.

HARD TO FLOAT THE CITY BONDS

Four Percent at Par Not Eagerly Sought at Present

$110,000 WORK HELD UP

Three loans authorized by the City Council since the first of January are being held up because the City Treasurer has been unable to get any bid for the bonds from any of the banking firms, at the interest named in the loan order, namely four per cent. The loans in question are $50,000 for water extensions, $40,000 for sewer extensions and $20,000 for stand pipe at Houghs Neck.

The market is full of bonds at four per cent, there are no buyers at the present time. Usually cities and towns have no difficulty in selling their bonds for a good premium but at the present time the City Treasurer has been unable to sell them even at par.

The loans of the City of Quincy are placed through the Old Colony Trust Co. by whom they are guaranteed and although bids have been advertised for not one has been received, which means that the work that was contemplated by these loans is being held up.

The general impression seems to be that after the first of the month there will be more money in the market for investment but should this not prove it is probable that the City Council will be asked to increase the percent to at least four and one half.

RAMONA BORDEN LONGS FOR HOME

Finds No Pleasure In Living In Hotels and Schools

GOING TO LIVE WITH MOTHER

Would Be Far Happier, However, If Her Parents, Who Have Not Lived Together For Three Years, Would Become Reconciled — Exonerates Mrs. White From "Kidnapping"

New York, April 30.—The cry of a lonely girl for a mother, a father and a home came from Miss Ramona Borden, 17-year-old runaway daughter of Gail Borden, who explained why she left a sanatorium near Pompton Lake, N. J., a week ago, giving the impression she had been kidnapped.

"For four years I have lived in one hotel and then another," said Miss Borden in a tone of deep feeling. "I have been in one school and then in another, with a sanatorium in between. I wanted my mother and my father and a home. I wanted the open air and dogs and horses, as other girls have.

"I am going back to Los Angeles with my mother, and I feel that I shall be happy, although I would be far happier if my father and mother were together."

Although not divorced Borden and his wife have not lived together for three years. Mrs. Borden sued for divorce, but the suit failed. Miss Ramona then went on:

"It makes me sad to think my father and mother cannot be reconciled. Father has not spoken to mother since she has been in New York. I have acted as the go-between for them. I wish there could be a reconciliation, and pray for it, but it seems hopeless."

Miss Borden exonerated Mrs. Helen White, wife of a Cleveland millionaire, from the "kidnapping" charge. She said she had written to her mother to take her away from the sanatorium, where she had been placed by her father, and became impatient, not realizing the length of time if took a letter to get to the Pacific coast. So she wrote to Mrs. White to help her.

After Miss Borden fled with Mrs. White and a companion to Newark, N. J., they came to New York and then went to Boston.

Miss Borden did not give the appearance of being ill or nervous. On the contrary, she was self possessed and gave every indication of being in the best of health.

"This is the second time I have run away, and I hope it will be the last," concluded the young heiress with a laugh.

Arrangements have been made for Ramona to leave for California today with her mother, who arrived here Monday night from Los Angeles. There will be no contest for the guardianship of the young woman.

Attorneys for the accused men were told by their clients that Ohm, who walked a beat in the day time, "tipped them off" to the place on his beat which they should rob at night. They asserted Ohm participated in the profits of thirty-seven "jobs" since January. Ohm denied the charges.

GETS AWAY WITH $60

Masked Robber Demands $800 From Treasurer of Peabody Bank

Peabody, Mass., April 30.—A man armed with a revolver and wearing a napkin over the lower half of his face entered the Peabody Co-operative bank, held up John A. Teague, the treasurer, and, obtaining the contents of the cash drawer, about $60, escaped.

Teague and his assistant, Maria H. Osgood, were the only persons in the room, which was on the second floor of a business block in the centre of the city, when the man appeared. Shoving his revolver through the window in the grating, he said: "Give me $800, quick!"

Teague attempted to parley and the visitor began to count, "One, two, three." This was enough for Teague, who pulled open the cash drawer, explaining that its contents represented all the cash that he could hand over in a hurry. The robber gathered up the paper money and the coin and bolted.

The annual meeting was held April 21. The club also voted to purchase a lantern for the High school.

The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Arthur Vincent Harper; vice presidents, Mrs. Parker T. Pearson and Mrs. Walter W. Hersey; recording secretary, Mrs. John P. Hunt; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Arthur H. Alden; treasurer, Mrs. C. Will Bailey; executive committee, Mrs. John B. Worster, Mrs. Fred O. Sterling, Mrs. William A. Drake, Mrs. John F. Originally the membership was composed of women living in Weymouth, Braintree, Quincy and Hingham. Since then clubs have been organized in South Weymouth, Braintree and Quincy. Notwithstanding this fact the Monday Club has succeeded in keeping its membership to about its present number.

During the existence of the club it has done much practical as well as philanthropic work. For the past four years it has maintained a scholarship in Maryville College. This institution is devoted to the education of worthy white young women living in the mountain district of Kentucky.

The club was instrumental in having sewing introduced into the Weymouth public schools and also the stamp savings system. With the co-operation of the Old Colony club it is paying the cost of the instruction in sewing. It has also supported a district nurse and contributed $100 for the Boston Floating Hospital.

MOTHERS' PENSION BILL.

The Mothers' Pension bill in which Mrs. Robert Park of Wollaston is interested and worked hard to have become a law in Massachusetts meets with success in other states.

Pennsylvania is to test the mothers' pension system. Governor Tener having approved the bill recently passed by the Legislature providing for county system of pensions for mothers under the administration of a commission of from five to seven women to be named by the governor for each county availing itself of the provisions of the law. The trustees are to investigate all cases and may recommend payments to any abandoned mother or widow who is unable to maintain her children at home. Payments are to be made monthly and the combined maximum payment shall not exceed $12 a month for one child, $20 a month for two children, $25 a month for three children and $5 a month for each additional child. For the purposes of the law an appropriation of $200,000 is made.

The mothers' pension system has been put in operation in four States and has been advocated by many organizations of Pennsylvania men and women.

QUINCY ALLIANCE.

Quincy Alliance held the last meeting of the season Monday afternoon in First Church parlor. It was the annual meeting for reports and election of officers. Fine reports were given showing good work along all lines. There has been an average attendance of 40 each meeting. Twenty dollars was contributed to the Associated Charities, ten to the Cheerful Letter work and five to the Boston Alliance. Many appeals had been answered by money and articles for fairs etc., and after meeting all obligations there is a surplus in the treasury.

The following officers were elected:

President—Mrs. Thomas Fenno.
1st Vice President—Mrs. A. Isabelle Davis.
2d Vice President—Mrs. Henry M. Faxon.
Recording Secretary—Miss Merriam
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. Eugene Atwood.
Treasurer—Miss Harriet B. Pierce.
Directors—Mrs. George G. Saville, Mrs. George E. Paffmann, Mrs. Ralph L. Lovell, Mrs. Charles H. Johnson, Mrs. N. S. Hunting, Miss Belle Nightingale, Mrs. Warren Anderson, Mrs. John O. Short, Mrs. Walter E. Piper, and Mrs. Osborne Rogers.

The chairmen of committees will be selected by the above officers.

Following the business Rev. Joseph P. McCarthy of Waltham gave a most entertaining paper on Robert Burns and the afternoon closed with the usual social tea, the hostesses being Mrs. William B. Nichols and Mrs. John Christiansen.

WASHINGTON ECHOES.

The mid-biennial council of the General Federation of Women's clubs last week in Washington, D. C., brought out an attendance of nearly 1500 club women, every state being represented. There were 60 from Massachusetts, among them Miss Georgia E. Bacon of Worcester and Mrs. Emmons Crocker of Fitchburg who are on the Council, also Mrs. Henry C. Mulligan president of the state federation.

Sessions were held every day which were full of interest, every side of club life being touched upon showing grand work accomplished for social uplift. There was also time for sightseeing and a reception at the White House when 1539 women shook hands with President and Mrs. Wilson. Members also attended sessions of Congress and heard some spirited debates on tariff and suffrage.

Of the business sessions of the club one thought impressed on the club women was the need of greater activity in raising the money for the endowment fund of $100,000. As there are a million women in the Federation this would only mean ten cents if each contributed. The amount to be raised has been apportioned to each state according to club women in the state. Massachusetts apportionment is $10,000. Of this so far only a little over $5000 has been raised. When told of the use to which the $100,000 endowment fund was to be put every woman felt the need of the fund and resolved to take home to her club her impression of its benefit to the cause. When one considers the number of energetic women working for humanity for sanitary conditions in cities and towns; for children; for health, pure food, education civic and social service and know that these committees are allowed only $100 with which to work and in most cases have to be women of means to pay their own traveling expenses the need of the fund is seen. It needs money to accomplish results—to go to the legislature and demand laws to protect women, children and the homes, etc. The endowment fund of $100,000 well invested will give each year a fund for the General Federation to work with and when one realizes what they are already accomplishing without it, one is impressed with what can and will be done along all lines in the years to come.

It is hoped all club women will realize the importance of this fund and if they have not already contributed, do so at their earliest opportunity and become a part of this great uplift movement.

sion to equip one of the ante-rooms connected with the school hall as a school library and reading room; also to use the school basement and playground this summer as a supervised playground.

The Superintendent was authorized to advertise for bids for fuel for the next school year in the usual form.

The Superintendent was also empowered to arrange to divide the grammar school graduations this year, using all the school halls in the city in order that more parents might have an opportunity to attend.

Because of the difficulty in securing proper heat in the School Committee rooms a Sub-Committee was authorized to see what can be secured in the way of more suitable quarters.

MODERN ART EXHIBIT.

The International Exhibition of Modern Art, organized by the Association of American Painters and Sculptors, which made a tremendous success in New York and Chicago, opened in Boston at Copley hall, April 28 and will continue until May 19; hours 9 A. M. to 5.30 P. M. week days and 1 P. M. to 5 P. M. Sundays.

The "Cubists," so called, including Picasso, Picabia, Marcelle Duchamp, whose work includes the famous "Nude Descending the Stairs;" Jacques Villon, Derain, Mlle. Laurencin, the only woman representative of the School; etc., occupy Allston hall.

As in New York there will be no less than thirteen paintings by Gauguin, the finest representation of this master of decorative color and design ever publicly shown, and including the great panel which was never publicly seen out of the house of its present owner until it was lent to the Association.

The large Cezanne group includes the "Old Woman with the Rosary," more reproductions of which have been published in American newspapers and magazines than of any other modern painting.

There are eighteen Van Goghs, among them being the celebrated "Ball at Arles," and the blue "self-portrait," a tragic piece of Self-revelation of this most subjective of painters. These three artists from the fountain head of the whole "modern movement" in Europe, from the time of the break with Impressionism.

Until this exhibition Augustus John, the Welsh-Gypsy painter was hardly a name outside England. A large group of his work, lent by the eminent connoisseur and collector John Quinn of New York, has been one of the great features of the exhibition. Boston is to have the advantage of seeing a number of this artist's paintings which it was impossible to show in New York and Chicago, on account of delay in shipment. They come to this city directly.

Hanging with the Johns are paintings by the Englishman Conder, now a rage in London and New York, and very difficults to obtains, and examples of Sichert, Derwent Lees, a new name in America; and the English Innes, a painter who shows strong Chinese influences. The Irishman represented are the veteran Nathaniel Hone, George Russell ("A.E.") and Jack B. Yeats, brother of the poet.

The public here will find, in all probability, that the "new men" among the foreign sculptors have gone even further in their development than the painters. Among the large pieces to be shown are the "Kneeling One" by Lehmbruck, "The Back" by Matisse, the heroic panel by Bourdelle, and "The Girl with the Jug" by Bernard. Among Brancusi's sculpture shown are the much discussed "Portrait of Mlle. Pagany" and "The Sleeping Muse." The Archipankos include his group called "Family Life."

The Copley Society in bringing the International Exhibition of Modern Art to Boston says its association is composed of persons of varying tastes and predilections, who are agreed that the time has arrived for giving the public here the opportunity to see for themselves the results of new influences at work in other countries in an art way.

The pupils of the public schools are having a weeks' vacation this week. The last term before the summer vacation will commence next Monday.

INSURGENTS TAKE PRECIOUS METAL

Villa's Men Carry Nearly $100,000 Worth With Them

El Paso, Tex., April 30.—Unlike Captain Kidd's buccaneers, Francisco Villa's insurgents refuse to bury their booty. With them over steep mountain trails they are carrying nearly $100,000 worth of silver and gold bullion, weighing nearly a ton. This was reported by American ranchmen arriving here from the Madera district, where Villa is operating.

The treasure was captured from a Mexico Northwestern passenger train bound for Chihuahua City from the Guerrero mining district.

The metal is packed in a wagon drawn by a team of mules. Beside the wagon ride ten guards picked from Villa's 200 followers.

FACE CHARGES OF CONSPIRACY

Four Former Police Inspectors on Trial In New York

STATE CALLS THEM GRAFTERS

Said to Have Waxed Rich on Plunder Wrung From Evil-Doers as Price of Protection—Have Been on Defensive Ever Since Murder of Gambler Rosenthal Last July

New York, April 30.—Except for the notorious case of Lieutenant Charles Becker, the most important police prosecution ever brought in the courts of New York was begun before Justice Seabury when four members of the department—men who have held the highest command rank in the force—were tried for conspiracy to obstruct justice.

Dennis Sweeney, James E. Hussey, James F. Thompson and John J. Murtha are the defendants. All have been inspectors. Now they are nominally captains but under suspension. They are charged with the performance of an act that is totally opposed to their oaths as policemen; instead of upholding the laws they are accused of seeking to subvert them.

The motive imputed to them is self-preservation. The state charges that the four are grafters—that they have waxed rich on plunder wrung from wrong-doers as the price of protection. To prevent the accusations of blackmail from being substantiated against them, the prosecution asserts the quartet banded together and sought to keep certain witnesses out of the jurisdiction and bribe others to hold their tongues.

Every method that has long characterized the vast impalpable but powerful system—as the members of the plunder brotherhood are called; each standing by the other through all attacks—has been employed by the policemen, who have been on the defensive since July 16 last, when at 2 o'clock in the morning Herman Rosenthal was shot and killed by the agents of Becker. He awaits execution at Sing Sing, but before he has expiated his crime it is believed by the district attorney that a long procession of former associates will have been received into the state prison.

In fact the parade is already under way. Two of the subordinates of Sweeney, one of the four to face trial now, have been convicted. One, Hartigan, got two and a half years for perjury; the other, Robinson, was sentenced to six years for extortion.

More than a score of other indictments remain to be disposed of, and the prosecution is hopeful that by the time the last is reached a long step at last will have been taken to clean up the police force. The cleaning-up process has been done entirely from the outside. Instead of help only hindrance has been offered by the heads—real and titular—of the department since the murder of Rosenthal until now.

A civilian collector of the confederacy that ruled so long in the sixth inspection district—a hotbed of police corruption—named Ashley Shea also took a plea and turned state's evidence. There are five members of the force, sergeants or patrolmen, awaiting trial, but before they are reached it is probable that still other inspectors will be named as grafters.

ALLEGED SLAYER OF WIFE

Sutherland Is Held Without Bail After Pleading Not Guilty

Hingham, Mass., April 30.—James R. Sutherland pleaded not guilty to the charge of murdering his wife of four months, Winnifred, when arraigned in court here before Judge Kelly. The crime, it is alleged, was committed at Whitman.

Bail was refused the accused man and he was committed to the Plymouth jail to await a hearing before the district court sitting at Abington May 7.

The deed with which Sutherland is now charged, the police allege, parallels that for which he served a prison sentence after the death of his first wife.

Mrs. Sutherland had been scalded and badly bruised. The police charge Sutherland with beating her to death. He contends that she fell down stairs.

MESSAGE FROM FOSS ON FLAG "AD" BILL

Asks For Longer Period Before Becoming Operative

Boston, April 30.—Governor Foss sent a special message to the legislature asking that the date for enactment on which the bill to prevent the misuse of the American flag by displaying it as an advertisement be extended.

In the message the governor states that he has been the recipient of many representations "that the act will impose a great hardship upon many thousands of dealers throughout the state, unless it is so amended as to give the merchants of the state time to dispose of such goods as they have already ordered or have in stock, upon which the prohibited imprint appears."

London, April 30.—A liking for having her photograph taken in unusual poses will figure in the coming divorce suit of the Duchess of Westminster.

It is said the duke wanted to associate with actresses and sporty friends, but wanted his wife to be an Alice-Sit-by-the-Fire. She refused to play the part, deserting it for a more lively one.

HELPED MURDER HACKETT GIRL

Convict Unravels Mystery of Many Years' Standing

SAYS HE CAN PROVE IT ALL

Dunbar Declares Son of a Neighbor Killed Belle of Maine Town—Confesses to Rid Himself of Girl's Spirit and to Clear Mrs. Raymond, Who Was Accused of the Crime

New York, April 30.—Haunted for eight years by the visions of the girl writhing on the ground as the strangling cord was drawn tighter about her throat, Dillon Dunbar confessed in Blackwell's island prison to aiding in the murder of Mattie Hackett in Readfield, Me.

The convict poured out his story to officials here and heaved a sigh of relief as the awful burden of the secret crime was lifted from his breast.

With damning sincerity in every tone he told how the 17-year-old daughter of Levi S. Hackett, the Readfield, Me., farmer, was lured from her home and slain by a young blood, the son of a neighbor, who wanted "to get her out of the way," while he helped to smother her frantic struggles for life.

"I might have borne the awful presence night and day of Mattie Hackett's spirit," sobbed Dunbar, "but by its side I always saw the miserable face of that living woman who has gone all these years through a world that looked askance at her and whispered behind her back that she was the girl's murderer. I mean Mrs. Elsie Hobbs Raymond.

"Her trial almost drove me to confess. But I was sure that at last they would prove she did not do it. When she was acquitted only for lack of evidence it broke me all up. I suffered more and more. I could not eat or sleep. If anyone else had been suspected it would have killed me. I am glad my sanity has remained so that I am able to confess and clear that long-suffering mother once for all in the minds of everyone.

"I can prove everything I say. There is a turnkey in the Kennebec county jail who knows who committed the crime. There was a third man with us who lured Hackett out of the house while we got his daughter away with us."

The killing of Mattie Hackett, the belle of her village, found strangled near her home at Readfield on the night of Aug. 11, 1905, thrilled Maine and New England from time to time for years, as no murder of recent times has ever done.

The trial of Mrs. Raymond for the murder last fall, seven years after the crime, was almost unprecedented.

Dispatches from Kennebec county authorities last night said the confession is credited there. The details of how Hackett was got out of his home by a third man coincide with the father's story of the last hours of his murdered girl.

As a man clearing his soul, Dunbar told without faltering how he, a 16-year-old boy at the time, made the preparations for the killing and of his harrassed escape from the state after the crime.

Dunbar was arrested in Cheyenne, Wyo., last November on the charge of having absconded with several hundred dollars from the Williamsburg Pork Packing company of Brooklyn, was brought to New York, tried and convicted and sentenced to nine months' imprisonment.

Authorities Await Full Details

Augusta, Me., April 30.—The Kennebec county authorities here received unofficial communications relative to an alleged confession of Richard F. Dunbar, a prisoner at Blackwell's Island, New York, and expect today to get the full text of the document.

Sheriff Mitchell said an immediate investigation of the matter would be pursued, and while no record existed of any arrest of Dunbar, the entire phase of the situation would be gone carefully over.

The murder of Mattie Hackett is one of the great unsolved mysteries of this section of the country.

Three administrations have probed the affair. Mrs. Elsie H. Raymond has been placed on trial, charged with the crime, and acquitted. Her defense was that tramps committed the deed, one of the most atrocious in the history of crime in this state.

The speaker took to task Theodore Roosevelt and the Progressive party for making a division of the party on issues which were not clear or specific.

"Clincher" Paint

We know a paint which holds to the wood like a driven nail. Seasoned lumber is porous. The pores are the empty sap-cells. White lead paint, which dries on the wood in the form of a solid, elastic film, fastens into these pores, and the whole coat of paint is actually riveted like armor-plate to the surface it decorates and protects.

BEYMER-BEAUMAN WHITE LEAD

make the paint that spreads into a solid body. It becomes a part of the wood itself—an outer layer that preserves the life of the lumber.

We sell it as well as other painting requisites. Come in and have a talk with us about painting.

Colonel TODHUNTER of Missouri

By RILEY D. SAUNDERS

Copyright, 1913, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company.

Colonel Todhunter covered him with a swiftly drawn pistol. "Hands up, Chickasaw! We'll 'tend to Lottie-May ourselves—and to you. This is the sheriff o' Ralls county I got with me."

The man turned. He looked into the muzzles of two revolvers, the sheriff being well nigh as quick to draw as Colonel Todhunter. Their menace did not invite resistance. The man saw this truth instantly. Colonel Todhunter's steady eyes held his. The colonel spoke to the girl without looking at her.

"Git off there to one side, Lottie-May," he said. "Quick!"

The girl sprung from under the knife. "Thank God, you come, Colonel Todhunter!" she cried. "Thank God—oh, thank God!"

And at the girl's cry the man laughed aloud. He threw his knife to the floor.

"Hands up, Chickasaw."

Then, empty handed, he stood confronting his captors.

* * * * * * *

The trial of Tom Strickland had been relentlessly hurried to the day of its closing by a political prosecution working through a complaisant judge servile to machine influence.

From that early moment of the selection of a jury the truth of a merciless haste was in evidence. It was explained by the court that there was imperative need for as little delay as might be possible, the docket being crowded and many cases remaining to be disposed of during the present term. The grim fact was that Colonel Strickland's enemies felt sure of a conviction and were determined that the verdict should be rendered in time to remove whatever peril of his nomination might still remain.

The evidence scored heavily against Tom from the start.

There was plainly sounded a note of somewhat insolent confidence, almost like jubilation, in the swift announcement of the state's readiness for trial. Colonel Bill Strickland, gray and pinched of face, recognized its instant menace. His closely shut lips broke their rigid lines piteously, precisely as they had done when Tom was brought into court and took his seat confronting the jury.

At the same moment a swift flash of anticipated triumph leaped into the eyes of old Ephraim Tucker, sitting with the state's counsel. Tom's father saw this, and his jaws set hard at the sight.

"They're feeling pretty sure of a conviction," he whispered to Major Gentry Dryden. "Is it likely they've obtained evidence against Tom that we don't know anything about?"

The lawyer shook his head. "I hardly think so," he replied. "We've got a line on all their witnesses, I believe. I can't figure out how they'll be able to spring a surprise on us."

But one sinister sentence in the prosecuting attorney's opening statement to the jury undeceived him.

"We shall prove, gentlemen, beyond a reasonable doubt," the state's counsel said, "the motive which, we claim, led Thomas W. Strickland to slay Stamford Tucker, and then"—moving a step nearer to the jury and lifting one hand impressively—"having proved this, we shall establish by the testimony of an eyewitness the fact of Thomas W. Strickland's presence at the scene of the murder at the time of its commission."

Major Gentry Dryden, in spite of himself, started at hearing this crushing announcement. Something of fierce resentment, pathetic in its impotency, showed in Colonel Strickland's grizzled countenance. Tom's face, a helpless perplexity in his eyes, went deadly white.

The atmosphere became tense with the sudden dramatic grip of the situation thus created.

And the hearing of testimony for the state began.

It went forward with merciless precision and dispatch, a certainty and rapidity so well ordered as to be overwhelming in moral effect.

The evidence was cruelly against Tom Strickland. Two witnesses, a farmer and his son, testified to finding the dead body of Stam Tucker by the roadside, at a point midway between the Tucker home and the town of Nineveh, at daybreak on the morning of the 27th day of July just past. They were on their way into town to sell garden produce. The dead man lay on his back just at the edge of the road. There was a bullet hole in his forehead. A pistol, with one chamber empty lay an inch or two distant from his right hand. The witnesses had hurried into Nineveh and notified the authorities.

Simeon Birdsong testified that bad feeling had existed between Thomas W. Strickland and Stamford Tucker since the night of the clash between the Strickland and Yancey factions at the opening rally of the Strickland campaign. The witness stated that the accused at that time made threats to "get even" with Tucker for attempting to break up the Strickland meeting. On the following day the accused had openly insulted Tucker in the barroom of the Nineveh hotel and had knocked him down a short time later when they again met in the same place. It was generally believed that there would be a bloody encounter between them before the campaign closed. Other associates of the dead man and the accused testified to the same facts.

Mrs. Todhunter, whose appearance as a witness for the state was a dramatic surprise and who was pitifully agitated, testified to the fact of the accusation made against Thomas W. Strickland by Lottie-May Doggett at the reception and hop given by the Nineveh Light infantry, and her testimony was supported by that of several other ladies who heard the accusation.

Nicholas Bledsoe, the bartender in the saloon frequented by the Yancey-Tucker faction, testified to the facts of the two visits to his place made by the accused on the forenoon and evening of the 26th day of July just past. On the occasion of the latter visit the accused had told him that Stamford Tucker was the man whom Lottie-May Doggett should rightfully have charged with her ruin; that the girl had told him, the accused, of Tucker's meeting her secretly, and that he meant to make Tucker acknowledge the truth publicly or else kill him. This witness' testimony established the hour of 8:30 on that night as the exact time at which Tom Strickland had left the barroom to go out to the Tucker home for the purpose of compelling Stamford Tucker to agree to make such an acknowledgment or of forcing a hostile meeting in the event of his refusal.

White haired Mrs. Tucker, the dead man's mother; Katherine Tucker, his sister, and Ellen Barry, domestic in the Tucker home, testified that Stamford Tucker had left the house at or about 8:30 o'clock on the night of the 26th of July past, saying that he might be late in returning. He had not told them where he was going. They had believed he was going into the town of Nineveh.

Dr. Longford, the county coronor, testified to the established facts of the inquest that had resulted in a verdict holding Thomas W. Strickland for the killing of Stamford Tucker.

Luther Bradfield, proprietor of a hardware store in Nineveh, testified that Thomas W. Strickland had purchased a revolver from him on the morning after the opening of the Strickland campaign in the Nineveh town hall. He identified the weapon taken from the accused at the time of his arrest as the one thus purchased and stated that the bullet found in Stamford Tucker's brain was fired from a pistol of the same caliber.

Colonel Thurston T. Todhunter and Miss Lottie-May Doggett had not answered to their names when called as witnesses for the prosecution. The deputy sheriff sent to bring them into court had returned later and announced that he had been unable to find them. This had occasioned much surprise, but, as both the state and the defense felt assured of their appearance at almost any moment, the examination of other witnesses proceeded.

The case against Tom Strickland began to assume its most ominous aspect immediately following the testimony of Bradfield, the hardware dealer.

The prosecuting attorney turned, smiling, from a whispered consultation with old Ephraim Tucker.

"Call Abraham L. Tolliver!" he said.

A negro man about forty years of age took the stand in answer to the sheriff's cry. He seemed frightened and reluctant to testify.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

EARLY ASPARAGUS.

ONE of the most attractive vegetables available at this season is fresh asparagus. It never tastes so good as in the spring and in combination with other vegetables may be made into many wholesome dishes.

Excellent With Sauces.

There are many ways of treating cold asparagus, all of which are appetizing.

With just a French dressing it is dainty. With a little mustard added to the dressing it has an agreeably pungent taste.

With a mayonnaise or sauce tartare it is delicious. Lemon juice or simply salt is used on chilled asparagus.

To be eaten cold asparagus must always be well drained and perfectly chilled.

A Sustaining Dish.

Asparagus and Eggs.—Take the tender portions of asparagus stalks and cut into half inch lengths. Boil them in salted water for ten minutes or until tender. Beat the yolks and whites of six eggs separately. Stir into the yolks one tablespoonful each of cream and melted butter, seasoning with salt and pepper. Drain the asparagus and mix with the yolks of the eggs, turn into a saucepan well buttered, stir in the whites, heat through and serve. Garnish with croutons.

Vegetable Combinations.

Turnip and Asparagus Salad.—Take new turnips and cook in boiling salted water until tender. Drain and cut out centers and form in cups. When cold sprinkle them with oil and lemon juice, let stand for half an hour and just before serving arrange the cups on lettuce leaves and fill them with cooked and chilled asparagus tips that have been mixed with French dressing.

With Mashed Potatoes.

Asparagus and Potatoes.—Steam a quart of tender new potatoes and two bundles of asparagus. Mash the potatoes, turn on a hot platter and place the asparagus tips around them. Make a dressing of the yolks of three hard boiled eggs rubbed smooth with half a cupful of melted butter, the juice of a lemon and a saltspoonful of salt and a dash of cayenne. Mix over boiling water and pour over the vegetables just before serving.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

POEHLER'S GREAT WORK COUNTED

In Bringing Boston Championship to Chauncey Team

CAPTURED CASH PRIZE

When the Boston City league prizes are awarded next week the champion Chauncey team will be well to the front for the best offered by the organization. Manager Bill Beatty will take the team three-string trophy, the capital prize for winning the championship, and Paul Poehler will gather the purse offered for the best individual three-string in the league and also the prize for leading the bowlers at the finish.

Followers of the team claim that had Poehler rolled the full complement of matches, instead of 23 out of the 28 scheduled, Chauncey would have set up a record hard to surpass. Owing to special events Poehler was unable to take part and by his absence the average of the champions suffered.

The bowling of Poehler throughout the season was remarkable. Only on a few occasions did he fall below the 300 mark. This was charged to overwork on the lanes.

Only Poehler and Ducky Holmes broke into the high average column. The former led the league with an average of 105 and Holmes has an average of 101. The only peggers to approach the bowling of Poehler were McKee of Boylston and Rouse of Carruth. This team trailed the champion throughout the season and McKee at one time showed promise of going to the front, but Poehler settled down to business and regained his place and held it since.

Poehler on Nov. 13 in a match against the McCarthy team fell but a few pins short of the world mark. In his three strings he garnered 372 pins by the most brilliant kind of bowling. He was forced to do his best as both Beatty and Holmes were knocking the pins in all directions. By a fine spurt Poehler went to the top and garnered the honors of the night and also the season. Beatty and Holmes were tied with 340 each. Everyone but Williams was in his element that night. Griffin hit for 303, but Williams was unable to do better than 259 maples.

FORE RIVER AND QUINCY BATTLE

Former will Put Forth Effort to Retain Soccer Trophy

Soccer football in Quincy has reached an interesting stage.

Fore River, by virtue of having beaten Trimo Satruday, is now in the semifinal and will meet Quincy at Quincy Saturday. As both teams hail from here, great rivalry exists between them. Both are, of course, anxious to be in the final, and Fore River especially, as present cup holder, is anxious to return the trophy, so Saturday's contest should be one worth seeing.

NO TAG NEEDED FOR BATHING

Demure Miss Surprised at the Freedom Permitted in Quincy

The unnanounced arrival of a winsome miss at the office of city clerk Tuesday and her request for a brass tag which would permit her to plunge into the waters of Quincy Bay at the Wollaston Beach when she took the notion was the signal for hats off. A few men in the office who were signing license applications looked up in surprise while the miss was asked to repeat her request.

Embarrassed by the scrutiny of those present and their evident surprise she managed to gasp out her previous words, all the while nervously fumbling with the catch of a handbag she was carrying.

When informed that she could swim as often as she liked she said that she was a stranger here and having spent last summer at a resort where such regulations were in effect she supposed that Quincy required its bathers to act accordingly.

After a brief talk smiles were pleasantly exchanged, the stranger left and the office force and those present breathed a sigh of relief.
